DAR's Samuel Bryan Chapter recognizes Beech Grove K-9 units

Each year, chapters and individuals of the National Society Daughters of the American Revolution (NSDAR) honor the anniversary of DAR's founding on Oct. 11 by engaging in meaningful service projects in their communities. This year, the Samuel Bryan Chapter recognized the Beech Grove K-9 Officers for the work these partners provide in the Beech Grove community. The chapter obtained specialty K-9 Ops balls for the "officers" to aid in training and exercise. The chapter also provided 50 packages of donated dog toys and treats to the nonprofit, Pets Healing Vets.

Seven-year-old type I diabetic in need of 'alert dog'

The grandson of a Greenwood VFW Post 5864 member, Jeff Emerson, is in need of a diabetic alert dog to help avoid seizures and aid in long-term health by keeping his blood sugars stable. Seven-year-old Kyzr Emerson, the son of Dylan and Brook Emerson, was diagnosed with type 1 diabetes earlier this year after he was rushed to the ER with symptoms of constant thirst, frequent urination, numbness and serious vision problems. He was in diabetes ketoacidosis and nearing a coma. The family has set up a GoFundMe account to purchase a diabetic alert dog, which costs $18,500.

Indy DPW prepares for the upcoming snow season. (Submitted photo)

Southside construction update

Southport Road interchange for future I-69 to partially open; Indy prepares for snow

Compiled by Nicole Davis

• I-69 Indianapolis: The new Southport Road interchange for the future I-69 is expected to open partially next month. Crews are connecting the new and old roadways and shifted Southport Road west of State Road 37 over the weekend. Expect new Southport Road traffic signals at S.R. 37 access points, Wellingshire Boulevard and the realigned Belmont Avenue to be turned on when the interchange opens partially. Work on the Carson Avenue bridge over I-465 continues with nighttime lane closures for crews to prepare the bridge deck for concrete.

• I-69 Johnson County: Bridgework on the future Smith Valley Road overpass will require daytime single-lane closures on S.R. 37 starting late this week. Work is expected to begin with the right lane of southbound S.R. 37 and move across the median into the northbound lanes. The new northbound S.R. 37 exit ramp to S.R. 144 may open as early as next week. The movement is currently closed, and traffic is being detoured north. The southbound S.R. 37 exit ramp to S.R. 144 is also expected to shift slightly onto a new location and new pavement at that time. For more information, check i69finishline.com.

• Indianapolis: Mayor Joe Hogsett joined City-County Council Vice President Zach Adamson and the Indianapolis Department of Public Works (Indy DPW) at an event on Oct. 31 to highlight the preparations being made by the Indy Snow Force drivers ahead of this year's winter season. Plow drivers have already completed more than 2,000 hours of training behind the wheel and in the classroom. Indy Snow Force executed its annual "mock snow fight" Nov. 1 and 2, before the first winter weather event of the year hits Indianapolis. Indy Snow Force reported having more than 18,000 tons of salt on hand ready to help make roads safer and keep Indianapolis moving. Indy DPW uses a granular de-icing "salt" product which lowers the freezing point of water on roadways and which is designed to stick to streets once distributed by plow trucks. Indy DPW is currently hiring for various full-time positions within its operations and solid waste divisions, including positions that involve driving snow trucks. More info can be found at joinDPW.indy.gov.

How can your neighborhood association benefit you?

A new neighborhood association on the Southside explains why they formed together

By Todd Travis

A City of Neighborhoods

"We often say that Indianapolis is a city of neighborhoods," says Linda Adams, Community Wellness coordinator, Purdue University Cooperative Extension Service.

Adams

"In Indianapolis, the neighborhoods are really important in that they have the opportunity to advocate for themselves with elected officials and other city employees that serve residents. So as a grouping of people that live in the same area, they have the opportunity to voice their concerns or preferences for how the city might interact with that area, whether it's bringing in new business or road changes – all of those play a factor," Adams described.

The formation of a new neighborhood association

Southdale, a recently formed neighborhood association, began as a group of people who wanted to join together for the betterment of their immediate neighborhood and surrounding areas. An initiative important to the people in the area was gardening. Bethany Community Gardens was formed five years ago as a way to help people learn more about gardening and to have a space to learn and safely grow their own gardens.

