Worthsville Road is complete!

Greenwood City officials, business leaders and community members celebrated the completion of the City's Worthsville Road project, a nearly $17 million endeavor that first began in 2008. The four-lane road, extending from I-65 to U.S. 31, provides the east-west corridor Greenwood officials say is key to easing traffic congestion and attracting new business to the area.

"A book of poetry by James Whitcomb Riley. The book was very dimensional. He took a lot of things that that started out very sadly or awkwardly and turned them into a very positive spin by the end of his writings. He also did it other ways. He was from Indiana and is buried here in New Crown Cemetery."

Ashlee York of Beech Grove

"Ayn Rand's Atlas Shrugged. When I read it and when I was in high school considering what I was going to do for the rest of my life, she talks about the theory of objectivism, independence, and paving your own way. As a young female going off to college, I thought that was a really good philosophy for me to take on. I believed and dreamed of what I could do and set out to do it. It was pretty influential for me as a high school student."

Lizz Walters, resident of Franklin Township and works in Beech Grove

Q: What book, besides perhaps The Bible, has influenced you the most?

Men of the Bible: A One-Year Devotional Study of Men in Scripture by Ann Spangler and Robert Wolgemuth. I studied it during a men's Bible study and read it last year. It has all the famous men from the apostles to Moses. What I like about it is you get to use the Bible to follow up. It brings it down to common sense where people can understand it. Another one is Unbroken by Laura Hillenbrand. She is the author of a World War II survivor who crossed the ocean and two years in a Japanese POW camp."

Compiled by Nicole Davis

Congressional District 9 candidates Shelli Yoder (D) and Trey Hollingsworth (R) met at Valle Vista Gold & Conference Center on Sept. 19 for a political debate hosted by the Greater Greenwood Chamber of Commerce. The candidates discussed everything from federal highway funding and healthcare reform to the second amendment and minimum wage. Here, read highlights from the debate, with three questions and responses.

Editor's Note: The responses and questions were edited for length.*

Congress identified I-69 as the corridor of the future... State and federal infrastructure funds for highway, development and repair are not meeting up with demand. Indiana was fortunate enough to have funding from Governor Daniels Major Moves fund and has also utilized public/private partnerships to finance the project thus far... What can congress do to ensure that I-69 is completed in Indiana and across the country?

Trey: Over and over again what we hear about is a lack of accountability... We need a business sense in Washington that will hold people accountable. I believe infrastructure is an important aspect of what government should do. We need investment in infrastructure. In order to do that, we need to stop doing some of the things that government shouldn't be doing. If we are to expect a balanced budget and invest in infrastructure, some things are going to have to get cut.

Shelli: When you look at (I-69) section one through four, it was funded through public investment. Now we're looking at private-public partnership. I have made infrastructure investment the core of this campaign because as a member of congress we not only have to address safety of our roads and bridges but also being able to move congress up and down Indiana, especially throughout the ninth district.

The presidential election discourse over the last year included the topic of raising the minimum wage currently at $7.25 to as much as $15 per hour... What is your position on the federal minimum wage raise?

Trey: The sustainable way to generate wage growth is to increase the demand for labor in this country. You guys do it every single day as business owners. I've been doing this every day for the last 11 years. We have to focus on enabling business growth in this country. We have to focus on getting back to a free markets economy... The regulations are smothering job creation.... We need to enable opportunities for Americans and American businesses so they can hire more Americans and drive up that demand for labor which will ultimately yield wage growth.

On front: Audience members were asked to "vote" on issues by holding up a red or green card in opposition or favor to a question asked by moderator, Joe Sagorsky, healthcare executive for Franciscan Health-Indianapolis.

Shelli: I believe that having a discussion and having people live on living wages and a thriving business community are not at odds with one another... We can have the conversation as a country and find ways to be able to make sure that people have access to good paying jobs and have a business community that is thriving.

While Washington still spins the positive and negative impacts of the Affordable Healthcare Act, local business are faced with everyday reality of implementing it... What, if any change, to the healthcare law would you support?

Shelli: I think the idea of going back to a time when you could reach your lifetime cap on healthcare and lose your health insurance or a time when having a preexisting condition would keep you from accessing healthcare... The fact that we now have hundreds of thousands, millions more people who now have healthcare, this is really important. The Affordable Care Act does need work. As someone who's running to be your representative, I want to make sure that we cut through some of this red tape that's almost holding people back from wanting to offer good healthcare plans to their employees... Two changes, one would be repealing the cadillac tax, which is putting those penalties on really good healthcare plans as well as repealing the permanently the medical device tax to make sure that the life sciences industry that is the backbone of Indiana economy, especially the ninth district doesn't get hit extremely hard by this unnecessary tax.

Trey: It's a politician's metric to say that certainly more people have health insurance today than they did before, but at what cost? ... We know in the long run the most effective, efficient and innovative way to deliver healthcare and healthcare insurance is through a competitive market. I want companies competing for American consumer dollars. I don't want Americans forced and mandated to give insurance companies their dollars. We need to get to a free market, competitive system for health care insurance. That's what will deliver the lowest cost in the long run. That's what will enable the most people to get the insurance they need for their families and through their futures.

