Roncalli spring athletics enjoys high level of success

Roncalli High School's softball, girls tennis and boys volleyball teams, have all won championships at various levels so far through the month of May. Most recently, the softball team won their 10th regional title (and third consecutive win) after a 9-1 defeat against the Avon Orioles, while the boys volleyball team won its second consecutive state championship (and third overall) by defeating Perry Meridian and Fishers high schools.

Southside construction update

465 Eastbound officially closed until June 21, Indy announces infrastructure funding projects

Compiled by Nicole Davis

With the I-69 project still in full swing and many more projects to come, we're offering a weekly update during the 2023 construction season! As always, be mindful of our construction workers and drive safely!

· Indianapolis: Mayor Joe Hogsett announced the 12 projects selected for funding through the 2023 Indianapolis Neighborhood Infrastructure Partnership (INIP), a program of the Indianapolis Department of Public Works (Indy DPW). The projects chosen for 2023 total nearly $4 million in investment in Indianapolis neighborhoods, with more than $1.8 million coming from Indy DPW funds. Through the Indy Neighborhood Infrastructure Partnership, Indy DPW is able to double the effective value of tax dollars, increase the number of neighborhood and community-based projects and jump-start development that would not otherwise be possible. 2023 Indy Neighborhood Infrastructure Partnership Projects include on the Southside: Ridge Hill Trails HOA -Resurfacing throughout this neighborhood on the far Southside will improve the quality of life for residents. Town of Homecroft - Madison Drive will be resurfaced and repaired at Loretta Drive, making the area more accessible for residents.

• I-69 Johnson County: Mullinix Road East of S.R. 37 is still closed between Smith Valley Road and Olive Branch Road. The roundabout construction is expected to be complete in late July/early August in time for school openings.

• 465: I-465 Eastbound officially closed to traffic last weekend and will remain closed through June 21. The road is closed between I-65 and I-70, including ramps at Harding Street/State Road 37 and U.S. 31/East Street to I-465 Eastbound. Anticipate some congestion at closure points and on the detour route. Westbound I-465 is open to traffic

No bully left behind

Lucci's House Bully Rescue helps to prevent misconceptions about bully breeds

"Every dog has a story, and it's my job

to listen to it"

— Laurie Collins, founder and director of Lucci's

House Bully Rescue

By Sherri Coner

Everybody loves Pie.

And that's no surprise.

She's a feisty 4-year-old pit bull who never meets a stranger and never allows a spinal injury to slow her down.

With her body halfway off a pillow, Pie waited for foster grandma Deb Pahl to notice.

"You need some help there, baby? You're all tangled up," she said. Pahl then repositioned the dog's lifeless back legs and smiled.

"Lots of people know Pie," Pahl, a Southsider, said.

The Life of Pie

Initially surrendered as a healthy puppy to Indianapolis Animal Care Services (IACS), Pie had no history, no birthdate, not even a name.

Staff and volunteers declared 3-14, the first three digits of pi, as her birthday.

Strangely enough, the unusual name perfectly fits her personality.

Twice, Pie was rehomed.

When Marion County Animal Control officers found her as an injured stray in 2019, Pie was returned to IACS.

No one knew how or when Pie suffered the spinal injury or how long she had dragged her lifeless back legs around on concrete, surviving on Indianapolis streets.

Rescued

To save the dog's life, Southsider Laurie Collins, founder and director of Lucci's House Bully Rescue, secured an emergency foster care placement for Pie.

In January of this year, Pahl then became Pie's foster grandma.

An overflowing toy box and a dog-shaped pillow and fresh flannel blankets in one of several dog beds hint that Pie is the queen canine at Pahl's home.

Fate might also be part of this story about a retired nurse and a partially paralyzed pit bull.

After more than 30 years as a registered nurse, Pahl was an empty nester forced into early retirement by medical issues.

Since she hadn't planned to retire early, she had no idea how to fill her days, especially when her primary goal had always been to "be purposeful in life."

First, Pahl became an IACS volunteer, showering attention-starved canines with exercise and love. Then she started fostering with Lucci's House Bully Rescue.

Collins counts on volunteers with big hearts to get to know the dog instead of judging the breed.

"They are the most misunderstood and mistreated breed in this country," Collins said.

