Family, fitness, fun

Baxter YMCA to host first Aloha Family Fun Run

FAMILY RUN/WALK

By Nicole Davis

Aloha, Hello: Welcoming words for an event inviting the community to gather for a health and wellness event which benefits local families.

The Arthur R. Baxter YMCA, 7900 Shelby St., Indianapolis, will host its first-ever Aloha Family Fun Run on June 11.

"It's a special event to raise money for our annual campaign, which provides scholarships for families in need," said John Schwenker, executive director. "We want it to be family-oriented. It's a great, healthy activity. It's going to be a great day for all levels of fitness. Just do what you can."

The day begins with a 5K run/walk at 8 a.m., followed by a 1-mile run/walk at 8:45 a.m. Registration is $20 for the 5k, $10 for the one-mile. Children five and younger are free. Those who register for the 5K can do the 1-mile for free. Chick-fil-A will provide food for participants. An award ceremony will be held for the top male and female. Top three finishers of the one-mile walk/run will be awarded, and all children finishing the one-mile race will receive a finisher's medallion.

The Y will offer post-race activities for families, such as a bounce house, an obstacle course or games for children older than 10. There will be food trucks on site. The pool opens at 10 a.m. for all participants.

"I'm really looking forward to the start of the race, getting it off the ground," Schwenker said. "To me, when we have the event start is the exciting part. We want to thank all of the sponsors for making the event possible, the volunteers and staff."

Those interested can register until the day of the event, but early registration is encouraged. Volunteers are also still being accepted. For more information, visit GetMeRegistered.com/BaxterYMCA.

Pets and the Paranormal

HAUNTS & JAUNTS

By Rick Hinton

Remember those times? Sweetie the pooch or Studs the cat suddenly turn their attention to a corner of the room, staring intently. Maybe there's a growl. Possibly the hair stands up on the neck of these devoted human companions. You are oblivious and see nothing, rationalizing it's some sort of animal thing. It could be...or maybe you have just experienced a paranormal occurrence and didn't make the connection!

Animals have a heightened sense of awareness. They see and hear things that you and I don't, and never will. I don't know how it works, but apparently it does. Is it a type of sixth sense, placing a different spin on what we consider a normal pace of life? Or, are there things just behind the veil only privy to them? It's a possibility....

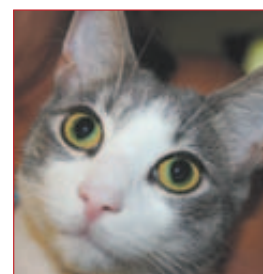

There are paranormal groups that use dogs to enhance their investigations. I haven't heard of any that use cats. Cats could care less, remaining aloof and no desire to expand beyond their normal routine of formalized daily existence. Dogs, however, are used as an alert of the possibility of supernatural happenings. They can't tell you what is going on, but they are damn sure entertaining to watch. I tried a dog once. He pooped on the floor and generally desired someone to rub his belly. I haven't used one since. Maybe-just maybe-I can develop this sixth sense myself. Maybe? It's a work in progress.

Several years ago while living in a mobile home Casey, the Cat of Wonder, would plant herself in the front bedroom of the trailer (my newborn son's room) and stare transfixed at a picture of Jesus knelled in the Garden of Gethsemane. Frankly, it creeped me out! Yet I had to investigate. Had Casey become a Christian puss? What exactly was up with the way a cat's mind worked anyway? I sat with her in the dark, and (maybe) came up with a solution. Passing traffic on the drive outside cast beams of light throughout the bedroom, with splashes of brightness playing for a second across the glass of the picture. I relocated the picture. Problem solved. It's the little things. It doesn't, however, explain the voices from this room coming through the baby monitor. That's a story for another day.

Presently I can only imagine what transpires in our compound on Southport Road with Norm the dog and Jerry the cat. Paranormal quirks are on the agenda here. Sometimes daily. Both are here all day alone-or not. If only they could speak. The stories they would have.