GREENWOOD COMMON COUNCIL

Meeting, Sept. 19

■ What happened: Ordinance 16-57 passes first reading and Ordinance 16-56 passes second reading. Ordinance 16-62 has been tabled until a later date.

■ What it means: Ordinance 16-57 allows the establishment of just and equitable fees for the services provided by its sanitary sewer utilities. The owner will pay this fee based on the water meter size.

Ordinance 16-56 will transfer funds into the Park Fund for additional Repair and Maintenance supplies. This will be a $15,000 transfer from excess funds available in the Professional Services budget.

Ordinance 16-62 prohibits truck traffic on specific streets throughout the city. Trucks will not be allowed to travel thru traffic on Main St. between Emerson and US Highway 31, Alexander Street between Airport Parkway and Country Aire Lane, and Country Aire Drive between Country Aire Lane and Emerson Avenue. Trucks will be restricted based on weight.

■ What's next: Ordinance 16-57 will go on to its second reading on October 3. A public hearing is also scheduled for 16-57 on that day. Ordinance 16-56 will go into effect. Ordinance 16-62 will appear before the council again for its first reading.

BEHIND the BADGE

Compiled by Nicole Davis

A 1994 graduate of Center Grove High School, Andrew Barnhart said he knew once he decided to enter law enforcement, he wanted to be in Johnson County.

Barnhart first became a full-time dispatcher for a few years, then a community corrections field officer before being hired as a Johnson County Sheriff's deputy full time in 2003. He worked as a detective five years where he was promoted sergeant.

"When I went to investigations, I was able to use my experience in education and technology to investigate computer crimes," he said. "I became a certified computer forensics examiner. That was a neat way that I was able to take two things I'm interested in and use them together."

He was promoted to lieutenant in 2012 and is a shift supervisor. He is also a SWAT team member and firearms instructor.

He, his wife and two children reside in Greenwood.

What was your inspiration to pursue law enforcement?

I originally was in college at Purdue University for computer science. As I was progressing through my schooling, I realized that even though I enjoyed it, it was not something I wanted to do day in and day out for the rest of my life. I started thinking of careers where I could do something to feel more fulfilled. I did a lot of reading on different careers and decided law enforcement would be a better fit for me. I ended up getting job dispatching for the New Whiteland

Police Department. I started riding with some of the officers there. As soon as I got involved that way, I knew this is what I wanted to do.

What has been one of your most gratifying moments on the job?

When I was in investigations, there was a case of a tree trimmer in the White River Township area. He was going to people's houses and targeting elderly people, convincing them they needed their trees trimmed. He charged these people $60,000 combined and never did the work for them. As I spoke with these victims, I found that they were on a fixed income, didn't have the money to blow on something like that and how much it impacted their lives. It was a lengthy case. After several months, we were able to get him charged of home improvement fraud and he was convicted. He had cases being investigated in Indianapolis and other counties. The victims were very grateful and happy about having that little bit of justice done for what happened to them.

What aspect of the job do you find most challenging?

Recently, the most challenging aspect is feeling like we have to fight a sometimes negative public perception. One of the things that attracted me to law enforcement is I feel I always had a sense of right and wrong and to do something that means something to people's lives. Although it's a vocal minority who are anti-police right now, it's sometimes hard to face that fact that you are viewed in a negative light by people... For every one person I've heard complain, I've probably had 20 to 30 come up and tell me thank you and that they appreciate what we're doing. That's what keeps you going.

What do you enjoy doing in your off-time?

Professionally, I'd like to get into administration. I've been trying to get myself involved in that, going to budget hearings on my own, to learn what that's all about.

What would you have done if you hadn't gone into law enforcement?

I plan on staying here for awhile. I've been here over six years, that's one of the major accomplishments I've got. I would love to become full time one day but it's hard to find a department that will take you at 44. This is a great department to work for.

What would you have done if you hadn't become a police officer?

I could've done something in technology. I still have a love for that... But, I think I would probably do something for public service.

Beech Grove proposes 2017 salary increase for city employees and elected officials

By Nicole Davis

As the Beech Grove City Council prepares to finalize its 2017 budget, pay increases are in the works for all city employees and elected officials. If the salary ordinance is approved on second and third readings at the Sept. 26, 7 p.m. City Council meeting, this would be the first time in years that many of the elected officials would see a raise.

"We're so far behind other cities and towns, it's ridiculous and it should have never been this way," said City Councilor Dave Harrison who served on the budget committee. "If you want good people on the council, mayor and clerk treasurer, you should pay them close to what other cities are making."

The City Council passed the salary ordinance 6 - 1 at the Sept. 12 public meeting.