Love for Lucci

Her passion for pit bulls began when she and her husband adopted Lucci, a nearly 5-month-old pit bull.

"Lucci died in my arms in the parking lot of a vet office while my husband and I did CPR on him," Collins said. "He was killed at an emergency vet because of his breed."

After losing Lucci, Collins said her eyes were opened to countless times when pit bulls are tortured, abused and maimed.

She opened the rescue in honor of Lucci.

"Every dog has a story, and it's my job to listen to it," Collins said. Perry Township resident Mandi Neukam is one of many dog lovers who paid attention to Collins' voice. When Neukam and her family relocated more than two years ago from a condominium to a home, she and her husband adopted 5-yearold Izzie, a pit bull from Lucci's House.

One spoiled Pittie

As a happy girl who adores constant attention, Izzie's transition from foster family to her forever family was trouble-free.

"That girl loves walks and rides in the car," Neukam said. "She also has to be wrapped up like a burrito before she goes to bed. She's a diva."

Because Neukam had never owned a pit bull, she spoke at length with Izzie's foster family before adopting her. "These dogs are not what is said about the breed," Neukam said. "Izzie loves to be hand fed. She loves to be brushed. This breed definitely has my heart."

Since opening the rescue in January 2020, Collins says that donations from pit bull lovers help to offset the cost of dog food, vet visits and many other expenses.

Love and attention heal broken hearts

Volunteers who foster these dogs, even the ones with broken spirits and fear, do wonders with them. Love and attention definitely heal canine hearts just like human ones.

To date, Lucci's House has provided foster care and adoption for more than 80 pit bulls.

Community education about the breed is still lacking, Collins said.

She and all Lucci's volunteers take every opportunity to educate the public.

Misinformation paints a dangerous picture of pit bulls, but aggressiveness is not a breed trait for any dog, Collins said.

According to statistics, unneutered dogs of any breed are most likely to exhibit aggression toward other animals or people.

Doing her part to show the public that all bullies are certainly not bad, Neukam often takes Izzie for car rides.

"She is the most loveable, sweet, kind dog," Neukam said. "I love her."

Distinction places Franciscan Health in top 5% nationwide

America's Best Hospitals - Franciscan Health Indianapolis announced that it is one of America's 250 Best Hospitals for 2023, according to new research released by Healthgrades, the leading marketplace connecting doctors and patients. This achievement puts Franciscan Health Indianapolis in the top 5% of hospitals nationwide for overall clinical performance across the most common conditions and procedures. Franciscan Health Indianapolis is the only hospital in Indiana to receive this distinction in 2023. Healthgrades evaluated patient mortality and complication rates for 31 of the most common conditions and procedures at nearly 4,500 hospitals across the country to identify the top-performing hospitals. In addition to being recognized as One of America's 250 Best Hospitals, Franciscan Health Indianapolis has also been recognized as One of Healthgrades America's 100 Best Hospitals for Stroke Care[™] for two years in a row (2022-2023), One of Healthgrades America's 50 Best Hospitals for Vascular Surgery[™] for four years in a row (2020-2023), and One of Healthgrades America's 100 Best Hospitals for Stroke Stroke Stroke Stroke Care[™] for four years in a row (2020-2023), and One of Healthgrades America's 100 Best Hospitals for Vascular Surgery[™] for four years in a row (2020-2023), and One of Healthgrades America's 100 Best Hospitals for Stroke S

The Aeronautical Center of Technology invites Johnson County residents for an open house.

Aviation & Engineering - On June 17, 10 a.m. - 2 p.m., the Aeronautical Center of Technology will hold an open house for all educators and high school students interested in aviation and engineering. The center is located at: Indy South Greenwood Municipal Airport, 897 Airport Pkwy., building F-1, Greenwood. Guests are invited to tour the facility and learn about the different programs that are offered through the Aeronautical center. Instructors will be onsite to showcase the materials included in each of the courses. These courses include: rocketry and launch systems, Unmanned Aircraft Systems (UAS-Drones) pilot certification; Private Pilot Theory; introduction to aviation technology; 3D Printing & Engineering Club and more. At 11 a.m. there will be a ribbon cutting and a word from Lieutenant Governor Susan Crouch and Mayor Mark Myers. State Representative Mike Speedy will be the MC for the event.