Reader submission: My Ali memory

It was just me, (Muhammad) Ali, the videographer ....and a host of about 50 onlookers who got word, and came to watch Ali. I first asked Ali about fighting Larry Holmes; he acknowledge it was still up in the air but that Larry Holmes was "too big, too slow, too ugly to be representing the colored folk." I countered with, "What about the possibility of fighting Scott LeDoux before Holmes. Ali responded, "Scott LeDoux, you, anybody....as long as it gets me a fight with Larry Holmes. At that time, one of the onlookers shouted, "What about me?" To which Ali responded, "YOU!!! You ever dreamed you fought me, you'd better wake up and apologize." The give-and-take with someone of that stature was one of the more magical moments of my broadcasting career. I asked him maybe one or two more questions and got the vintage Ali responses. But, that's not the end of the story... (Dan O'Brien, Greenwood)

Cheesy competition

Southport PD and Uno Pizzeria partner to fundraise for ballistic vests for the department

By Nicole Davis

Southport police officers were put to the test on June 3 and 4. As they were given 15 minutes to finish a deep dish, personal pan pizza, many struggled to complete the task.

Southport Police Department and Uno Pizzeria & Grill on Southport Road held a fundraising event, what Uno calls a doughraiser, the first week of June, with proceeds going to ballistic vests for the department.

"We wouldn't miss this for the world," said Dan Miller, a Perry Township resident who donated to the fundraiser. "We appreciate what the police do for us. If we can support them, we'll do whatever we can."

Tuesday the restaurant held a Kid's Coloring Contest. Friday and Saturday, the officers helped to serve tables before competing in the pizza eating contest. Officer Nate Williams was the fastest, and only one, to finish, in 6 minutes and 28 seconds. Police Chief Thomas Vaughn was the "guest bartender," auctioning off the drinks he made.

"They all got put to work for their fundraiser," said Linette Schoch, Uno's marketing coordinator. "Tuesday was a lot of fun because they had Justice the Mascot and the kids seemed to enjoy that. My favorite part is knowing it's helping the Southport Police Department get their ballistic vests. But seeing the kids' faces light up as they see the officers has been a lot of fun."

Bill Pang

IMPD officer makes a difference in his Franklin Township hometown

BEHIND the BADGE

Compiled by Nicole Davis

Bill Pang has gotten to serve his hometown of Franklin Township for 30 years. As a patrolman for Indianapolis Metropolitan Police Department, Southeast District, his zone consists of everything from Emerson Avenue to Carroll Road and County Line to Brookville Roads.

"If I was going to make a difference, I wanted to do it where I am from," Pang said, adding he also enjoys "the comradery of the guys and gals I get to work with every day. They are all really good people here on Southeast."

Graduating from Franklin Central High School in 1985, Pang joined the Franklin Township Volunteer Fire Department after graduation. He did that and, beginning 1992, served with the Marion County Sheriff's Reserves until 1995. He left for one year while he worked for the Evansville Police Department. He returned to Franklin Township in 1997 where he still resides with his wife, Lisa. Since then, he has served with IMPD, patrolling the streets.

What was your inspiration to become a police officer?

It was something I wanted to do since I was a little kid. Growing up, some of my friends' fathers were policemen so I got to see them all of the time.

What has been one of your most gratifying moments on the job?

If you can make the arrest, get the bad guy off of the street and then tell someone who just had the worst day of their life that we've got them. I like anything where you can do something to help somebody.

What aspect of the job do you find most challenging?

Dealing with juvenile system that seems like it needs repair because we can arrest someone and before we've finished the paperwork, they're sending us to go tell their parents to pick them up. That and some of the negative things we hear in the press.

What do you enjoy doing in your off-time?

Going to concerts – country. I scuba dive. I like to go on vacations, preferably anywhere with a beach. I like photography, fishing.

What are your future goals, professionally or personally?