"If we're that far away from other cities or towns, then let's do it in increments," said City Councilor, Elizabeth Lamping. "I voted no. I voted against the salary ordinance because I would not go along with a 34 percent increase."

The ordinance would give all full-time city employees a two percent raise. No one voiced an objection to that increase. Elected officials' annual salaries would include an adjustment for: the judge from $42,000 in 2016 to $45,045 in 2017; clerk-treasurer from $50,267 to $60,267; mayor from $52,450 to $62,450; and city councilors from $3,497 to $4,500.

"From the mayor's perspective, I told the clerk-treasurer, who puts the ordinance together, that I wanted to see a two percent raise for full-time employees," said Mayor Dennis Buckley. "I did not make a recommendation to increase elected officials pay. This recommendation came from the budget committee."

Buckley continued, "A couple of weeks ago, we met in a caucus - four council members, mayor, clerk-treasurer - to talk about the budget. I was told, 'we need to talk about something and you're not going to like it. We want to give all elected officials raises.' They said for mayor's position, it's a little over $10,000. They explained why and had some legitimate reasons. I told them when I ran for mayor originally, I knew what I was going to make and I really wasn't interested in it. That's not the reason I ran for mayor. As I stated at the council meeting, my commitment is to the employees of the city. Their personal safety is my top priority, then their pay and benefits. The budget for the mayor's office other than the salary of the assistant has not increased."

Harrison researched the salaries of the elected officials and employees of the surrounding cities. Looking at cities such as Franklin, Jasper, Bedford, Warsaw and New Haven, and other third class cities like Beech Grove, he said it was clear that Beech Grove was due for a raise.

For example, Franklin annually paid its mayor in 2015 $69,649, its council $7,348 and clerk $59, 296. Jasper paid its mayor $71,845, council $6,880 and clerk $60,200. Bedford paid its mayor $64,540, town council $5,809 and clerk $55,783. He said an interesting example was the town of Speedway, which pays its town manager $87,833 and council $4,800.

This is Harrison's second term on the city council, and he said that he can't find information on the last time the elected officials received a raise - estimating it's been decades.

"You can't let it fall this far behind and expect to have people to run that even give a darn about the city," Harrison said. "There are districts that they have trouble getting people to run in. You can't get anyone interested in doing this and I can see why. This is more than a one day a month job."

Lamping said the paycheck isn't why she and many of her fellow public servants became interested in the role.

"I'm passionate about public service," she said. "When I ran for election, I was nonstop. I canvased, went door-to-door. I didn't even know it came with a paycheck... We make $3,400 per year, a little over. They want to increase that. That might not sound like a lot and there are other cities that make more. But we're only nine months into the new council. I made it clear then that I didn't agree with it."

Buckley and Harrison both said they believe the salary ordinance will pass at the next meeting.

"We haven't had raises in over several years and the council is moving to correct that," he said.

A place to perform

FEATURE

By Nicole Davis

The Beech Grove High School band, choir and drama programs finally have space for students to practice and hone their skills with the completion of the new Performing Arts Center.

"We want to sit back and enjoy this beautiful space we have," said Dr. Paul Kaiser, superintendent. "We have a beautiful plaza area, a new entrance. We redid the outside fencing. We are creating an inviting atmosphere coming onto our campus. It's a change in the total environment. From a functional standpoint, the kids have space to learn, to do and to perform."

A referendum was passed in 2015 which allowed for Beech Grove City Schools to pursue the construction of this center, as well as update the ventilation, heating and cooling throughout the district. Construction on the $4.5 million Performing Arts Center began in January. Prior to the new center, students shared the band room and auditorium.

"First and foremost, we want to thank our community," Kaiser said. "Seventy-four percent of the community came out and said yes to our referendum and to support the Performing Arts Center. Without that support, we could not have done it."

Beech Grove Performing Arts Center gives band, choir and drama students space to "spread their wings"

During the Open House and Ribbon Cutting held on Sept. 20, students gave tours of the new center, where students were already utilizing the space.

"Being familiar with the community and growing up here, it's a warm feeling to witness all of this," said Richard Compton, 1963 graduate, with four generations of family members who have attended Beech Grove schools. "I got to see some of the students utilizing the facility when I went on the tour.

It wasn't just empty rooms. You get a drift of what goes on."

Kay Little Denning, 1962 graduate and scholarship chairman of the alumni association, says the center was larger and even better than she imagined.

"I was thrilled," Denning said. "The arts here have always been good and they needed the space. They needed to have space to spread out and spread their wings."

By Beth Wade

On Sept. 17, members of the New Bethel, Cornelia Cole Fairbanks, and Samuel Bryan chapters of the DAR gathered together at the stoplight in front of Wheatley's in Wanamaker to celebrate Constitution Week.

Marlene Nolan, dressed in period clothing, recited the preamble to the Constitution motorists passed by. The ladies passed out flags and copies of the Preamble to motorists stopped at the light.

"We hope this will help the community learn more about the Constitution," Michelle Lupomech, a member of the Cornelia Cole Fairbanks Chapter, said. The ladies stayed until all of their flags had been given out.

