St. John's UCC hosts free seminar, Planning for Tomorrow

On Sept. 13, 12:30 p.m. St. John's United Church of Christ will host a free seminar, titled Planning For Tomorrow. The public is encouraged to attend. The speaker will be Aline Anderson, an expert on the Southside. Anderson will discuss wills, estates, and trusts. Having earned her law degree from IU, Anderson has practiced law for more than 30 years, concentrating in the area of probate law. She is the author and publisher of "Anderson's Will and Trust Manual for Indiana. Come and learn more about these important topics: wills, estates, trusts, estate planning, living wills, power of attorney, guardianship, and estate administration. St. John's is located at the southwest corner of Southport Road and U.S. 31 South. Call the church office at (317) 881-2353 for more information.

G.H. Herrmann Funeral Homes receives national recognition

G.H. Herrmann Funeral Homes has been honored by the National Funeral Directors Association (NFDA) with the 2015 Pursuit of Excellence Award. Only 155 firms from around the world received this recognition. Pursuit of Excellence Award recipients adhere to the highest ethical and professional standards and providing unsurpassed service to families and communities. To earn an NFDA Pursuit of Excellence Award, a participating funeral home must meet or exceed business standards set forth by the program and demonstrate proficiency in key areas of funeral service, such as compliance with state and federal regulations; providing ongoing education and professional development opportunities for staff; offering outstanding programs and resources to bereaved families; maintaining an active level of involvement within the community; participating and actively serving in the funeral service profession; and promoting funeral home services through a variety of marketing, advertising and public relations programs. Participants are also required to adhere to a Pledge of Ethical Practices. For more information, visit nfda.org/pursuitofexcellence.

AWARD-WINNING EMERGENCY CARE

Lighting the way

Franciscan St. Francis Health's Indianapolis emergency department was named a recipient of the Lantern Award by the Emergency Nurses Association. This award recognizes a select group of emergency departments demonstrating exceptional practice and innovative performance in the core areas of leadership, practice, education, advocacy and research.

We're proud to be lighting the way with one of the most streamlined processes in the country. Known as NowER, it significantly reduces wait time to be seen by a medical provider in the emergency room.

Chuck Roach: Reflections on recent tragedies

Nothing rocks society on a local or national basis like senseless killings, especially when young people are the victims. We experienced this on several occasions in recent days. I find that my personal reaction is both numbing and depressing on one end, but capable of spurring insightful reflection on the other... Read more online!

Death: Will we know when it is our time to go?

HAUNTS & JAUNTS

By Rick Hinton

Death will claim us all at some point. It will be the end of one journey and the start of the next. We may have regrets over a seemingly life-less-lived, or have none at all. Each person is different. Some may pass quickly and unexpectedly, while others become hostages to their bodies as they linger with illnesses that deteriorate the person they once were. Dementia and Alzheimer's bring forth a new personality that is ultimately devastating in the end. Those lucid moments become few and far between, but they do come.

Southsider Jerry Bennett dealt with the decline of his wife Winona's health. As her home caregiver he ultimately had to place her in several facilities beginning in 2012. Winona, a long time advocate of nursing home reform, where residents are left in the shadows rather than being stimulated and challenged, had in the past put together an army of volunteers and organizations to support this endeavor. Now, however, she became a resident herself, and with a mind-set as Jerry states, "one to give care and not to receive it." For the next three years Jerry was a daily fixture at his wife's bedside. There were good days and days not so good. And then a few months back, those lucid moments transcending any illness, acknowledging a historical passage as husband and wife and reinforcing what one has stated—"Jerry and Winona were the cutest couple." On that day Winona simply stated to her husband, "You know, being married to you has been fun." Jerry will always treasure that statement. On July 10, 2015 at 6:26 p.m. Winona passed on.

When it is our time...we know! On that evening Jerry was preparing for his evening walk when Winona told him, "Don't leave right now, stay with me just a little longer." He did. Winona knew it was her time. Shortly thereafter she was gone. My own mother, though unconscious, waited for my brother to arrive from Florida.