Hopefully to get promoted off the sergeants list sometime in the near future. Personally, to prepare for retirement sometime in the future and try to make more time to do things out of work.

What would you have done if you hadn't become a police officer?

I probably would have been a firefighter or taken over my dad's dry cleaning business.

Beech Grove Brooks/Ogden family prepares for their sixth Relay for Life of Southeast Indy, an event which has helped them to heal in their time of loss

By Nicole Davis

People might not know they're looking for Relay for Life, but it might be just what they need. Angie Ogden says she was one of those people.

In September 2010, Angie's husband, Kris, passed away of cancer. In February, a friend invited her to a chili cook-off for Relay for Life.

"I didn't think I was going to go," she said. "It was pretty new to losing my husband. My dad talked me into going and seeing what it was all about."

Relay for Life is an event for communities to join together, celebrate cancer survivors or remember those who have lost the fight and raise money to fund research and support programs for all types of cancer. Participants can form teams, with members taking turns to walk or run around a track. The event is 24 hours long, and someone must be on the track at all times. Relay of Southeast Indy includes food, games, live music, and activities such as Zumba, a Luminaria Ceremony to remember loved ones who are gone, a Survivor Ceremony and a Glow Run 5K.

While her son's best friend had passed away with cancer and Angie's family had donated to Relay before, they had never been involved.

Her father, Jim Brooks, suggested they do a team that year.

"We didn't know what we were getting into," Angie said. "We started going to the meetings. We really felt it was healing. I'm around all of these people that know what I was going through. We as a family had never experienced a loss like that before. To know there are others out there that have or are anticipating that they are going to lose somebody, it became our support group. We went there for the event and had a blast. I realized that just because I lost my husband didn't mean that I couldn't have fun and celebrate him."

The family, including Jim and Deanna Brooks and their daughters, Angie and Andrea Brooks, have attended Relay for Life of Southeast Indy every year since and have even taken leadership roles for the event.

"We never know what tomorrow is going to bring," Deanna said. "We never would have thought that Kris would be diagnosed at 45 and we'd lose him in three months. Up until that point, he was working, hunting, fishing. You can hardly talk to anyone without them telling you a story about cancer affecting someone they love and care about. We want more awareness about what can be done, to support caregivers or give money to research."

Jim, who is a retired Beech Grove firefighter and current Beech Grove city councilor, helps with the event's logistics. Deanna, who is retired from JP Morgan Chase, helps organize the Survivor's Walk. Angie and Andrea previously chaired the event for two years. Currently, Angie, who is a hearing instrument specialist for Hearing Solutions Plus, helps with sponsorship and fundraising. Andrea, who is an office manager for David R. Johnson State Farm, helps organize the 'Finish the Fight Glow Run 5K'.

"We walk away thankful, fulfilled," Angie said. "When you sit back and think what just happened, what we just did, I truly feel amazed when it's all over."

This year's Relay for Life of Southeast Indy, serving Beech Grove, Perry and Franklin Townships, will take place Friday, June 17 beginning 7 p.m. and lasting until Saturday, June 18 at 7 p.m. The Luminaria Ceremony is at 10 p.m. The Glow Run begins at midnight with registration ($25) at 11 p.m., followed by an after party at 1 a.m. Zumba is Saturday at 10:30 a.m. The survivor ceremony is at 4 p.m. That's not all - for the entire event listing, visit relayforlife.org/southeastindyin.

"I've called it a big party all along," Andrea said. "There is everything you could want there, just about. It's a lot of fun. Then there are others who are having a hard time be-

Relay inspirations:

"The goal is to have someone on the track for 24 hours. Sometimes that's tough to do when it's 3 o'clock in the morning, it's been 90 degrees and you're exhausted. You still see people get up and go. You see a commitment. One of the girls that grew up with Angie is battling; she's a very integral part of the team and the whole event. One night I was sitting there thinking I can't do this anymore, I was exhausted, I turned around and see she was doing Zumba. That inspired me to keep going. That's what we inspire to do (for) each other."

