Q: This month is National Breast Cancer Awareness Month - how has cancer impacted your life?

"I'm about three years cancer free and four years this November. Having cancer strengthened the relationship with my family. We really became close during that time. It opened my eyes to the world and made me a better person."

"I had several dear friends pass away at a young age. I have a client friend who's wife is battling cancer now. I have a niece that is battling it right now. It makes you step back and makes you realize what is important in life and how to focus on what is important and enjoying life now and just try to focus on what is right and to live life before something like this strikes. I know right now my wife and I try to travel and see a lot of things while we are able to to it."

Rich Beasley, Center Grove

"Cancer has touched me very deeply and personally. Thirty-four years ago in 1981 I had my left breast removed. I'm very grateful I didn't have implants. At that time it was very dangerous. My husband told me a thing I shall never forget. 'I'm not in love with your breast. I'm in love with you.' ... Having the backing of your loved ones is the only way you can survive."

Mary Glowinski, Perry Twp.

"Cancer in general has touched me emotionally. I've lost a lot of close friends to cancer. A lot of them are battling the disease right now. It is a tough disease. I have touched me emotionally more than anything."

Larry Williams, Beech Grove

Chuck Roach: Plan in peace

Too often we hear stories of young families losing a mother or father, without any estate or financial plans in place. These stories should serve as wake up calls for others regarding the need to establish contingency plans for the survivors after such tragic events. Often it is the confusion about what is needed that prevents one from acting...

Hearing voices? You're not alone

HAUNTS & JAUNTS

By Rick Hinton

There are those strange oddities that happen to a paranormal investigator defying explanation; and may very well not concern ghosts or spirits, instead circulating around those still very much still alive. It's still a paranormal occurrence and you don't have to be a ghost hunter to have one.

Stories have been reported from people not in the least interested in ghosts:

- Overhearing family members having conversations in rooms of a home when they are not even present. (One theory is that this is a residual occurrence, like a tape recorder playback, regardless of the fact that the voices heard are still very much alive in the present world)
- A husband or wife hearing the voice of their spouse while totally alone.
- One woman heard a very distinct voice ask her..."Why don't you sleep in your room?" It was during a period when she was not sleeping in her own bedroom, and the voice was her own!
- One woman commented on an experience of hearing voices. "It was clear and sounded exactly like us. The first one was at 9 p.m. My 8 year old son was yelling 'Mommy, I threw up.' He was sound asleep. Forward to 4 a.m. My husband, who fell asleep in his office, heard me yell 'Time to get up honey!' I was sound asleep downstairs with my son and never wake my husband at 4 a.m. So far that's it, but it was real enough for us to seek answers..."
- One woman had a loud conversation with her brother, with them yelling throughout their house. Her brother's voice eventually trailed off into an unintelligible mumble. It turned out she was the only one at home! Her parents have since experienced hearing each other's voices, and that of the brother.
- Finally, a man heard his brother's voice call to him as he brushed his teeth in preparation for bed. The call seemed urgent. Thinking the brother needed help the man responded and got no reply. The brother as it turns out was in another bathroom brushing his teeth and had not said a word. "At that point I felt really strange, and something told me that this wasn't my brother, and that maybe answering his voice may have not been a good idea. I didn't sleep well that night."

Although these experiences were auditory in nature, they happened to those not pursuing any otherworldly experience. The paranormal often finds you, whether you seek it or not.

Beech Grove Main Street revisited

It has been a little over two years since the Main Street reconstruction project was completed. What a difference it has made. No longer are businesses subject to placing sand bags in front of doors when we have a rain event and flooding of side streets has been mitigated. The installation of a new storm sewer drainage system as part of this project has finally corrected the drainage issues that have been around longer than all of us. We all can take pride in this beautiful project and what it has done for our city. We can also look back at all the vacant store fronts prior to the reconstruction and look at where we are now, a vibrant Main Street.

I do want to pass on that after a recent inspection by the City, Gradex who was the General Contractor, Crossroad Engineers and INDOT concerning some flaking of concrete on the Southside of the Main Street, it has been determined that the concrete in these areas will need to be replaced. This is not satisfactory to the City and INDOT has recommended that this work be completed in a short time frame.

I have been informed that work will begin around the 19th of October to take the concrete out in these areas and replaced. This work is being done by the General Contractor and at no cost to the city. This should be of minimal interruption to local businesses. We have invested millions of dollars in infrastructure improvements over the past four years and it shows. Quality workmanship is essential and desired.

