A creepy stretch of woods

HAUNTS & JAUNTS

By Rick Hinton

We Southside residents can grow comfortable in our setting, however, there are new discoveries if we only hop in the car and point our vehicle in a new direction. For paranormal ramifications it extends farther south along the corridor of Highway 37, past Martinsville, making the climb towards Bloomington, finally arriving at Morgan Monroe State Forest.

The second largest state forest in Indiana, Morgan Monroe encompasses some 24,000 acres. Out of former abandoned farmland the state forest has transitioned into a mecca of hiking trails (four), panning for gold and fishing in Cherry Lake. It is also one of the creepiest stretches of woods I have ever encountered. There's a sense that all is not as it should be. Others think so also.

Bigfoot sightings have been reported (a Bigfoot television show filmed an episode there). There's talk of UFO sightings. And there's Stepp Cemetery, buried deep within the confines of the forest....

Stepp Cemetery is a long time host, dating back to the 19th century and those farmland days. Vandalized in the past, the DNR now keeps a pretty close eye upon it, tolerating weekend explorers investigating its mysteries, within limits—don't block the gate in the small parking area and you must be out by 11 p.m. They smile at the stories: the infamous "Lady in Black" guarding the grave of baby Lester who died in a tragic accident in the 1930s. She sits upon a stump and holds vigil. Sometimes the DNR rangers offer stories of their own. It's a similar folklore legend that many states share. Yet...Stepp Cemetery, for all the stories, definitely has its moments.

On a windless summer day in June my wife Laura and I watched a pinwheel twirl at a crazy pace. When we approached it, it stopped. When we backed up it resumed. Other experiences include: equipment malfunction; foreign voices on our audio recorders (German?); the trampling of brush and limbs in the woods (yes, I suppose that could be animals); misty figures captured on film; red eyes in the treeline encircling the cemetery (at a height too tall for animals); and the sudden cessation of insect and bird noise. It doesn't matter if it's day or night.

Students from nearby Indiana University will visit on the weekends. For them it's a party atmosphere. And once they find out you're a paranormal investigator they will offer you a beer (or two) and want to hear your stories. I've also witnessed them running out of there.

I can't blame them. I've left rather quickly a few times myself!

Change in BG trash pick up

READERS' WRITES

Effective May 10 of this year, the City of Beech Grove Department of Public Works will change the way normal trash is picked up. Our City Council recently passed an ordinance that calls for any trash contained in plastic trash bags must be placed in the trash tote; trash bags left out of the trash tote will not be picked up. Currently we allow trash bags to be set next to the trash tote. This new legislation is being enacted to minimize and attempt to prevent exposures to the employees who handle trash on a daily basis. It is very important to note that this does not affect heavy trash pick-up. We will continue to pick up heavy trash as all of you are accustomed to. More and more our dedicated employees of the Department of Public Works are being exposed to contaminated needles and other medical waste generated as a result of treatment for sugar diabetes, cancer and other medical diseases. We can all agree that we simply have the best trash pick up around, but we also have a fundamental responsibility to protect the employees who provide this service. If you have any questions or concerns about this new rule, please contact the Department of Public Works at 803-9098. I applaud the City Council for passing new legislation to protect our employees.

Rep. Kirchhofer: Combating drug abuse in our community

GUEST COLMUNIST

By Cindy Kirchhofer

This legislative session the Indiana General Assembly worked to address the growing drug problem in our state, including the abuse of prescription drugs by non-prescribed users. Recently, Gov. Mike Pence visited Hope Academy in Indianapolis where he ceremonially signed into law a number of bills aimed at fighting drug abuse in Indiana.

Hope Academy is a tuition-free, public charter high school for students in recovery from drug and alcohol addiction. This highly supportive, individualized school allows students to progress in recovery and academics at their pace, while working toward a better life through sobriety. When attending the ceremonial bill signings, I witnessed firsthand how the school can make a positive impact on students.

While Hope Academy does their part in the community to combat drug abuse, the General Assembly also worked on a plan this session to fight Indiana's drug crisis. I sponsored Senate Enrolled Act (SEA) 187, which could help reduce fatal drug overdoses by permitting pharmacies to sell overdose intervention drugs, like Narcan, over-the-counter without a prescription. Narcan is a safe, non-addictive medication that reverses the effects of drug overdoses. Making medicine like Narcan readily available can save lives in the event of an overdose of heroin or prescription pain medicine.

Another piece of legislation signed into law was SEA 297, which requires Medicaid coverage for inpatient detoxification for the treatment of opioid or alcohol dependence. SEA 297 is a product of the Attorney General's Prescription Drug Abuse Prevention Task Force and will provide an evidence-based comprehensive approach to opioid treatment through clinical practice guidelines for office-based treatment and opioid treatment providers.

By working together and supporting innovative programs and services provided by places like Hope Academy, we can overcome Indiana's drug problem. Please contact me by phone at (317)232-9793 or by email ath89@iga.in.gov with input and ideas to address drug abuse in our communities.