A couple of weeks after Winona's passing Jerry had a dream. They say that dreams are answers to questions yet asked. In the dream was Winona and references to not only their life together, but also her recent illness and decline. Jerry feels it was a personal message: there would be no more nursing home, wheelchair, no restrictions.... She was free of all that and beginning her next journey. Jerry states, "She looked good," and of the finality of it all—"She was there to let me go."

face to face

Q: If you could deliver one message to someone in the past, what would be your message and who would you deliver it to?

"I would deliver it to Lyndon Johnson or Richard Nixon in reference to the Vietnam War. They could settle things a little more diplomatically versus sending troops over. Our country is the greatest country on the planet and I think they could diplomatically solve the issues versus sending troops in and I think it would have affected the entire rest of the world and how things have moved forward."

Mike Swinson of Perry Township

"Adolf Hitler. The message would be: this will not work out for you. And Eva Braun. This will not work out for you either."

Greta Abella of Perry Township

"My mother. I would tell her to have the surgery. She had a tumor on the back of her neck and she chose to die. I was only eleven."

Julie Losey of Franklin Township

"I would go to the flight training school that trained those guys who flew those airplanes into the World Trade Center and I would tell the flight training guy, 'wait a minute, why are these guys who are not United States citizens learning how to fly airplanes?' In other words, I would hope to catch that group red-handed as to what their ideas were so we could stop that nightmare that happened on 9/11 of 2001."

READERS' WRITES

Beech Grove paving continues

Much needed infrastructure work is continuing in our beautiful city. The Bellefontaine Street paving project has been completed and we can all agree that it is a major improvement.

As you may have noticed Bethel Avenue from Emerson Avenue to Sherman Drive is being repaved as well as Southern Avenue from Bethel Avenue to Churchman Avenue. What a blessing this is for our city.

The Bethel Avenue and Southern Avenue re-paving project is being paid for by the City of Indianapolis.

Special thanks goes to Frank Mascari who is our City County Councilman for District 20. Frank's good work is the reason that Bethel Avenue and Southern Avenue are being re-paved.

Recently sewer improvements occurred on St. Francis Drive, Ticen Court and Britton Drive. Soon we will be starting yet another sanitary sewer improvement program in five different areas of our city as lining begins. This will further help us in minimizing storm and ground water from entering the sanitary sewer system along with the penetration of tree roots; proud of the work being done.

Coffman announces run for Beech Grove clerk-treasurer

As I have decided to run for the position of Clerk Treasurer for Beech Grove, I'd like to introduce myself and provide some information regarding the position I'm seeking. I was raised on Summer Avenue, graduated from Roncalli High School, and earned my bachelor's degree from Indiana University. My family owns and operates Eckstein Shoe Store on Main Street.

Since I started knocking on doors a few weeks ago, I've found that many people are unsure what the Clerk Treasurer does. Open, efficient and honest communication is important to me — it's essential that voters know who they're choosing. In the interest of getting us all on the same page, based on Indiana state code, here are some duties of the Clerk Treasurer:

It is the responsibility of the Clerk Treasurer to collect fines and fees as ordered by the governing body as addressed in IC 36-4-10-4.5. The money collected has been set forth by ordinance by the Common Council, and the Clerk Treasurer has no say on what is collected or mandated by the governing body. Therefore, the money in city bank accounts comes from fines, fees and taxes that you as a citizen have paid, and the Clerk Treasurer must efficiently distribute them.

Another task for the Clerk Treasurer, per IC 36-4-6-9, is to act as recording secretary and record keeper for the City Council and Board of Works. If meeting minutes are amended by the City Council or Board of Works, it is the job of the Clerk Treasurer to make the corrections public record.

It is also the responsibility of the Clerk Treasurer to work with the Mayor, the Council, and all city department heads to ensure the city successfully serves its citizens. This includes employing the best spending practices and uses for your taxpayer money.

When people work together, great things can happen. Let's work together to sustain our unique sense of community.

