Golden Technologies: Custom lift chairs

By Access Mobility

Here at Access Mobility, we support many products made in America. Our flagship brand of lift chairs is Golden Technologies. Here's their story.

When Robert Golden, Sr., and his business partner, Fred Kiwak, founded their company in 1985, the vision they had back then remains the same as their vision today: to "build it right the first time" and to be the first choice for durable medical equipment dealers and their customers looking for a high quality, American made lift chair.

Golden lift chairs are built with unsurpassed craftsmanship in their factory in Old Forge, PA, by local employees. Today Golden employs over 400 people that design, assemble, sew fabrics for, and cover the kiln-dried northern maple hardwood frames of our lift chairs. Their factory is the largest factory in the world dedicated solely to the manufacture of lift chairs. At Golden, comfort and durability are their priority. That's why they offer so many different sizes and styles of lift chairs. No other manufacturer offers one lift chair style in 10 different sizes like the Comforter and Comforter Wide series. With sizes ranging from the Junior Petite for people under 5' tall, to the Super 33 for individuals weighing up to 700 lbs, the saying of "small to tall, we build 'em all" is true! Their patented Maxi-Comfort Ultimate Recline Technology provides consumers with the smoothest, quietest motion experience from a full recline into the Trendelenburg position, to the zero-gravity position all the way to the fully lifted position. Golden is still committed to building it right the first time. Every time. They are loyal to their employees and consumers who use their products every day. As a family-owned, second generation family-operated company, Golden strives to design and manufacture products that we are proud to sell.

Here at Access Mobility, we stand behind our products with the utmost certainty they will outperform any imported lift chair. We are celebrating our 25th year in business and are proud to call Beech Grove our home. We invite you to stop by our showroom where we display all kinds of mobility products including over 20 lift chairs ready for you to try. Contact Access Mobility, Inc. at 4855 S. Q: July 30 is the International Day of Friendship. How have your friendships changed in the era of social media as compared to before social media and the Internet?

"I miss some of the things that happen since I'm not on Facebook. So I have girlfriends and family members who have to contact me over the telephone or via email at work in order to get in touch with them and keep up with them with what is going on. I would rather pick up the phone and call you or drop by and see you. I don't have a computer at home and work doesn't allow me Facebook access."

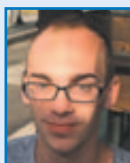

Connie Fulp of Beech Grove

"They have broadened. More friends. You can keep in touch with people you haven't seen in a long time or lost touch with. It has been a good thing. We connected with one of my husband's best friends that we had lost touch with and three weeks later he died of cancer. We were so appreciative to be able to find him on Facebook and be able to say our goodbyes before he died."

Robin Moore of Perry Township

"I go both ways. Sometimes I think that social media gives us too much information, and makes us feel dependent on constantly seeing that stream of information. But at the same time, it's helpful in connecting with others and staying connected when it would be otherwise difficult."

Kevin Bedford

"Although social media may make it seem like you have more friends, I don't think this is always true friendship. For many people it's only an audience to promote themselves. There's a closeness lost although it may not feel like it."

More Beech Grove infrastructure work coming

Finally after all this rain it has dried up enough to finally allow contractors to get caught up so some much needed infrastructure work can begin. Work has begun on repairing the parking lots behind the Senior Citizens Center and at the Hornet Park Community Center. Work has also begun on the reconstruction of Bellefontaine Street from Emerson Avenue west to 8th Avenue. This project was set to begin in mid May but the weather really put a damper on things.

Sanitary sewer work will soon begin on Cherry Street, Hornet Avenue, 6th, 7th, and 8th Streets between Main Street and Albany, 8th Avenue at Bellefontaine and Byland between 9th and 12th Streets. This is a major sewer lining project that will help reduce the amount of ground water infiltrating the sanitary sewer system and provide better flows for the removal of waste water. The quotes for this project should be opened at the August 3rd. Board of Works meeting.

On a footnote to all of this, Bellefontaine Street between Schaff and Garstang has been vacated and the physical road will be removed very soon. This is a result of the new Beech Grove Station senior community being built. Work is well on the way which will result in a much more desirable look than what we viewed for years. This is a much needed improvement to our city.