Accessible workstations expand to more Indy branch locations

Technology Accessibility - The Indianapolis Public Library and Easterseals Crossroads are partnering on a project to install accessible workstations at all 24 library locations throughout Indianapolis, Lawrence and Beech Grove to ensure all patrons have access to assistive technology. Part of the library's digital inclusion roadmap to improve access to library services and materials for persons of all abilities, the accessible workstations are currently available at the Eagle, West Perry, East 38th Street, East Washington and Garfield Park locations. The workstations offer a height-adjustable desk, large-key keyboard, large-print keyboard, trackball mouse with programmable buttons and arm supports. Software includes a text reading app, Live transcription app, math app, magnification app and a screen reading app for blind and visually impaired-individuals. These workstations are available for all patrons, with shorter use periods than other stations to decrease wait times. The accessible workstations will be rolled out and installed at all 24 library locations over the next several months.

A Rose among the thorny season of Covid

Southside resident wins Recognition of Service

By Sherrie Coner

Nearly four decades ago, Antonia Zunarelli launched a career in the events industry. More than 20 of those years have been dedicated to the Indiana Roof Ballroom, providing seamless events for famous actors, musicians and politicians.

"The hospitality industry is filled with people who spend nights and weekends doing events, six to seven nights a week," Zunarelli said.

After beautiful weddings, large corporate events, Indianapolis Motor Speedway banquets or other gatherings, thankful people noticed that servers, banquet hall and kitchen managers, caterers, cab drivers and others are rarely celebrated for their impeccable ability to make special moments happen for others, no matter what.

To shine gratitude on the incredible work ethic and professionalism in the hospitality industry, 32 years ago the Rose Awards (Recognition of Service Excellence) were launched.

In front of a sold-out crowd last month, 93 hospitality and tourism workers were honored. And Zunarelli was one of nine workers named as a Rose Award winner, sponsored by Visit Indianapolis.

"I was totally flattered and honored," Zunarelli said.

This lifelong Southsider grew up in a large Italian family. "They operated produce stands in City Market," she said.

Her family members also opened sandwich shops near the Statehouse and the first European fine dining restaurant in the city.

Because her schedule is rarely conducive for raising a family, Zunarelli expresses constant gratitude for her husband and aunts' constant involvement in raising two children. "It takes a village," she said.

At work, Zunarelli sees the same dedication. Several members of her team have been with her for 20 years.

"My team is behind the scenes, putting everything together," she said.

When Covid-19 struck the state, Zunarelli faced completely new challenges.

"Our goal was to host safe events and adapt to new requirements," she said.

On March 11, 2020, Marion County Health Department guidelines directed all businesses to shut their doors.

"We reopened in June, but events were limited to 50 people," Zunarelli said.

While the phones rang with event cancellations, this creative, energetic woman got busy behind the scenes, finding ways to provide a safe work environment and paychecks for employees.

"We kept all the employees that we could," she said. "We did box lunches, gourmet baskets for hospitals, doctors and nurses. Our corporate community was right there with us."

As the city gradually discovered a new normal late last year and now, the hospitality industry has followed suit.

"People are planning with a shorter window of time," Zunarelli said as an example of how the post-Covid events industry has changed. With plans to retire 18 months from now, these mover-and-shaker's shoes will be difficult to fill. But if anyone deserves to remove those shoes and put her feet up, it's this woman.

"It's been a great journey," Zunarelli said.

Salute to 2023 grads Celebrate the Center Grove graduating Class of 2023 by getting to know the top of the class

In the previous edition, The Southside Times recognized Southside graduates and shared about the valedictorians and salutatorians from each school. Center Grove Community School Corporation did not learn its top graduates until after print deadline. The Class of 2023 had two co-valedictorians, Cody Hewitt and Joseph Sowers, who each ended their high school careers with a Grade Point Average (GPA) of 4.818. Here, we recognize these students:

CENTER GROVE HIGH SCHOOL

Co-Valedictorian: Cody Hewitt GPA: 4.818

Future education: Purdue University Intended Major: Mechanical or Aerospace Engineering Extracurriculars/hobbies: Soccer (varsity and club), NHS, Math NHS, Model UN, Quiz Bowl, German Club, Futsal Club, volunteer my time at a horse farm, watching professional soccer, watching movies, spending time with friends and family

What piece of advice would you give underclassmen? Be as involved as you can in extracurriculars and volunteer work, while still being able to maintain your best effort in school. Don't overwork yourself but branch out as much as possible.