The benefits of gardening to the community include food security, being outside and getting sunlight, and engaging more with your neighborhood. As people began to gather at Bethany Community Gardens, they started to look for ways to support each other in very similar ways to how a neighborhood association typically operates.

"We would hold a city resource night where the city councilors came out, the liaison from the prosecutor's office, the representative from IMPD and it would be kind of like a forum night. We also hosted an INDOT 465 meeting where we learned about what they were going to be doing to I-465 on the Southside. We feel we played a part to getting the sound barrier added to a subdivision that backed right up to the highway," Adams mentioned.

As Bethany Gardens grew and connected with others in surrounding neighborhoods, they decided to make things official and form a new neighborhood association. Sandra Giliberto, the leader of the HOA for Meridian Place neighborhood and Bruce Bye, co-coordinator of Bethany Community Gardens went through the training to learn about neighborhood organizing. This training was provided by a nonprofit organization called Indianapolis Neighborhood Resource Center (INRC). Afterward, they began taking the steps to become a recognized neighborhood association, and Southdale Neighborhood Association was formed.

"One, we can work collectively with the city to have a voice in the development that comes into our area. The other is that we can do crime watch. Instead of just one subdivision together, it's nice to get multiple subdivisions and neighborhoods to get together and discuss crime watch."

– Linda Adams, on the benefits of having a neighborhood association.

Naming the benefits

What are the benefits of having a neighborhood association?

"One, we can work collectively with the city to have a voice in the development that comes into our area. The other, is that we can do crime watch. Instead of just one subdivision together, it's nice to get multiple subdivisions and neighborhoods to get together and discuss crime watch. IMPD has resident liaisons who come out to different meetings to talk about things that are happening crime-wise. They also have a liaison from the prosecutor's office who's willing to come out and talk with neighborhood associations. The third benefit is social opportunities," Adams pointed out.

Collaboration with University of Indianapolis

The University of Indianapolis has been partnering with Bethany Community Garden for years and will continue to be involved with the Southdale Neighborhood Association. Marianna Foulkrod, director of Service-Learning & Community Engagement at UIndy, has helped develop that relationship as the association has formulated over the years. As part of the neighborhood association kickoff, they will help to organize their first big event – Southdale Cultural Festival, on Saturday, Nov. 5, noon to 4 p.m.

"After exploration and discussion, the University of Indianapolis students identified the need for different cultural groups to be represented in the Southdale association and to be educated about the association," Foulkrod said. "So they decided to host this intercultural festival while the Southdale association was being announced. So they're combining the announcement with the multicultural activity."

"This is a collaborative effort between the Southdale association, UIndy and the city of Indianapolis. It does take large entities like that to drive community social impact. It's important for neighbors to participate to promote the assimilation of these groups and their co-existence," Foulkrod emphasized.

STATE SENATOR: DISTRICT 41

Greg Walker (R)

In the past decade nearly 9% of women in childbearing years who died by suicide were pregnant or recently postpartum. More prevention efforts to screen and treat pregnancy are vital to expanding mental health access. I believe partnering local NFPs with federal grants can help close the gap. Our jails are, by no fault on their part, ill-equipped to treat the mentally ill stuck in our courts, and I have a bill to provide resources for county courts to make these legal determinations and get proper help. Election integrity is also a chief concern. I will be vigilant to prevent restrictions in voter access to move forward under the auspices of security. I have worked closely with our county clerks across our state and three Secretaries of State to craft election policy. With workforce development, we have grown our educational capacity but have not effectively engaged the workforce potential in people who have stopped searching for work. We can kill two birds by addressing the stumbling blocks that prevent employment by addressing public health, while attracting more economic investment more cheaply than relying on expensive tax subsidies. We must get a handle on high healthcare costs in our state.

STATE SENATOR: DISTRICT 41

Bryan Munoz (D)

US SENATOR

Thomas M McDermott, Jr. (D)

Todd Young (R)

James M Sceniak (L)

What are your qualifications and background related to running for office?