Burdsall in support of Sandlin

READERS' WRITES

This is a letter in support for my long time friend, Jack Sandlin, who is running for the Indiana State Senate seat in District 36. Jack and I have known each other since we both attended Greenwood high school in the 60's. I have always appreciated his honesty, straight-forward conservative stances on the issues facing our country and state. Jack and I were part of an accountability group of men from our church for many years. That experience served to help me appreciate even more his values of service to God, his family and this country, his concern for the lives of unborn children, and his commitment to do everything he could to support and assist in making our city and state a better place to live. I would urge anyone questioning the commitment of many of our elected politicians and/or parties, to take a serious look at Jack Sandlin and then vote for him come election day. He will never be a typical politician and will only vote for what will be best for Indianapolis and our state of Indiana.

New weapons to fight meth: Give them time to work

GUEST COLMUNIST

By Dave Frizzell

With the calendars turning to spring that means our state's legislative session has drawn to a close. Every year, the state's elected officials work hard to pass meaningful public policy, under the best intentions, with the hope that we leave Indiana better than we found it. Often times that means compromising so that an agreeable piece of legislation can find its way to the governor.

The anti-meth proposals put forth in each chamber of the legislature this past session, including a proposal I advanced, fit this specific criterion. These proposals revolved around varying levels of restrictions on cold and allergy medicines containing pseudoephedrine (PSE), an ingredient that criminals sometimes use to make meth. My bill, which banned the sale of medicines containing PSE to known meth-related felons, eventually passed the legislature and was signed into law by the Governor.

I chose to combat the meth production problem in our state by proposing a similar law that is already in place elsewhere with proven success. For example, six other states ban the sale of PSE to known drug felons and all have experienced impressive reductions in meth labs, including Alabama and Oklahoma which reduced meth labs by almost 80 and 90 percent since implementation. Now our similar law passed this session here in Indiana specifically targets criminals, completely prevents them from purchasing over-the-counter PSE, addresses the recidivism problem that is common with drug criminals and avoids expensive incarceration costs. But best of all, it preserves full access to these important medications to Indiana families.

Despite all of the hard work and measures adopted during the legislative session this year, we are already hearing calls from some individuals and news publications for further restrictions on these cold and allergy medicines. Some have even called for a prescription requirement. Prescription proposals like that for cold and allergy medicine containing PSE have been consistently rejected by the residents of our state over the years for good reason. Instead, what Indiana needs and deserves is a commitment from all sides for patience as we work to implement the new laws.

I am extremely proud of my colleagues' commitment to addressing meth production in our state this past session. It was hard fought with lots of differing opinions, but in the end we collaborated to pass a meaningful set of laws which gives Indiana the distinction of having one of the most comprehensive anti-meth policies in the country. We should be proud of that. And before we start considering going any further on PSE restrictions, we need time to see the results of the laws we just passed, and begin to shift our focus to imported meth from drug cartels in Mexico.

State Representative (District 93)

Rooting for Recycling in Indy

Recycling is hard in Indianapolis. Unless you've taken the time to do the research yourself, you might not even realize that the city offers at-home recycling pickup for a yearly fee. Recycling bins at local grocery stores fill up so fast that there is often material left outside of the bin that also needs to be picked up. Imagine how many more people will contribute to recycling efforts when it's as easy as setting the bin outside their front lawn. We would love to see a change – and apparently our city government would like to, too.

Mayor Joe Hogsett hosted a meeting on April 6 at the Garfield Park Arts Center to discuss the future of recycling and environmentally-friendly issues.

"As it relates to the future of recycling, that discussion begins anew today, in this room, with all of you together at the helm..." Hogsett said, "The journey we embark upon today will from start to finish be transparent, responsive and inclusive of all residents and stakeholders in this city. In my opinion, that is what you deserve and in return I ask just a few things. Give our city your ideas. Give our city your passion. Give our city your invention, your innovative capacities and your creativity... Together, we will be giving our city a brighter, a smarter, a cleaner, a greener and a more sustainable future."

We'd like to congratulate the mayor and city officials for starting this process and gathering in such a way that the public can give their input. They encourage additional comments to recycling@indy.gov. We look forward to seeing what the future holds for an initiative that is much needed.

QUOTE OF THE WEEK

months and write a column that I think he would approve. One of my younger fans asked me who Will Rogers was. Perhaps these actual Rogers quotes will help explain things.)

10. "Last year we said, 'Things can't go on like this,' and they didn't. They got worse."

9. "These reformers are always wanting to save you; and if it wasn't for them you wouldn't need saving."

8. "The short memories of American voters is what keeps our politicians in office."

7. "We have the best Congress money can buy."

6. "There is one thing no nation can accuse us of - that is secret diplomacy. Our foreign dealings are an open book - generally a check book."

5. "Hawaii is the only place I know where they lay flowers on you while you're still alive."

4. "We got the most thorough training in every line of business but statesmanship, and for that you just decide overnight, 'I'm a statesman.'"

3. "I have a scheme for stopping war. It's this - no nation is allowed to go to war 'til they have paid for the last one."

