Stepping into self-sufficiency

Bill Jimerson got into the hobby of brewing beer at home 11 years ago. He says like many others, the do-it-yourself aspect was enticing, allowing him to get intricately involved in the process of home brewing and, ultimately, enjoy the finished product. Top seven reasons for seeking out the spirits

HAUNTS & JAUNTS

By Rick Hinton

Individuals participate in ghost hunting for various reasons of their own choosing. The top seven are:

- To validate for themselves the existence of a world just beneath the veil. Often the motivation is generated from a childhood or even adult encounter. It plants a seed. Once satisfied do we walk away? Our human nature dictates that when we accomplish a goal, we continue to strive for something even bigger. We can't let go!
- The adrenaline rush associated with what may happen. It all boils down to association with the pursuit of the hunt. Most often nothing will happen, yet when it does, strap in for the ride!
- The social factor of gathering with those of like mindset. Our friends can be friends for life, and who better to spend long hours in the dark with? And different people bring different talents to the table. In a group setting bonds are developed... sometimes even a romance or two.
- To get famous. These nitwits need to be weeded out as soon as possible. If their motivation is to become paranormal celebrities, then only heartache lies in their future. Just ask those who are 'famous' about the recognition and consequences. These folks really need a new hobby...perhaps gaming.

- The historical aspect of visiting locations that has some past significance. You will not only experience locations that may have defined a particular locale, but a few also that have brought them to their knees. The past can become very present when your feet tread where others have journeyed. This is the camp where I most often pitch my tent.
- A genuine desire to help. This involves private individuals who are seeking your help in trying to understand paranormal situations in their homes or businesses. This is not to be confused with the weekend paranormal amusement parks that gladly take your money at the door. You will need to bring your psychologist and counselor cap. It's basically where the rubber meets the road, and where I also pitch a tent.
- A combination of all of the above.

These seven factors seem to be the motivating bedrock of why we -- those of us who investigate things that go bump in the night

-- do what we do. It becomes a challenge of devoting large amounts of time, money and energy to prove the existence of something that we already believe exists. However, we continue to trudge on!

Rick Hinton, a Southport resident, loves researching things that go bump in the night. His articles can be read on Facebook: Rick Hinton, Southport Paranormal Examiner. Hinton conducts paranormal investigations with his team, South Central Paranormal.

Crime Watch program gains momentum with police backing

For over three years the administration in Beech Grove has not supported an active crime watch. With great concern for my neighbors, I volunteered to help revitalize the Crime Watch Group. Our first meeting, three months ago, had approximately 70 people in attendance. I am proud to announce that we now have 930 Beech Grove Citizens involved in the Beech Grove Crime Watch Group.

Week of September 10-16, 2015 • ss-times.com

In Beech Grove neighbors are uniting to take a stand against crime. We are still in the initial formation stages of block captains organizing their blocks. However, in the next several weeks we are hopeful that some of the organized blocks will have crime watch signage installed. We still have a lot of work to do but Beech Grove Citizens are now working as a team to help make our city safer. Also one of the great benefits of our Crime Watch Group is that neighbors are getting to know each other and talk...just like neighbors used to do in the past.

Last week Beech Grove Police Chief Swartz attended a crime watch meeting for the first time. We appreciate that he finally allowed police cooperation with our Crime Watch Group because this will help strengthen our city. The Police Department and Citizens partnering together is a positive step in the right direction for Beech Grove. Crime Watch participants are asked to be the eyes and ears for our police but to leave the actual crime fighting to the police by calling 911 to report suspicious or criminal activity.

Keeping our city safe requires each and every one of us doing our part. If you live in Beech Grove and are interested in joining the Beech Grove Crime Watch Group please contact us via email at bgcrimewatch@gmail.com or call 317-643-0087. We also have Beech Grove Crime Watch District pages set up on Facebook. I look forward to your participation in keeping our City safe.

God Bless the United States of America.

Jarvis outlines agenda

As I did 4 years ago, I again am running as a candidate for Beech Grove City Council -District 2. I want to thank everyone who has supported me, and all of you who have been so appreciative, interested and welcoming as I have knocked on your doors. For those of you who have not met me, please know that if elected my objectives are: 1) Ensure unbiased information is provided to everyone and maintain our sense of community; 2) Sound financial management that maintains high standards while addressing infrastructure deficiencies by shifting resources back to investment in our streets and sewers; 3) Be more proactive in attracting new businesses to our town, address current vacancies, and support our current businesses.