HAUNTS & JAUNTS

By Rick Hinton

Sept. 16, and I'm cutting the lawn. I've checked the radar: yellow and red status rapidly approached as early afternoon eased into evening. I accelerated the trusty self-propelled Snapper mower as the sky to the west grew dark. I didn't have much time. The wind had kicked up several notches. I made it! The rumble of thunder was evident as the mower went into the shed. Literally 30 seconds later all hell broke loose. Driving torrents of rain pummeled Southport Road. Traffic slowed to a crawl. One of my neighbor's tree limbs snapped and crashed to the ground. I stood in the garage and watched the show outside, wondering what kind of paranormal activity I was in for that night. I wonder this a lot lately....

Theories dictate that certain types of weather conditions may enhance paranormal activity. It's all about energy. Do paranormal entities use energy to manifest? "Energy can be transferred from one place to another, and from one form to another" (The Law of Conservation of Energy). Changes in our weather patterns are caused by a transfer of this energy. So...what does this all mean for a humble ghost hunter? Maybe everything.

Any paranormal investigator worth his salt will take weather into consideration. Temperature and barometric pressure is measured, dissected and discussed, using equipment with an array of bells and whistles. However, on the flip side, changes in pressure can also affect an investigator physically (headaches, migraines, fuzziness) and be mistaken for ghostly shenanigans. Keep that in mind. During a storm the atmosphere is in turmoil, producing ions and a barrage of electro-magnetic fields (EMF).

And lightning-the holy grail of paranormal investigations-stirs up the atmosphere to the highest degree. Can an entity draw from it? Are apparitions a form of energy? Do storms make it easier? It's a possibility.

Throw in a mix of full moons (the rays emitted and the gravitational pull upon the earth, and us), harvest moons, equinoxes and solstices, and you have a potential paranormal soup brewing. All these have ramifications in cultures and religions over the centuries.

I power mowed that day in our backyard park like setting as the storm approached. I occasionally glanced up at the bedroom window to see if anything was watching me. An older lady, perhaps? The window was empty...this time. There must be a reason my wife Laura and I do not get a full eight hours of sleep a night. Or, why I wake up religiously every morning at 3:15 a.m. Occasionally during stormy weather it is worse. Energy?

Development is happening in Southport

After years of hard work by the Redevelopment Commission and other stakeholders in the community, there is a lot going on in Southport. Renaissance Electric Services is moving furniture into the former Gerdt building, having turned the old furniture store into a beautiful, modern office setting. Sophia's Bridal is relocating its store from U.S. 31 onto Southport Road and will celebrate a grand opening the night of Sept. 30. The old concrete plant is being torn down to make space for more parking, while a portion of the property will be used to construct a new police station. The police station currently shares a small location in the same building as the community center and Perry Senior Services. The city council even voted on Sept. 19 to improve the aesthetics of the community center by purchasing new tables and chairs - lighter weight to move around and comfortable to sit in, they say. The Redevelopment Commission officially formed in 2012 and has been working toward a more walkable, thriving city since. As government elected and appointed officials continue working to better the city, it seems the progress is nowhere near the end. The Southside Times would like to congratulate the city for forming their Redevelopment Commission for building the momentum that they have, and we look forward to what the future has in store!

STARS & STRIKES ON THE SOUTHSIDE

The Southside Times is all about people and our community. What do you like in your neighborhood? What don't you like? Who has done something nice, no matter how small and should be recognized? Email your "Stars and Strikes" to news@ss-times.com. Jim Simmons of Garfield Park and Chad Mertz of Greenwood. contributed to this week's Stars and Strikes.

Strike: Neighbors in and around the Garfield Park neighborhood are angry and disappointed that Chase Bank has decided to close its long-time Shelby Street location. There has been a bank branch on Shelby Street for as long as anyone can remember, at least 75 years. Many people in the area rely on this walkable location more than others because of a lack of transportation and they count on it for their financial needs. A movement has been initiated by neighbors to save the bank though the results to date have proven unsuccessful. There is no other apparent reason to close at this point beyond the possibility of greener pastures, leaving these neighbors in a difficult position. A puzzling and sad moment for the neighborhood in light of an influx of new young homeowners and renters, the coming of the Red Line and the SouthIndy Quality of Life plan in its final stages.

Stars: To the City of Greenwood and its Parks & Recreation Department for adding to the lineup of community festivals and hosting its first annual Rock the Clock event. Featuring giant-sized games and inflatable obstacles, a Rock, Paper, Scissors tournament, and local food, beer and wine, Rock the Clock will be a celebration of downtown Greenwood and the area's business community.

Stars: To those responsible for cleaning up the streets in Beech Grove after the Beech Grove Promoters Club Fall Festival. "The Promoters club members have worked so hard on the planning and cleanup for the festival. These men work so hard for so little recognition," wrote Ed McDonald on a Facebook post to the Beech Grove community.