City of Beech Grove*

OUR VIEW

Now is the time to talk with state elected officials

We still have a few months – Jan. 11 to be exact – before the 120th General Assembly gathers to work on behalf of the people of Indiana. We use the word work, but often times we wonder if there is anything happening in Indianapolis that resembles work. Many times what we witness through the media is partisan bickering. While we have very competent men and women who serve our communities, that doesn't always mean

"While we have very competent men and women who serve our communities, that doesn't always mean we get the outcomes we hope for."

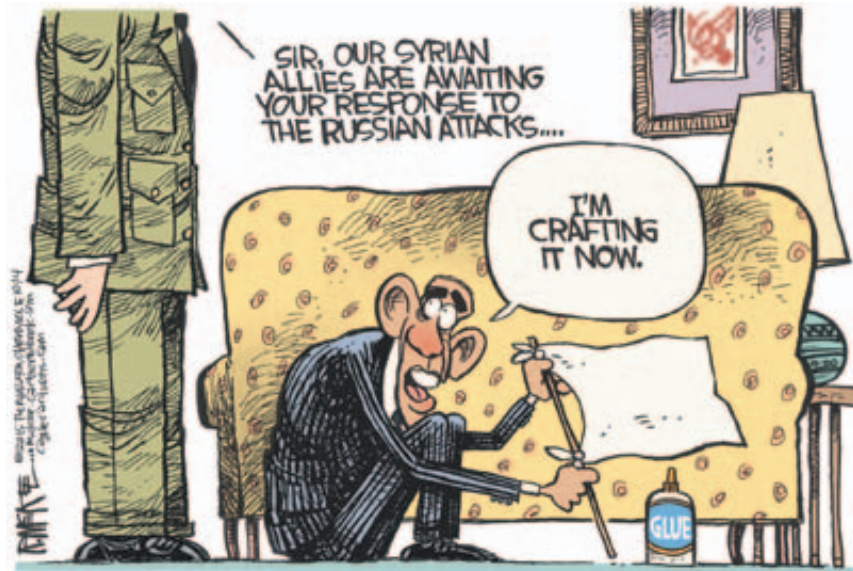

we get the outcomes we hope for. For sure, elected officials will tell you that they never hear from their constituency unless something goes awry. Now is the time to be thinking about how you'd like your elected officials to shape the future of Indiana. Now is the time to not sit by the wayside and take action. Yes, with about three months left lawmakers will begin to do their work. We encourage you to reach out to your legislators, both representatives and senators. You can find your area's legislators at iga.in.gov. Let them know what is on your mind. You may be surprised because that may thank you for it.

The time for travels: Fall breakers hit the road

This coming week will be fall break for Southside-area schools. My how this one-time, small break has risen as a time to get a way – and we mean get a way – spring-break like to Florida, Alabama, etc. Here's to all of those Southside families who will be traveling over this time period. May your journeys be safe ones.

Maybe the Trump Show is wearing thin? It could be too early to tell, but we're watching New Hampshire, which since forever has been some kind of barometer (along with Iowa and South Carolina) as to the true political climate for Republican candidates. According to Fox News, this month's NBC/Wall Street Journal Marist poll shows Carly Fiorina making a 10-point leap: from 6 percent last month to 16 percent this month.

"She still trails frontrunner Donald Trump, but her Granite State surge shows a potential path for Fiorina who has been mostly surfing the national zeitgeist," Fox reported. We like what she has shown thus far, but we consider it just an appetizer for what we expect to be a battle royale between Trump and Fiorina as the months pass. If the Republican Party pushes any of the "insiders" over these two, it might as well fold the tent and call it a day.

We can't make this up: It is permissible to have a brown bear in your car in Russia - as long as it's wearing a seatbelt. (Of course it is.)

Top ten reasons we survived the latest "End of the World" predictions

By Torry Stiles

(Dear readers - In 2012 it was the Mayan calendar predicting the end. Last February in was the Viking gods and their Ragnarok. Last week it was the "Blood Moon" that brought out the most recent doom-sayers ....Let's dive in, shall we?)

