Demise of Greenwood Mills home would be tragic

HAUNTS & JAUNTS

By Rick Hinton

Greenwood has its share of historical homes—all with a story to tell. Traveling west on Fry Road, between US 31 and 135, one such home is very easy to miss. Coming from the other direction, however, a motorist has the opportunity for a quick glance before they are past. The home sits back from the roadway nestled on a wooded hillside, and empty.

From all appearances it has been that way for some time. The home at 944 Fry Road may well have become the neighborhood “spook” house.

In the mid 1950s Ernie Mills, whose company sold cabinetry and Formica counter tops, decided he wanted a home with a ‘different’ slant. He contracted with architect Harry Cooper to build such a house. Mill’s master plan was to use the home not only as a residence, but also to display his company’s products. Mills and Cooper, heavily influenced by legendary builder Frank Lloyd Wright’s spin on living spaces, went to work. The home was finished in 1956 and the Mills family moved in.

Back in the 1950s Fry Road twisted through a country setting with US 31 and 135 just a glimmer of what would become in the future. Greenwood was a sleepy burg and far separated from big brother Indianapolis. The home that Cooler built—flat roof with overhanging eaves, floor to ceiling windows, cantilevered balcony, and fieldstone used to layer not only the outside landscape but also incorporated into the interior—made the home blend into the hillside. Mills had his showcase!

Fast forward some 59 years and things are not looking good for the former Mills home. The roof is deteriorating, resulting in interior water damage. Soffits are rotted. The grounds are in severe need of maintenance. A lone light burns at night in an interior main room while security sensor lights on the back patio flash on with the winds beckoning. “No-Trespassing” signs are prominent.

While original owner Mills is long gone, builder Cooler is very much still with us. He states “the damage could still be repaired if it isn’t allowed to escalate.” However, it may very well be beyond that point.

For the second year the Mill’s home has appeared on Indiana Historic Landmark’s endangered homes. Never a good thing! Current owner, former Greenwood lawyer and current resident of Florida—Charles Gantz—has not listed the property for sale. What is he waiting for?

The demise of the Mills home would be a tragedy. It’s a slice of Greenwood history that could soon disappear into the fog of the past.

WRT resident calls for action

The CG school board set in motion a plan to construct a student activity center which would connect to the high school with no increase to taxpayers. Unfortunately there has been some resistance to the plan and a remonstrance group has been formed. Both sides (supporters and non-supporters) have 30 days to gather signatures from those who are a registered voter in Johnson County and live in White River Township OR property owners in White River Township. Q: Did you re-watch any movies or television shows you once thought were really good and realize it wasn't very good? Which one?

"Nicolas Cage in The Lord of War. I actually sold my dad on watching this movie. I saw it before and I thought it was a great movie. As we were watching it together I realized how horrible it is. It was interesting that my dad sat through the whole movie just because he was trying to appease me. It was a horrible movie."

Derrick Craighead, works in Beech Grove

"Saved By The Bell. I grew up watching it daily. It was one of my favorite shows and then I watched it a couple of weeks ago and thought it was terrible. Terrible acting, terrible everything."

Lyndsay Pinion, of Franklin Township

"Christmas with the Kranks. The first time I watched it 'it's okay. It is funny.' The second time I watched it 'this is really a stupid movie.' They are stealing Christmas trees and she is trying to find a ham and fighting in a store for it. 'Why did I watch it the first time and why am I watching it again?' It was just a crazy movie and I can't believe I watched it twice."

Allen Overbeck of Perry Township

"I watched Gravity twice. Once I saw it on IMAX 3-D, and it was awesome. Then I went home and watched it on a television screen and it was not awesome anymore. It just didn't have the same effect without all the production."

OUR VIEW

Thanks to you
our brave warriors

As the election dust continues to settle in our communities and across the nation, let's not forget to take time to recognize our brave men and women who have fought and served in the name of our great nation.

Regardless of your politics or which side of the aisle you find yourself on, there's no arguing the commitment of our veterans who have sacrificed so much to serve our freedom.

"Thanks for all that you have given, veterans..."

This Veterans Day, Nov. 11, we challenge ourselves and our readers to show our sincere thanks and gratitude to the veterans of our armed forces. Whether they have served in the Air Force, Army, Coast Guard, Marines, National Guard or Navy, we give thanks. Regardless of when you served, we give thanks.