Dennis B. Buckley, Mayor
City of Beech Grove

Perry Kiwanis thankful for another success Fish Fry

The 30th annual Fish Fry, BBQ and More – Kiwanis Southside Summer Celebration this year was a success due in no small part to the support of the community. The Kiwanis Club of Perry Township would like to thank all who contributed to this success of our biggest fundraiser of the year. Proceeds are used to support Perry Senior Services, Hunger Inc. food bank, scholarships for local high school students and other programs.

We would like to acknowledge the generous in-kind contributions made by several south side businesses. Special thanks go to Community Hospital South staff members who joined our planning team with recommendations for healthy menu additions and agreed to sponsor our first-ever Senior Citizens Fair, assisted by Baxter YMCA. Also new this year was a Family Fun Day and an expanded menu.

We would like to thank members of the community, youngsters and seniors, who once again turned out to support this important fundraiser despite soaring temperatures and thundering rain. Thank you so much.

Steve Hadley, President
Kiwanis Club of Perry Township

OUR VIEW

National Night Out

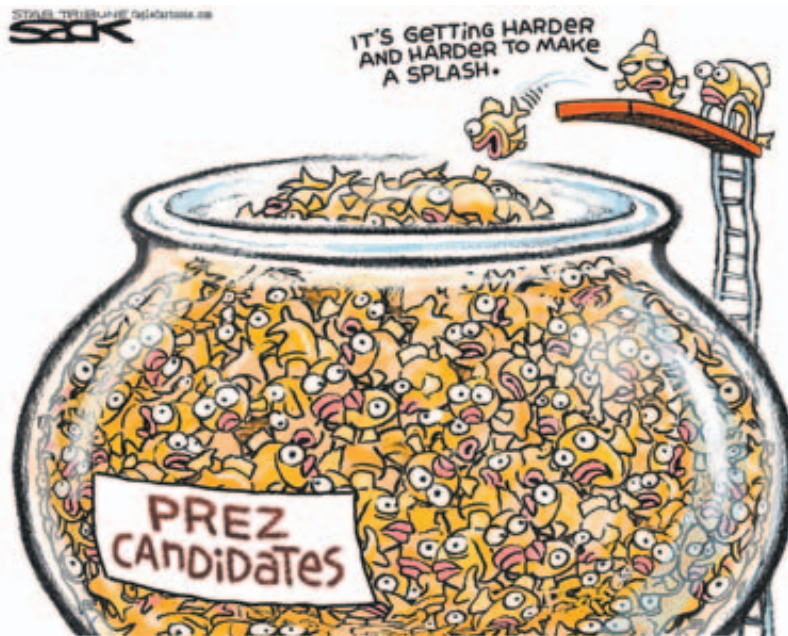

It's refreshing to get the opportunity to see how our police officers interact with their community. We are fortunate in our Southside communities to have active police departments that want to get out and interact with residents, strengthening that relationship which seems to suffer in other areas of the country. This week, the Beech Grove Police Department, with help from sponsors, gave away 55 backpacks and took down even more names of children in need of school supplies. It was captivating to watch as the children climbed in the police cars, checked out the equipment that the officers wear and asked questions about the profession. Their eyes got big as they pushed the button to set the car's siren off. The laughter and jokes had smiles on everyone's faces – from the children, to their parents and the officers.

All local departments will offer public events for National Night Out, a crime prevention event. IMPD districts will offer National Night Out on Aug. 4. Residents are encouraged to display their outdoor lights. Registered neighborhoods will host block parties - visit natw.org. for more information. Southport Police Department will host a community celebration Aug. 4, 5:30 – 9 p.m. at 6901 Derbyshire Rd., with free kids' scavenger hunts, bounce houses, an inflatable obstacle course, games, a silent auction, dunk-a-cop, food and more. Beech Grove will host their celebration Aug. 4, 5:30 – 8 p.m. at the Moose Lodge on Emerson Avenue with bounce houses, snow cones, face painting, free food and drinks. Greenwood Police Department will host the Department's Night Out on Aug. 11, 6 – 8 p.m. at the Greenwood Volunteer Fire Company with music, food, giveaways, school supply drive and more. We encourage you to get out during at least one of these events, and get to see that same positivity that happens at every one of these police department's events.