- Deanna Brooks

"When someone asks me what relay is all about, I tell them that it is an event; it's not just a walk. It's a big festival. It's a festival where you can go, celebrate, remember and honor those who are currently fighting or have lost the battle to cancer. You're raising money to help those who are still fighting."

- Angie Ogden

cause they've lost someone or were just told they have cancer. We're there to help them get that off their minds for a while and help them enjoy life, let them know they're not alone."

Southeast Indy Relay for Life has a festival-like setting, and the family said they encourage everyone to come. There is no requirement to walk, it's free and there are popular bands and food.

"Please come," Jim said. "We want everyone to see what Relay is all about. A lot of people think Relay is a sad time but it's not; it's a fun time. There are times we reflect on the ones we lost. But it's a time to celebrate their life, celebrating what they have given to us in our lives. I'm a true believer in Relay. I know what it's done for people...The first year I walked around the track, I walked around with a guy who lost a son the same age as my son-in-law. I had never met the guy before. We walked around probably 10 times, talking about our loss. It was so healing."

GOVERNMENT WATCHDOG

BEECH GROVE CITY COUNCIL

Meeting, June 6

■ What happened: Ordinances 8 through 12, 2016 were approved on third readings.

■ What it means: Ordinances 8, 9, 10 and 11 update the employee manual, relating to sick leave procedures, how to terminate employment and how employees will be notified of sick and vacation time remaining.

Ord. 12: The state legislature now mandates that the clerk treasurer office adopt rules and procedures for everyone who handles money. The Beech Grove Clerk Dan McMillan will have to train all people who handle money and give documentation to the state board of accounts. This needed to be passed by June 30. Amendments were made before approval to better fit how Beech Grove operates.

■ What's next: All of these ordinances will go into effect.

■ What happened: Resolution 9 was approved. Ordinances 13 and 14 were passed on first reading.

■ What it means: Resolution 9 would appropriate $25,000 to help construct the Butler Avenue Connection Roadway from Hornet Avenue through the city of Beech Grove. This is an existing, dedicated but unconstructed roadway. The redevelopment commission has committed $50,000 to the project, and Beech Grove City Schools will fund the remainder.

Ordinance 13 establishes fees for building permits. This ordinance was amended a few years ago, but Mayor Buckley stated that the city is still behind. Councilor Chris Duffer said he felt increase was too high. The city's Electrical Inspector Michael Hughes said the current fees are far too low. The council voted to approve the ordinance on first reading, but to form a commission and do further research on what the increase should be before the second reading.

Ordinance 14 would prohibit door-to-door sales and sales of second-hand goods, with exemptions such as protection of religious and political speech.

■ What's next: Ordinances 13 and 14 will undergo second readings at the Tuesday, July 5 council meeting.

In brief...

A roundabout project at Churchman and Arlington Avenues was discussed. GAI Consultants will do the design work. ### Beech Grove Branch library celebrates Summer Reading kickoff and merger with Indianapolis Public Library

PUBLIC LIBRARY EVENT

By Nicole Davis

Beech Grove and Indianapolis residents gathered at the now Beech Grove Branch of the Indianapolis Public Library on June 4. As Beech Grove merged with IndyPL on June 1, this was the kickoff celebration for not only that, but the Summer Reading Program, too.

"I truly think we're going to have a better library here," said Elizabeth Schoettle, Beech Grove branch manager. She later stated, to the crowd, "I'm excited that this has finally happened."

Both Beech Grove and Indianapolis library boards voted in approval of the merger earlier in 2016 after spending the previous year researching pros, cons and how the merger would work. The consolidation is said to increase efficiency and sustainability in operations, increase computer capacity, programing, materials and services.