In this issue we feature Warrior's Hope on the cover, specifically Loren Minnix along with a dedicated group of volunteers who help give hope to veterans in their time of need. Whether they just returned home or served 70 years ago in WWII, these warriors have defended our constitution and our country, placing their own wellbeing in the background. We applaud Warrior's Hope in its 10 years of successful support groups.

Thanks for all that you have given, veterans – your strength gives us strength.

Be safe and be well, veterans of the Southside and everywhere.

BELIEVE IT!

Our nation has all sorts of arcane, nonsensical laws on the books. Each week, we'll share one with you...

In Illinois, it is illegal to hang "obstructions" from the rear view mirror, including fuzzy dice, air fresheners, GPS units, etc.

BACKSHOP

Another election in the books

Congratulations to all of the winners on Tuesday. While we have no experience in political campaigns – although, one of us did work for a former mayor – we know it is a tough process. It is our hope that where there were hotly contested races, the healing process can begin and politics will yield to doing what's right for the taxpayers. The big loser of course was the Marion County Republican Party, which lost the mayor's office as well as several city council seats. The county GOP needs to do some serious soul searching. Gone are the days of great Marion County Republican leadership under the likes of Richard Lugar, Bill Hudnut and Steve Goldsmith. With a Democratic-controlled city council (we do have faith in Frank Mascari) and Hogsett in the mayor's office, we're not sure what to think of Indy's future.

We're sure you've heard recently the predicted blather from IRS Commissioner John Koskinen referring to audit levels of individual taxpayers being at the lowest level since 2004. Being a good liberal, the solution, he says, is more funding. This coming from the guy who leads a corrupt organization – the targeting of conservative organizations for additional scrutiny; Lois Lerner's lost-then-found e-mails, and accusations of obstruction against Koskinen regarding the investigation into said targeting of conservative organizations. By the way, Koskinen, if you want more money, how about getting Obama's favorite race pimp, Al Sharpton, to pay some of the millions of dollars he owes taxpayers? It amazes us Koskinen still has his job, but, then, this is 2015 America, so he'll likely not only get a pass, but a raise, too. But, the only thing more incompetent than the IRS is the republican majority in the house, that can't accomplish anything other than passing increased vacation time for its members.

QUOTE OF THE WEEK

"Honor to the soldier and sailor everywhere, who bravely bears his country's cause. Honor, also, to the citizen who cares for his brother in the field and serves, as he best can, the same cause."

New VFW post forms to serve the Greenwood, Bargersville, Whiteland and Center Grove areas

FEATURE

By Nicole Davis

Hollie Shoellhorn joined the National Guard at 17, wanting a bigger experience than her small town of Monticello, Ind. could provide. She finished basic training just two weeks before 9/11. She began serving at Camp Atterbury in 2003, and served one tour in Afghanistan from '06-'07. It was when her husband, Britton, was going to deploy that she joined the Veterans of Foreign Wars Post in Greenwood.

"When he was gone, they became my support system," Hollie says. "The people at Greenwood VFW were really supportive. They saw me on my best days but also saw me on my worst. They have so many great things and people just need to realize what they can do for veterans and their families."

Seeing how much the VFW has helped her through the years, she says she and other veterans and active military saw a need for a post near the Center Grove area. The post is for all veterans of any age, but specifically focused on attracting younger veterans who might shy away from joining because of the stigma of the VFW being for an older generation.

"We need to bring more people in," Hollie says. "If you can't bring people in, the organization itself will fail. We need to get the new vets to see what we have to offer and get them excited about what we can do to help out our brothers and sisters."

Hollie serves as the post's commander. Indiana has not formed a new VFW post in more than 30 years. The post would serve Greenwood, Bargersville, Whiteland and Center Grove areas.

"We just moved here to Bargersville and didn't know anyone until we met Holly and Britton," says Phillip Sinnett, who has served in the army since 2006. "We made friends and felt we made a good choice in joining. It's been great times. We get together, laugh, help each other out. That is what the VFW is all about."