I graduated from Bethel College. I'm a behavioral therapist working with children with autism in Greenwood. Throughout my campaign, I have visited voters from across the state, listening to them, understanding their concerns. Congress was meant to be a citizen-legislature.

What are your top three priorities if elected to office?

Medical freedom, giving veterans control over their own health care through my Vet-Care proposal, and bringing fiscal sanity to Washington. The government should not be in your doctor's office. VetCare involves giving veterans their own personal care accounts so they can get whatever care they need. Finally, we need to reduce government waste by eliminating deficit spending, ending corporate welfare and taking a modern approach to entitlement reform.

What do you value most in your community?

Community is very important to me. I grew up in a family with five siblings and learned from my parents the importance of serving my community, showing empathy for others and loving my neighbors. It's why I love working as a behavioral therapist, as I get to make a difference in the lives of children. My goal is to take those values to Washington to fight for freedom and liberty. As we are given more freedom, our communities will thrive with innovation.

MARION COUNTY: SHERIFF

Kerry Forestal (D)

What are your qualifications and background related to running for office?

I started my public safety career at the MCSO in 1977. In 2003, Sheriff Frank Anderson promoted me to Chief Deputy. In 2010, I was selected by President Barack Obama to serve as United States Marshal. I returned to the MCSO in 2015 when I was appointed by Sheriff John Layton to Lt. Colonel, overseeing the Criminal Division. In 2018, I was elected the 59th Sheriff of Marion County.

What are your top three priorities if re-elected to office?

I will continue the innovative approach the Sheriff's Office has taken to cracking down on sex offenders, making Marion County neighborhoods safer for kids. Additionally, recruitment and retention will remain at the top of my list of priorities. We must commit to paying competitive salaries to attract and retain dedicated individuals who are willing to serve their community working in a challenging environment. Lastly, I'll help to tackle an enormous challenge in our community – violent crime by repeat violent offenders.

What do you value most in your community?

I highly value the diversity of our community, and I'm proud to recruit, hire and promote staff at the Sheriff's Office that reflect that diversity. Three out of six of my division commanders are women, and two are African American.

I interned with the Indiana General Assembly and graduated from IUPUI with a minor in political science and civic leadership. I have been a PC for the past four years and a current president of the Perry Township Democrat Club for the past two years. What do you value most in your community?

What are your qualifications and background related to running for office?

I have proudly spent my career in the nonprofit and public sector. Most recently, I was working as a policy analyst for the Republican caucus at the Indiana State Senate. I have a passion for working on research and public policy. Prior to that, I worked as the business manager for St. Roch Church for 15 years. I learned the importance of building relationships and connecting people to resources.

What are your top three priorities if elected to office?

I want our police, firefighters and EMS to have all the tools and support they need to do their jobs and protect our community. The rising inflation does not seem to be subsiding anytime soon. Indiana needs to reduce the tax burden of our citizens. We need to be lean and efficient with taxpayer dollars. I think we need a further expansion of school choice. And we need more emphasis to be placed on work-based learning programs, apprenticeship programs and other high wage and high demand careers.

What do you value most in your community?

I have met so many great and interesting people throughout this campaign. They are concerned about their neighborhoods, and they are engaged in the issues that are so important. They are informed voters and want to do their part to make our district great.

Karl J. Knable (I)

What are your qualifications and background related to running for office?

I retired in 2021 from the Indiana Department of Insurance as the Chief Actuary. I worked with legislators on insurance and testified in the house and senate. Bills were proposed over the years that would have helped citizens in Indiana. This included insurance, prescription drugs, taxation issues, education and payday lending, to name a few. It was common for the groups testifying to be a lobbyists and corporations. Needs of the corporate world were often the direction the bill went. As an independent, I will be passionate in speaking for the average citizen in our state.

What are your top three priorities if elected to office?

My background is insurance and health care from a business perspective. We need to emphasize maternal mortality, infant mortality and mental health issues. Additionally, we need to pay attention to our education system as the youth are our future and we can't let them down. The economy needs to be emphasized with all bills especially with regard to small business.

Summary

I will bring a sense of logic and sensibility to the office. Being independent, I will work for the citizens and not be influenced by large donors or party leaders.