Star: To the Southport United Methodist ministry who assisted in adding mulch and helping with projects in Southport Park on Sept. 10. Stars also to Modern Woodmen Financial which donated approximately $450 to fund the project.

QUOTE OF THE WEEK

"The proper function of a government is to make it easy for the people to do good, and difficult for them to do evil."

OOPS!

In the article on Tom Marshall's role in the movie, Hoosiers, in The Southside Times' Sept. 15 issue, there were a few errors. Tom Marshall retired in 2011 and coached in Martinsville. He was the one to call the other ref a 'bozo.' We regret the errors.

Humble Harvest

FEATURE

By Nicole Davis

Amidst the growing communities, large houses and nice neighborhoods, there are pockets of poverty with people in need throughout Johnson County. Miki Bolton, of Whiteland, and Gina Royer, of the Center Grove area, founded Humble Hands Inc. to offer help to those families and individuals.

"People don't realize Johnson County has such a huge need," Bolton said. "Believe it or not, Center Grove is the area we serve the most."

Humble Hands is a 501c3 which collects donations of new and gently-used clothing and household items and gives them to Johnson County residents in need.

Bolton, who moved to Johnson County 16 years ago and has raised her four children here, led the outreach team at Stones Crossing Church for five or six years. When the hurricane tore through Haiti nearly three years ago, Bolton said she noticed many of the area churches turning their outreach to help the people of Haiti recover. That took attention away from local needs. Gina's husband, Jason, co-owns RAMS Investing, a real estate remodeling company.

"Gina said you'd be astonished with what people leave behind in those homes," Bolton said. "Let's do something about it. That was

Humble Hands nonprofit hosts its first fundraiser to benefit Johnson County families in need

October. I wasn't into it yet. I was waiting to see what happened. At Christmas, I was reading a book called Kisses from Kate, about a girl who went to Uganda at 18, before college. She fell in love with the kids there, continued to help educate them with the war there and the genocide. She was so inspiring. At 18 years old, to do all of that... I was inspired. I needed to do something. I ran into Gina again. She asked if I thought about her proposal. I kept pushing it away, which was kind of like pushing God away. You can't do that."

Bolton agreed to apply for a not-for-profit license, thinking it would take a long time to come through. It took a week. Bolton and Gina then set up a Facebook page requesting donations.

"That was May 2014 and we haven't stopped since," Bolton said. "We had three garages for a year. The second year we added storage units. The word got out."

With donations overflowing their rented space, Bolton and Gina leased their current location at 400 Tracy Rd., Suite 1, Whiteland.

Humble Hands is all volunteer, but the organization still needs funds to cover rent, utilities and delivery of donations. They will host their first fundraiser on Oct. 1, Humble Harvest Costume Party, from 6 - 10 p.m. at 3250 S. Morgantown Rd., Greenwood. The event will include live music, dinner and dancing with a silent auction, live auction and raffle. Rafael Sanchez will emcee throughout the evening. Tickets can be purchased online at humblehandsinc.com for $25.

"We encourage people to come out and support what we do, learn why we're doing it," Bolton said. "It is a costume ball for adults. We thought that was fun because how often do adults get to dress up? You'll be able to be a kid again at Halloween."

With the proceeds from the fundraiser, Gina and Bolton look to add another spot to their current location where they can offer a food pantry and teach life skills classes.

"With our organization, a lot of these families come for help and 90 percent we'll never see again," Bolton said. "It's a quick fix to help them move on. The other 10 percent they stick around and we do life with them every day and teach them out to change their lives. We teach them life skills, how to budget, how to get them out of the rut they're in."

Humble Hands offers assistance by appointment only, to help maintain the anonymity of its clients. The nonprofit served 180 children by distributing school clothes this year, and continues to work with schools

*“By age 37 I’d gone into cardiac arrest three times.
Reaching age 38 wasn’t looking too promising.”*

— ROBYN C.

Imagine being 37 and not just going for ice cream, or to a movie, or on vacation but going into cardiac arrest. That’s Robyn’s story. A young, active yoga instructor who found herself so fatigued that the stairs to her bedroom loomed like Mt. Everest. After episodes of passing out and falling, she went to Community Heart and Vascular. Thorough testing showed she was the perfect candidate for a pacemaker. But not just any pacemaker. One utilizing technology that allows Robyn never having to worry about an injury requiring an MRI. That’s because, unlike other such devices, this one is MRI-compatible and enables her to have such a test if needed. Between that, and the fact her heart routinely relies on her pacemaker, she finds it mighty reassuring. Because of the talent and technology at Community, Robyn may be one of the rare few actually looking forward to turning forty. Exceptional care. Simply delivered.

When the apples drop from the trees

NUTRITION

By Chef Wendell Fowler

If you only eat apples in the form of Apple pie and 'Poop' Tarts, rather than trust in the divine power that created you, please keep reading.