The Post is temporarily located out of 2688 Longleaf Dr. Greenwood. It currently consists of a veteran's gym, family movie lounge, combat videogame loft, family kitchen, and camaraderie canteen. These facilities are available Thursday-Sunday from 1 - 10 p.m.

A meeting was held on Oct. 12 where Hollie says they should reach enough members to finish the charter application. To file for the charter, they have to have 25 new members and 10 transfers. Upon approval, the state commander will install the VFW post on a date to be determined by Governor Mike Pence.

Hollie says they are currently fundraising to save enough to build a permanent location. For more information, call the post at (317) 762-VFW1 (8391), email hoosiervfw@gmail.com, or visit hoosiervfw.altervista.org/.

"We support our veterans and troops!"

Strength of Spirit

By Nicole Davis

How can you talk to someone when they haven't experienced the hardships you've faced? When you know they won't understand? Loren Minnix said this is something he has seen with too many veterans that he has worked with throughout the years. They don't seek help because they don't feel anyone will understand.

When he founded Warrior's Hope 10 years ago, the goal was straightforward: offer hope to all military veterans, our warriors, who have returned home and are struggling to integrate back into life as they knew it.

"Many just felt lost when they returned," Minnix said. "Many have struggled in combat areas or have returned and their families are unstable. They needed some assistance, not to give up. They needed some hope for the future. If we lose hope, we're pretty helpless aren't we? That's what we do is try to reestablish hope. We thought that could be communicated through scriptural processes."

Minnix served in the Marine Corps from 1961-65. He spent an extended period time in the far east in 1962 and '63 because his relief battalion was caught up in Cuba at the time.

"I saw a lot of things that were so out of bounds in the morality of life that I had been raised by," he said. "When I got out of the military, I just hitchhiked back and forth across the country. I couldn't settle down for a long time. My relationship with Jesus Christ changed me completely. I quit chasing the wrong things and started chasing the right things."

He came home went to college, got married and raised a family. He earned a degree in interpersonal communication, taking a lot of courses in counseling and ministerial approaches to counseling. Being a veteran himself, his interest was always to work with veterans. It's what he's always done, in addition to his profession as a plumbing contractor.

On Aug. 5, 2005, Warrior's Hope held its first meeting. Minnix said for the first year, they tried to develop a retreat program, but it wasn't a popular idea then. So he shifted his focus on helping veterans with Post Traumatic Stress Disorder (PTSD).

"PTSD is not terribly uncommon after battle or after unusual trauma enters our life, but when it begins to impact our thought process or our motions, that's when it becomes a disorder," Minnix said. "One of the things I hear is, 'When will I get my life back? When will I be back to normal? This is normal for you. What you're experiencing would be normal for anyone that has been through what you've been through. However, how do you handle it? How do you cope with it?"

Based at 430 N. Madison Ave., Suite 2 in Greenwood, a group at Warrior's Hope meets every Tuesday night.

"We people are made up of three things: mind, body and spirit," said Judd Green, board member, of Greenwood, who has done tours in Vietnam and Iraq. "What war does is damage your spirit. That's what this group does is deal with healing your spirit and that's what's most important."

Minnix said another goal when beginning the organization was to train facilitators who could manage the peer support groups, and there are at least seven Warrior's Hope groups that currently meet.

"I joined a couple of months ago," said Freddy Clow, of Greenwood, who served in the Navy from 1952-56. "It's more than I expected as far as biblical work and that makes me feel a lot better. We have one member that's began to unload. I haven't done much but it makes me feel a little better."

Minnix said his reward comes when he has people telling him they wish they had started earlier. Now they don't want to miss a meeting. They say they've had major struggles, but now that's over.

"I walked in here two years ago and found a family. It's the comradery that we have here," said Jack Brown, of Perry Township, who served in the Army from 1967-87. "That's why this group is helping me. They all made me feel at home. We harass each other but when it comes down to the fight we're all brothers and sisters. My wife sees a change in me."

Establishing a trusting relationship is of first and foremost importance. Minnix said many people will come to meetings for six months to a year before they decide to open up. But when they do, he says they get a newfound freedom for releasing something they've internalized for so long.

"I had a guy say I was in this lived hatred. All of a sudden it's gone," he said. "I didn't make that happen. But over the time and talking to the group, they come to the realization that either it wasn't worth it, or the problem is (them). That's what we try to do is get people to feel their emotions are caused by their own way of thinking. I can't make you mad if you don't want to be mad."