2. "People's minds are changed through observation and not through argument."

1. "It's great to be great but it's greater to be human."

OOPS!

☛ In the April 7 issue of The Southside Times, Pam Pratt was quoted incorrectly in the article featuring Interim Healthcare. Her quote should have read, "I don't think people know what services are available to them under the different payer services. Under Medicaid, if they qualify and live with a loved one, they can get services all day." Medicare does not, under any circumstances, pay for long hour care. We regret the error.

WRTFD paramedic helps introduce program to decrease emergency response times for at-risk population

BEHIND the BADGE

Response time is crucial in an emergency situation, and often when a person lives alone, they can't answer the door. White River Township Fire Department paramedic Leslie Cuma-Fontaine found a solution that would allow the department quicker access to homes belonging to at-risk independent seniors and disabled residents.

WRTFD recently began the Residential KNOX-BOX Program. Residents in its service area can purchase or apply for a loan for a secure box which holds a house key that only the fire department can access. The department already uses KNOX-BOX for commercial properties, and Cuma-Fontaine discovered the company offers a residential product.

"There is a better option than us breaking your door down, which happens more than we'd like it to because in that emergency situation, we just care about getting to the person," she said. "I was looking for ways to make my dad's house safer. If I would be willing to put it on my own dad's house, I'd be willing let people in the community know about it. It's a tried and tested system so we know it's safe."

Those interested in the program can call WRTFD at (317) 888-8337 or email lcuma@wrtfd.org.

Growing up in Northwest Indiana, Cuma-Fontaine attended University of Southern Indiana before joining the National Guard in 2004. She spent 11 ½ years in the Guard, and was just recently discharged. She moved to Indianapolis in 2009. She was hired part time to WRTFD in 2011, full time in January 2014. She resides in Perry Township with her husband, Zack who is a firefighter/paramedic. They both work part time at Community East Hospital as paramedics in the Emergency Room.

What was your inspiration to become a paramedic?

From a really young age, I felt inclined toward the medical field. I was in high school during 9/11. I saw some of my friends joining the military. I went to college but after the first year, I decided to join the army as a medic. I was excited to get medical training and use that to help service members. It was an easy transition for me when I came home to go into EMS.

What has been one of your most gratifying moments on the job?

It's all of the little things. I really like being a part of the community and doing little things to make people feel better, whether it's making sure their door gets locked or calling someone for them.

Leslie Cuma-Fontaine

What aspect of the job do you find most challenging?

Leaving work at work. I'm a pretty compassionate person so it's hard to leave runs after I'm done with them.

What do you enjoy doing in your off-time?

Spending time with my husband; we have two fur kids. I enjoy working with animals. I spend time at shelter, Southside Animal Shelter, walking dogs or grooming them, whatever they need that day. I'm a member of the Morgantown Technical Large Animal Rescue Team.

What are your future goals, professionally or personally?

I love education and training. I like the idea of being better at what I do, whatever that is. I want to be a better paramedic. I'm also in nursing school and will be happy to graduate. I want to have my own animal shelter/rescue someday.

What would you have done if you hadn't become a paramedic?

I love science. I have a bachelor's in biology, so I probably would have followed that into research.

THIS IS HOW SEACH ROLLS

By Nicole Davis

Summer is for the kids! At least, the kids will have plenty to do this summer at Beech Grove Bowl, with the Special Rollers League, Kids Bowl Free program and the Report Card Pass allowing students to get a free game of bowling for each A or B grade they earn.

Scott Seach, owner, said offering children cheap and even free opportunities to bowl is not just good for business, but it helps keep them out of trouble when they have too much free time on their hands. The youth programs are some of many changes Seach has implemented at the Beech Grove bowling alley since he purchased it, nearly six years ago.

Seach immersed himself in the bowling industry 20 years ago, creating ways to grow the business at Beech Grove Bowl. He told the previous owner that he'd own the business one day – a statement he fulfilled five years ago when he purchased it. His creative mindset has never ceased, as he continuously adds new programs or renovations on the facility.

When Seach first visited Beech Grove Bowl in 1995, he had a brief conversation with its owner, Ron Hammersley.

"I came back a few weeks later and when I walked in the door, Ron said, 'Hi, Scott.'" Seach says, "I was flabbergasted that he knew who I was or remembered that he'd even seen me. That really sunk home."

Seach learned that Hammersley was looking to transition from a paper scoring system to a computer scoring system. Hammersley was preparing to open Brownsburg Bowl, which is now under different ownership, and wanted to link the computers to each other. He had no knowledge of the technology. Seach, who was going to school for computer management, was hired to do the job. He would work between the two bowling alleys but found himself doing more than the computer work.

He invested himself in researching the industry. He created new programs such as the Bowlers Appreciation Club, offering customers more rewards the more they bowl. He says the club is now the largest frequent bowlers program in the nation with more than 30,000 people registered. He created a birthday rewards program, mailing a card for a free visit on the customer's birthday.