Adam and Eve were freaked out by apples. Many folks today still consider apples the 'Forbidden Fruit.' Can you say, "Metaphor?" "An apple a day keeps the doctor away," (It's more like two apples) is as American as apple pie. And for good reason since crunchy, juicy, sweet apples and their skin contain an orchard of plant nutrients which science says can prevent many of today's chronic diseases. But only when they are fresh, not canned or baked into extinction.

Fresh orchard apples, not cooked ones, contain Vitamin C, K, B6, and riboflavin, potassium, copper, manganese, magnesium and 'Bell Ringing' fiber. Then there's the pectin in the skin, so please don't peel them, even for apple pie.

Apples contain 78 grams of pectin per 100 grams of edible fruit, ranking them fourth among the 24 common fruits and vegetables tested. Remember, this only to applies when one leaves on the skin. Pectin's soluble fibers, present in most fruits and veggies, can reduce the amount of cholesterol produced by the liver, slows and aids digestion, and the rise of blood sugar, making it ideal for diabetics. People should make sure to see a doctor if diarrhea, constipation, stomach pain, and other gastrointestinal symptoms recur or are persistent in nature, as there may be an underlying problem that needs to be identified and treated.

Routinely eating fresh apples can lower blood pressure, glucose levels, bad cholesterol levels and risk for Alzheimer's. Research says apples can reduce lung cancer and prostate cancer risk due to its quercetin. Apples have shown to support your immune system as well.

Avoid grocery store, sugary clear apple juice and never substitute apple juice for real fruit. Sugar-laden apple juice contains none of the heavenly compounds mentioned above. When visiting your community orchard, ask if they wash, sanitize and filter the juice to prevent food-borne illness such as E. coli or salmonella from animal residue.

Why organic and locally-picked: tons of snarky pesticides get absorbed through the apples skin which defeats the purpose of eating an apple for good health? Scrubbing and peeling do not work.

The forbidden fruit was indeed a real fruit, but not necessarily an apple. It was the fruit from the Tree of the Knowledge of Good and Evil. Now, how do like those apples?

Council on fire

Franklin Township residents walk out of Public Safety Committee budget meeting

By Beth Wade

Many Franklin Township citizens took to the Public Safety and Criminal Justice Committee Fire and Police Department's budget meeting Wednesday, Sept. 14 to show their protest of the closing of two Franklin Township Fire Stations; station 52 and station 54. They left dissatisfied unable to voice their concerns.

Many Franklin Township residents said they feel that this plan was a done deal and not being able to respectfully voice their concerns at the meeting left many attendees angry.

"We were told we weren't able to speak up about the station closures," Franklin Township resident Cathy Burton stated. "We came here for that, and not having the opportunity to address the councilors was upsetting."

Indianapolis City-County Councilor for Franklin Township, Aaron Freeman, attempted to acknowledge the residents who came to speak against the fire station closures, but was stopped by committee chair, Leroy Robinson. Freeman and his constituents walked out.

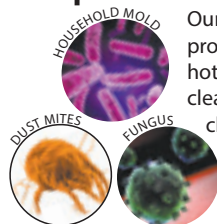

"Robinson unilaterally made the decision that he is not going to allow any public comment on the topic which is insane," said Freeman. "Even more egregious than that is the fact that he wouldn't even allow the elected representatives to ask the chief questions related to this."

IFD Chief Malone anticipated questions and came prepared to answer concerns that Franklin Township residents might have. Robinson stated that the public was led to believe that they would be given an opportunity to address the fire stations closing when that was never the case.

SSFC hosts 10th annual Fall Festival offers two days of family-friendly festivities

Saints Francis and Clare of Assisi Catholic Church's 10th Annual Fall Festival is on Friday, Sept. 23 (5 – 11p.m.) and Saturday, Sept. 24 (noon – 11p.m.).

Amusement rides will be set up on the church grounds for the children and adults alike. Burgers, pulled pork, hotdogs, "The Best" corn-on-the cob and other favorites will be on sale. A chance to win the grand prize of $10,000 in the Mega Raffle is just the price of a ticket. For those who like to sit and enjoy a leisurely dinner, on Friday evening from 5 – 8 p.m., a Fish Fry Dinner will be offered. On Saturday evening (5 – 8 p.m.), a Mexican Fiesta Dinner will be available.

A silent auction area will be located in the gym. More than 150 items and baskets will be there to be bid upon. In years past, everything from toys to games, crafts, homemade quilts, baseball tickets, and time-share vacations have been auctioned off. All profits from the festival, including the auction proceeds, go directly to help support the local parish and school and community outreach programs.

The Festival Marketplace (formally known as Art in the Park) will be in gym and features artists from all across Indiana.

Every year, the Quilter's Club donates a hand-made quilt. This year's brightly-colored quilt is 60"x84" and comes with two decorative pillows. It will be raffled off on Saturday and tickets are just $2 each or $6 for five tickets.