10. Stupid Vikings and Mayans. They ain't around, are they? Hah!
9. Enough people hit "Like" and "Share" on their Facebook to stave off the demons.
8. Cloudy skies kept some from seeing the blood moon so they have to re-schedule to a clear night.
7. Halloween Whoppers and green poo. Isn't that bad enough?
6. Four Horsemen of the Apocalypse grounded by PETA and ASPCA for mistreating their horses.
5. Farmer's and Geico Insurance fighting over right to declare emergency and create funny commercials about it.
4. Too close to Halloween. Busy holiday season coming up. Delayed until some time after New Year's.
3. "What? End of the world? No way, man. Not with Walking Dead's new season just starting."
2. End of World Department de-funded by Congress.

Kyle Vaughn

Third generation police officer says Southport has been the best place to start his career

BEHIND the BADGE

Kyle Vaughn says he always looks forward to any event that the community can come out and intermingle with the Southport Police Department. As a newly-promoted lieutenant over special programs, which have an ultimate goal of strengthening that relationship with the residents of Southport, he says it's what makes the small city feel like a big family.

"I love the interaction I have with the community," Vaughn said. "It's a family feeling – from Annie Singleton (Southport resident) picking on me to me picking on Diana Bossingham (clerk/treasurer). It's why I come here every day. I truly work in the best city in Indiana."

Vaughn is a Southport High School graduate. Out of high school he worked with the YMCA in an after school program at Homecroft Elementary. He was hired onto the Southport Police Department in 2012.

He was promoted in August to lieutenant over training and special services. Special Services includes the Explorer Program for youth ages 14 – 20 and teaches them about law enforcement, helping them learn about responsibility for themselves and other life skills. It also includes the bike program where officers patrol the city on bicycles and allows residents to get out and talk one-on-one with the officers.

"Southport seemed like the best place to start and it truly has been," he said. "I've learned a lot since I've been here. I live just down the street from the police station. I can take care of my home."

What was your inspiration to become a police officer?

My grandfather was a police officer and my father (Southport Police Chief Thomas Vaughn) is a police officer. So I'm third generation. They helped me go that way. One of the best parts about the job is you get to help people. It's a job you're born to do. You don't just roll out of bed one day and say I think I'm going to be a police officer. You get to go help people. You're in it because you truly enjoy helping people.

What has been one of your most gratifying moments on the job?

I'm the mascot for Southport Police Department. I wear the Justice outfit. I can get away and interact with the kids. They love Justice. Just watching their faces light up and their excitement is the best part about it. That's probably the most gratifying part of my job – putting on that dog outfit.

Justice the Southport Police mascot interacts with children at Southport's 2014 National Night Out on Aug. 4.

What aspect of the job do you find most challenging?

People not understanding what we're here for. We're here to serve and protect. We have a negative look on us right now and it's from a lack of understanding what our true jobs are.

What do you enjoy doing in your off-time?

I love spending time with my family. My nephews are a big part of my life. They keep me going because they're always running rampant somewhere. I spoil them. I'm really into music, too. Those are my two favorite things: listen to music and hang out with my family.

What are your future goals, professionally or personally?

Like every officer here, probably, I want to do this full-time. It's a bug and once you get bit by it, you can't help but not want to do it every day. Personally, I've always wanted to be a United States Marshall, so I'm trying to achieve that goal.

What would you have done if you hadn't of became a police officer?

Working with children. I gravitate more towards special needs. It's a gratifying feel-

Oh my gourd!

Chuck Welch

Southport Middle School math teacher Chuck Welch has pumpkin supply and demand down to a science after 24 years with Welch's Pumpkins

By Nicole Davis

How many pumpkins can be sold in one season in a business off of U.S. 31 S.? Chuck Welch has it down to a science. This year Welch will sell approximately 80 tons of pumpkins from 511 U.S. 31 S. in Whiteland.

Welch's Pumpkins is in its 24th season. Welch, who works full-time as an eighth grade algebra teacher for Southport Middle School, is in his 22nd year of teaching. His business, Cutting Edge Lawn Service, is in its 30th year. If that isn't enough, Welch will begin his third season with Welch's Christmas Trees in November, selling 400 Christmas trees from the same Whiteland location.

"I have four kids in high school," Welch said. "They know dad's a workaholic. I'm not much of a TV guy, not much of a computer guy. I like being outside, talking to people and being busy."

Welch, currently a Shelbyville resident, grew up in Franklin and attended Franklin College. He started Cutting Edge Lawn Service to pay his way through college. He went on a date with his to-be wife, Jenny, in 1992 and they got a couple of pumpkins.