In the past three months, I have walked many of our Beech Grove streets to meet as many residents as possible. Many of you welcomed me into your homes, shared your concerns, ideas and suggestions. It's been a truly rewarding experience for me; I will make our residents my top priority. Beech Grove needs a more business-friendly environment to sustain existing merchants and attract new businesses. We need fuller cooperation with prospective tenants, developers and purchasers of property to assist with new and upgraded facilities. We need to upgrade our street and sewer system infrastructure.

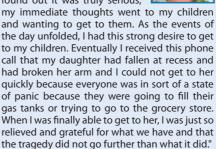

Our City Council should increase coordination with the school district to protect the quality education our children need, attract the new families our community needs and protect property values. We live in a great community and have much work ahead to keep it that way. In local elections your vote has a tremendous influence, as during the last election the race for District 2 was only won by 5 votes.

Michael E. Jarvis, Candidate for BG City Council District 2 (R)

Q: What national or global event impacted you most personally? Why? What was your experience?

"September 11 impacted me the most. As I was dropping off my children at school, I heard the initial attack on the radio and at first I thought it was a joke. When I arrived at work and found out it was truly serious,

Keri Brantley of Bargersville

"I think it was the tsunami. It was one of the most devastating things that we have witnessed. It originated from the Indian Ocean and then affected the coastal areas of the Asian countries and moved up to the African countries. We lost many lives. That was very devastating."

Tushar Lothe of Greenwood

"9/11.1 was on vacation and we heard something on the radio. We were on the way to Mt. Rushmore and they closed all of the national monuments. We stayed at the KOA behind it. We were in a motorhome and so we stopped and we turned on the generator so we could listen to it. We stayed there for a week and we finally did get to see Mt. Rushmore. They opened it after a couple of days."

Sherri Fuller of Beech Grove

"I'd say the event was 9/11. I think it affected everybody and changed the way that we look at the country and the defense of the country. We felt a lot safer before that day. After that we felt there were things we should be concerned about that we were unaware of prior for that we were unaware of prior to that day."

OUR VIEW

Supporting lesser known disorders with a local impact

Recently we received an email on an upcoming community awareness event, Cavernous Cure Movement: Laps for Lexi. The event is Sept. 19, 12 to 5 p.m. at Central Nine Career Center in Greenwood. The description said funds for this event benefit the non-profit organization Angioma Alliance, and go directly to continued funding of research and development of a treatment option for CCM3; a rare neurological disorder causing seizure and stroke like symptoms in children where currently, the only available treatment option is brain surgery. Curious, we wanted to learn more about the event. Here is what we found out:

"In 2008, my step daughter, Lexi, was diagnosed with CCM3; the rarest form of Cavernous angioma," wrote Heather Sanders in an email, later continuing, "Knowing that researchers are working to provide another option for this rare disease and our family having been directly affected, we contacted the organization head to find out how far we were from trials and what it would take to get Lexi involved. She informed us that researchers are doing their very best but because it's a rare condition, funding was the biggest hold up. Our blended family united promptly to form CCM3 Indy, the only working chapter of Angioma Alliance/ CCM3 Action in the state of Indiana, located here on the Southeast side."

Sanders shared that their first event, held in May 2014 at Greenwood Community High School, was deemed a success.

"It began as one mother on a mission to save her daughter and has grown into a community of dedicated volunteers willing to go above and beyond to make what was once a dream and hope, a reality," Sanders wrote.

We wish the family the best of luck in these efforts.

Oktoberfest is a great Southside tradition

There may not be anything that says the coming of fall and Southside more than the German-American Klub's annual Oktoberfest. Festivities, at German Park, 8600 S. Meridian St., get under way tonight (Sept. 10) and through to Sunday, Sept. 13 - Gates open at 4 p.m. and admission is $5 per person - however tonight (the 10th) it is $5 per car load. You don't need to come dressed in Ledershosen or Dirndi dresses, but it would be encouraged. Simply one of the best events on the Southside. For more information, go to indianapolisgak.com.