Jim Coffman, Candidate for Beech Grove Clerk Treasurer

Adoption Special to help Indianapolis animal shelter

Indianapolis Animal Care & Control (IACC) is nearing capacity in its main adoption kennel for the second time this month. To help, the Friends of Indianapolis Animal Care & Control will sponsor another adoption special to help move adoptable pets out and into their forever homes more quickly. Adoption fees have been reduced to $30 for all dogs on the main adoption floor from now through Sept. 5. This does not apply to the small dog/puppy room. The adoption fee for those dogs is $60. Cat and kitten adoption fees are just $30 at the shelter. All adoption fees include spay/neuter, microchip, applicable vaccines and a heartworm test for dogs or a feline leukemia/FIV test for cats. To donate to the Friends of Indianapolis Animal Care & Control Foundation visit friendsofindyacc.org/. The shelter is open for adoptions from 10 a.m. – 8 p.m. Mondays and 10 a.m. – 6 p.m. Tuesday – Saturday. The shelter is closed on Sundays and city holidays. For information on adopting from, or fostering for, IACC visit indy.gov/accd.

Providing access
25+ years

Congratulations, Access Mobility, Inc.! This month John Ausbrooks and the company he has grown for a quarter of a century is celebrating 25 years of helping Southsiders stay active and independent. The family-owned business sells home health equipment, mobility and accessibility products and vehicle modifications. We love hearing local business success stories, and this certainly fits that description.

*Congratulations,
Access Mobility, Inc.!*

Ausbrooks, owner and president of Access Mobility, said he and four others started a company in 1990 called Accessibility Products at the current 4855 S. Emerson Ave. location. Ausbrooks had previously worked from 1981 to 1990 for Lift Chairs Inc. which was started by Raymond and Margie Jewell in 1971.

"It is hard to believe today is the 25th anniversary for Access Mobility," John wrote in an email. "It has been a long and winding road to get to this milestone. Twists and turns, ups and downs sprinkled with broad ear-to-ear smiles and some serious sorrows. Still through it all I would not change a thing. We have been blessed in many ways and it always seemed that just the right people crossed our path at just the right time..."

He continued, "I am pleased to say our future looks bright. (My son) Alan is poised to take the helm in the not too distant future and with our talented staff I know we will prosper in the next 25 years. So today I will offer my prayers of thanks for the past, for today, for the future and for every person that has been a part of the journey."

Cheers to that!

Miracle Mile Parade a
Labor Day staple

There's nothing like a Labor Day parade and southsiders will get a chance to attend a good one when the 2015 Gateway Fest & Labor Day Miracle Mile Parade gets under way this Saturday (Sept. 5). The parade begins at 11 a.m. but there are many more festivities throughout the day. Thanks to the many volunteers that has made this a Labor Day weekend staple the past several years. "DOESN'T APPLY TO US, ONLY TO YOU" – We're all well aware that California has debilitating drought. The state legislature has ordered citizens to curb use of water or pay exorbitant fines. So, then, it was absolutely no surprise to us that five members of the Los Angeles Board of Supervisors continue to frequently wash their vehicles.

At. Taxpayer. Expense. One among them was said to be washing his car three times a week, the others one to two times. (We're lucky if we get ours done once a month!) Local L.A. media sought comment from the officials. Predictably, there was none.

WHATEVER THEY'RE DRINKING... NO, THANKS! – Staff and students in the University of Tennessee Office for Diversity and Inclusion want people to think beyond the he/she pronouns and are encouraging use of gender-neutral pronouns such as xe, xym and xyr. Paul Cloyd

Beech Grove firefighter/paramedic finds a love for serving in his hometown community

BEHIND the BADGE

Life is easier when you love what you do – and Paul Cloyd always knew he had a passion for pursuing a career as a firefighter. More than nine years have passed since he hired into the career, and he says he still loves going to work and now serving the community in which he grew up.

“This is one of those jobs that you can get up and have a smile on your face every day coming in,” Cloyd said. “I go to a place to be with my family... I know that bell could go off and I get to go to work because I know that bell can go off and I can touch someone’s life in a significant way. Every day is different.”

Cloyd, who now resides in Bargersville, was hired to the Beech Grove Fire Department on Jan. 1, 2013. He had started preparing for fire service while still in high school, going to Central Nine Career Center in Greenwood. After graduating from Beech Grove High School in 2008, he worked seven years part-time with the White River Township Fire Department and with Bargersville Fire. He said that he was given the opportunity to attend paramedic school through WRTFD, and was hired to the Beech Grove

Department near the end of that training.