"That's what gave me the pumpkin idea and I've been selling pumpkins ever since," Welch said. "I've been doing business with the same Amish farm in Rockville for 20 years. I have several farmers that supply me."

It's not just another job for Welch, but his friends and family as well. His wife and children help with the businesses. Welch's father, Albert Bailey, and third grade friend, Chris Dorris, have worked at Welch's Pumpkins for a large majority of the years - along with other family/friends.

Welch and his team begin to set up a large display of mums on Labor Day weekend. The last week of September, they begin selling pumpkins. He orders a small amount in the beginning and reorders for after the first week of October, giving him time to predict how many pumpkins will sell. He said about 50 percent of the time, they sell all of their pumpkins.

They take a couple of weeks off in November, and set up for Welch's Christmas Trees opening on Thanksgiving weekend. Every tree they sell, they put a dollar in what they call their needy bucket. With that money, they helped 38 families in need get Christmas trees last year.

"It's just fun," Welch said. "I see a lot of friends, family. I've gotten to know people over the years. Building relationships makes it fun. Even high school friends, I see them once a year when they come get pumpkins. They try to make sure I'm here when they come. We always have current students... I have former students that come around all the time," he pauses after that statement to direct a question at a former student who was shopping for a pumpkin, "The craziest, best teacher they ever had, right?"

Welch said each business goes hand-in-hand. He also does a lot of commercial sales, decorating homes or businesses for the holiday seasons.

Their biggest challenge is the weather. The nicer the weather, the more they sell. Frost poses the biggest threat. A pumpkin will freeze at 26 degrees. He said there have been times they needed to cover the pumpkins to protect them - and have even used the signs that usually go on billboards as tarps to protect the produce.

He said they pride themselves on having such a large variety of pumpkins and gourds, from the ever-popular Jack-O-Lantern to white pumpkins, 'snake' gourds, or giant pumpkins that can weigh more than 350 pounds. The best part of each year, Chuck said, is "watching all of the pumpkins disappear and go to happy homes."

"Our biggest compliment is how well our place it set up and our quality," Welch said. "Good quality will keep the customer coming back year after year."

Mayor recognizes Joan Miller with Community Service Awards

Mayor Greg Ballard recognized 16 Indianapolis residents with 2015 Mayor's Community Service Awards during a ceremony at the Indiana Historical Society tonight. The awards honor those who volunteer their time to strengthen Indianapolis communities.

"Indianapolis is filled with a strong volunteer spirit," Mayor Ballard said. "These awardees represent the very best of our community. It is an honor to recognize them for their endless work to make our neighborhoods better places in which to live."

The 23rd annual awards ceremony recognized residents from all areas of Indianapolis and Marion County. Following tradition, a brick will be engraved with each recipient's name and placed at the Mayor's Volunteer Plaza at the 11th Street canal basin.

Southside recipients include Joan Miller, who has been a constant voice for the Perry Township area for the last 10 years. She has served multiple years as the President of the Greater Southside Business and Greater Southside Community Alliance. She was instrumental in the creation of Grey Park, as well as establishing programs to aid the Chin community as well as beautification efforts.

Kenny Winslow, Joan Miller and Duane Langreck after the awards ceremony. While Joan is this year's recipient of a Community Service Award, Winslow and Langreck have earned the recognition in past years.

TIME IS NOT A FACTOR

Mastering time is not the same as time management. It's not simply learning to get more out of a 24-hour day. Mastering time is realizing that real life does not actually occur within a time framework at all, and time is powerless to limit life.

Come hear how to master time and gain your God-given freedom from the limits of time, including age, aging, stress, inefficiency, frustration, past mistakes and missed opportunities!

IDEM recognizes Beech Grove for environmental commitment

The Indiana Department of Environmental Management (IDEM) presented the City of Beech Grove with a CLEAN Community award at a ceremony Oct. 3 during the city's Arbor Day Celebration. The ceremony commemorates Beech Grove's participation in the Indiana CLEAN Community Challenge (CLEAN), a free voluntary recognition program that recognizes and rewards Indiana cities, towns, and counties for proactively managing environmental impacts associated with governmental operations. CLEAN stands for Comprehensive Local Environmental Action Network. Brad Meriwether is the City's CLEAN Stakeholder Committee Leader.