"If it's all the same to you, Mr. Trump, I would rather you stop cherishing women and start respecting women," Hillary Clinton, speaking at a campaign event in Portsmouth, New Hampshire. We haven't stopped laughing at that one. This from the same person who worked with her husband in an attempt to destroy Monica Lewinsky back in the '90s. We're sure you recognize that name. In a fantastic article by the late, great Christopher Hitchens, wherein he wrote about a lunch he had with long-time Clinton aide, Sidney Blumenthal, we learned exactly how much "respect" the Clintons have for women. During that lunch, Blumenthal discussed how the White House was going to destroy Lewinsky's life by labeling her a "stalker" and "blackmailer". This is the typical Clinton MO: Trash your accusers. Then the now-famous (infamous?) blue dress appears. Oops. We only bring this up because this is just one example how the Clintons "respect" women. Oh, not to worry about Mr. Blumenthal; he's still an active adviser to a candidate for president. You guessed it: Hillary Clinton.

William Leppert

Greenwood Police officer enjoys the constant changes and challenges that come from working on the road

BEHIND the BADGE

A lot has changed in the 29 years that William "Bill" Leppert has served on the Greenwood Police Department: from the size of the city to the technology that's developed to make their jobs a little bit better.

"I like what I do, after all of these years," Leppert said. "I enjoy coming to work every day. I enjoy the people I work with, the people I work for."

Leppert was born and raised in Beech Grove, attending Holy Name Catholic School and graduating from Roncalli High School. He and his wife of 28 years, Rhonda, have three kids and continue to reside in Greenwood, where he moved after he got the job with the Greenwood Police Department on July 1, 1986.

"I belive you should live with the people you serve," Leppert said. "Back in 1986, it still had that small town feel. I got the feeling that people here really respect the police department here. The city was growing and it felt comfortable. It's not the little city anymore. It's just home now."

What was your inspiration to become a police officer?

I got a degree in conservation law enforcement from Vincennes University. I applied for a job, got to the intern stage but they weren't going to hire for another five years. I thought I'd go into law enforcement and return to conservation. That didn't happen. It gets in your blood. Either you do it or you can't. I applied to Beech Grove, IFD, Greenwood and Greenwood hired me first. I've been here for 29 years.

What has been one of your most gratifying moments on the job?

Several years ago I was on station talking to a complainant in the lobby. I walked back to dispatch who threw me on the phone. This guy was frantic. His baby wasn't breathing. I talked him through baby CPR. I heard the sirens in the background and heard the baby crying. They later told me the baby was about dead – the CPR saved it.

What aspect of the job do you find most challenging?

Every day is challenging. Every day is different. That's why I like it. There's no monotony. You meet different people and work with people in different ways. That's why we do what we do, why we get into this. None of us can sit around and do nothing. There has to be that challenge. I've been on the road every day because I like the challenge of doing something different every day. I'll probably retire on the road.

What do you enjoy doing in your off-time?

I like watching TV. Any moment you can get with your family is what you want to do. I like working around the house. I used to build model cars and show them off. Now that my kids are older, I might get back into that.

What are your future goals, professionally or personally?

I have three years left here. I'd like to move to Tennessee to work at Smokey Mountain National Park. I love it down there.

What would you have done if you hadn't of became a police officer?

I like traveling, driving to see things. I always thought I'd be a truck driver. I like being out on the open road.

Promoting with pride

Beech Grove Fall Festival Chairman John Ciriello has a lifelong history with the event put on by the Beech Grove Promoters Club

By Nicole Davis

The Beech Grove Promoters Club and its annual Fall Festival are sources of pride for John Ciriello. He's been involved in both since before he can remember.

His father, Bill Ciriello Sr., was a charter member of the club. Growing up, his friends would always look around at the festival and ask, "you're dad runs this thing?" To which Ciriello responded, "yeah, he's one of them." Now Ciriello is one of them. He serves as chairman of the 2015 festival, themed A Salute to Hollywood.

"The festival is just a staple in Beech Grove," Ciriello said. "It's a great way to support Beech Grove. Everyone looks forward to it. Plus it's a great way to support a local organization and the local businesses."

The Beech Grove Promoters Club started in 1953 and filed for a charter with the National Exchange Club.

"When they originally started the club, you could probably say it was the first Beech Grove Business Alliance, in (a) sense," Ciriello said. "The guys that formed it were all Beech Grove businessmen. They were community-oriented and wanted Beech Grove to grow and to do things in the community."