Now retired, Minnix keeps busy through Warrior's Hope and offering aid to veterans in other ways. He does emergency crisis counseling, helping people on the verge of suicide, divorce or other mental distress. He said he would love to find a young person with his same passion to groom into the next president of Warrior's Hope, though that will take time. For now, his time is spent encouraging veterans who think there is no one else who can understand their struggles to attend a meeting, because there are others like them.

"The human spirit is amazing what it can endure if it's treated properly," he said.

Courtney Henderson:

Beech Grove paramedic continues to seek new skills, knowledge and experience

BEHIND the BADGE

Too often people get caught up in their own routine, never venturing out to learn new things. That's what Courtney Hendricks, a Danville resident, says she wanted to avoid when she decided to change her career path and become a paramedic. She was hired, as a civilian, full-time to the Beech Grove Fire Department in June of 2014.

"I like learning things from new people and seeing other sides," Hendricks said. "I'm very blessed, very privileged for (BGFD) to have considered me as a candidate. I'll be here awhile. It's like a huge family. They treat me like a little sister; they pick on me but at the same time I know they will keep me safe and they're here to help me. And there's so much knowledge in this fire department."

Hendricks spent 19 years as a phlebotomist, a person trained to draw blood for clinical or medical testing, donation or research. She switched her field two years ago. She continues to work for Hendricks Regional Health as a paramedic in the Emergency Room and a phlebotomist in the laboratory.

Since the career transition, Hendricks said there's never a day that she doesn't feel like going into work. Every day is different, providing an opportunity for continued learning.

"Everyone's emergency is different and everyone deserves to be treated like family, with respect," she said. "We knew that before. But we definitely realize here that this is their fear, their pain. This is their moment. You have to consider that and respect it. It makes you appreciate what you have."

What was your inspiration to become a paramedic?

I always wanted to be a scientist, watching nature shows on TV. For 19 years I was a phlebotomist and changed two years ago to do EMS. For the citizens to trust you, a complete stranger, to come in and take care of them, that's pretty good. I always wanted to be in EMS. Phlebotomy was fun. I learned a lot. It was my base, but I wanted to do more and learn more. I think being in emergency medicine has definitely taught me a lot and I'm still learning.

What has been one of your most gratifying moments on the job?

Seeing my children being proud of me. For mom to do something for 20 years and then completely changing everything, and them saying 'mom, we're really proud of you.'

What aspect of the job do you find most challenging?

When you know you have a patient that is not doing well and you see the family hurt. You empathize and sympathize. It's your community, your family.

What do you enjoy doing in your off-time?

Spending time with my kids. They're older now, 8, 18 and 19. We can hang out, go to the movies, cook together.

What are your future goals, professionally or personally?

To continue to keep up with the current education. Professionally I would consider being a flight medic, a critical care paramedic.

What would you have done if you hadn't of become a paramedic?

I'd still be in phlebotomy, which isn't a bad gig.

GOVERNMENT WATCHDOG

BEECH GROVE CITY COUNCIL

Meeting, Nov. 2

■ What happened? Ordinance 26 was passed on second and third readings.

■ What it means: Ordinance 26 states the city's desire to adopt a storm water standards manual. This would allow Beech Grove to enforce standards that fit Beech Grove, so new construction wouldn't need to get approval from Indianapolis like they do currently. The manual establishes procedures for treatment of storm water and penalties for not adhering to the standards.

■ What's next? The ordinance will go into effect.

■ What happened? Ordinance 27 was introduced and passed on first reading. A zoning hearing was proposed to the council.

■ What it means: Ordinance 27 would authorize the city to make temporary loans to meet current running expenses to be used for the general fund, police and fire pension funds. Zoning: KLC Realty is asking for a rezoning of .54 acres in the Franklin Township district to be zoned for a liquor store.

■ What's next? Ordinance 27 will go through second and third readings at the December meeting. A special zoning hearing will be held on Nov. 16, 7 p.m. at the council chambers.

UIndy team wins Celadon student case competition

A student team from the University of Indianapolis claimed top honors and a $1,000 prize in the 2015 Celadon Case Study Competition, an annual event that challenges college students to tackle real issues facing the transportation and logistics industry.