"You'll see over the next couple weeks, the collections starting to swell," said David Wantz, IndyPL board member, during the celebration. "You who have Beech Grove Library cards will get Indianapolis Public Library cards and you'll be able to access thousands of digital pieces and any branch of the library. It's a very good thing... We're looking forward and that is what this day is all about."

To celebrate Indiana's Bicentennial, the mascot for the 2016 Summer Reading Program, A Summer Reading Book Bash, is Indiana's most famous feline, Garfield. The orange cat was in attendance during the June 4 celebration. Families also took part in face painting, games and snacks. The Summer Reading Program began June 6 and continues through July 30. Participants can earn points for reading books, and exchange those for prizes. For more information, visit indypl.org.

SISTERS HOST FUNDRAISER

Greenwood girls to Host Alex's Lemonade Stand

In their continuing efforts to raise funds and awareness for the fight against childhood cancer, young sisters, Brooklyn, Daisy and Serenity will host their sixth annual "Two Sisters" lemonade stand during Alex's Lemonade Days on June 11, 8:30 a.m. – 3 p.m. at 680 Rocky Meadow Dr., Greenwood.

The young girls first heard about Alex's Lemonade Stand a few years ago. Their grandmother told them about a relative that had passed away from childhood cancer, so they decided to hold a stand to honor her and all the children who have battled cancer. It's become a tradition the girls look forward to every summer. Although it started with just the two sisters, they are proud to have their younger sister, family and friends help them fight childhood cancer, one cup at a time. In addition to selling lemonade, they will sell their old toys and clothing. They hope to raise $600. Alex's Lemonade Days 2016 is set for June 10, 11 and 12!

FROM THE EDITOR

Road workers deserve better

Several times a week, we audibly laugh at some of the news releases that sail across the transom here. And what is really incredible is that many come from government agencies about things (a) you already should know about, (b) at which you would roll your eyes, or (c) both. Last week, we received one from INDOT about drivers' responsibilities in construction zones. We read the list, but we didn't laugh. It made us think mostly about the commonsensical items presented in the missive that never should have had to be listed. But we, in general, comprise a people that seems to not care much about the details. As long as we're able to drive between the orange barrels with our knees while cradling cell phones on our shoulders in an effort to keep hands free to open Vitamin Water, it's all good.

Over in Illinois, where there are construction zones, so, too, are there signs that read, "My mommy works here." Some might ask, "Aw, isn't that cute?" They would be wrong and missing the larger message. The highway workers are there because they're making improvements to make your motoring life better, and they deserve the same courtesies as pedestrians. Fear not, you'll get to your destination in one piece. It's everyone's business to make sure the workers do, too.

QUOTE OF THE WEEK

"I done wrestled with an alligator, I done tussled with a whale; handcuffed lightning, thrown thunder in jail; only last week, I murdered a rock, injured a stone, hospitalised a brick; I'm so mean I make medicine sick."

~ Muhammad Ali (January 1942– June 2016)

HUMOR

Top ten reasons I haven't been writing a lot of political stuff

Compiled by Torry Stiles

10. Racing season, baby!
9. I've been swamped with requests to write about bars that have karaoke nights and don't warn you about it at the door.
8. I have trouble thinking about this election sober and I can't type when I'm drunk.
7. I'm holding out for the whole thing to be settled with a no-holds-barred battle royal inside the steel cage.
6. I have more than 400 channels on my television. When would I have the time to follow an election?
5. Most of my Trump jokes are already taken. The TV people have been working overtime on that one.
4. I spent most of the election cycle ignoring the news because I thought it was silly that Tom Cruise was running.
3. The Southside Times has a very strict "nothing that will get us fire-bombed" rule.
2. I had some great stuff about Hillary but one of the folks with her campaign warned me I'd be sleeping with the fishes if I printed it.
1. I'm at the point that when I "Feel the Bern" I reach for the Alka-Seltzer.

Sara Wiley, a teacher with Beech Grove City Schools and candidate for Indiana State Senate District 32.