Beech Grove held its Golden Jubilee, the 50th anniversary celebration, in 1956, which Ciriello said was basically the first festival put on by the city and the exchange club. Club members didn't like that the funds they raised had to be sent back to the National Exchange Club and if they wanted to use it, they had to request it back. They dropped the charter and incorporated as the Beech Grove Promoters Club in 1957. They changed the festival's name to the Fall Foliage Festival in 1957. In 1962 they did the first parade. The festival used to include everything from a Queen festival, beard contest and other family-friendly activities.

While Ciriello said he was kind of like a Junior Promoter when he was younger because his family was so active in the club, he didn't join until later. He graduated from Franklin Central High School, went into the Marines and came home in 1975. He was asked to be a judge in the Queen contest in the 1976 festival. That contest no longer takes place. He and his brother, Bill Ciriello, joined the Promoters in 1977. In March of 1977 he was elected his first term as president of the club. He now holds the record for the most terms as president – six – and said he really enjoyed the position.

"I like community involvement," Ciriello said. "I'm not one to sit on my hands and watch people do things. Another thing, we're not just members, we're friends. I've formed some very long-term, good friendships because of this thing."

The 2015 Fall Festival will take place Sept. 16 through 19, running along Main Street in Beech Grove from 3rd Avenue to Eighth Avenue.

"It's growing," Ciriello said. "We probably have more booths now than we ever had."

Each day includes rides, games, food and booths. A parade with the A Salute to Hollywood theme will happen at noon on Saturday. A one-day craft fair will also take place Saturday. Ciriello said that the Promoters always try to make sure they include any nonprofit that wants to be involved first, then local business and for-profit organizations. Servant's Heart and Beech Grove Police and Fire departments will partner for a nonperishable food drive with bins and a booth for donations. The Beech Grove Historical Society will have a member giving verbal appraisals of small, antique items on Friday from 6 – 9 p.m. and Saturday from 1 - 6 p.m.

This is the club's primary fundraiser, with funds benefitting projects within the Beech Grove community.

"In any function we do, the city, the mayor and city council, fire and police departments have always supported us 110 percent," Ciriello said. "We couldn't do this without them and we make sure they work with us. The same thing with the street department and the parks department: we couldn't do nearly what we do without them."

Ciriello said the club has always been small but powerful. Currently they have 21 members – including original charter member Bill Ciriello Sr.

"As far as I'm concerned, dad is kind of an icon," Ciriello said. "If there's a controversy of any kind, they look at him and say 'pop, what do we do?' He says 'you make the decision.' But the respect the guys have in the club for him, there is a sense of pride for me."

While he said they would love to have more active people to get involved, they are still putting on functions like the Fall Festival that often take many more people. With the continued success of the festival, he said he predicts he'll be involved for many years to come.

"I can probably see myself," Ciriello said. "My father is 86. I hope when I'm 86, I'm like him. I imagine I'll still be doing this when I'm 86, too... People that don't get involved don't know what they're missing because we have a lot of fun."

IMPD awards Hubler Chevrolet as Southeast Crime Fighter of the Year

Commander John Mann recently recognized Hubler Chevrolet as the Southeast District Crime Fighter of the Year award recipient.

"We honestly can't thank Hubler Chevrolet, especially Brooke Hubler and Joe Folck, enough for their willingness to get involved and generously support IMPD and our community," Mann said. "They have set the bar high. Their passion and concern for helping others is great. Hubler has continually demonstrated a sincere commitment and dedication to IMPD by supporting a variety of community –policing programs and events."

In 2013 Hubler single-handedly rescued IMPDs Clothe-A-Child Program. So they partnered with the district again and hosted IMPDs Easter Eggstravaganza. Hubler provides food, bounce houses, face-painting, trackless train rides, music and door-prizes - and 15,000 candy-filled eggs making for one of the largest organized Easter egg hunts in the city. They then hosted a Child ID Project with IMPD. This new initiative allows parents to receive a FBI quality digital finger print and photo for their children. More than 200 families received Child ID cards. Recently, Hubler purchased all the necessary equipment - including camera, computer, digital finger print reader and card printer – to continue the Child ID Project. "These are just a few examples of the IMPD events and programs made possible by the generosity and support of Hubler Chevrolet," Mann said. "I have to mention, that neither Brooke nor Joe do any of this for the recognition. In fact, my guess is they're a bit uncomfortable being honored today. However; simply put, the work you do to provide these opportunities for positive police and community interactions in invaluable and deserves to be recognized. We appreciate and are blessed by this terrific police –community partnership."