UIndy freshmen Chris McKeown and Nicholas Williams and sophomores Casey Brock and Tyler Johnson pulled off a surprise win in an 11-team field that included squads from IUPUI, Franklin College, and Ball State, Butler and Indiana State universities.

Celadon Trucking organizes the competition each year to give students an opportunity to network with upper management and explore internship and full-time employment opportunities with the company. The teams in this year's competition were given background information Oct. 8 on a reality-based case involving supplier relationships. The following morning, they received a tour of the Celadon campus and a chance to talk with management about the case. On Saturday, Oct. 10, they returned and made their presentations to a judging panel of industry professionals, who assessed each entry in terms of professionalism, visual presentation, overall content and responses to the judges' questions.

Halloween costume parade brings smiles to Nativity students

It was an exciting day for Nativity Catholic School kindergarten and first grade students as they transformed themselves into witches, werewolves, superheroes and various other creatures. Led by their costumed teachers, they paraded through the classrooms of the older grades and received candy and lots of compliments on their costumes. It was a fun time for everyone.

Roncalli students walk for tuition assistance

Roncalli High School held its annual Walkathon fundraiser on Oct. 29. More than 1,300 students, faculty, staff and volunteers participated in the three-mile walk, which raised over $91,000. Walkathon is Roncalli's only all school fundraiser with 100 percent of the proceeds benefitting needs-based tuition assistance. This year's walkathon theme was New Kids on the Walk, submitted by Roncalli senior Jamie Curtis. From that theme, senior Max van Dongen designed the t-shirt worn by all participants.

Nativity brings out Halloween spirits

Nativity Catholic Church's WOW (Women of the Word) group sponsored an evening of spooky Halloween trunk-or-treating fun for parish and community kids and families. The event attracted a lot of creative decorating that included cars decorated in themes such as Star Wars, Fancy Nancy and Teenage Mutant Ninja Turtles. A parade, costume judging, trunk-or-treating, trunk decoration judging, games, crafts, and cookie decorating highlighted the evening. Attendees have already started planning creations for next year's event.

Kendra Eldridge and her first-grader, Luke, matched their costumes to their Star Wars inspired trunk.

Title Student Ambassadors at Lutheran High School

At Lutheran High School, students are encouraged to take on leadership roles. One of the opportunities to lead is by becoming a Student Ambassador. Some of the jobs that Ambassadors do include welcoming prospective students and families at Preview Nights, hosting students during shadow days, and assisting in "Saints-4A-Day" programs where Association Schools come to learn more about LHS. They are often the first face new families see and they are instrumental in helping to develop relationships that last a lifetime among new students. Meet the Ambassadors at Lutheran High School's Preview Night on Nov. 11, 6:30 pm.

Beech Grove students spend time volunteering for the third Community Service Day

By Nicole Davis

Beech Grove students spent Oct. 30 raking leaves, fixing up flower beds, making blankets for the homeless, writing letters to soldiers and helping the community in any way possible for the school's fall community service day.

"This is the third time," said Tara Miller, community service teacher. "Each time it gets better. The students are more aware. The teachers are more aware... They really understand the logistics now and it's really about helping, giving back to the community. Everyone is starting to see how they're helping."

The approximately 900 students had the opportunity to choose which task they wanted to volunteer for. Some chose to stay in the school; others braved the chilly weather to work outside or went to nonprofits such as Servant's Heart. Some groups of students spent the day raking leaves of yards of Beech Grove residents, leaving notes to tell them who did it and why. Ten people called in with requests for volunteer assistance, and Miller said they hope to continue to grow that number. After all, this day is to help them.

"They trimmed the shrubbery, they're restacking the stone wall that was falling down," said Michael Hendrix, pastor at Beech Grove United Methodist Church. "They cleaned the inside of the sanctuary, wiped down all of the pews, vacuumed and cleaned a couple of restaurants on the first floor. It was a big help to us. We've been renovating the building, so it was pretty dirty in there... It's really nice to see young students doing something for the community."

Students returned to school by one o'clock, which gave teachers a chance to debrief them about the day's activities. Students compiled a video of their day's accomplishments so they can all see the combined impact they had. Watch the video at: youtube.com/embed/MAkiY5Fog6s.