Taking a closer look at Trump

We think it's interesting that the main stream media has consider billionaire presidential candidate Donald Trump a buffoon. Despite his bluster and off-color comments, we're taking a closer look. What we most admire about Trump is this: He (for now) is a Republican with more than enough fortitude to tell the Republican National Committee where to get off.

In truth, the Party of Wimps, is hurting Trump. Its leaders have no clue how damaged its brand really is. It began with George W. Bush and his spineless colleagues in the House and Senate. They actually brought rise to the new liberalism. Think about that. As we see it, Trump is holding a powerful card these days, the one that he may turn over and show him moving to independent status. Yes, an "I" as Ross Perot once was. As an independent, he would throw the whole GOP nominating process into a bona fine mess, because he would, without a doubt, cause no small amount of squabbling among the leadership. Gall? Nerve? Guts? Smarts? We'll go with the latter two at this point. He's the only one in the current candidate pool with enough spine to say what he truly believes (even if he's dead wrong on some fronts), not what "we" want to hear, and now it seems to us that he's the leader in the clubhouse with respect to telling terrorists, nuke-holding nations and general opponents of the U.S. that enough is enough. Donald Trump, independent. Can you imagine the wailing and gnashing of teeth, to speak nothing of the meteoric rise of angst, at RNC offices (Dysfunction Central) if he declares that designation? If he remains, could he rebrand the party? We'll see.

"What we most admire about Trump is this: He (for now) is a Republican with more than enough fortitude to tell the Republican National Committee where to get off."

Top ten things the county fair has taught me

By Torry Stiles

10. Pigs hate it when you brag about your yummy corndog.
9. Mommy and Daddy are lying to you. Goldfish don't sleep. Those floaters are dead.
8. Take extra nuts and bolts with you to scatter around the rides. Hilarious.
7. Cotton candy should never be stored in your pants pocket.
6. The folks working the pig barn have heard all of the Miss Piggy/Kermit the Frog jokes. All of them. Don't even try.
5. Never break up with your girl on $20 wristband night. She is NOT going to give you your 20 bucks back.
4. Avoid discount tattoos on the midway.
3. Fair queens are usually quite friendly but perfectly willing to call the cops if you get out of line.
2. If there is a ringing phone dropped in a Port-O-Let just let it ring.
1. Make sure ride has stopped before diving underneath it to look for change.

Lisa Graves

Marion County Sheriff's corporal looks forward to keeping the MC Jail drug-free with help from her canine, Laika

BEHIND the BADGE

Lisa Graves spends her work hours searching for narcotics – through incoming mail, around the Marion County Jail perimeter, in the cell blocks. After 10 years of serving on the K-9 Unit, she says she continues to look forward to every day – but not more than her Belgian Malinois, Laika (a name which means “barker” in Russian).

“She’s anxious to go back and do it again the next day,” Graves said. “She hates Fridays because she has two days off. She loves Mondays.”

Graves is from Eastern Tennessee and moved to Indianapolis at age 18 to work for her uncle. She currently resides on the southwest side of Indianapolis. She was hired into the Marion County Sheriff's Department in 1999, serving as a deputy until 2005 when she applied and was accepted into the K-9 unit in the rank of corporal. She also does searches for schools and conducts public demonstrations about the K-9s. She said that she had been searching for a faster-paced career, something where she could give back to the community and do a good job.

“I absolutely love it,” Graves said. “I like the fact that we are a close-knit family. If someone has (a problem), we pull together and support each other. The sheriff's department has provided a great potential for me to grow in law enforcement.”

What was your inspiration to go into law enforcement?

Throughout my entire life, even as a child, my grandmother was very active in her community. She engrained in me to help your neighbors and help in your community. I wanted to help people in any way I could. As time moved on, I migrated to this field. It allowed me to be a part of the community, help people and provide a service that they need.

What has been one of your most gratifying moments on the job?