I have been serving our community in the State House with a focus on strengthening the quality of life in neighborhoods. From investing in our local schools to cleaning up blight and holding slumlords accountable, I've continued to find common sense solutions to problems facing our community. I continue to knock on doors to talk with people at their doorstep and attend neighborhood meetings to hear and learn about what issues and challenges are most important in our community.

What do you value most in your community?

I love seeing when neighbors come together to improve the quality of life in our community. From neighborhood cleanups to park projects, people set aside their political differences to make a difference in their neighborhood and our city.

What are your top three priorities if elected to office?

I will author or sponsor legislation to strengthen the auditing power of the State Board of Accounts, so that our officials are held accountable in how they spend our tax dollars.

I have a master's degree in Education Policy, and I've organized and fought for good wages, working conditions, benefits, and retirement as a leader in my union. I can read and write policy, and I'll stand for Hoosiers – not lobbyists of career politicians.

What are your top three priorities if elected to office?

As a teacher, I want to see great schools. I've seen policies such as standardized testing that don't work. I want to make sure our representatives have experience outside politics. As a father of three, I want all Hoosiers to be able to raise healthy families and have a great quality of life in Indiana. This includes more accessible mental health and childcare, affordable post high school opportunities, and thriving communities. As a leader in my labor union, I want to ensure our economy is running smoothly, and we are prioritizing workers and the middle class. Other issues, including campaign finance reform, inflation and ensuring our representatives can't get rich trading stocks, can be found on my website: MattFyfe.com.

What do you value most in your community?

Everyone has a story to share, and I've found so much kindness throughout the state! Politics and political parties can be divisive – but we're all Hoosiers. I've loved that part.

US HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES: DISTRICT 9

Jacob Bailey (G)

What are your qualifications and background related to running for office?

I am a U.S. Army veteran and have been teaching in an elementary classroom for over 20 years. My family has been in Indiana since around 1830 and we still have the family farm near Greensburg, Ind. I am a peace activist and a strong supporter of social justice!

What are your top three priorities if elected to office?

I am running as a write-in candidate with the Green Party and so I support the Ten Key Values of the party. If I had to choose my top three, they would be: care for the environment, social justice, and a major shift of economic practices.

What do you value most in your community?

What I value the most in our communities is the people. People are not separate from the environment, but rather a private species relying on our complex world.

PROSECUTING ATTORNEY FOR THE MARION CIRCUIT COURT OF 19TH JUDICIAL COURT

Cynthia Carrasco (R)

What are your qualifications and background related to running for office?

I have served as Executive Director of the State Ethics Commission, and Indiana Inspector General, where I successfully led a statewide law enforcement agency. I served as Deputy General Counsel for the Governor of Indiana, and currently as a private attorney. I have partnered with others at all levels of state government and have the executive leadership experience to successfully lead the Prosecutor's Office.

What are your top three priorities if elected to office?

Marion County is facing a public safety crisis, and we deserve better. As your next Marion County Prosecutor, I will work to hold violent and repeat offenders accountable, use existing tools at our disposal to prevent crime before it occurs, and partner with public safety stakeholders throughout our communities to make Marion County safe for our families.

What do you value most in your community?

My husband and I moved to Indianapolis nearly two decades ago and chose to make it our forever home. It was a growing and thriving place of opportunity, and we knew it's where we wanted to raise our family. The public safety crisis has done tremendous damage to our county, but I know we can change our course and make it the safest, most prosperous city in the country. I would be honored to have your vote.

JOHNSON COUNTY CLARK TOWNSHIP: BOARD MEMBER

Chuck Harlow (R)

What are your qualifications and background related to running for office?

I own and operate Internet Computing Solutions computer systems support and managed IT service business: icoso.com. I provide website hosting and design services for several businesses. My experience running my own business, managing a budget, making financial decisions and customer service correlate directly with the duties and responsibilities of a board member of the Advisory Board of Clark Township. I've held this office for a few years now and running to continue to advise the Township Trustee and help Clark Township citizens.

What are your top three priorities if elected to office?