As a CLEAN Community, Beech Grove has worked to develop a Quality of Life Plan to minimize the potential environmental impacts from city operations and community-wide activities. Beech Grove has selected five environmental improvement initiatives to focus on during a three-year period, including adding more native flora, increasing municipal recycling, and improving the city's fluorescent lightbulb recycling program. Beech Grove will also work to increase residential paper recycling through community shredding events, and will start an unwanted and expired medication collection program.

UIndy senior and Roncalli graduate Joey Mulinaro produces Late Night Indy radio show with a local emphasis

FEATURE

By Nicole Davis

As the operations manager for a radio station reaching 63,000 people in Indianapolis on a weekly basis, Joey Mulinaro has a vision of producing content to draw in an even larger audience. As a senior at the University of Indianapolis, Mulinaro works for the university's radio station, 88.7, WICR FM and has taken pride in helping to grow its student-run productions.

"With my interest in late night television, I figured there is an untapped market for that in Indianapolis," Mulinaro said. "This year I've tried to use my passion and interest in entertainment and comedy which is where I came up with the idea for Late Night Indy that I'm doing right now... This is my hometown. It means a lot to me so I wanted to do something special for that. That's why I'm doing it."

Mulinaro, of Perry Township, graduated from Roncalli High School in 2012. He was a member of the Rebel Media Network, broadcasting football and basketball games. He would make youtube videos with his friends, calling it Baby Kangaroo Productions – the start of his interest in entertainment.

Mulinaro said that he didn't know much about UIndy's communications department or that it had a radio station until he enrolled during his sophomore year of college. He joined WICR and has been on the management staff for two years, beginning his role as operations manager this year. The station has four student-run shows.

"I wouldn't be nearly what I am today without UIndy," Mulinaro said. "They do a great job of immersing you into the fields, whether that be TV, radio or journalism right away, but they don't just throw you in the fire. So if you come out of high school and have no experience, they don't hold that against you. They hold your hand just long enough to teach you everything you need. It's a balance they've really mastered."

Mulinaro premiered the weekly Late Night Indy show on Sept. 11. The fifth show will air on Friday, Oct. 9 11 p.m. It can also be streamed online at WICRonline.org.

"I go after people that are local comedians at the university or around Indianapolis," Mulinaro said. "I want somewhere for them to promote themselves and have a platform as well. I just interviewed the president of the university today. They think it's cool because they've never done something like this. They appreciate it, too. It's a local platform for people to be able to come on, have some fun and get their name out there in Indianapolis. People have enjoyed it."

Mulinaro said while he's happy with the response so far, there's always room for improvement and he looks forward to continue to better the production. He said his long-term vision for Late Night Indy is to gain the interest of a local TV channel, maybe even have it air before a large show such as The Tonight Show or Late Night with Jimmy Fallon.

"You can have a vision but you have to hit those little milestones along the way," Mulinaro said. "I'm just trying to produce solid entertainment and shows for WICR and be a program people can follow on a nightly basis... At the end of the day, what my show is really about is making sure that there's people out there who maybe had a rough day at their job; they can sit down with Late Night Indy and get a kick out of it."

GOVERNMENT WATCHDOG

BEECH GROVE
CITY COUNCIL

Meeting, Oct. 5

■ What happened? Ordinances 18 and 19 were approved on third reading. Ordinances 20, 22, 23, 24 and 25 were approved on second and third readings.

■ What it means: Ordinance 18 adjusts speed limits. Ordinance 19 states that addresses on public buildings must meet the set criteria.

Ordinance 20 would establish a street sign at 4th and Buffalo.

Ordinance 22 approves salary for appointed and elected officials. Full-time employees receive a two percent increase. Elected officials remain the same. It also establishes that part-time employees can earn up to $13 per hour. Pension rates for retirees increase by two percent.

Ordinance 23 approves the appropriated budget for expenditures.

Ordinance 24 approves the appropriation of money to the parks board.

Ordinance 25 approves the budget for the Beech Grove Public Library.

■ What's next? These ordinances will go into effect 30 days after passing.

■ What happened? Ordinance 26 was approved on first reading. Resolution #8 was approved.

■ What it means: Ordinance 26 states the city's desire to adopt a storm water standards manual. This would allow Beech Grove to enforce standards that fit Beech Grove, so new construction wouldn't need to get approval from Indianapolis like they do currently. The manual establishes procedures for treatment of storm water and penalties for not adhering to the standards.