On Saturday, a special $15 ride bracelet may be purchased for unlimited rides from noon – 3 p.m. The children's tent offers small games where the kids can win small prizes and face painting. A Dime Toss Booth will also be available. There will be a Petting Zoo available on both days.

Besides the food, there will be a Beer and Wine Tent, Monte Carlo Tent, live bands, and new this year is the Wine and Dessert Bar.

And, lest one forget the mission of the church, there are three Masses scheduled for Saturday evening: "Early-bird" Mass at 4, 5:30 and an "almost midnight" Mass at the Festival closing at 11:30 p.m.

VFW and American Legions donate service flags to Greenwood Veterans Court

Flags representing each branch of the military, Army, Marines, Navy, Air Force and Coast Guard, now line the Greenwood City Court. The flag donation was presented to Judge Gregory Lewis and the Greenwood Veterans Court by the Greenwood VFW Post 5864, Greenwood American Legion Post 252 and New Whiteland VFW Post 6978 on Sept. 20.

Steve Milbourn, Greenwood VFW Commander, said the posts didn't hesitate to support the project once the idea was brought up.

"When veterans come in here, I think they will feel less threatened," he said. "Every veteran knows the five flags. I think it will set them at ease a little bit."

Now is the time to prepare for cold winter weather

FEATURE

By Brian Ruckle

The leaves are starting to change colors, the kids are back in school, the Colts are back on your television screen along with new episodes of your favorite television shows. The weather is also starting to cool down making it a great time to work outside and make changes at home before the winter winds again blow.

You may be using your central heating and air less but local heating and cooling experts advise that now is the time to prepare your unit for the upcoming winter.

"It has been a long summer and your unit has been running a lot," said Chris Huser of Lamping & Huser Heating & Cooling. "Now is the time to make sure the burners, gas valves and safety controls are operating properly."

Joe Anne of Anne & Matry Heating and Cooling also advised homeowners to call in a service check to clean the furnace and make sure everything works.

"The main thing is to have their furnace serviced before winter. I think it is very critical and make sure the filters are clean. It is really important, especially in the winter time, to keep filters clean," Annee said.

Also homeowners should prepare their lawns and property for the spring said Kelly Bowling of Indy Rental and Sales.

"We rent a lot of aerators and seed slicers for getting their seed out. We also rent chippers and sidewalk edgers frequently for fall cleanup. Moles are a problem this time of year and we have lawn rollers to create compaction," Bowling said.

Bill Heidenreich of Heidenreich Greenhouses & Garden Center said fall is still a great time to have a great looking home and garden.

"Well, the summer was wet and hot. People struggled with their annuals. It is time to plant fall stuff. I would be thinking about putting mums in, ornamental grasses, perennials if you can find them still, asters, ornamental cabbage and kale. Those are just a few," Heidenreich said.

"The main thing is to have their furnace serviced before winter."

Melinda Gary of Gary Greenhouse said the sooner you plant your perennials the better.

"They should have been put in the ground in late August to the first half of September. It is kind of up to mother nature as far as them coming back. Not to mean it can't be done. But it just depends when the ground freezes," Gary said.

Gary said pansies are hardy and cabbage and kale are still a good investment.

"Pansies love the cold temperatures, so don't be afraid to put some pansies out. They could be out there on spring break," she said.

Autumn is a great time to make some interior improvements. Dan Hornaday of Flooring by Stretch Rite said autumn has traditionally been a time when homeowners invest in new carpet.

"Carpet is going to be a popular choice for the winter time because it is warm and comfortable. It has been losing a bit of a market due to hard surface but carpet is still a popular choice," Hornaday said. "The waterproof carpet is going pretty good. The silk carpet is nice and soft. That has been really popular as well."

Fall is also a wonderful time to celebrate with family and friends. Bowling also said this time a year is a popular time to throw a party at home.

"There are a lot of fall parties also. We have some inflatables, we have bounce houses, a football toss very popular this time of year," Bowling said.

AN OPTION

Mo'Joe Coffeehouse

The scoop: Looking to get away to a place to grab a cup of coffee, a scone and spend an afternoon reading or working off your laptop at a locally owned place that isn't Starbucks? Strange Brew and Garfield Eatery & Coffee are great Southside options. If you want to try another Indianapolis option, you could try Mo'Joe Coffeehouse. Located a block from the canal at West Michigan and North Senate Avenue, Mo'Joe Coffeehouse offers a full range of baked goods, lots of lattes and espressos, and a number of breakfast and lunch items. Currently they are serving walking biscuits and gravy, breakfast burritos, chicken salad croissants, a mixed green salad, and breakfast sandwiches. They have a sign announcing an upcoming menu change and so options may be different soon. Mo'Joe attracts an artistic and a college crowd from nearby IUPUI and they do have some parking available in front of their building.

Type of food: Coffee, teas, baked goods, breakfast burritos and sandwiches

Recommendation: The Beehive, a cinnamon and honey latte, and their breakfast burritos.

Hours: Monday to Friday 6:30 a.m. to 10 p.m., Saturday 8 a.m. to 10 p.m., Sunday 8 a.m. to 8 p.m.