There are a lot of gratifying moments. Helping people in any shape or form is always gratifying to me. With my current job, I train dogs for detection work and I compete with dog in competitions. My dog took second place in a national competition in 2010. I assist training in the department, our new canines and handlers that come in. We rescue dogs and train them. I love taking a dog that knows nothing and we teach it, that light goes on and they start finding the bombs and narcotics that we train them to find, it's gratifying.

What aspect of the job do you find most challenging?

I don't look at them as challenges. I look at them as opportunities to learn new things, to find new ways to do something.

What do you enjoy doing in your off-time?

Redecorating, building things. I just installed a walk in closet myself. I remodel my home in my off time. I have two pets at home aside from my work dog and I enjoy teaching them new things. I spend time with my family and friends, having cookouts and relaxing. I like to work out, too.

What are your future goals, professionally or personally?

Professionally, I have my dream job, honestly. I'm doing exactly what I love and I love what I do. My future goals are to continue to be a handler. Personally, to maintain and be happy and I am. I think a lot of that is because I get to do what I love. I am very happy with my career and at home.

What would you have done if you hadn't applied to the sheriff's office?

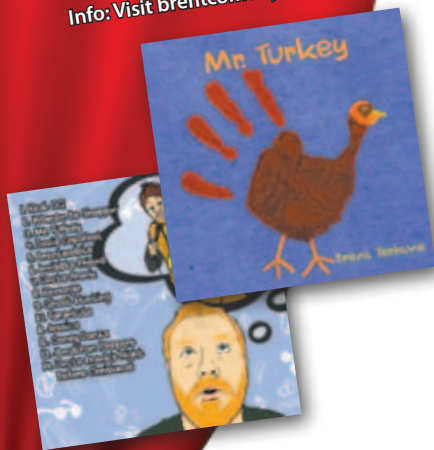

The medical field – a paramedic.

Will the real Brent Terhune please stand-up?

Brent Terhune, Perry Township resident, turns his passion into a career, releasing his first stand-up album on Aug. 7.

Mr. Turkey: Brent Terhune's Stand-up album release party
 When: Aug. 7, 9 p.m.
 Where: The White Rabbit Caberet
 116 Prospect St., Indianapolis
 (Fountain Square)
 Info: Visit brentcomedy.com.

Getting to know Brent...

- Comedian inspirations: I would watch Jay Leno on the Tonight Show, Dave Chappelle, Chris Rock and Mitch Hedberg who had a lot of one-line jokes.
- I am on the third time watching the sopranos all the way through. I try to catch up on shows but there's so many to watch.
- The album, Mr. Turkey, features three main characters: "The character I've done the longest is my Uncle Frank. Everybody knows an Uncle Frank, he's a 40 year old guy who still lives in his mom's basement and hasn't quite mastered getting and keeping a job. Jonathan Peepers is a blind and grumpy comedian from Las Vegas. Coney Danza is probably my favorite because he's so over the top. Coney is a hotdog comedian (making hot dog-related puns) and I actually wear a hotdog suit when I do the character."

By Nicole Davis

You can do comedy anywhere. Whether or not the jokes go well is a different story, says Perry Township resident Brent Terhune, who has toured the country doing stand-up at comedy clubs or, sometimes, more unique venues like yachts, a prison, a wrestling ring or Comic Con.

Well, the jokes are going well for Terhune, as he will release his first stand-up comedy album, Mr. Turkey, on Aug. 7. He will celebrate with an album release show at The White Rabbit Caberet in Fountain Square on Aug. 5, 9 p.m. with a $10 cost of admission that includes a copy of the album. The album can be purchased on iTunes, Spotify or Pandora.

"One of my college professors said that you've found your passion if you know you would do it for free," Terhune said. "I'm lucky to get to do what I like and they give me a check at the end."

Terhune grew up in Indianapolis, attending St. Roch Catholic School and graduating from Roncalli High School in 2008. His interest in comedy sparked in high school, when he decided to do stand-up at a Roncalli Coffee House event. He hosted battle of the bands and some talent shows. He's done stand-up now for nine years, starting with three to five-minute shows during open mic nights at local comedy clubs to his routine now averaging 45-minutes as he travels across the country.