“This has been such a big influence in my life, and shaped me as a person in so many ways,” Cloyd said. “It’s hard to imagine yourself without it.”

What was your inspiration to become a firefighter?

What inspired me the most, I had a series of role models growing up. I was mostly attracted to the character of the job. What inspired me to this profession is the ability to help people, the ability to work in my community with people that I grew up with... I get to see people at their worst, and I get to see people at their best, that dichotomy. Every day I come in and get to work with some of the best people on the planet. I get to be the person they call to touch someone’s lives for a moment. That’s the biggest inspiration for me. I’m in love with the job.

What has been one of your most gratifying moments on the job?

The most gratifying part of the job is to be able to go on calls and see a face that I know. They know it’s not a stranger anymore coming into his house; it’s a friendly face, someone that he can trust. That’s a very big deal. You don’t always have that connection to the community in an area you never lived.

What aspect of the job do you find most challenging?

We work 24 hours on, 48 hours off. That schedule is different from your typical work schedule. Someone has to be on that truck. I’ve missed weddings, birthdays, tons of life things because every three days I’m here. The hardest part is sacrificing the time with family and friends. You miss a lot, but it’s a fair trade because you gain a lot, too.

What do you enjoy doing in your off-time?

I’m a big fitness guy so I do like to work out a lot. I like to do those adventure races, mud races, etc. I have a lot of hobbies. Right now, I have been brewing my own beer at home. It’s a nice stress reliever to sit down with my dog, cook beer for a couple of hours then give it out to my family and friends.

What are your future goals, professionally or personally?

Professionally, I like everyone says, eventually I’d like to be a company officer. It’s something that I don’t plan on doing for a long time. It’s a big step. Professionally, short term, I’m a union member and I’ve been working within the union as an officer. I’m trying to learn as much about how things work and continue to serve for my own people.

What would you have done if you hadn’t of become a firefighter?

I first started in the fire service as a cadet when I was a sophomore in high school. I think I would have gone into helping animals, but I can’t imagine trying to do that now.

Tony Origer is out on the Greenwood trails, likely bicycling, at least weekly. When he and his wife, Brenda, moved to Greenwood in 2000, they enjoyed taking their three daughters out on the trails. Wanting to show their appreciation for the amenity and to help it grow, they started Greenwood Trail Trek, a 5k run/walk approaching its ninth event on Sept. 12.

"It's increased the awareness of the trail system," Tony said. "We're seeing more people using it on a daily basis. The city has done a great job of expanding their parks department with the new water park facility and the trail system at Freedom Park. The routes to get to and from the parks are all improving."

Tony and Brenda moved to Greenwood from Iowa in 2000 so that Tony could start his own chiropractic practice, Performance Chiropractic and Sports Rehab. He said that they both wanted to stay in a place with Midwest values, and Greenwood still had that small town feel. As they got more involved in the community, and being a family that likes to stay active, he said that they saw a way to give back.

"About nine years ago, my kids were smaller and we wanted to be able to take them on a bike ride in a safe setting, not worry about cars," Tony said. "We like to hike, cycle and do things with them. At that time, the city was looking to expand their trail system. I was 100 percent in favor of developing a trail system in the city. It's a nice amenity for the city to be able to offer."

Tony and Brenda started Trail Trek more than eight years ago to not only increase awareness about the trail system in Greenwood, but to fundraise for additional amenities along the trail. It has since become a city event.

"Each year it's continually grown," Tony said. "We're raising more and more funds each year and get more and more involvement. Last year we had 400 people and we hope to double that this year."

This year's run/walk is Sept. 12, beginning 8 a.m. at Craig Park. Music will play at the start with a flag from the Greenwood Fire Department flying over the road. The timed race goes through Old Town Greenwood, the Smith Valley corridor and back to Craig Park. A celebration with food, drinks and music will take place at the Greenwood Community Center where prizes will be given for each age division and overall winners.

Last year, Trail Trek added a school challenge to benefit schools within the Greenwood parks area. The school with the highest percentage of participants wins money for physical education programming. Last year Westwood Elementary won $1,000 which they used to install Frisbee golf at the school. Our Lady of Greenwood came in second, using the $500 prize to update its softball equipment.