Where do you like to dine? Edward's Drive-In

What do you like to eat there? We always get breaded tenderloin or chicken tenders.

What do you like about this place? Because it is an Indiana staple. The tenderloin is the best there. It is just a fun place to go. They have oldies music, a free jukebox, and sometimes you will see people dancing. It is a lot of fun. You can also pull up to the curb and do old school.

Maggie's Plan... Moore impressive in bland film

MOVIE REVIEW

By Adam Staten

Relationships, romantic and otherwise, can be both rewarding and confounding. Spending time with others produces a closeness that usually leads to a happier and more fulfilling life. However, even the best relationship is not perfect and troubled and trying times are bound to occur. People are flawed beings, so naturally how we relate to one another is unlikely to be without its blemishes. But the question remains: how far are we willing to go to be happy in our relationships when things get confusing, difficult or otherwise unbearable? This is the question the new film, Maggie's Plan, attempts to answer.

Maggie's Plan is the story of 30-something Maggie, who is disillusioned with men and romantic relationships, yet still desires to be a mother. She decides to ask a "pickle entrepreneur" acquaintance that has a unique math fascination to be the sperm donor. Unfortunately, things go awry for Maggie fairly quickly.

Maggie encounters John (Ethan Hawke), a professor who teaches at the college at which they both work. John and Maggie soon begin meeting regularly to discuss a book John is working on, and like most films, romantic feelings develop. However, there is one big catch: John is married to the driven and narcissistic Georgette (Julianne Moore) and has two children with her. Flash forward three years; Maggie and John are married with a little one of their own. Unhappy with the state of her marriage and fearing John is as well, Maggie concocts and unleashes a plot to put John and Georgette back together. Maggie soon learns that playing puppet master can have serious repercussions, both intended and not.

Easily the best aspect of Maggie's Plan is the strong performance turned in by the always-reliable Julianne Moore as the overbearing Georgette. Greta Gerwig as Maggie is good as well, but Moore steals every scene in which she appears. Moore keeps things interesting with her inspired and unpredictable performance even when the often boring and bland story fails to do so.

The two solid performances aside, there isn't much else to like here. Bill Hader appears in Maggie's Plan as well, but is so underutilized that it leaves you wondering why the filmmakers even bothered with his character. Hawke's character John is such an unlikable figure. He's a weak, whiney, put upon character who never takes responsibility for his actions or decisions. The ending of Maggie's Plan is also rather frustrating. In a matter of seconds, it seemingly undoes its entire premise of 'life and relationships are messy, unpredictable, and we're just trying to make the best of life.'

Despite a few bright points, namely Moore's performance, its bland story and other failings are too much to overlook. 3 out of 5.

Cheese: Addictive like a drug

NUTRITION

By Chef Wendell Fowler

"I love cheese-crave it; can't live without it!" Much has been written recently regarding the addictive qualities of cheese containing casein. Researchers at the University of Michigan found cheese is way more addictive when compared to other foods, in part due to its processing. LA Times October 2015, headline blared, "Cheese is as addictive as drugs."

In 1909, the average American consumed only 3.8 pounds of cheese a year. Today it's 34 pounds per person. Hum? USDA: "The inclusion of cheese in time-saving convenience foods and in commercially manufactured and prepared foods such as frozen pizza, macaroni and cheese, and pre-packaged cheese slices has increased consumption. The popularity of cheese-rich Italian and Tex-Mex cuisines has also contributed to increased cheese consumption."

T. Colin Campbell, author of "The China Study," and "Main Street Vegan" author Victoria Moran describes the science of how we become chemically and emotionally addicted to dairy: "Casein, one of the proteins in milk, crosses the blood-brain barrier and becomes something called casomorphins. Yes'm, a lot like morphine—because casomorphin is an opioid. Nature designed it that way so young mammals would enjoy nursing, come back for more and live to reproduce. Human milk has only 2.7 grams of casein per liter. Cow's milk has 26. And because it takes, on average, 10 pounds of milk to make one pound of cheese or ice cream, you're looking at a lot of casein and resultant casomorphin. The result can be a major opiate addiction that can cause people to have serious withdrawal symptoms."