NEVER FORGET

THE PORT AUTHORITY OF NY & NJ

Patrick J. Foye Executive Director

For the past 14 years, The Port Authority of New York and New Jersey has remained committed to honoring the people who were lost on September 11, including the first responders who paid the ultimate sacrifice and those who continue to face challenges from that day.

We are dedicated to preserving the memory of the men and women who faced the tragic events on September 11 with unparalleled bravery, ensuring that we never forget their selflessness and heroism, and that those who reside within and outside the New York/New Jersey region do not either. Thanks to your help, we have been able to accomplish just that.

On behalf of The Port Authority of New York and New Jersey, I thank you for your commitment to honoring these first responders and all the other lives that were lost on September 11 by accepting an artifact from the World Trade Center and creating a public display in your community or at your organization.

While the facts of that day have been well documented, many throughout the country are unaware of the health impacts still faced by thousands of responders and survivors who live not only in the region that we serve but also around the country.

With the 14th anniversary of September 11 approaching, you or your organization may be having memorial events in the coming days. These events present an opportunity to raise awareness about the continuing health impacts to responders and survivors. The information below conveys the scale of the issue and comes from the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention's World Trade Center Health Program, which was established by the Zadroga 9/11 Health and Compensation

- There are more than 71,000 responders and survivors receiving medical monitoring and/or medical treatment for their September 11 injuries. In the past year, more than 3,600 responders and survivors enrolled in the WTC Health Program.

r knew that it would grow to become a nation for locals, that Mallow Run Winery s own concert series, or that it would be a great place for people to get away with family and friends.

To celebrate 10 years, the winery put together a weekend-long hog roast celebration filled with food, wine, music and friendship. For Laura Richardson, this weekend celebration for the winery's milestone was about one thing: gratitude.

"Reflecting now, it's (surreal) to look at how we've grown since our start," Laura Richardson said. "It's hard to predict what you'll look like 10 years into the future. We thought we'd just keep a small operation, but it took a life of its own and grew into what it is today because of the support people have given us."

"And we can't be more grateful and thankful to everyone," she said. "This weekend is more about the people who have supported us, more than anything, and we just want to show our appreciation."

Mallow Run Winery is secluded, like an oasis for people to get away from the fast-paced world. That's the way Laura Richardson sees it, and it wasn't more apparent than during the holiday weekend.

"It's great because people can detach from technology and stresses here," she said. "People can let their kids run around the property, friends and families can picnic and relax, and that's what we love about it. People of all ages can come and enjoy Mallow Run and focus on family and friends."

"That's what we wanted this weekend to be, to bring people together."

UIndy's CELL names new executive director

Janet Boyle brings broad experience in education policy, statewide initiatives

An experienced education administrator and policy advocate has been named executive director of the Center of Excellence in Leadership of Learning at the University of Indianapolis. Janet Boyle joined CELL as assistant executive director in 2011 and has served as acting executive director since 2014. She replaces David Dresslar, who recently retired from the university.

Boyle served previously as assistant superintendent for curriculum and instruction in the Center Grove Community School Corp., and assistant principal for curriculum and professional development at Ben Davis High School.

At CELL, her work has included leading the statewide Early College initiative, supporting an innovative high school model that allows underserved students to earn an associate's degree or up to two years of bachelor's degree credit while earning a high school diploma. In the past four years, CELL has trained more than 80 teams from high schools and career technical education centers on implementing the Early College model. Twelve high schools have now completed CELL's endorsement process for high quality Early College implementations, and 50 Indiana counties now have Early College initiatives in development.

Boyle also led the creation of the STEM Teach initiative, a partnership with the Independent Colleges of Indiana that supports private universities in offering certification and increasing the number of highly qualified science, technology, engineering and mathematics teachers for Indiana schools.

As executive director of CELL, Boyle will continue to oversee strategic planning, staffing, budgeting, advocacy, school and government relations and other statewide initiatives that include the Education Workforce Innovation Network and the TAP System for Teacher & Student Advancement. She will report to UIndy Executive Vice President and Provost Deborah Balogh.

"Dr. Boyle is widely respected in education and policy circles and already has proven her abilities in overseeing some of the state's most comprehensive and innovative school improvement efforts," Balogh said. "Under her continued leadership, I am confident that CELL will remain a prominent force in creating better educational outcomes for Indiana students."