"The community has rallied behind this pretty well," Tony said. "The school challenge has made it fun in getting the kids involved. That is the most fun part about it. It's a family event in the sense that you see a lot of moms, dads, kids doing it."

Tony merged his private practice in January 2015, joining Methodist Sports Medicine. The business is a partner for Trail Trek.

"We encourage our patients to be out, be active, you're going to heal quicker, you're going to do better," Tony said. "A good walking program is always good for the spine related injuries that I specialize in. Orthopedically, we like people to be active."

A committee of approximately 10 people helps organize the annual event with support from the fire, police and parks departments. Tony said it's been gratifying to see the event grow and watch as more people become active in it.

"It's just a fun event," he said. "You're supporting a community amenity that supports the city of Greenwood. It's neat that the Greenwood community businesses pull together to support an event like this."

Getting to know Tony...

- I've always had a strong interest in sports and athletics. My undergrad degree was in athletic training from Loras College in Iowa. I played college football there. I went to chiropractic school at Palmer College in Davenport, Iowa. My main focus is conservative orthopedic care of the spine and extremity.
- I'm active with coaching youth sports in track and basketball at Our Lady of Greenwood.
- I enjoy golf.
- I just enjoy being outdoors, hiking and staying active. My kids are pretty active in sports as well.

Homeownership resources expanded to Southside

The Indianapolis Neighborhood Housing Partnership (INHP) will open INHP South, a satellite branch adjacent to the University of Indianapolis campus on 1414 National Ave., Indianapolis. This strategic expansion will provide Southside residents more access to INHP's homeownership resources that help families become and remain long-term, sustainable homeowners.

"Through the combined financial support of J.P. Morgan Chase Central Indiana, Nina Mason Pulliam Charitable Trust, Fifth Third Bank and others, we are fully prepared to support the needs of working families and neighborhoods in southern Marion County," said Moira Carlstedt, president of INHP.

Nearly $400,000 has been invested in INHP's Southside expansion. Gifts from J.P. Morgan Chase Central Indiana, Nina Mason Pulliam Charitable Trust and Fifth Third Bank provided operational support for the expansion. INHP also received funding from First Financial Bank and the Nicholas H. Noyes, Jr. Memorial Foundation along with in-kind support from University of Indianapolis and Regions Bank. In addition to opening this office, INHP is focusing resources in southern Marion County through participation in other neighborhood development initiatives, such as Big Car and Riley Area Development Corporation's project to refurbish vacant and neglected properties in Garfield Park.

Southport HS' gravitational investigation

During the early part of the seventeenth century, Galileo examined the concept of acceleration and free falling bodies; however, he was limited by his timing device. So, Galileo slowed down "gravity" by using an incline plane to measure "falling bodies". Southport High School AP Physics C students performed Galileo's Incline Plane Experiment in the physics lab by experimentally measuring the acceleration of a cart rolling down an incline at different angles of the ramp. After collecting and analyzing their data, students compared their Galileo value of gravity with the accepted value of gravity, 9.81 m/s^2 . Galileo and the AP students were successful in their investigation!

Roncalli students named to Anna's House Board of Youth Directors

Nine Roncalli High School students were named to the Anna's Celebration of Life Foundation Southside Board of Youth Directors. This group helps transform the lives of Indiana children with special needs by raising funds that allow the purchase of equipment that improves their quality of life. Last year's board hosted the Midnight Mile event at Roncalli High School that raised more than $13,000 for Indiana kids with special needs. The 2015-16 Board of Youth Directors are Maddie Faust, Shelby Buckley, Annie Davey, Abby Gervasio, Margaret McCloskey, Eli Dougherty, Alex Martinez, Chad Ransburg and Jacob Allard (Chairperson).

Roncalli eats more chicken

Roncalli High School was a winner on and off the football field on Friday, Aug. 28. The Rebels defeated Franklin Central on the gridiron 34-7 and took home the traveling Chick-fil-A Challenge trophy. Each year the Chick-fil-A on Southport Road pits Roncalli vs. Franklin Central to see which school can eat more chicken in one week, with each school receiving 20 percent of the proceeds. Chick-fil-A presented Roncalli with $5,147.57 at half-time of the football game along with the trophy.