What talent would you most like to possess? Multi-linguistic

In 50 years, suppose you were to write a book. What would the title be? 50 Shades of Greatness

Co-Valedictorian: Joseph Sowers GPA: 4.818

Future Education: Purdue University (Plan to pursue a master's or Ph.D.) Intended Major: Engineering (unsure of what type)

Extracurriculars/hobbies: Playing soccer, refereeing soccer, weightlifting, and hiking

What advice would you give underclassmen? Do your homework on time. What talent would you most like to possess? I'd like to be able to produce music. In 50 years, suppose you were to write a book. What would the title be? Pursuit

Salutatorian: Grant Embrey GPA: 4.814

Future Education: Purdue University

Intended Major: Aerospace Engineering with minors in mathematics and computer science

Roncalli softball team seeks to finish three-peat

By Mark Ambrogi

The Roncalli High School softball team's path to the Class 4A state championship game has been a little rocky this season.

"It has been a little different," Royals coach David Lauck said. "We've all had to be a little more patient and trust the process for advancing in the tournament."

Senior Keagan Rothrock, ranked as the nation's top-ranked high school pitchers, was recovering from two leg surgeries in the winter. She wasn't cleared to play until right before the season.

"By mid-May she was looking to be close to back to normal form," Lauck said.

Rothrock threw a no-hitter in an 8-0 victory over Pendleton Heights in the Center Grove Semistate. The Royals (31-3-1) will face Penn (27-4-1) at 7 p.m. June 10 in the IHSAA Class 4A state championship game at Purdue University's Bittinger Stadium in West Lafayette. Roncalli is seeking its third consecutive state title.

"No one knew in the beginning of the season if she was going to be able to pitch, or how she was going to do," Royals left fielder Abbey Hofmann said. "I do not think she knew, either. Without Keagan, our team is a completely different team. We were scared, but we also had faith in each player on the team that we were still going to get the job done."

Penn blew by Roncalli 13-3 April 22, but Rothrock did not pitch in that game.

"Penn has deep and talented pitching,"

Lauck said. "They can also hit up and down their lineup and play fantastic defense. They were the most impressive team, top to bottom, that we played this year. We are in fact playing the best team from the North."

The Royals have outscored their opponents 70-2 in the postseason.

"When Lyla Blackwell and Carley Keller get on base, we are hard to beat," Lauck said. "The bats behind them of Emma Fegan, Abbey Hofmann and Keagan Rothrock drive in a lot of runs and have carried us the past couple of rounds.

Blackwell, a senior, leads the Royals with a .557 average, Rothrock is hitting .500 with a team-high eight homers. Fegan, a junior, is hitting .529 and Keller .523.

"I believe we started peaking right after our Penn game towards the middle of the season in April at Carmel," said Hofmann, who is hitting .505 with seven homers. "That game proved to anyone that we are a beatable team and gave us an underdog mentality. After that game, we went on a huge run outscoring opponents by huge amounts. We run-ruled teams (the mercy rule) that should not have been run-ruled. I think after that loss, we had a fire in us that wanted to prove to other teams that we are still the Roncalli softball team (that won the past two state titles). The postseason gets us excited and pushes us to play our best considering it could be our last game at any time. That is why I think we have performed great in postseason."

Rothrock has a 25-1 record with a 0.51 earned run average.

Along with Blackwell, Hofmann and Rothrock, the other seniors who start are Lauren Marsicek, Ann Marie Meek, Anna Dressman, Abby Willis and Kaitlyn Leister.

Rothrock (University of Florida), Blackwell, (Virginia Tech) and Marsicek (Indiana State) are headed to Division I programs. Hofmann will play at Marian University. Willis and Meek are headed to play at Millikin University.

Leister will play at IU Southeast.

"It is quite special and fortunate to have seniors who have experienced these moments before," Hofmann said.

Hofmann said having so many senior starters is special.

"It provides leadership that is necessary for our team," she said. "It is amazing to be able to lean on one another and to be able to have so much fun one last time with our seniors. I believe our senior class has set an example for the underclassmen to follow the legacy we brought."