Resolution 8 states that the city of Beech Grove objects to the tax adjustments board with any changes in its adopted tax levies. This resolution has been adopted in previous years. It ensures that if the State submits the incorrect tax information, it reverts back to what the council approved.

GREENWOOD
COMMON COUNCIL

Meeting, Oct. 5

■ What happened? Second Reading Ordinance 15-39, an ordinance of great discussion in the past few weeks, was discussed once more. Steve Rhoades, a local pastor at The Point Church, was at the meeting to speak against the ordinance. The council finally ruled voted no, ruling in favor with the pastor and all those against the ordinance.

■ What it means: Ordinance 15-39 was going to prohibit tax-exempt use of real estate within the district in the City of Greenwood, unless agreements for payments were put into place in lieu of the taxes. With the council voting against this, religious organizations and other nonprofit organization will receive tax exemption on real estate. All 50 States provide for tax exemptions for religious organizations so the City of Greenwood is now among those who favor it. The exemption isn't for special favor to the religious organizations, but for all nonprofit organizations that provide betterment for the community.

■ What's next? Nonprofit organizations, including religious, will be able to file tax exemptions next year on their real estate.

Nativity second graders support Holy Childhood Association

"Can you spare a dollar?" That is what second graders at Franklin Township's Nativity Catholic School asked as they raised money for their February service project to support the Holy Childhood Association collection drive. Students were encouraged to perform a good deed or chore for their parents, so that they could earn a dollar to donate to this worthy cause. The second graders collected $369. The money will go to help children in need of clothing, housing, school and medical supplies.

Second-graders Ava Barlow, Lily Meagher, and Ava Southers, used Holy Childhood Buckets and a flyer to explain their service project and to ask Nativity Students for donations.

Fibrous Flax: Everyone evacuate

NUTRITION

By Chef Wendell Fowler

Sandi and I recently invited our meat and potato friends over for a dinner party. I enthusiastically prepared plant-based vegetarian entrees from my new cookbook release. The next day I got a courtesy call thanking us for the lovely dinner, but "What was in it?" I asked why, and he graphically elucidated, "This morning things came out of me I ate 10 years ago."

A fiberless, meat and potato, low veggie diet can loiter way too long in the colon, break down and decay in the warmth of your inner ecology. If you watch my weekly segment on WISH TV, then you know the fiber bell rings each time we say 'fiber.' Here's why.

Place a meal of meat and potatoes, veggie, dessert and salad inside a 98.6 air-tight container for 53 hours. The average time Mayo clinic says you needed for normal digestion and elimination. The food will be decomposing, rotting, toxic and foul-smelling. This is your innards on a meat and potato, low fiber diet. Hence, the sooner digested food leaves the colon, the better.

On the other hand, another friend took my advice and began sprinkling fibrous, ground flax seed on everything. He shared that as soon as he gets out of bed in the morning gravity happens and he has an expeditious moving experience. Not 15 straining, hemorrhoid-producing minutes. "I don't even have time to read the sports and comics," he blushed.

Motioned in Exodus 9 and Joshua 2, gluten-free flax seed flax also contains potassium and Omega-3 for heart and brain health. Flax's fiber and Omega-3 become available for your temple to profit from after grinding. Flax seed is a complete protein too. Sandi and I use a Krupp's-style, hand-held coffee grinder.

Flax is very durable and unleashes more nutritional benefits than whole seed. If seeds remain unbroken, they may pass undigested, reducing the nutritional benefit. Upon ingestion your system cannot break it down and when excreted and then planted, the seed would grow. Grind the seeds in small batches in the coffee grinder to unleash the power of Omega-3 and fiber.

Once ground, the seeds quickly lose their oomph, so process and store the ground seeds in an airtight container and store un-ground seeds in the freezer for up to 3 months to prevent rancidity. Now, stop loitering and get moving.

Perry Meridian students organize, host Town Hall meeting

When Perry Meridian High School teacher Tim Griffin asked his older students if they were registered to vote some responded that they didn't know they could. Now they know they can. The voter registration topic, in government class, not only prompted more than a dozen students to want to register but it's led to the first of its kind Town Hall Meeting, at the Perry Township School. It will be hosted and moderated on Oct. 8 by the students themselves. "They sent hand-written letters to several politicians and leaders in the area and the response has been amazing," stated Griffin. He adds this government, history and civics exercise has helped many of his students, normally shy and reserved, to become more outgoing and outspoken.