"I was always looking for ways to make more money for my family," Seach says. "I was constantly thinking of new ideas. My philosophy was if I want to earn say $50 a week more, I need to find a way to bring in $150 a week more to the business. That's how my salary would increase because I could justify by increasing the income of the business."

Seach began working as a manager for Pizza Hut, but stayed on with the bowling alleys part time.

"In '97 Ron went 24 hours," Seach says. "He saw more people stay later and later. The first year he lost a lot of money because no one knew about it. It took two or three years to build it. I couldn't do what I'm doing now if we weren't open 24 hours. It's a strong part of the business."

When he returned to a full-time position, he became increasingly active in the business. In 2004 they expanded the food service. Seach says he spent four months researching pizzas, everything from the crust and sauce to cheese, until they settled on a combination. They currently offer pizzas, garlic bread, calzones which are the most popular menu item, dessert pizzas and added garden salads last month.

Seach had gone back to school to get his Master's degree and become a math teacher, but realized that the career wasn't for him. When the time came, he debated purchasing Beech Grove Bowl.

"I would tell a good friend of mine, Mikel Sanders, that I didn't know if I wanted to mess with it," Seach says. "By that point I was so wrapped up in the business that I was the face of the business. He said 'you have to do it; you have to save the place. You have support.' ... Two years later he passed away suddenly of a heart attack. Mikel was the person who encouraged me the most to go through with it."

Seach purchased the business on July 31, 2010. Sales for Beech Grove Bowl have increased each year, and Seach says they've broken every sales record that Hammersley ever had.

"One of the things Ron always emphasized was value over cost," Seach says. "Even in recessions, people still want and need recreational time. Everyone is more savvy in their shopping, looking for the best value. We do everything we can to keep costs down but to add the best value."

With the help of Beech Grove resident Anna Lee, Seach developed the Beech Grove Bowl Special Rollers League in 2012 which is open to all children, but especially for those with disabilities. In 2013 he decided to raise the floor to make it more handicap accessible for all of his customers. Special Rollers League begins June 4 this year, with two sessions every Saturday. The league ends with an awards and pizza party. Donations have offset the cost of the league for families each year.

"It's a fun program," Seach said. "It's probably the best thing I do all summer, getting to see all of the kids have fun, especially the ones who get excluded from other things because they can't physically do other things or can't keep up."

The work is never done as he continues to evolve the food menu and renovate the building.

"Realistically, future is to continue growth," Seach says. "We've toyed with doing pizza delivery. It's a possibility. We're in the middle of doing our remodeling. We're constantly trying to find new ways to innovate for people."

Getting to know Scott...

- I'm into sports: football, basketball, etc. I like to travel, go to Colts games, Pacer games, am a fan of the Mets.
- I met my wife, Amy, at a baseball game, at the Indians downtown. A year later we got married. We had our wedding pictures at the old Bush stadium when they were out of town. We've been married 22 years now. Our daughter, Josie, will be 21 on Veterans Day.
- Nobody in my family bowls. I just always liked it. When I was a senior in high school, I had my parents buy my first bowling ball and shoes... My senior year I'd go bowling for an hour after school. It was cheap and affordable. My buddies would go with me. None of us were any good. It's the ultimate participant sport. Anyone can do it, of any skill level.
- I don't live in Beech Grove, but I'm active in the Beech Grove community. I've been a member of the Beech Grove Promoters Club for three years now.
- I install bowling systems all over the nation. When we bought our second scoring system in 2005, I researched all of the big names and found out about this one... I am now the only trainer in the U.S. for this system – Computer Score, sold in the U.S. by BEST (Bowling Electronics Services & Technologies).

Sikh temples in Acton and Greenwood observe High Holy Day beginning April 14

CULTURE

By Marianne Coil

Over the next few days in Sikh temples in Acton and Greenwood, one person will always be reading aloud from the Holy Book, the Guru Granth Sahib, to at least one listener. The readers take turns in shifts non-stop for 48 hours as Sikhs around the world celebrate the anniversary of the creation of Khalsa, a religious order. Baptism into Khalsa is a step in spiritual evolution when the initiate is ready to live up to high expectations.

Sikhs are observing Vaisakhi, also written as Baisakhi, honoring the occasion in 1699 when Guru Gobind Singh baptized the Five Beloveds, the founding disciples of Khalsa. At the time, the faith was well-established, but the guru called believers to show courage against despotism. The Five Beloveds were named after they passed a test of faith that rallied the Sikhs.

Sikhs believe in only one God. They also believe in reincarnation through a cycle of lives that purify the soul. Sikhism originated in the 15th century in the Punjab region of India as a repudiation of Hindu caste society and the tyranny of Muslim rulers.

Two important tenets that Sikhs want to share – All men and women are created equally, and the community does not discriminate on the basis of race, religion, or gender.

The Vaisakhi observance, kicked off on April 14, is a way to celebrate the entire history of Sikhism, said Daisy Shaunka, a member of Gurdwara Sahib in Acton in Franklin Township. Her favorite spiritual leader is Guru Nanak, the founder of the faith, because of his simple message of goodness. She related the tale of Nanak's enlightenment. He went into a river to bathe and disappeared for three days. Presumed dead, he returned and said that he'd been called to God's house, where he was instructed to go forth and preach God's truth.