"The teachers get an opportunity to give them some insight, a new perspective," Miller said. "While we try so hard as teachers to give them that new perspective, sometimes they can be very tunnel-visioned and not understanding what's going on right outside of their doors. That's definitely a change. They're becoming highly aware of what's surrounding them. Now they know these resources that are in place for them, their family and friends."

Kayla Young organizes Homecroft Socktober

Homecroft Elementary recently participated in a Socktober Sock Drive that collected socks for homeless families in the Indianapolis area this winter. Inspired by Kid President, Homecroft fifth grader, Kayla Young, organized the event so that Homecroft students and staff could participate. She contacted the Holy Name Transitional House and constructed a plan to collect sock donations for them to distribute to homeless families in the community this winter. Kayla also created posters, flyers, announcements, and even a "SockMonster" donation display to promote Socktober. By the end of the week, she hopes to have collected hundreds of pairs of brand new children's, men's, and women's socks.

NUTRITION

By Chef Wendell Fowler

In 16th century Naples, classic pizza was created. Plagiarized by American food cartels, pizza isn't bad eaten in moderation. But really, who eats the pie in moderation? Because it gives us fleeting feel-good, it's the go-to food when we're down, inebriated, too busy, stoned or stressed. Pizza lovers can eat more than 15 slices a month. About one in five kids eat pizza on a given day. Pizza triggers your pleasure centers; instant feel-good in an angry, stress-filled world.

Original pizzas in no way resemble today's unoriginal Americanized versions that protest from the weight of extra cheese on and in the crust, Ranch, BBQ beast, hamburger, the kitchen sink and gooey, addictive cheese. Cocktail weenies imbedded in the crust are a sure sign the worlds circling the drain. My Italian WISH TV co-host remarked on air that American pizza fails miserably.

It's the ultimate convenience food. But does convenience has a cost? The LA Times recently reported cheese is as addictive as drugs and linked to obesity and heart disease. There are about 4-5 ounces of cheese on an average 14-inch pizza. The NIH recommends 1.5 oz. and reinforces cheese is bad for your health. To worsen things, white flour spikes glucose (diabetes) and causes inflammation, the silent killer. The challenge: most consumers don't realize how many fat calories are in each slice. Combine that with a couple beers and watch your belly bloat.

All this in view of a recent WISH TV broadcast highlighting a scientific study proclaiming processed meats like pepperoni, sausage, and bacon are the cancerous equivalent of smoking. I know this'll not prevent you from eating pizza, but I hope it gives you pause to reflect on your health and happiness.

Suggesting folks change their diet is akin to asking them to change their religion. It's just most folks don't have will-power. If you're going to continue your 'habit', eating a salad or vegetable dish along with your pizza will limit the number of slices you inhale. The take-home: Enjoy the classic wisely in moderation. Don't order extra cheese and put more veggie on it rather than processed meats. You are definately worth it! Awaken to the possibilities of reaching your highest potential.

Don't kill the messenger. You can still enjoy pizza with restraint, but add a dark leafy-green salad with lots of veggies, sans Ranch dressing, and then explore new toppings.

Renaissance Electronic Services presents $50,000 playground contribution

Renaissance Electronic Services (RES) presented a $50,000 check on Oct. 29 to Southport Mayor Jesse Tes-truth for improvements to the city park to accommodate children with disabilities. The check was presented at the Southport Park Board meeting. Playground improvements will include: Wheelchair accessible merry-go-round; a wheelchair swing, a 5-point harness swing, and possibly a hammock swing; a poured rubber surface that will surround the swings and merry-go-round so that it is wheelchair accessible; ramps from the parking lot to make it ADA compliant; multiple wheelchair-compatible picnic tables; and one additional piece of sensory/balance equipment. RES, an Indiana-based company in national dental industry services, recently announced that it will renovate the former Gerdt Furniture store in Southport to house its sixth location. The expansion will bring 150 new jobs to the area.