To meet at least annually to review and approve/disapprove the budget and report of the Township Trustee; keep a record of all business transactions at all meetings; make appropriations and establish tax rates and levies for the ensuing year with notice given by the trustee; to make additional or emergency appropriations as the need or emergency arises.

What do you value most in your community?

I value the diverse, hard-working and family oriented people in this township. In the 18+ years that I have lived in Clark Township, everyone I have met treats their neighbors with respect, kindness and helpfulness. This is what I value most in Clark Township, and that's the driving force behind the Township Trustee's office, to reach out and help those in need.

What are your qualifications and background related to running for office?

I'm new to public office, but my experience in accounting and in managing our family business will be helpful at this smallest level of government. I volunteer at the food pantry in Franklin and see firsthand some of the need that exists in our community and how our neighbors are hurting.

What are your top three priorities if elected to office?

First and foremost, oversight and accountability. The Pleasant Township Trustee's primary duty is township assistance, but in 2021 he only helped two households for a total of $1,026. He paid one utility bill and paid for one cremation. He has three people on staff and pays himself a salary of $44,544. The township took in nearly $242,000 in tax receipts, and only spent .4% of it on direct township assistance. We need to elect public officials who are interested in serving their communities instead of wasting taxpayer dollars and neglecting their duties. Once township services have improved, we should look at merging townships to improve efficiency in local government.

What do you value most in your community?

Compassion, inclusion, respect and equal opportunity for all. One of government's most important responsibilities is providing a safety net for society's most vulnerable.

Our whole community benefits when we all have our basic needs met.

PLEASANT TOWNSHIP: BOARD MEMBER

Margaret Sheets (D)

What are your qualifications and background related to running for office?

I graduated from Purdue University with a bachelor's degree in Education and have a master's in Education. I also acquired a counseling certificate from IUPUI. I was a teacher at Clinton Central School Corporation and ended my career as guidance director. I served on the Clinton County Contractual Library board for two terms. The board approved budgets, listened to clients complaints and recommendations, and we developed plans for and built satellite libraries in the county. Even though I'm officially retired, I still enjoy substitute teaching.

What are your top three priorities if elected to office?

- Ensure sound budgets are set by the trustee.
- Cut through the red tape so people get the resources they need to survive in this tough economic time.
- Develop better communication about resources available to community members.

What do you value most in your community?

I really love the diversity in this community! I have enjoyed chatting with people from Africa while gardening at the Greenwood community garden. At Whiteland High school and Greenwood High School I've had a chance to meet and get to know students from Mexico, Africa, India, Egypt, and Viet Nam. I live in the Northside Park area of Greenwood, and my neighbors have been welcoming. It's a great place to live!

Cynthia (Cindi) Wirth (D)

What are your qualifications and background related to running for office?

I am a K-12 public school educated, and a first-generation college graduate. I am a public-school teacher, a scientist and a small-business owner.

What are your top three priorities if elected to office?

- Addressing the inflation we are seeing worldwide through holding big corporations accountable that are taking advantage of us with windfall profits.
- Making quality healthcare affordable and accessible to every person, independent of employment. This includes the right to choose an abortion and upholding Medicare.
- Bringing good jobs to Indiana that pay a living wage for a standard work-week and protecting Social Security.

Summary

Hoosiers should not have to work two to three jobs to make ends meet, or risk losing their social security. Go-Fund-Me doesn't have to be the solution to pay healthcare bills while corporate executives and wealthy shareholders are the ones reaping all the profit from our hard work. Hoosiers don't need legislators removing healthcare or retirement decisions for them.

I am a seventh-generation Central Indiana Hoosier, and I am committed to our beautiful state. I love our Hoosier values of family and neighbors helping neighbors, celebrating our wins in life, and sugar cream pie! Playing petty partisan politicking games with hard-working Hoosiers' lives is shameful, and I won't participate in that.

US REPRESENTATIVE: DISTRICT 6

Greg Pence (R)

What are your qualifications and background related to running for office?

I'm committed to ensuring Indiana's 6th District continues its strong tradition of leadership in Congress. This role in Congress is an opportunity to serve the community, state, and country that I love. I understand that the 6th District needs a leader who will prioritize constituents, and I will ensure Hoosiers always have a seat at the table.