Daisy came to the US in 1980 in an arranged marriage with Pritam Shaunka, who owned a sweeper franchise. He died in 1998. Sikhs raised in the US are more comfortable with freely choosing their spouses and marrying outside the faith, she said, noting her own children married non-Sikhs.

Daisy was a housewife for about a decade before she went to Ivy Tech for an associate's degree in information technology. She worked for 22 years at Indiana Insurance and its eventual owner, Liberty Mutual. A software engineer, she took early retirement in 2012 and enjoys spending time with grandchildren. An important part of each day is to read the Guru Granth Sahib and to meditate.

The Khalsa strive to be pure. Many Sikhs are never baptized into Khalsa, she said, but they live with God in their hearts. In fact, Sikhs juggle the priorities of everyday life as would any person of faith. For example, devout Roman Catholics will disobey rules, and Sikhs struggle with perfection, too.

"I pretend to be Khalsa," said Jatinder Singh, with a touch of irony and a self-effacing nod sideways. He teaches in the Punjabi school on Sundays at the Gurdwara Shri Guru Hargobind Sahib Ji in Greenwood. Outwardly, he represents the Sikh ideal, a lushly bearded gentleman in pristine white garments adorned with the requisite small sword signifying Khalsa.

Jatinder Singh

Baptized at age 8, Singh has been baptized two more times to be reborn after accidentally breaking Khalsa dietary rules. He said he thought he might have consumed meat at a restaurant, and so he was baptized again. He felt the need to seek a third baptism when he discovered he was using toothpaste that contained alcohol. The dietary challenges continue, because as owner and operator of a trucking company, Singh has frequent business meals with clients.

Khalsa members also are expected to leave their hair uncut, avoid the use of tobacco, and refrain from adultery. Sikhs are monogamous, and the wife is honored; all other women are to be treated as sisters. In addition to keeping long hair in a turban, customs of Khalsa include wearing a metal bracelet on the right arm, a small sword, a comb, and long underwear like knickerbockers.

One of Singh's sons will be baptized this week and the rite will likely take two hours, if an anticipated 15 candidates present themselves. In addition to temple members acting the roles of the Five Beloveds, one attendant will keep the door, and another will read the Guru Granth Sahib.

The baptism includes queries from the Five Beloveds to the candidates, after which they are sprinkled with sugar water stirred with a dagger. They also drink from a common iron bowl. People of all socioeconomic levels drink from the same bowl as a symbol of equality, Singh said.

For Baljit Oberoi of the Acton temple, the most challenging aspect of being Khalsa is making time to recite the required verses from scripture every day, a routine that could use up over an hour. Oberoi is an information technology manager for government business at a health insurer.

If one is dedicated, it shouldn't be too difficult to find the time to connect with God, and "It's not an excuse for me, either," he said.

"The purpose of every Sikh is to become Khalsa. Whether they're baptized or not, they should try to do all those things," Oberoi said.

Keeping Sikh identity in the Western world is a challenge, he said, nonetheless emphasizing the US as a logical home for Sikhs. With its fundamental belief in equality, the Sikh religion is "aligned with the US Constitution."

Historically, Sikhs have been protectors of the innocent, Oberoi said, proudly mentioning the Sikhs' fight against the Nazis in World War II. He produced a military remembrance calendar noting that more than 83,000 Sikhs were killed in both world wars.

Finally, a profound commitment to public service is a requirement for Sikhs. They operate a free community kitchen in every temple around the world, and they must donate 10 percent of their income to noble causes, Oberoi said.

"Helping others is a big thing."

Let's eat!

Sikhs operate a free community kitchen, called langar, to enable all to eat without hesitation. Food is to be served at every temple. The largest community kitchen in the world is at the Golden Temple in Amritsar, where 100,000 people are served daily. Here, members of Gurdwara Sahib in Acton are preparing and serving a meal on Sunday.

“We’re building these play pockets for many reasons,” Myers said. “But one of them, especially with the fire department theme, is to get the children interested and understanding that firemen are your friends. We want them to be involved, but at the same time, we want to get more children to the parks and playing.”

Paul Totten recognized for service to his country, community and Rotary

HONOR

The Rotary Club of Greenwood honored long-time member Paul Totten at its meeting on April 11, after Totten announced that he was stepping down as a member. Greenwood Rotary President Rob Bailey awarded Totten with a plaque, and a lifetime membership so that he can return to any meeting he pleases.