Cheers and peace

Fountain Square Chreece hip-hop festival celebrates positivity, equality and diversity

June stands center stage with a DJ to her back of Chreece attendees in front of her. Purple paint and accentuate her face, which is painted white, closely resembling a Día de Muertos in her dirty blonde hair. June is one of 60 artists who participated in last Saturday's Chreece festival in Fountain Square, the annual festival dedicated to hip-hop in Indianapolis' history, a word that combines the words "cheers" and "peace." June is the brainchild of local emcee Oreó Jones. Jones envisioned creating a festival which celebrates hip-hop culture by bringing its many, and its contributors together in a positive way. June is one of the female emcees who participated in Chreece. Jones asked her to be a part of the festival she envisioned.

"I've always had positive attitudes, the equality and diversity of it, it's why I had to be a part of it," June said. "I want to see white artists, black artists, female rappers and male rappers and DJs, there's no judgement, just celebration of our culture and art form that we love." "Indianapolis has a vibrant hip-hop scene, and Chreece is the city that."

June is part of an artist management group, 237 World Wide, who helps mold artists' careers. As an emcee she raps about equality, daily life, extravagant life styles and social issues among many other things.

"What's great about Chreece is that every artist comes from a different background," June said. "You have artist talking about all walks of life, speaking truths about lives people may never live. And that's important if nothing more than an education tool as well as a form of cathartic expression."

Chreece also served as a fundraiser for local non-profit Musical Family Tree (MFT), which aims to create a platform to support Indiana artists as well as a place to promote Indiana music. Chreece sold 950 tickets at $10 a ticket, money that will go to help the non-for-profits future endeavors.

"I'm incredibly excited about how Chreece has turned out," Jones said. "It took a lot of help and people to make this happen, but it was a chance to showcase our hip-hop community. To gather artists and [hip-hop fans] in a way that conveys its positive message and support MFT, I'm very proud of that."

Beech Grove City Schools' speech-language pathologist wants to help more preschoolers develop language skills

FEATURE

By Nicole Davis

Does your child have trouble speaking or pronouncing certain sounds? Speech therapy can and does help preschool age students start kindergarten with a higher understanding of speech and language, says Joey Box, Beech Grove City Schools speech-language pathologist.

While Beech Grove's preschool speech therapy program has been around for a while, Box said it seems to be underutilized in the district, and early intervention is the key to continued educational success.

"If a child can't speak right, it can inhibit what they can learn," Box said. "They can have that vocabulary inside of them but if they can't say it, it's almost like they don't have that vocabulary. We want to get these kiddos on the right track from the very beginning so they can be as academically enhanced as they can be in kindergarten."

Box holds the preschool therapy twice a week, on Wednesdays and Fridays. He also works at South Grove Intermediate with fourth, fifth and sixth graders. For the preschoolers, the day will start out with a book. The kids get a chance to play with Play-Doh, bubbles, board games and more, all while using language skills.

It worked for Box, who took speech therapy as a young child, later going to Ball State University to earn his masters degree in speech language and pathology.

"I remember it really well," Box said. "The good thing is, we do a lot of fun games in speech therapy. I don't really remember learning sounds; I just remember playing. We usually do a nice job of infusing the therapy into a fun game, so the kids want to hang out with us. They are playing but they learn a lot of fun skills at the same time."

Currently Box is working with eight children at the preschool level, and would like to have closer to 20. The program is fully-funded and offered free of charge. Beech Grove schools goes through Southside Special Services, which will evaluate the children and send their information back to the school. Each Southside public school district offers this program. Box said they prefer for Beech Grove parents to contact the school first, calling Chris McGown, cmcgown@bgcs.k12.in.us.

AROUND TOWN

Jeff Small publishes 'The Pilgrim Way'

Roncalli High School math teacher Jeff Small published his first book entitled, "The Pilgrim Way." The 100-page e-book, categorized in the Religion and Spirituality section, is available through iBooks and Barnes and Noble.