He graduated from the University of Indianapolis in 2012 with a degree in communications. While in college, he interned for the Bob & Tom Show, a radio show which plays across the nation including 94.7 FM in Indianapolis. After four months, he was hired to write for the show. He says he searches news sites to find topics for the monologue-type jokes, and loves writing for radio because it can be done from anywhere at any time the inspiration hits.

"You come across stories that the mixture of events you would never have thought to happen," Terhune said. "There was a story that 50,000 gallons of dairy product was spilt. My joke was the odds of that driver getting fired were about half and half. It's real life events and it's a challenge to see if there's something funny about that situation."

With his own stand-up, Terhune is on the road about 40 weeks out of the year. He said he's happy to get the chance to work with other comedians, traveling and making a living doing what he loves.

"With my own stand-up, I can talk about whatever I want," Terhune said. "I can talk about anything so I better make it good. If it's not good, it better still be funny... The kind of jokes I like are funny but clever. I like to show that I'm smart but I'm also goofy at the same time because I don't take myself too seriously."

Inspiration for his jokes comes from a variety of sources: from his family, his interest and criticism of ghost hunting shows or jokes about interactions on Facebook. The title of the album, Mr. Turkey, comes from when he did substitute teaching.

"I'd notice (the kids) couldn't really say my last name since it's not very common," Terhune said. "A lot of the kids ended up calling me Mr. Turtle or Mr. Turkey, hence, my album title."

The album is a culmination of Terhune's best jokes through the past nine years. He's in the process of writing new jokes for his shows, and is already planning on creating another album in a few years.

"I love when a new joke works. I already liked stand-up, but I learn to like it all over again for the same reasons I got into it in the first place. When the audience laughs, it's a way to agree that what they thought was funny or what I'm saying happens in their own life."

For now, he said that he looks forward to headlining more shows and would like to do an animated cartoon. He already designs a comic strip which is posted to his Website, brentcomedy.com. For more information, visit his site or ontourrecords.com/brentterhune.html.

Roncalli Summer Field Study group explores Colorado

Summer Field Study is a class offered within the curriculum of Roncalli High School that is one part academics, one part adventure and one part retreat. This year's Summer Field Study group embarked on their two-week adventure on June 15. One hundred two students traveled by van to Colorado this year, accompanied by dozens of adult leaders. Students hiked, climbed, camped, cooked, swam, rafted, backpacked, played and prayed during their trip. The first stop was Rocky Mountain National Park. Situated in the heart of the Colorado Rockies. Students explored the views from the summits and the variety of wildlife preserved in the park's forested slopes, waterfalls, and snowfields. Then they travelled to San Juan National Forest. Located in Southwestern Colo., this spectacular snow-packed moun-

Musings and memories

HAUNTS & JAUNTS

By Rick Hinton

Paranormal musings can have humble beginnings, especially when originating so far south from a naive youth's Southside Indianapolis home.

Small town Kentucky is rather mum on the subject of the paranormal. If asked, you get not only a far-away look, but also the slight smile upon the lips that reveals nothing, but speaks volumes. Maybe there are things best not spoken of?

The small house on the outskirts of Jamestown where my Grandfather Arnold and Grandmother Lucille raised six children still stands. They were relocated there when Lake Cumberland was created. Their former homestead currently lies beneath its depths. How they pulled off raising a family in this tiny house is beyond my comprehension. Eventually the grandchildren came, and this is where it began for me.

This home—landmark and comfortable refuge from the past—became home-central for paranormal possibilities: the story from my mother during her teenage years witnessing the apparition of her sister Betty Lou who had died in 1941, and my grandmother's tight-lipped smile when asked about this. Grandfather Arnold would always distance himself from this conversation and light another cigarette. There existed an ongoing feeling that all was not as it seemed, fueling my imagination. And there were those nights at the house.

A solitary streetlight cast a dim illumination over my grandparent's home on Sunset Drive (formerly named Mud Road). It was a small oasis in a world of surrounding darkness as crickets chirped, lightning bugs flashed, and nighttime shrouded the hilltop in shadows. The periodic invasion of myself, brother and cousins would be on hand to welcome in the night; we had to play outside. The darkness became our refuge, with lightning bugs put into mason jars and the darkness explored; yet within limits. We would terrorize Arnold's tobacco field, but would never... ever...go into the backyard that rolled into the field beyond. It was just too dark and beyond the streetlight's grasp. There was too much unknown back there!