Boyle holds a Ph.D. in secondary education curriculum and instruction, a master's degree in educational administration and a bachelor's degree in English, all from Indiana State University. She lives in the Greenwood area.

Saints Francis and Clare offers 'Circle of Grace' program

Several years ago Saints Francis and Clare school implemented a program for the safe environment education of children and young people supported and mandated by the Archdiocese of Indianapolis. Much was learned through those first efforts, and the school is preparing to present the information to students again this fall. The program is offered in response to the U.S. Conference of Catholic Bishops Charter for the Protection of Children and Young People.

The Archdiocese of Indianapolis will offer the Circle of Grace program to all children in faith formation and in the school. Numerous programs were researched to find one that would supplement the excellent programs already in place.

Safe and Sacred assists the adults in the parishes and schools who work with children to be mindful of boundaries and has provided education on situations that could present an unsafe environment for children. Circle of Grace assists young people with education and guidance on appropriate boundaries, self-respect, and respect for others. The program encourages healthy relationships and teaches children that God is always present with us.

Age appropriate Circle of Grace lessons will be taught annually at each grade level, pre-kindergarten to grade 12, in our Religious Education/Youth Ministries and School Ministries. Each year's lessons build upon what has already been taught. The number of lessons varies among grade level, and are as few as one and as many as four. Most lessons average about forty minutes. Religious Education, Youth Ministry and our School Ministry will each share with you the dates they plan to teach Circle of Grace to your children during the 2015-2016 program year.

A comprehensive flyer with a detailed explanation of the Circle of Grace program and common parent questions are available online at www.ss-fc.org. Please contact Coordinator of Religious Education Patricia McGill at pmcgill@ss-fc.org, or by phone at (317) 859-4673, ext. 115 for more.

Cuts & Kicks returns excess donations to school and pantry

Cuts and Kicks is a program that is supported by numerous local Beech Grove businesses and individuals. Through the generosity of those who support the program, 36 pairs of shoes were donated to local students in need. Students also received free haircuts from Vinny's Barbershop.

Because of the generosity of the businesses and individuals, there was money left over. Linda Byland presented Dr. Paul Kaiser, BGCS Superintendent, and Shirley Folks, BGCS' District Home School Advisor, with a check to purchase additional pairs of shoes for students needing shoes throughout the school year.

Ms. Folks will purchase and distribute new shoes for students, as needed, through the Hornet Care Pantry, a program Folks coordinates to provide food, personal care items, and other supplies for Beech Grove students.

Behold the power of the pear

NUTRITION

By Chef Wendell Fowler

The seasonal, beloved pear is one of civilization's oldest, softest, sweetest cultivated fruits. There are thousands of varieties of pears grown worldwide.

A Chinese diplomat in 5,000 B.C. named Feng Li abandoned his responsibilities because he became spellbound by pears. In The Odyssey, Homer lauds pears' "gift of the gods." Early colonists brought pear trees to America's eastern settlements where they thrived until crop blights proved too severe to sustain cultivation – karma for exerting arrogant dominion over Native Americans. Today, there are more than 1,600 pear growers in Oregon and Washington.

An immune system booster, pears contain antioxidant vitamin C, an important part of your temple's cancerfighting arsenal, and copper which fights off free radical oxidation and disease in the temple. Pears are a low-acid fruit unlikely to cause digestion or pH acidity problems. You've learned here that an acid temple attracts disease.

Prevent and treat osteoporosis by protecting bone integrity by maintaining an alkaline pH and high calcium intake from dietary and plant sources. Pears contain boron, which researchers believe may help the temple to retain calcium.

Pears contain a lot of fiber, essential for a healthy digestion. Fiber keeps food moving efficiently through your colon. One medium-sized pear contains about 20-25 percent of the daily recommended intake of fiber. The fiber content in pears is very effective at promoting colon health, which will reduce your chances of developing colon cancer. Because they're high in fiber and have a low glycemic index, pears are a smart snack for diabetics. Mothers must consume enough folic acid to prevent tragic birth defects. Pears contain folic acid and should be included in a healthy prenatal diet. Pears help to maintain a healthy pH level as well.

Tired? When you eat a pear, the temple absorbs glucose, which converts into energy. Eating a pear can be a great pick-me-up if you're sluggish in the afternoon.

America's plagues of obesity, cancer, diabetes, heart disease, and autoimmune disorders result from a low grade diet. I gently repeat: to prevent the heartbreak of chronic disease and vitamin deficiencies, you must feed your temples trillions of cells a lot of highly antioxidant, fresh fruits, vegetables and plant foods from the Celestial Apothecary.