What are your top three priorities if elected to office?

I've always worked to ensure our office's top priority is delivering quality constituent services to Hoosiers who need our assistance.

Combating inflation. Hoosiers are struggling to pay their bills, fill up their gas tanks, and put dinner on the table. The policies coming out of Washington during the Democrats' one-party rule are harming the middle class and continue to threaten the American Dream. The federal government should work for Hoosiers, not the other way around.

Deregulation and consumer protection. I serve on the House Committee on Energy and Commerce. I want to focus on lowering gas prices and energy bills through deregulation, and work on protecting Hoosiers from Big Tech.

What do you value most about your community?

Hoosier hospitality. While some don't agree with my views from time to time, everyone I've met with has the mutual appreciation of having a neighborly and polite conversation on the issues.

Beech Grove's new Thompson Trail to create safe passage for pedestrians

Amenities - The City of Beech Grove officially opened the Thompson Trail along the busy Thompson Road corridor on Oct. 28. The one-mile asphalt trail runs on the north side of Thompson Road from Emerson Ave. to Ninth Ave. Located on one of the busiest thoroughfares in the community, the trail creates a much-needed pathway for pedestrians, safely connecting them to stores, restaurants and local businesses. From 2012 – 2018, Beech Grove police officers logged more than 300 accidents along this stretch of Thompson Road, prompting the city to partner with the Indianapolis Metropolitan Planning Organization (MPO) and INDOT to build a pedestrian pathway. The MPO funded 80% of the $1.2 million project, with the City contributing a 20% match. The city is currently extending the Franciscan Trail for an additional 1.1 miles, funded by nearly $1.9 million from the MPO. The trail extension will include the areas around Beech Grove High School, Hornet Park Elementary and the Hornet Park Community Center. Beech Grove will have the distinction of being one of the only school districts in the region with a trail system on its high school campus.

PERSONNEL MATTERS

Are you receiving thankfulness?

By Mike Heffner

In 1621, Thanksgiving started as a celebration of the Pilgrims' first successful harvest. Then in 1863, President Lincoln announced the nation will celebrate an "official" Thanksgiving holiday on Nov. 26 expressing gratitude for a pivotal Union Army victory of Gettysburg. That proclamation now has most families gather around a dinner table once a year to enjoy a Thanksgiving dinner. It's one of my favorite holidays because most businesses observe Thanksgiving and the day after. It's a great opportunity to reflect, give thanks and express gratitude.

Gratitude can be defined as a positive emotion felt after receiving something valuable. It has been said it is impossible to be both grateful and angry at the same time. I don't know about you, but anything that can point people to happiness is something we should celebrate.

Many people are unhappy at work these days. The negative vibe in the workplace has confused me. People have become disengaged and are leaving organizations in droves. It's even created a phrase that has become popular right now – quiet quitting. I used to call it quit and stay. It is a phrase used for people that are disengaged at work. They are only willing to do the minimum that's required and are psychologically detached from their job. I see the lack of trust with people as the biggest divisional issue and with social media, it has now become "cool" to rant or share their frustrations publicly. TikTok is where the entire quiet quitting phrase came from.

Given the challenges of the pandemic and the constant change we have seen over the last few years, why are more people not focused on gratitude? It seems like we have a gratefulness problem, and everyone has their own definition of what thankfulness in the workplace looks like.

I challenge you to think differently about thankfulness. Gratitude is a complex emotion, and everyone has their own perspective on expressing thankfulness. This year, start by focusing on how you "receive thanks." Make it a point to tell someone you appreciate them whenever they do something for you. Now you may think, isn't that just showing thanks? Yes, it is, but so often we are not looking for it and the person giving it does not feel that the other person appreciated what they were doing. Trust is built when people come together as they are trying to make an impact. And right now, most are spending their time focused on what they dislike or what they are missing.

Slowing down, expressing gratitude and showing thanks is a great opportunity to come together. When someone shows gratitude or tells you thanks, treat it like gold! You will help them feel valued and loved when you express it back. We can all reap the positive benefits of both giving and receiving heartfelt thanks. The best way to help someone feel good about giving gratitude is to become someone good at receiving it. Thanks for reading my article, and thanks to all the people who have mentioned they enjoy reading these. I am truly grateful for you, and I challenge you to pass this gratefulness on.