Location: 222 W. Michigan St., Indianapolis, IN 46204

Phone: (317) 822-6656

Snowden; an unbelievable bore of a film

MOVIE REVIEW

By Adam Staten

From the birth of a child to the Colts offensive line protecting Andrew Luck to a politician telling the truth, some things in life are just so astounding they can only be classified as miracles. It's been said that these miraculous, inexplicable occurrences happen everyday; you just have to know where to look. And if you're looking on the campaign stump or at Lucas Oil Stadium, you're likely to come up disappointed more times than not. However, one more recent event can honestly be described as a miracle. One film released this past weekend chronicled this incredible incident.

Sully is a film that takes a look at the episode known as "The Miracle on Hudson" and the man simply called Sully. On Jan. 15, 2009 an US Airways Flight departing from LaGuardia Airport in New York was headed to Charlotte, N.C. when shortly after take off disaster struck. Fearing the loss of both of the plane's engines, the quick-thinking pilot, Chesley "Sully" Sullenberger, decides to land in the Hudson River. Astoundingly, all of the plane's crew and passengers survive, escaping with not much more than a scratch here and there.

The Clint Eastwood-directed film recounts this and the events leading up to and following the unfathomable set of circumstances. Sully also looks at Sullenberger, and how he and his family attempt to cope with the intense media scrutiny following "The Miracle on the Hudson."

For the most part, Sully is a very straightforward film, retelling the miraculous landing. However, the film does at times make some unexpected and frankly awkward detours. For instance, there is a scene that goes back to Sullenberger as a teenager as he first begins flying. Then later in the film there's another scene of Sullenberger piloting as a member of the armed forces. Both scenes feel extremely forced, come out of nowhere and take you out of the film.

Tom Hanks, as Sullenberger, gives another typical Hanks performance. He's pitch perfect, never trying too hard, and allows this unbelievable story to be the star. He's likely to garner a number of nominations, and possibly even another Oscar nod for his work here. However, Aaron Eckhart in a limited number of scenes, as his co-pilot, Jeff Skiles, provides a scene-stealing performance.

Despite a few hiccups here and there, Sully is a masterfully-directed and acted film. There are some flaws with the film's story, but Sully is likely to be end up being one of 2016's best. 3.5 out of 5.

Weekly Devotion

10 But he said unto her, Thou speakest as one of the foolish women speaketh. What? shall we receive good at the hand of God, and shall we not receive evil? In all this did not Job sin with his lips. Job 2:10

Our lives rarely ever work out as we planned for them to and when they go so terribly wrong, we need something or someone to believe in and on. Job's wife wants him to give up.

What all of us should do is to stick to our faith in God. This nation needs to do that. The odds seem so overwhelmingly against us as believers but, as the Apostle Paul says, "If God be for us, who can be against us." It is also written, "Greater is He who is in us than he who is in the world.

The decision Job made was a common sense decision. Where else could he go but to the Lord? As we well know, he could not turn to his wife for support because she was telling him to give up and die. He could not turn to his "friends" for support because they believed it was some secret sin that he was unwilling to confess that brought all of this tragedy upon him. Job trusted God but felt that he needed an explanation from God. So, he goes looking for some reasonable explanation from the only One who could make sense of all of what was going. There he sat, day by day, in his sackcloth and covered with ashes and in his misery from the sore boils and prayed on. His faith in God enabled him to endure one day at a time. That faith got him through and that is what will get us through our most terrible times as well.

God bless and go and have a great day.

Paul A. Kirby is the pastor at the Church of God at 3939 S. Emerson Ave.

JOIN ONE OF OUR CHOIRS AND BRING SOME HARMONY INTO YOUR LIFE

The Chancel and Bell Choirs of Greenwood United Methodist Church invite you to join us each week as we praise Jesus Christ through music.

We enjoy a wide variety of music, from traditional hymns to gospel, Dixieland to classical.

We welcome singers and bell players — regardless of skill. All you need is a basic understanding of how to read music.

If you want to meet some great folks and create wonderful music, come join us. We rehearse Thursday evenings at 6:30 (7:30 for bells) at the church — 525 N. Madison Avenue in Old Town Greenwood.

For more information, check our web-site: greenwoodumcmusic.org or call Director Drew Worthen at 317-525-8333.

NOTICE OF ADOPTION

Notice is hereby given to taxpayers of Beech Grove City Schools that the proper officers of Beech Grove City School Board have established a Capital Projects Fund and adopted a plan under IC 20-46-6-5.

Ten or more taxpayers in the school corporation who will be affected by the plan may file a petition with the County Auditor of Marion County, not later than ten (10) days after the publication of this notice, setting forth their objections to the plan. Upon filing of the petition, the County Auditor shall immediately certify the same to the Department of Local Government Finance. The Department will then fix a date and conduct a public hearing on the plan before issuing its approval, disapproval, or modification thereof.