However, to truly and completely prosper, America must change the misguided way they've learned to perceive food and give their cells proper tools for success. Americans must learn how to eat all over again.

Free rein or free reign?

GRAMMAR GUY

By Jordan Fischer

Question: "Dear Grammar Guy: I got burned the other day trying to use the expression 'free reign' - or, rather, 'free rein,' as one of my friends snidely pointed out. Which is the correct version? 'Free reign' makes sense to me."

Answer: Alas, dear reader, I'm sorry to say your friend has the correct answer on this one. I see where your confusion may be coming from, though.

There are two expressions to consider here: "to give free rein" and "to rein in." Both come from horseback riding, where reins are used to control and guide the horse (along with a riding crop and possibly a carrot and stick, depending upon the metaphor

In our expressions above, we understand the reins to be figurative: they are a metaphor for power and control. But does "reign" not mean "dominating power or influence?" Can it not be used as a verb to mean "to have control or rule?" Why aren't they interchangeable?

The simple answer is: Because that's not where the expression came from.

A longer and perhaps more elucidative answer is that "reign" may only be used as an intransitive verb - that is to say, you don't reign something, you simply reign. "Rein," on the other hand, may be used transitively or intransitively, which allows us to have the direct object we need for the expressions to make sense (ex. "We reined in our out-ofcontrol budget.").

The takeaway from this is that you don't need to remember all the transitive/intransitive stuff, you only need to remember that, when it comes to the expressions "free rein" and "to rein in," it's always "rein."

A Walk in The Woods... one terribly unfunny stroll

MOVIE REVIEW

By Adam Staten

Going into a movie completely blind, knowing as little about a film as possible is probably the best way to watch one, at least for reviewing purposes. However, with the pervasive nature of modern technology, that's easier said than done. Fortunately, one recent film of which I went in with a very limited knowledge of, was last weekend's new release, A Walk in the Woods, starring Robert Redford and Nick Nolte.

A Walk in The Woods is the story of Bill Bryson (Redford), a highly accomplished writer who has been stuck in a rut as of late. He's a best-selling author, has a beautiful family, a loving wife, but he still seems lost and looking for something. After attending the funeral of an acquaintance, Bill begins contemplating his life. Bill quickly realizes he wants to "rediscover his roots" and makes the decision to hike the Appalachian Trail. As expected, this news does not go over well with his wife.

After initially being completely opposed to the idea, she relents with one condition: he must find a hiking buddy. Bill starts calling through his contacts in order to find someone brave and adventurous enough to come along with him on the ambitious journey. Bill's offers are turned down one after the other until he receives a call from Katz.

(Nolte) an overweight, womanizing recovering alcoholic. The two men and their diametrically opposed personalities soon set off on their expedition. Things quickly go from bad to worse, as nothing seems to go according to plan.

As far as the story goes, there's a surprisingly large amount of comedic material. The pair run into a couple of bears, get stuck on the side of a mountain, and encounter an annoying, motor mouthed hiker, who the guys go to great lengths to avoid. Unfortunately, it just is not funny as every scene intended to be comedic, is terribly unoriginal. Even more alarming, there is not one single twist or turn throughout A Walk in The Woods.

When you think a dramatic turn here or there, or just some kind of change of pace in the story, would have been nice, the film just doesn't do it. Instead, A Walk in The Woods is a very straightforward film. The script is by far the film's biggest problem.

A Walk in The Woods is a surprisingly unfunny and uninteresting film. It's like an unfunny episode of The Odd Couple set in the woods. 2.5 out of 5.

SHS freshman wins Arthur Ashe Award

A Perry Township freshman is being honored as one of only ten students in the country to win the prestigious Arthur Ashe Essay award. Southport High School freshman Colston Streit was featured Aug. 27 on WRTV 6 News with reporter Lauren Casey, who interviewed Colston at the high school.

Colston said he is honored to be one of only a handful of students in the country to win the Arthur Ashe Essay Award. It is sponsored by the National Junior Tennis and Learning Organization (NJTL) and the United States Tennis Association (USTA).

His essay was chosen out of 5,000 essay entries from across the nation. As a result, he and his family flew to New York City to receive the honor for his achievement. Colston participated in Arthur Ashe Kids' Day and various clinics.