Totten served in the Army from 1942-46 in the South Pacific, entering a month after graduating from Greenwood High School. Totten's experiences are shared in a book titled For God, Country and Community: The Life and Times of Paul R. Totten, which is for sale for a $20 donation to Warrior's Hope, a Greenwood-based nonprofit which helps veterans in need of assistance. During the height of WWII in the South Pacific's Philippine Islands, Totten was one of 18 Americans sent on submarine set for a beach in the Linguayen Gulf. Once inland, they were surrounded by 200 Japanese soldiers, captured, stripped of their belongings and taken to Cabanatuan Prison Camp. Paul spent four months in horrendous conditions at the camp before the 6th Ranger Battalion of 121 men were assigned to rescue the prisoners from 200 Japanese guards. This rescue was the topic of a 2006 movie, The Great Raid. Paul took a few days to recuperate and was off to battle again. His old company, AT (anti-tank), 145th regiment of the 37th Division, was less than 40 miles away and about ready to attack Manila and liberate the city. American soldiers, Totten included, entered the Filipino capital on Feb. 5, 1945. Totten was in the first company to go in. The city was engulfed in flames and frequent explosions. Totten was involved in hand-to-hand combat in the streets and houses. Totten received his honorable discharge Jan. 1, 1946. He married his wife, Carla, in 1953. They have one daughter. They still reside in Greenwood.

Change to cloth

Growing Spurts to host Southside Indianapolis location of The Great Cloth Diaper Change on April 23

CHALLENGE

By Nicole Davis

Last year, 7,441 babies were changed into cloth diapers on the same day, at the same time. The Great Cloth Diaper Change, an initiative led by the Real Diaper Association, challenges people worldwide to change as many babies as possible, simultaneously, and spread awareness about the benefits of cloth diapers.

"I think it's important to raise awareness about cloth diapers," said Donna Reintjes, owner of Growing Spurts Kids Clothes at 1001 N. State Rd. 135, Greenwood. "It helps save money, it's better for the baby and it's environmentally friendly. We've been selling cloth diapers for six years and it has grown every year."

For the third year, Growing Spurts will host a changing event. This year's Great Cloth Diaper Change is on April 23, doors opening at 9:45 a.m. at Southport Church of the Nazarene, 920 Southport Rd., Indianapolis. Participants can arrive early to receive a swag bag (supplies limited) and shop from 20 local vendors and grab a snack from the concession stand. The diaper change begins promptly at 11 a.m.

"People like to come and meet other families who cloth diaper, get to know them," Reintjes said. "It's nice to get moms together."

Last year, 52 babies were changed into cloth diapers at the Indianapolis location, and Reintjes said she'd like to see that number increase. In previous years, the event was part of Guinness World Records, but it is not this year. There is no height or age requirement this year, on the baby or the changer, but every baby must be changed into a cloth diaper or trainer. So far, 2,227 locations in 19 countries will participate in the Great Cloth Diaper Change.

LIBRARIES

By Nicole Davis

Beech Grove Public Library

The Beech Grove Public Library board of directors voted unanimously at its April 12 meeting to support a merger with the Indianapolis Public Library.

"Even given all of the information when we started, it was an overwhelming situation," said William Butch Fennema, BGPL board president. "We keep coming back to why we're here, and that is to do what's best to serve the people. The reality is, we can't keep up with technology. We're running out of things we can do... The most telling comment to me was at our open house, a man said his son was at our summer reading program and in a month, he exhausted all of the resources available to him for summer reading. He said he was in support of a merger. Whether we like it or not is not relevant. It's in the best interest of everyone that we do this."

The IndyPL board will vote on the merger at its April 25 meeting. If approved, May 10 would be the last board meeting for BGPL. The merger will go into effect June 1.

Beech Grove and Indianapolis formed a planning committee to create a plan for what a merger would look like, after Beech Grove hosted an open house last June, speaking to residents about their questions and concerns.

"At first I was against this, too," said Joe Prindle, BGPL board member. "But we're getting a lot more services. It will still be Beech Grove, with the same name. I think people will be shocked when they come, and say what happened? We now have all of these great things."

The merger will provide Beech Grove residents access to the 1,679,000 items in the IndyPL collection, as well as 155,477 ebooks, 44,173 digital audio books and other materials. An installation of fiber optic connections to the Internet would increase bandwidth by 1,500 percent. Existing computers will be replaced and updated. All services offered through IndyPL will be available to Beech Grove residents. Hours of operation will increase by two hours on Beech Grove library board votes to merge with Indianapolis. Fountain Square library branch to close by 2019. New Perry Township library will fill service gap.

Thursdays and Fridays.

"We have people that are blocks away from the library that are going to driving 15 minutes out of Beech Grove to go to an Indianapolis library..." Adam Vorderstrasse, BGPL board member, said. "There were a lot of people in focus groups that talked to us about that. I want us to be proud of the services we offer here."

Fountain Square and Perry Township Branches

While the Southport Branch is being renovated on the Southeast side of Perry Township, the Indianapolis Public Library is looking at the west for the new branch. Now that a decision has been made on where I-69 will be built, which would impact how patrons can access that branch, IndyPL CEO Jackie Nytes said they can begin looking for the best location.

"It's all about access," Nytes said. "We know how much traffic there is in Perry Township. Going east and west across the township is challenge for people. That is one of the reasons we know it's important to put a library on the west side of the township. We would get the site locked in this year, architect designed 2017 and open end of 2018 or early 2019."