Arnold and Lucille are long gone; as is uncles, aunts, and my mother. My uncle Lewis just passed and the future of the house is questionable. The restaurant where my grandmother once worked has been closed for many years, but still stands at the same corner; Lake Cumberland continues its mysterious endless journey. And the realization that someday we will all come back together. Family always remains family. What a celebration it will be!

Beech Grove Police Departments starts school supplies program for school-age residents

By Nicole Davis

As children got to pick out their backpack filled with school supplies for the new school year, many of them smiled and joked as officers helped them try the pack on, allowing them to tour the police cars and enjoy some snacks. The Beech Grove Police Department offered its first school supplies program on July 27 as an expanded part of the Shop With a Cop program.

"It helps (to have) a positive influence to come out here, meet with the police and show the positive side of what we offer as well," said Mike Treat, an officer who coordinates the department's Shop With a Cop program.

Deputy Police Chief Michael Maurice said they tried to keep the program small in its first year, although when Walmart heard about their efforts, the store donated 55 backpacks. Beech Grove Community Schools provided a list of children who needed the supplies, and even more families came out and added their names to a list in case the department had anything left over.

"We thank the donors again to their generosity with the Shop with a Cop program that has branched out into the school supplies program," Maurice said. "It's been a positive interaction. It's always good to let the kids see officers in a different light, laughing and interacting."

Stepping into a CLEAN community

Beech Grove to begin city-wide recycling mid-August;
residents can sign up for the free program now

By Nicole Davis

Beech Grove is one step closer to becoming a CLEAN Community as more than 500 Beech Grove residents have signed up for the city-wide recycling program that is estimated to begin mid-August. The Department of Public Works is preparing to begin distribution of the 96-gallon bins to registered households the first of August.

"It's encouraging considering how little we've done so far to get the word out," said Department of Public Works Director, Brad Meriwether. "A lot of times the community will see you a big jumpstart in numbers when the totes come out. To have 500 already, we hope that's a good sign of things to come."

Beech Grove Mayor Dennis Buckley said they began thinking about starting a recycling program more than two years ago and were able to implement it after the city council passed a recycling ordinance earlier this year.

"Everything we pick up from a trash perspective goes to a landfill," Buckley said. "It's estimated about 40 percent of what we pick up doesn't need to be taken there. So we're trying to be better stewards of the environment."

Ray's Trash Service won the bid to manage the recycling program. They will offer biweekly collection free to all residents. The Department of Public Works will continue to handle trash pickup. Residents can place all recyclable items in the bins without needing to separate different materials. The city will provide continuous education on the recycling program. Residents can sign up by calling (317) 803-9992, (317) 803-9098, (317) 803-9120 or emailing compliance@beechgrove.com.

The recycling program is just one piece of the city's goal to complete the Comprehensive Local Environmental Action Network (CLEAN) Community Challenge, a recognition program through the Indiana Department of Environmental Management which awards cities, towns and counties for managing their environmental impact.

Beech Grove has outlined five required priorities to improve their environmental impact. They began offering quarterly shredding days this year, the first being held July 11. In the fall, the police department will begin offering a place in the lobby for the public to dispose of old medicines instead of throwing them in the trash or down the toilet. The municipal building will begin separating burnt-out light bulbs from the trash. They will do regular projects to replace foliage in the city. Beech Grove is slated to complete the challenge by the end of the year, which could make them the 18th Indiana city to earn the distinction.

Having More Retirement Accounts is Not the Same as Having More Money.

When it comes to the number of retirement accounts you have, the saying "more is better" is not necessarily true. In fact, if you hold multiple accounts with various brokers, it can be difficult to keep track of your investments and to see if you're properly diversified.* At the very least, multiple accounts usually mean multiple fees.

Bringing your accounts to Edward Jones could help solve all that. Plus, one statement can make it easier to see if you're moving toward your goals.

*Diversification does not guarantee a profit or protect against loss.

To learn why consolidating your retirement accounts to Edward Jones makes sense, call your local financial advisor today.