He currently is alternately playing #1 singles and #1 doubles for the Southport High School boys tennis team. Colston and his family were also guests at the start of the U.S. Open.

Weekly Devotion

"O Lord, to us belongeth confusion of face, (shame-the feeling and the cause and the condition) to our kings, to our princes, and to our fathers, because we have sinned against thee. To the Lord our God belong mercies and forgivenesses, though we have rebelled against him; Neither have we obeyed the voice of the Lord our God, to walk in his laws, which he set before us by his servants the prophets." ~ Daniel 9:8-10

Daniel, along with multitudes of others from Judah, was in captivity in Babylon. They were there because of the sins of the rulers of Judah who refused to hear what God was telling them and continued their "finger in the eye of God" rebellion against Him. Daniel now says, "The shame is ours, all of it. The cause, the condition and the feeling."

Daniel was not blaming God as many do for the captivity of Judah; he was putting the blame right where it belonged. You will note that he says, "to us" and not, "to them."

What happened to Israel and Judah could very well happen to us. How much do we treasure the freedoms and the liberty that we have been so long blessed with

One encouraging thing, though. Judah was delivered by the hand of almighty God and did return to their homeland. It never fully recovered from the captivity. Judah had been humbled and humiliated and we may have to be also.

What we have had in our past I wish all of the world could have in its future. We cannot help them to have it unless we believe in it ourselves. America, keep the faith. Be strong in your faith in God. Let us return to our "Jerusalem" and rebuild our gates and restore our walls and be the temple of the Lord as a nation lest our shame remain on us forever.

God bless and go and have a great day.

Paul A. Kirby is the pastor at the Church of God at 3939 S. Emerson Ave.

Tradition

REFLECTING ON THE DAY THAT WE WERE ALL JUST SIMPLY "AMERICANS"

September 11, 2001 is a day that will live be remembered as one of the darkest days in American history. Prior to 9/11, Americans had always felt a sense of security and safety upon their own soil. However, the acts of terrorism on this day forever changed us as Americans.

Fourteen years later, I feel a great pain in my heart when I remember those scenes of the North Twin Tower burning from the plane that crashed into it at 8:45 a.m. I felt confused, not sure if it was an accident or if it was something more. I still vividly remember the shock that I felt and the tears rolling down my cheeks when I realized that my Country was under attack as another plane flew into the South Tower. By then there was no doubt that the United States of America was under attack. I also remember the sense of feeling powerless when I heard that a third plane had crashed into the Pentagon. By the time, I was given the news about a fourth plane crashing into a field in Pennsylvania; all I could do was to lower my head in prayer for all the lives that had been lost on this day.

2,996 individuals lost their lives during this attack on the United States of America. Our Country and our lives were forever changed on that day. There had not been an attack on American soil since the burning of Washington in the War of 1812. I pray daily that there will never be another day like this

One profound result of that cowardly attack on 9/11 was that all of us became as one. Not rich or poor, not black or white, not Democrat or Republican, not male or female, not young or old....just "American". Differences did not matter. All that mattered was that we all were united by patriotism through our great love of our country.

During the week of 9/11, I was on military duty in Europe and was travelling in Paris, France. After the attack, I was filled with a sense of unity and so were the French. Many shops in Paris had signs in their windows that said "Nous sommes tous Americains" (we are all Americans). Before the attack, I walked around Europe without a second glance from Europeans. However, after 9/11, as an American Soldier, I was greeted with hug after hug. I was offered condolences and heard people say over and

On this 14th Anniversary of 9/11, let us pray for those that lost their lives on that day, including the police officers and firefighters, and for those soldiers, airman, sailors, Marines and civilian contractors who have lost their lives since fighting to keep our Country safe from another attack.

Respectfully,

Edward A. McDonald Lieutenant- Colonel, United States Army (retired) Candidate for Beech Grove Mayor

Edward A. McDonald is a retired member of the US Army Reserve. Use of his military Rank, Job title, and photograph in uniform does not imply endorsement by the DOD or US Army.

As a gesture of remembrance to that day when we were all united as "Americans", I will be giving away 3 commemorative crosses that are made out of the steel girders from the Twin Towers during the Beech Grove Promoter's Club Fall Festival, September 16-19. Please complete the entry form that will be available at the Republican Booth. The winners will be drawn and announced on September 19th. One entry per person and you do not need to be present to win.