The three-day St. Jude Summer Festival from June 1 to 3 provided lot of fun and thrills to the participants who turned out in a large number on all the three days. The last day's program was briefly disrupted by sharp rain, sending the crowd here and there to take shelter. After the rain stopped, outdoor activities came back to life. For children there were a number of different rides, including giant wheel, a giant slide, Safari Train, swing etc. Other features were bands, food, beer, ice cones, bingo, Monte Carlo games and silent auction. Spider-Man: Across the Spider-Verse Sony continues to raise the bar on the medium of animation

MOVIE REVIEW

By Bradley Lane

2018's Into the Spider-Verse was not a guaranteed hit. It was an animated superhero film in an era dominated by live-action comic book adaptations, and more importantly it didn't look anything like its animated contemporaries. It pioneered a hyper-stylized, expressive mix of hand-drawn animation with computer-generated imagery that blended different styles of animation to distinguish characters. What makes that film a classic, however, is that the over-the-top style serves to emphasize the strong writing and story at the heart of the film. Its anxiously awaited sequel, Across the Spider-Verse, ups the bar for modern animation, surpassing the original's visual style while balancing lots of character development, and delivering a compelling, if incomplete story.

At the film's start, Miles Morales has been Brooklyn's one and only Spider-Man becomes mind-blowingly impressive when for just over a year in his home dimension, Earth-1610. Like all great

Spider-Man stories, Miles is struggling to balance his duties as the city's protector with his personal responsibilities. Feeling isolated after having been disconnected from his Spider friends from the first film, Miles meets a struggling wannabe crime doer, The Spot. This encounter sets off a chain reaction of events that leads to Miles being reunited with his Spider comparatives and puts into question Miles' STHE SPIDER VERSE place in the multiverse.

The obvious first point

to bring up is the awe-inspiring visual storytelling on display. Each universe on display has a unique animation style, a choice that each of the many Spider-people are introduced with their own hyper-unique style of animation. This collage of stylistic influences culminates in a feast for the eyes throughout the film's lengthy runtime. The film features a particularly effective use of color as the backgrounds change based on character dynamics through particularly tense points of drama.

This sequel is ambitious. It is interested in telling a dense, action-packed story focused on the dynamics of multiple characters and the film suffers under the weight of these conflicting priorities. While there are interesting setups, and compelling character motivations, the film packs so much into its runtime that it often feels like it was rushing through the beats of each scene to get to the next one. It also functions as part one to its upcoming sequel and for that reason, it can't help but feel incomplete as a film, even if that means it might retroactively get better next year.

Even with some reservations, I can unequivocally recommend seeing this as soon as possible on the big screen. The visual inventiveness on display in Across the Spider-Verse is unmatched in modern film today and begs to be experienced in theaters.

Past presidents teach us to be wary of words

GRAMMAR GUY

By Curtis Honeycutt

Have you ever heard of a politician who is short on words? A terse politician is about as common as a dancing potato, and as unelectable as a vampire who wants to raise taxes.

Surely presidents of the past have something to say about words, right? As surely as more politicians are announcing their presidential candidacies (with lots of words), voices of the past are echoing through the hallowed halls of government.

For the sake of staying apolitical, I won't include any presidential quotes from the past 50 years; rather, I'm going to shed light on some of the words about words that have staying power.

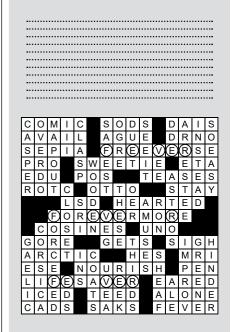

In an 1819 letter, John Adams wrote, "Abuse of words has been the great instrument of sophistry and chicanery, of party, faction, and division of society." In essence, Adams here is railing against the abilities of people, parties and politicians to use words to promote wedges and division. While certainly effective, Adams suggests these messages only do damage to the fabric of the U.S.

Speaking to an audience in Oyster Bay, N.Y., in 1915, Theodore Roosevelt said, "I have a perfect horror of words that are not backed up by deeds." The meaning here is about as plain as it gets. Teddy didn't mince words, although he gave many speeches throughout his political career. Here Roosevelt basically said, "If you're going to talk the talk, you'd better walk the walk." It's a warning against those who are all talk.