PEER TO PEER

'You must be present to win'

By Howard Hubler

As I spend time in Florida, I watch my hometown church online rather than sampling a local church to attend. Generally speaking, at church, you must be present to win. If you're going to win and get the benefit of being in a "like community" of believers and take comfort in a common belief, you have to be amidst those believers.

I am one of the 100 or 200 people left in Indiana today that would rather eat lunch inside of McDonald's. Seldom today have I been in a fast-food franchise restaurant of any brand that has over 10 or 15 people sitting while dining. Last time I had this experience, I asked the people at the cash register, "Is it always empty post pandemic, and what do you think about it?" They shared with me that it is quite tragic; interacting with a customer was one of the more exciting parts of the job. Now they only see the customers through the windshield of their car.

How about your business? My business, the auto business, is one of the handful of businesses that were considered a national necessity during the pandemic. Yes, we wore masks as did our customers, but we were there at work interacting. What about those thousands of Hoosier companies that are dependent on people arriving in person? Well, if you are a successful businessperson, your mind is probably as bright or brighter than mine. Somehow you need to conjure up some exciting ideas to encourage your customer base to make the trip to your store. Whether they are going to win by getting a half-price drink with their meal, or they're going to win by getting a free wheel balance with every oil change, or if they are going to win by receiving a big discount on purchasing certain items you have, they must be present. One thing is certain in my mind however: to drive many businesses, you must tell the customer, you must be present to win. How you do this is the post-pandemic challenge for many traditional businesses.

Neighbors in the Bates-Hendricks area appreciate this casual, hip and cozy bar and grill where you can bring your dog, grab a patio seat and order a club sandwich with meat piled high or a house made chicken salad and wash it down with a cold craft beer or a tropical hard seltzer in the summer or fall. When temps drop, warm up with a bowl of ground pork chili and hot spiced rum cider. "This place is a hidden gem," stated a Google reviewer. "The ambiance is so soothing. Great place to stop for a cocktail or lunch. The outside patio is cool; they provide a heater to keep everyone warm on colder days. The drink vending machine is really neat. I got the mystery cocktail which was a rum punch. Our server Whit was super cool and kept a great conversation going and made us feel very welcomed."

Tár

Power in subtlety

MOVIE REVIEW

By Bradley Lane

The release of this year's Tár marks writer-director Todd Field's first film in over 15 years. After racking up eight Academy Award nominations for just two films in the early 2000s, Field seemingly took a long hiatus from filmmaking. However, Field has a long history in that time period of developing films that just didn't end up getting made, mostly due to a lack of funding. However, the wait for his return ended this September at the Venice Film Festival, where Tár premiered to near universal acclaim. I'll be the first to admit, this film won't be for everyone given its lengthy runtime and dry, unflashy style. However, this is must-see cinema as the film delivers a tightly constructed character study that expertly utilizes precise and thoughtful camerawork and has the undisputed performance of the year from Cate Blanchett in the starring role.

Following Lydia Tár (Cate Blanchette) as she prepares to conduct Mahler's fifth symphony, Tár is the story of her fall from grace. As the film begins and we are introduced to Tár it is made clear that she is one of the most accomplished composer-conductors in the world. Having won every major award and secured a spot as the lead director with one of the top five orchestras in the world, Tár is on top. However, as she mounts the challenge of conducting Mahler's mysterious fifth symphony, a pattern of dubious and questionable behaviors comes to the public's attention and Lydia is forced to reckon with the weight of her past actions.

When I saw the biggest film out of the festival circuit this year was a nearly three-hour film about "cancel culture" I was immediately skeptical. Movies only get made by public figures and people with social and economic power, so I imagined their perspectives on the subject would be played out and condescending. Refreshingly, what Tár actually does is ask questions, not state positions. In this way, it is the only piece of artwork that has yet communicated the endlessly complicated and nuanced nature of the subject.