"Since the beginning of time, man has constantly pondered and searched for the answers to the great questions of life: Who am I? What am I worth? Where did I come from? Why am I here? When I die, where am I going?" "The Pilgrim Way" is not only an approach to these questions, but a way of life," said Small.

Bountiful summer stone fruits

NUTRITION

By Chef Wendell Fowler

Nothing completes a hot summer day like the maddeningly, luscious juice of a ripe peach dripping down your chin. Single seed peaches, nectarines, plums, apricots, cherries, mangos and elderberries are members of the Stone fruit family, also known as drupe.

Peaches have potassium, which can help your muscles work properly and lower blood pressure. Vibrant orange color of Beta-carotene, Vitamin A, helps maintain eyesight, skin membranes and immune function. Stone fruits are excellent sources of niacin and vitamin B3.

Peaches and nectarines are nutritional apothecaries brimming with potassium that helps muscles work properly while lowering blood pressure. Two small peaches have slightly more potassium than a medium banana. Nectarines contain up to five times more anti-oxidants than previously believed since many antioxidants are only unlocked during the digestion process. Nectarines and peaches can keep you regular – don't peel them since the skin has all the fiber.

A cup of plums contains one-quarter of your daily vitamin C that helps your temple form collagen, the main protein of connective tissue in bones, cartilage, muscle and blood vessels. Seminars in Preventive and Alternative Medicine analyzed 100 studies over 10 years revealing the plethora of vitamin C's healthy deliciousness. Plums contain vitamin K, which helps maintain strong bones.

Low vitamin K levels are associated with increased incidence of osteoarthritis. Vitamin K helps maintain strong bones.

Apricots help maintain eyesight and their powerful yellow antioxidants protect your temple from cancerous free radical activity, damage to cells and DNA. Apricots help maintain eyesight.

Maroon cancer-fighting cherries contain cyanidin have one of nature's most powerful anti-inflammatories. I always end up eating the entire bag.

At the Farmers' Market, select summer's vibrantly nutritious orbs that have the richest color, if not the soft "give" of fully ripened fruit, and then take them home. If they're hard, let them soften at room temperature for a few days, wash them well and have at it. With a few obvious exceptions, don't peel fruit. The skin of the bulk of fruits provides fiber that helps prevent the growling logjam of constipation.

Fuel your temple with fruit from the trees as God intended. Add slices of stone fruit to salads, plain yoghurt, granola, smoothies or dessert. You can grill most stone fruits on the barbeque to be served as a dessert or accompaniment to fish. Eating healthy will add a new depth to life you've never experienced before.

Have people become objects?

GRAMMAR GUY

By Jordan Fischer

Question: "Dear Grammar Guy, over the past few years I have increasingly heard the word 'that' used in place of the word 'who.' Example: 'The people that work for us.' I even hear this on national radio programs. What do you think of that?" – (Anne Eisinger)

Answer: Thanks for the question, Anne. It's a subject I've touched on before, but definitely one worth revisiting.

You are right to cringe when the word "that" is used to refer to a person (or animal ... my cat would be the first to tell you she's no "that"). When talking about a person, use the relative pronoun "who" or the object pronoun "whom," if appropriate.

The word "that" gets a lot of hate in writerly circles because it tends to be unnecessary. Consider what, if anything, is lost between, "He said that it would be alright," and, "He said it would be alright."

That being said (see what I did there?), there are occasions when "that" is both appropriate and necessary. For your convenience, here are three simple rules to help clear things up:

1. Use "who" when talking about people.
2. Use "that" when talking about objects or groups and introducing an essential clause.
3. Use "which" when talking about objects or groups and introducing a non-essential clause.

I've previously done a series of columns about clauses, so if you need a refresher course on the difference between an essential and non-essential clause, you can brush up with an old Grammar Guy at www.currentincarmel.com.

As always, I wouldn't be able to do what I do without ongoing support and questions from readers, so please keep doing what you do and sending them my way!