Some who've responded to the invitation include Councilman Frank Mascari, mayoral candidate, Chuck Brewer, Marion County Clerk, Myla Eldridge and several others including Perry Township Superintendent, Dr. Tom Little. Griffin says Senator Donnelly and Governor Pence are sending videos. "The goal is to engage young people to become interested in our government processes and this is working," concluded Griffin. He says the ongoing plan is to have 500 students, across Indiana, registered to vote by the November 2016 election. They even hope to have a couple of voting machines at the event for the students to get a feel for what it's like to cast a ballot. The students have produced short videos to promote the event.

The Martian... Average sci-fi thriller

MOVIE REVIEW

By Adam Staten

As Hollywood continues to search for source material for their films, they have once again turned to the written word. As a result and due to the mammoth success of the book, The Martian is one of fall's most anticipated films. The new movie, starring Matt Damon, hit theaters this past weekend.

The Martian, based on the best-selling book of the same name, is a science-fiction thriller. During the opening scenes we meet the members of the NASA space crew as they explore the surface of Mars. Unfortunately, their stay on the new planet is cut short. An extremely intense storm forces the crew to grab their gear and high tail it back to their spacecraft. The only problem being one member of the team, Mark Watney, didn't make it back to the ship. Fearing that their colleague has been killed by the severe weather, the decision is made to leave. All of this happens within the first five minutes, but as you can probably guess, Watney is not dead.

After sewing up a deep wound sustained during the storm, Watney gets to work, trying to find a way to survive in his new environment. Using nothing more than creativity, intellect and his own waste, he solves problem after problem. He even manages to harvest a roomful of potatoes, something once thought impossible. However, there is still one major obstacle that remains: communicating with those back home. From this point on, the film becomes a race against the clock in order to find the safest and most efficient way possible to bring Watney home alive.

Even though The Martian features an all-star cast, it's Matt Damon's show. A good majority of the film is simply Damon trying to find out a solution to a problem and him recording his thoughts on a camera. As one would expect from an Oscar winner, Damon does more than enough to keep you interested and entertained. His character's personality and dark sense of humor is the only thing keeping the film going at times.

While an interesting concept with bits and pieces of action scattered throughout, the film drags too much and too often. At times, it feels like it's being stretched out to make it a two-hour film.

The Martian is a good, not great, film that's too long with too clean and perfect of an ending. 3 out of 5

Weekly Devotion

"The Lord is my rock, and my fortress, and my deliverer; my God, my strength, in whom I will trust; my buckler, and the horn of my salvation, and my high tower. I will call upon the Lord, who is worthy to be praised: so shall I be saved from mine enemies." ~ Psalm 18:1-2

I don't know how many times I have heard this particular portion of Psalms quoted.

It is especially precious in times of great duress. As I reflect back on what happened in Oregon last week and the fact that the murderer of these college students seemed most interested as to if those he shot and killed were Christians or not, I wonder if we are not at that point in time spoken of by the book of Revelation as the time in the last of the last days when we who are Christians will be singled out for this type of persecution again as in days gone by. Now is the time, it seems, when being a Christian is going to take the same courage and conviction of faith as in the early years of the church. What we all must remember is that even if this is the case, Christ is our Rock and our fortress and our deliverer and our God and our strength in Whom we can trust.

Violent, political nor spiritual opposition to the church will ever succeed in the destruction of the church. The church will prevail because Christ is the Author and Finisher of its faith. God bless and go and have a great day.

Paul A. Kirby is the pastor at the Church of God at 3939 S. Emerson Ave.

We know Southsiders love their pets, but we also know that they love Halloween! To celebrate this spooky and festive time of year, The Southside Times is holding the Creepy Cats and Halloween Hounds Photo Contest! All we need from you is your best photo of your cat, dog, or other pet dressed in their Halloween best, as well as your name and the name of your pet. Our staff will choose the top three and they'll win great prizes, not to mention your pet and all other entries will be published in the Oct. 29 Issue! Please e-mail your image to petlovers@ss-times.com by Oct. 23 or drop a photo by our office at 7670 US 31 South, Indianapolis, 46227. For more information, call (317) 300-8782.