'Perpetrate' or 'perpetuate'

GRAMMAR GUY

By Jordan Fischer

Question: "Here is one you might want to comment on: Does someone perpetrate a fraud or perpetuate a fraud – or does it depend on how long he/she intends to do it?" – (Wayne Sturtevant)

Answer: Thanks for the question, Wayne. It's funny you should mention fraud...

The Grammar Guy column has been on a bit of a hiatus these last few weeks as I was in South Bend covering the Richmond Hills trial dealing with, of all things, murder and insurance fraud. I suppose it makes sense to resume my grammar musings where my trial coverage left off.

At any rate, what we have here are near-homophones that both come to us from Latin. "Perpetrate" derives from the Latin perpetrare, or "to perform." On the other hand, "perpetuate" comes from perpetuare, meaning "to make permanent."

You can tell from those definitions, I imagine, that "perpetrate" is going to be the appropriate word generally when dealing with crime. You perpetrate a heist. You perpetrate identity theft. You might even perpetrate some jaywalking, if you're feeling really rebellious.

Fraud is an interesting example, though, because unlike many other crimes which are encapsulated into a small timeframe, fraud can continue on at length. That means once the fraud is in place, you would be totally appropriate to say you are "perpetuating" a fraud. Of course, you would "perpetrate" it in the first place – something has to already be in action before you can perpetuate it.

All that being said, crime is bad and you shouldn't do it ... although I might be able to overlook jaywalking.

Goodness in greenness

NUTRITION

By Chef Wendell Fowler

Watercress is associated with snobby crust-less tea sandwiches. Society is finally discovering green foods from the Celestial Apothecary benefits Temple health, with emphasis on cruciferous vegetables such as broccoli, cabbage, arugula, cauliflower and kale. However, there are lesser-known green garden goodies equally as good, if not better.

Grown in gurgling spring water, watercress has been valued as a superfood for centuries. Hippocrates, the father of medicine, located his first hospital near a stream to ensure a fresh stash of watercress to treat patients. Greek soldiers were given watercress before going into battle and the 16th Century herbalist Culpepper claimed it cleansed the blood.

Watercress can reduce wrinkles. Watercress explodes with vitamins A, C and E which help skin stay smooth and supple. Watercress contributes to shiny, healthy hair thanks to its high content of iron, potassium, zinc and vitamins A, C and E. The B1 and E in watercress boost the immune system, and defend against pesky free radicals. The B6 helps produce disease-fighting antibodies. Compounds in watercress have been found to halt angiogenesis, the technical term for how harmless cells become cancerous. Studies exposed it's good at inhibiting the growth of breast cancer cells.

Watercress packs more iron than spinach, more vitamin C than oranges and more calcium than milk from a lactating bovine. Calcium-rich watercress is packed with manganese and magnesium which helps maintain strong bones and teeth. Calorie for calorie watercress has four times the amount of calcium as milk, meaning you can get help fighting osteoporosis, without the weight gain.

American Journal of Clinical Nutrition and the University of Ulster scientists claim eating watercress daily can significantly reduce DNA damage to blood cells, considered to be an important trigger in the development of cancer.

Hit the bottle last night? You might struggle getting it down, but juicing and then consuming leafy watercress juice will make you feel better since it activates detoxifying liver enzymes which help the Temple cleanse itself of the toxic after effects of too much booze. Watercress has lots of iodine that can strengthen the thyroid gland.

Bloated, gassy or experience stomach pains? Watercress might be the answer due to its cleansing properties. It's full of fiber and has antibacterial properties, can aid digestion, balance gut flora and boost metabolism.

Peppery watercress is most useful when eaten raw and makes a dazzling salad green when paired with salmon and a lemon and oil dressing. Eat like you love yourself.