We Are Your Friends... highly stylized with little substance

MOVIE REVIEW

By Adam Staten

Anyone who has been to the theater during the summer knows that's the time Hollywood's blockbusters begin appearing. And with the second Avenger's film, Jurassic World, Ant-man, and the latest Mission Impossible, this summer was no exception. While this summer's box office could be described as being dominated by blockbusters, films for the kids also did quite well. Both Minions and Pixar's Inside Out have grossed more than $300 million. Looking closer, another less obvious trend emerges from this summer's lineup of films: music-centered movies. Pitch Perfect 2 came out in mid-May, Straight Out of Compton and Ricki and the Flash hit theaters in August, and now, We Are Your Friends.

We Are Your Friends is the tale of four friends who all yearn for more out of life. Each has big ambitions in life, but none of them has any idea how to get there. They spend their days endlessly talking about their big dreams and their nights hanging out in clubs.

One of them, Cole (Zac Efron), aspires to be a world-famous DJ. In order to showcase his skills, Cole spends time playing his tracks at a local club for free. By happenstance, Cole runs into a famous DJ, who takes Cole under his wing. What Cole finds is that maybe what he thought he wanted is not what he needed.

We Are Your Friends is a story that has been done to death. The only new elements this time is the countless extended party sequences with techno music sprinkled throughout and a character who wants to be a DJ. The characters in the film don't help the film out much either. Most are just downright unlikable, with the only exception being Efron's character. They are selfish, self-obsessed people with a constant "woe is me" attitude that wears on the nerves.

As much as the characters in the movie are drifting and wandering, the direction is even more lost. It wants and attempts to be so much more, but it just isn't happening. It moves from subplot to subplot, never quite finishing any of them. The movie also throws all these inventive slow motion sequences and other highly stylistic techniques, but it just doesn't add any life to this dull and ordinary story.

Try as Efron might, his somewhat enjoyable performance is not enough to make We Are Your Friends one to see. 2 out of 5.

Adam Staten lives in Perry Township and is a movie buff. Staten graduated from University of Southern Indiana with a degree in Communication Studies.

"...the direction is even more lost. It wants and attempts to be so much more, but it just isn't happening. It moves from subplot to subplot, never quite finishing any of them."

AN OPTION

The Dugout Bar

The scoop: The oldest continuously operating bar in the Fountain Square/Fletcher Place neighborhoods, The Dugout has been in operation since 1954. With a nostalgic sports bar aesthetic, The Dugout Bar is more than a historic bar, it's a place to get great bar food options. The tenderloin is coveted at The Dugout Bar, but head chef Todd Howard has tried to incorporate his background in seafood into the menu as well. One creation in particular, his Korean tacos, are a must try if you want to step outside the American bar food realm. The Dugout Bar is historic and offers a place to eat great food and get a drink if you feel so inclined.

Unique Aspect: Original owner was professional fastball pitcher Jack Wagner

Décor: Sports Bar

People who frequent: Business people, locals, sports fans

Type of Food: bar food

Weekly Devotion

"For God is not the author of confusion, but of peace, as in all churches of the saints." ~ I Corinthians 14:33

By Paul Kirby

I think that most of us who are Christians today are being challenged to keep our heads in the face of a very challenging time. How do we respond to the new world we are faced with today? One cannot listen to the news or read a newspaper or news magazine without realizing that the world around us has changed and is even more confusing than at any other time in post Christ history.

When God is in it, the message is going to be straight to the point. We can look straight into the faces of our congregations and tell it like the Bible tells it. We will never do that in a spiteful and hateful spirit but in the Spirit that the Bible was initially given in. Since the Holy Spirit is the inspiration of Scripture it is by His inspiration that we should always speak about it. God is love but He also is Judge. His judgments are holy and righteous and without fault. When He says that an action on our part is sin, He means it.

My years as a pastor and as a speaker for Christ are about finished. I am 74 years of age and by this time most pastors and evangelists have retired and taken to the golf course or other pursuits. All I have ever wanted to do is to preach the gospel of Jesus Christ. All I have ever wanted to know is the Word of God for it is the word that leads us away from and out of the confusion that exists in the world today. The confusion that exists in the world should never exist in the church and if it ever does, you can be sure that God is not the Author of it.

God bless and go and have a great day.

Paul A. Kirby is the pastor at the Church of God at 3939 S. Emerson Ave.