Nytes said they are looking to build the Perry Township branch east of the interstate, but west of State Road 135. Once land is identified, they will host a series of public meeting for residents and patrons.

IndyPL announced last year that the Fountain Square Branch, 1066 Virginia Ave., will close by 2019, allowing a second Perry Township branch to fill a service gap in the Indianapolis area.

"As we have looked at how well we've served the entire county, we've had to take a look at the shifts in population over the years," Nytes said. "We've come to realize how many people live in Perry Township these days and we only have one library down there. Perry Township has almost 100,000 people. We've been really concerned with how well we can serve them. Our Fountain Square library is in Center Township where we have a lot of people but a lot of libraries. When the lease is up on the Fountain Square library, we will allocate those resources into a second location in Perry Township."

Nytes said Fountain Square patrons can use Central Library, Garfield Park Branch and the East Washington Branch. People in Fountain Square have formed a task force to look at local services and how people can access the things they want, such as computer labs and other technology.

"This is the business case of balancing how many libraries we can run against the population," Nytes said. "It's a head and heart situation in Fountain Square. The heart is sick about losing it but we intellectually understand the situation."

The Perry Township Branch will cost an estimated $9.2 million for a 25,000 square foot facility. Nytes said they will want input from residents on what aspects are important to them in a library, as each area differs slightly on their priorities, such as wanting access to a computer lab, large studying areas, etc.

The Bronze... laugh-out loud comedy with tons of heart

MOVIE REVIEW

By Adam Staten

Everyone knows that one person who seems to have no filter between their brain and mouth, saying seemingly whatever pops into their head. These individuals are often admired, lately among voters, for their bravery to "say what everyone is thinking, but too afraid to say." However, other times they leave you in a state of disbelief at their latest unfiltered utterance or at their general lack of tact. One such character is the central figure in the recently released The Bronze.

The Bronze is the story of Hope Ann Gregory (The Big Bang Theory's Melissa Rauch), a former Olympic bronze medalist gymnast, whose career was cut short by an unfortunate injury. To say that Hope has grown bitter about her shortened gymnastic career would be a severe understatement. Hope lashes out at anyone and everyone with some of the most colorful language imaginable. The foul-mouthed former Olympic gymnast lives in the past as she sports her Olympic tracksuit and reminds everyone she encounters of her past glory.

However, due to an unforeseen turn of events, Hope soon becomes the coach of the town's latest hotshot gymnastic star who seems destined for Olympic gold. While going from gymnast to coach seems like a natural transition, for Hope it proves to be much more difficult. Her new position gives her an opportunity to confront her past while trying to finally move forward in life, as she dispenses language that would make a sailor blush. What follows is a tale filled with laughs, tons of heart, and even more four-letter words.

A film this full of laughs and profanity, as The Bronze is, shouldn't be allowed to have such strong performances; but things aren't always fair. Gary Cole, who plays Hope's dad, and Thomas Middleditch, as her lone friend, and Rauch are all terrific. Cole and Middleditch play their roles with an innocence and honesty that is missing in most comedies. Rauch, who also wrote the film, is brash, vulgar, in your face, but never once feels forced or over the top. Instead, she displays the perfect balance of sour and sweet.

As with any comedy, not all of the jokes in The Bronze land. Several fall flat, but more hit than miss. Also, Lance, the film's villain, doesn't feel like a fully developed character. Instead, he's more of an amalgamation of everything Hope despises.

While not a perfect film, The Bronze is the best film of 2016 so far. Its comedy is what draws you, but its heart is what keep you watching. 4.5 out of 5.

Center Grove teacher Shannon Nunnelly organizes walk for National Eating Disorder Awareness

AWARENESS

By Nicole Davis

Learning that your loved one has an eating disorder can be scary, but there are resources available.

After experiencing the effects of an eating disorder in her own family, Center Grove resident Shannon Nunnelly decided it was her turn to give back. She is organizing a walk on April 23, 9 a.m. check-in time at Freedom Park in Greenwood to raise awareness of the disorder.

About four years ago, Nunnelly she was informed her daughter has an eating disorder. She wasn't familiar with disorder, and had no idea where to turn.

"We've been fortunate to have a lot of great therapists and treatment centers, but finding them was a challenge," Nunnelly said. "That's what brought us into this world. For me, having done this for four years now, I want to give back.

My biggest role in this is to raise awareness. There is a lot of stigma. People don't want to talk about it. A lot of good things have come from talking about it. There is hope in awareness, information and courage."

The best resource Nunnelly found was NEDA, a nonprofit advocating for prevention, research and access to quality care for people with eating disorders. According to nedawalk.org, more than 30 million individuals in the U.S., male and female, are affected by eating disorders.

As a kindergarten teacher at Center Grove Elementary, Nunnelly said she's received large support from the Center Grove Community School Corporation, particularly Superintendent Dr. Rich Arkanoff. He's invited her to speak to clergy groups, a wellness committee, booster club committee and offered other avenues of reaching out.