Don't kill the messenger, but eating too much fatty cheese is a drag on your health and waistline. Typical cheeses are 70 percent fats. Studies clearly show weight gain in the US in the past 30 years is almost entirely due to changing eating habits, not lack of physical activity.

The China Study and many others connected cancer to dairy. "Restriction of dairy consumption has been linked may offer protection from the most common dairy promoted cancer in men of Western societies," Nutr Metab (Lond). 2012 Aug 14;9(1):74.

Lay off for three weeks at least. Your taste buds will change and cravings greatly weakened or even gone. At this point, you'll have learned to satisfy them with healthier foods from plants instead of lactating bovines.

I'm reaching out-praying you'll do something about it. The big question: how many are listening?

Johnson County girls earn Girl Scout Gold Awards

SCOUTING

Michelle Roberts and Gabrielle VanBuskirk have earned the Girl Scout Gold Award, the highest award a girl can earn in Girl Scouting. Roberts' Girl Scout Gold Award. Roberts' The Fleece Navidad Project, provided comfort, and warmth, to children staying at Peyton Manning Children's Hospital. VanBuskirk established an extracurricular school program, Hearts and Crafts, to address inclusion between students with special needs and mainstream students. Both girls were recognized on June 4, during Girl Scouts of Central Indiana's Girls of Distinction event at the JW Marriott in Indianapolis.

Roberts spent significant time in the hospital when she was a kid. This experience provided her with an intimate understanding of the fear and isolation that accompanies a stay in the hospital. Roberts, and partner Peyton Manning Children's Hospital, developed a program to give children a hand-crafted, fleece blanket during hospital stays. The blanket is used to alleviate fear and the isolation among children during their visits to the hospital. Roberts graduated from Greenwood Community High School and plans to attend Milligan College to study nursing and French.

VanBuskirk's Girl Scout Gold Award project sprung out of her realization that separate programs for students with special needs prevented social inclusion. Her project sought to bridge the gap between mainstream students and special need students. Working with the local middle school, VanBuskirk offered Hearts and Crafts workshops, centering around creating art projects. The workshops offered students the opportunity to establish relationships in a relaxing and fun setting. VanBuskirk, a graduate of Center Grove High School, plans to study exercise science at the University of Evansville.

"Study to shew thyself approved unto God, a workman that needeth not to be ashamed, rightly dividing the word of truth. But shun profane and vain babblings: for they will increase unto more ungodliness."

~ 2 Timothy 2:15-16

To those graduating either from high school, college or some university: Paul has some words for you and if you follow these words you will find life can be good and even great. Life is hard. It brings some really difficult choices and after having made those choices, choices need to be made within the choice having been made.

When Paul advises Timothy to study he is not talking about studying for a career; he is talking about studying for his calling to be a leader in the church and the world. Timothy went on to take Paul's advice and had a life-time of sacrifice and labor in behalf of God and His church.

What are you going to do with your life? Now is the time for you to prepare yourself to come to the aid of the church, the community, and the world and, mostly to God.

Right now you are thinking, what next? What is next will set the tone for the remainder of your life. It may seem to be just a passing thing, but it will have a lasting effect.

I plead with you to take Jesus with you in life. When your life is over (and one day it will be) you will look back and see how very wise that choice was. Having Jesus with you will not protect you from disappointment; it will help you cope with it. It will not protect you from failure(s) but He will be there to pick you up and dust you off and set you on your feet and move you forward. He is your best friend. Study His words (the Bible) and make a life-time study of it. May God bless you on our journey.

God bless and go and have a great day.

Paul A. Kirby is the pastor at the Church of God at 3939 S. Emerson Ave.