El Jalapeño

The scoop: El Jalapeño is a Tex Mex and Mexican restaurant that opened Aug. 13 south of the I-465 interchange on US 31. One of the dishes that sets El Jalapeño apart from other restaurants in the area is their chicken dishes. One of their most unique dishes is their Pollo con Papas, a dish with chicken breast, potatoes, and a special sauce. Other favorites include Pollo Gurmet, Pollo Fundido deep-fried chicken burritos with melted cheese and rice, and Arroz con Pollo or grilled chicken and rice. If beef is your preference try El Jalapeño Chef's Special. All your favorite Text Mex and Mexican food are available with seafood, pork, chicken, beef, and mixed dishes are also available.

Room... heartbreaking film

MOVIE REVIEW

By Adam Staten

The world can be an ugly and dangerous place. Turning on any local or national news broadcast only helps to solidify this position and opinion. Generally, the top stories are about the city's latest murder, a child being abused or mistreated, or some other horrific event that further cements the idea that humanity is becoming more depraved and savage. One new film, Room, takes this idea of a bleak, utterly hopeless situation and goes into an unexpected direction.

Room is a film based on the book of the same name. It tells the story of a young woman, Ma, and her five-year-old son, Jack, who are held captive and forced to live in a small, confining tool shed. We soon find out that the female has spent the last seven years of her life totally and completely locked inside the shed. To make the situation worse, her son Jack, has never even set foot outside the shed in his entire five years of existence. The room, as they both refer to it, is their entire world.

As we see Ma nearing her breaking point, she hatches a plan in order to get Jack out of the room and to safety. While not everything goes according to design, Jack does manage to get out and call for help. Ma is soon after rescued and from that point forward, the film is about the two main characters as both struggle to adjust to life outside room and the love between Ma and her son, Jack.

In order to properly review Room, one must first talk about the performances. The work put on the screen by Brie Larson as Ma and Jacob Tremblay as Jack is outstanding. Both turn in Oscar-winning performances while they continually break your heart as they face a dreadful situation and insurmountable odds with only the love between a mother and a child. Both should receive Oscar nods, but if the child who plays Jack doesn't walk away with the award something is very wrong.

While the acting from the leads is terrific, Room still has its flaws. After Jack does manage to escape and get help, Ma gets out with relative ease. After being locked away for nearly a decade, it shouldn't have been that easy. Also, there are several characters that are completely unnecessary and add nothing to the story.

Room is a heartbreaking film with two really outstanding performances.

Weekly Devotion

"Not everyone that saith unto Me, Lord, Lord, shall enter into the kingdom of heaven; but he that doeth the will of My Father which is in heaven. Many will say to Me in that day, Lord, Lord, have we not prophesied in Thy name? and in Thy name have cast out devils? and in Thy name done many wonderful works? And then will I profess unto them, I never knew you: depart from Me, ye that work iniquity." ~ Matthew 7:21-23

Who is your God? That is not a silly question these days. For a long time now I have been teaching that Christianity is not a religion but a practice of faith. Religion best defined is something we do in order to make our gods happy but Christianity is based in what God has done in order to make us safe.

I am a Christian by faith. It is not merely a thing intellectual, it is something spiritual, deeply spiritual. God reached out to me way before I reached out to Him. I just cannot seem to understand why anyone could or would deny such a love as that and, yet, they do and they go seeking a god to serve that is not god at all.

Consequently, not everyone that seeks admittance into the kingdom of heaven will be allowed in. People will argue that they did a lot of wonderful things with their lives and because of that they should be allowed in. Jesus will say in return, "Depart from Me, I never knew you!" Why would Jesus say this? Because these sort of people did all those things for their own reasons and never for His. They never intended to glorify Christ with their lives even though they may have given Him a mention now and then.

My life is a living testimony to the fact that Christ lives. Without Him, I am absolutely nothing. How about you?

God bless and go and have great day.

Paul A. Kirby is the pastor at the Church of God at 3939 S. Emerson Ave.

When you're part of our family, you'll always come first.

What does it mean to have a family-first philosophy?

It means being committed to delivering what's most important to seniors and their loved ones. Listening, understanding, anticipating needs and being there when you need us.

We're the CarDon family of care, with senior living communities throughout South Central Indiana. We've been family owned and operated since 1977, and we take as much pride in caring for your family as we do our own.

Learn how putting family first bridges the gap between home and high-quality care. For information on your local CarDon community, go to www.cardon.us.