IN OUR SCHOOLS

Jenna Neel and Carl Palma

Parent writes thank you to Beech Grove school staff

Ms. Deanna Neel recently sent Beech Grove Community Schools the following email: "On Monday, July 13, my daughter, Jenna Wray, was injured at cheer practice. When I arrived to pick her up, I found her in the trainer's office, being well attended to by Carl Palma, BGHS' trainer. Carl's advice was for me to take Jenna for x-rays. Carl even went the extra mile and promptly set up an appointment for us. Our news on Monday was not good, as Jenna had broken both bones in her ankle and was going to need surgery Tuesday for a plate and screws for one bone, as well as screws to the other. Carl checked on Jenna via texting several times on Monday. On Tuesday, with my permission, Carl accompanied Jenna to surgery to observe. This, in our opinion, was one of the greatest acts of kindness he could have done! It was very comforting for Jenna to know a familiar face was in the operating room with her, and we are grateful! It seems as if everyone always hears the bad and never the good. We want to recognize Mr. Palma publicly for going the extra mile with Jenna."

Vacation...one trip you'll regret

MOVIE REVIEW

By Adam Staten

Whether it is a song, a television show, or a movie, everyone has things they feel that should not be touched, that even attempting to replicate or add to these special items is breaking some sacred rule. One such recent example that has drawn the ire of fans is the planned Ghostbusters film with an all-female cast. Never being a huge fan of the original or the subsequent follow up films Ghostbusters films, I couldn't personally care less if Hollywood wanted to redo it or not. Another film likely to fall into that category is the Chevy Chase comedy classic, Vacation. 2015's Vacation, starring Ed Helms, hit theaters this week.

While 2015's Vacation is not technically a remake, but another film in the Vacation series, it's as close to a remake as a film can get. 2015's has essentially the same plot as the 1983 film, but instead of Clark Griswold, it's Clark's son, Rusty, trucking his family across the country.

After over hearing his wife complaining about the family's annual vacation destination and witnessing countless fights between his two sons, Rusty decides to act. In order to remedy the situation, decides to do exactly what his dear old dad did more than 30 years ago: visit Wall World. Of course, much like the trip three decades earlier, things rarely go according to plan.

2015's Vacation's central story is essentially the same as the 1983's Vacation. However, 2015's version takes a lot more detours and they are not enjoyable. Several times the story ventures into really unnecessary territory for a joke or two that isn't even funny. One in particular takes us to Rusty's wife's college sorority house where we learn of her not so flattering nickname and her less than sparkling college reputation. One or two of these detours would have been acceptable, but this continues to happen throughout the film and doesn't add to the story or the laughs.

As far as the acting goes, Ed Helms does his best Clark Griswold impersonation, but it falls short. Instead of Clark, Helms sounds and acts almost identical to his character on The Office, Andy Bernard. Christina Applegate is ok as Rusty's wife, providing one or two laughs, but nothing great.

For those familiar with the previous Vacation films, there are quite a few jokes referencing the other films. However, except for a few laughs, Rusty and his family should have stayed home and so should you because this is one trip you don't want to take. 2 out of 5.

Weekly Devotion

"For they are the spirits of devils, working miracles, which go forth unto the kings of the earth and of the whole world, to gather them to the battle of that great day of God Almighty. Behold, I come as a thief. Blessed is he that watcheth, and keepeth his garments, lest he walk naked, and they see his shame. And he gathered them together into a place called in the Hebrew tongue Armageddon." ~ Revelation 16:14-16

By Paul Kirby

It is rather amusing what some folks imagine the battle of Armageddon to be. Nearly anyone and everyone you talk to expects it to be a literal physical battle between a great number of combatants from nearly every major county on the earth. But, look at the language used here to describe those participating in this battle. Notice that it says that the kingdoms of the entire world will be at war with God.

What this is saying is that the nations of the world will align themselves against the kingdom of God. The word used here in the Greek is Basileus which means the foundation of power. The nations of the earth have and will continue their spiritual decline today.

He is speaking of spiritual warfare and not a war that is fought with military weapons. The battle is for hearts and minds and souls. We struggle daily with the enemy of God to hold the line for God.

The battle is raging right now and the problem is that people don't realize it. It is so sad today that so many are teaching and preaching a battle in the future that is going on right now. In this way, Satan is able to keep a majority of the combatants on God's side off of the battle field that matters. I hope this helps to awaken you to the perils of the moment.

God bless and go and have a great day.

Paul A. Kirby is the pastor at the Church of God at 3939 S. Emerson Ave.