"I'm raising awareness that eating disorders can be deadly," she said. "One of the myths is that eating disorders are a choice. It's not a choice. As a parent, you should know you didn't cause the eating disorder and approach it with empathy and understanding. It is real. Raising awareness and showing there is hope, that is the biggest thing."

Nunnelly and her daughter participated in the NEDA Walk in St. Louis two years ago, while staying at a treatment center there.

"It was cool to be with a group of people that get it, to see that there are so many other parents like us," Nunnelly said. "It really doesn't discriminate. There are so many parents looking for answers."

The walk had taken place in Indianapolis, just not in recent years. Nunnelly decided to try her hand at organizing one, serving as chairperson for the Greater Indianapolis NEDA Walk.

"I thought let's keep it here, local, smaller to get our feet wet," she said. "The walk is only a mile, so the main purpose is raising awareness and raising funds. I'm overwhelmed at the level of support people have shown for the event. If they can't come, they'll donate. It's been neat to see."

Registration is $25, which comes with a t-shirt and tote bag. Additional activities are planned for the day, including pre-walk yoga, inspirational quotes along the walk path, a professional eating disorder therapist speaking on the issue as well as someone in recovery and a parent. There is a NEDA Garden Of Hope where people can write why they're walking and who they're walking for. For more information, visit nedawalk.org/Indianapolis2016.

Who's that in the mirror?

NUTRITION

By Chef Wendell Fowler

Are you grey-green under the eyes, have dry skin, dull eyes and hair, and premature wrinkles? Must you slather on cosmetics for you to feel presentable? Consider your diet. True beauty comes from within; hence, diet has everything to do with beauty. Food is more important than any beauty products. Although I'm convinced your natural God-given beauty would grow stratospherically if only garden vegetables smelled like bacon.

Narcissistic Americans are obsessed with outward appearance. Everyone covets clear, healthy skin, shiny hair and bright eyes. Over a lifetime, a typical woman spends $15,000 on makeup products, or what I call spackle. What we choose to put in our temple profoundly affects beauty. Nutrients in fresh garden bounty release your natural beauty. Toxic processed junk foods damage skin-garbage in, garbage out. Plant foods offer heavenly vitamins which foster delicate, soft skin, thick shiny hair, long smooth fingernails, clear, bright eyes and smile. When you eat highly processed foods, your skin won't be as strong and supple as it could be.

Foods get digested and broken down into vitamins, minerals and amino acids your temple uses to build healthy skin. For example, if you don't eat enough clean protein, you're depriving your skin of the amino acids that go into making collagen (which makes your skin strong) and elastic tissue (which makes it supple)."

Vitamin A, beta carotene, can help prevent and clear skin of infections, contributes to healthy hair and eyes, counteracts dry skin, dandruff and wrinkle formation, and promotes healthy blood circulation which gives a glow to your skin. Vitamin A deficiency leads to dry, coarse, wrinkled skin; dull and dry hair or dandruff; ridging or peeling fingernails; pimples or acne and visual fatigue.

B vitamins nurture luminous skin, delay greying hair and promote healthy skin, hair, and eyes. (Forty-percent of dermatitis sufferers lack B vitamins.) Omega-3 EFA's support your skin's natural oil barrier, keeping away dryness and blemishes leaving your skin smooth and youthful. Vitamin E guards your skin from UV sun damage and inflammation. Vitamin C protects and undoes sun damage to collagen and elastin which firm up skin.

Everyone is beautiful when you look closely; a work of art and like an artist, complimentary makeup is delightful. Eat closer to nature. Take care of your temple inside and out and you'll look forward to seeing that beautiful, lovely face in the mirror each day.

Weekly Devotion

"Behold, how good and how pleasant it is for brethren to dwell together in unity! It is like the precious ointment upon the head, that ran down upon the beard, even Aaron's beard: that went down to the skirts of his garments; As the dew of Hermon, and as the dew that descended upon the mountains of Zion: for there the Lord commanded the blessing, even life for evermore." ~ Psalm 133:1-3

Unity! The word means individuals acting as one. It is about all coming together as one unit to pray for and discern the will of God and to be agreed that His will has priority over everything else.

So the Psalmist writes that unity is that good and pleasant thing that God seeks for His people. The New Testament calls for it also and Christ prayed for it. We can read His words in John 17 when He prayed that the Father would make and keep His disciples one even as He and the Father was One. I believe that we can easily discern how that His prayer was answered by a study of the writings of the Apostles. There was this constant battle to keep legalism out of the church and the will of the Holy Spirit in.

There were differences of opinions but when those opinions were put on the sideline and the will of God became the priority, God's church moved forward with the true message of Christ.

If we all pull together instead of separately, we can achieve great things for the Lord and we will glorify Him in all the earth. If we insist of pushing against one another, we will not only fail one another, we will fail God. Christian unity cannot happen without the Holy Spirit's involvement. May God send that Holy Spirit as a tidal wave across of Christianity and may we all respond to Him.

God bless and go and have a great day.

Paul A. Kirby is the pastor at the Church of God at 3939 S. Emerson Ave.