In a November 1963 Thanksgiving proclamation, President John F. Kennedy declared, "As we express our gratitude, we must never forget that the highest appreciation is not to utter words but to live by them." Similarly, Herbert Hoover quipped, "Words without actions are the assassins of idealism." The lesson here is the same as Theodore Roosevelt's above: back up your words with your actions. President Dwight D. Eisenhower said, "An intellectual is a man who takes more words than necessary to tell more than he knows," while James Madison put it this way: "Philosophy is common sense with big words." In other words, simply stated ideas are better than overwrought bloviations.

As we enter another presidential campaign cycle, I believe we should heed these words about words from former U.S. presidents. Pay attention to what candidates say and measure them against what they have done.

Perry Kiwanis golf outing fundraiser set for June 22

8th Annual Golf Outing – This year's Perry Kiwanis golf outing will for the first time offer online reservations for players and sponsors, arranged by member Jeff Udrasols. Also new is the "golf cannon," giving a golfer an opportunity to use an air-powered golf ball launcher instead of a driver on the first shot of a particular hole. The hand-held cannon was donated by member Tom Jackson. The eighth annual fundraiser will be held Thursday, June 22, at Smock Golf Course, County Line Road at Sherman Drive. It will help Kiwanis support Hunger Inc., Riley Hospital for Children, Baxter YMCA and Perry Township Schools. The event will have a start time of noon and will again offer players the opportunity to purchase "Super Tickets." Each $25 ticket will provide two mulligans, one skirt and one putting contest entry. To register as a player or sponsor, visit kiwanisgolfouting.org.

Free ABCs of Diabetes Self-Management classes coming in July

Health Education – The ABCs of Diabetes is a free, four-part diabetes education series offered by the Marion County Public Health Department. Topics include nutrition, exercise, taking medications, preventing complications, and community resources. People with diabetes or pre-diabetes and their friends and family members are welcome to attend. The program aims to empower individuals with diabetes to achieve and maintain good health, prevent complications that may develop from uncontrolled diabetes, and increase knowledge and skills for successful diabetes self-management. Classes in July will be offered online on Thursday, July 6, 13, 20 and 27 from 5:30–7 p.m. Technical assistance is available. Classes are free but registration is required. To register or for more information, visit MarionHealth.org/diabetes or call (317) 221-2094. Participants should plan to attend all four classes.

Every week, we aim to share the best of the Southside community sharing the stories of people who make a difference every day. What stories in the community deserve to be told? What community lcons deserve recognition for what they do for Southside residents and organizations?

And ye shall hear of wars and rumors of wars: see that ye be not troubled for these things must come to pass, but the end is not yet.

MATTHEW 24:6

Last Sunday we celebrated the Christian doctrine of the three persons of God: The Father, the Son, and the Holy Spirit. This doctrine presents us with an unfathomable mystery of God being three distinct persons, while also being one incomprehensible God. It is impossible for us to completely understand God's true nature on this side of the cross, but we are challenged to lean not onto our own understanding, but instead we are called to trust in the Lord. Though we are incapable of completely grasping God's full identity, we are given many clues to help us make some sense of this mystery of the Holy Trinity. God's true nature is reflected in all of creation. Consider what we do know about the properties of creation's life sustaining water. Water comes in three distinct forms. Water is a liquid at times, a solid in the form of ice, and a vapor as steam. Water also reflects the beauty of God's creation with every sunrise we witness over every body of water. We have all stood in awe of the beauty of the painted skies reflected perfectly over the still waters of a morning's sunrise. It is almost impossible to tell where this world ends, and the beauty of heaven begins. In the calm waters of life, the reflection is most clear; however, when the waters are disturbed by the wind and the waves, we find the image is distorted. We were, after all, made in His image. May we be reminded that God's true nature is best reflected in us when we still the troubled waters of our hearts!

WHY PRINT?

ENGAGEMENT

According to International News Media Association, printed newspapers boast the highest amount of ad engagement by readers. While other mediums allow for the option to ignore or "skip" an advertisement, newspaper ads are built into the content. (inma.org)

AFFORDABILITY

Newspapers offer a lower cost per thousand readers than radio, tv and direct mail advertising.(mediaspectrum.net)

TARGETING

Loyal readers and niche audiences are easier to reach when you know the geographic area and circulation. (fedena.com)