Because of this, Tár exists in the in between. Not once does the film telegraph how the audience should feel about its events; instead, it does its best to present the character's drama in a thought-provoking neutral light. The lack of non-diegetic music also serves to enhance this cold, dry, almost documentary-like style of filmmaking. What makes the film truly extraordinary though, is the power it finds through ambiguity and simplicity. Every shot, every composition, every single mannerism and facial expression serves to communicate as much information to the audience as possible.

Tár's power is its quiet nature. Not since Haneke or Bresson has so much feeling been provoked with so little spectacle. It's pure craft, taken to its limit. It is a singular work that is spearheaded by a force of nature, once-in-a-career level performance by Cate Blanchette. Tár is a challenging film that will leave you with more questions than answers, but if you engage with the film on its own terms, I promise you will be rewarded for your time. Tár is currently showing only in theaters.

Today I learned: how to pronounce 'GIF'

GRAMMAR GUY

By Curtis Honeycutt

I understand if you're not on Reddit; after all, it's quite the opposite of a local newspaper. However, the online community of Reddit contains groups for virtually any interest, as well as an unhealthy amount of goofball meme culture. One of my favorite subreddits (i.e., a dedicated page to discuss a specific topic) is "TIL," which is an initialism for "today I learned."

Today I learned the acronym "GIF" is pronounced with a soft "G" sound, like in "giraffe." If I were commenting on Reddit, I would reply with a "head exploding" emoji character.

What is a GIF? It's an animated image often used online. You've probably seen one posted as a comment on someone's Facebook post. You can send them in text messages. GIFs are everywhere.

I always thought "Jif" was the peanut butter and "GIF" (with a hard "g") was the animated photo file. As it turns out, I have been wrong for years.

Again, this isn't new information; the inventor of the graphics interchange format (aka GIF) cleared this up all the way back in 2013, which, in internet terms is an eternity.

Steve Wilhite invented the animated GIF back in 1987. As an employee of CompuServe, he was tasked to come up with a universal file format for animated images. As many consumers were getting online for the first time, web content creators embraced the file format.

Today GIFs serve as shorthand language, similar to how emoji characters dominate text messages. The images are our version of low-resolution moving hieroglyphics. Digital architects will scratch their heads someday as they examine the bizarre aspects of our early 21st-century culture.

I still have a hard time with the soft

"G" pronunciation of "GIF." The "G" in "GIF" stands for "graphics," not "jraphics." According to both the Oxford English Dictionary and the Merriam-Webster Dictionary, both the "JIF" and "GIF" pronunciations are acceptable. But the creator prefers the "J" pronunciation. Who am I to argue with the creator?

Today I learned I was wrong about how to say "GIF." Although I find it uncomfortable to say "JIF," I'm going to start doing it. I don't like being wrong, so this is a tough pride pill to swallow. After all, I think being able to accept correction will help make me a "jood" person.

Weekly Devotion

Therefore I say unto you, What things soever ye desire, when ye pray, believe that ye receive them, and ye shall have them.

MARK 11:24

I have emotionally prepared countless defendants over the years for an inevitable outcome of long-term incarceration. Some defendants accept a plea on a lesser charge to avoid a more serious penalty. On more serious cases a defendant might accept a plea for a life sentence to escape the penalty of death. I've had many brutally honest conversations with defendants concerning the severity of their offenses and their inevitable incarceration. I had to harden my heart to keep it from being crushed by the traumatic nature of the case details, and from the severity of their terms of imprisonment, not to mention the trauma from the numerous victim impact statements. Sometimes the darkness was just too great to bear. In Christ I found the strength to endure this dark world of crime and punishment. But God did not want my heart to remain hardened. Recently, a couple at our church faced the loss of custody of their grandchildren whom they were raising. The court ruled they were too elderly to raise the very young children. After two years of procedural hearings the final event was set for the termination of rights to allow for adoption. I prayed with the couple that God would somehow heal their broken hearts. I knew from my experience that certain outcomes after a certain point were inevitable. It was just a cold hard fact. But I prayed the wrong prayer. I prayed for their healing. God answered their prayers for a miracle! The judge had a last-second change of heart and reversed his ruling by awarding full custody to the elderly couple. Their faith was greater than my understanding!
