Polk Place: A rebirth

HAUNTS & JAUNTS

In 1977 local developer Merrill Jones purchased and converted the former 65,000 sq. ft. canning complex into a series of office spaces. Despite Jones' initial restoration efforts, Polk Place began a slow decline over the decades and the remaining buildings ultimately faced demolition. Enter husband and wife team Randy & Julie Faulkner and their company Peak Home Improvements, purchasing the buildings in December of 2008 and beginning renovations little over a year later. The Faulkners have been steadfast about retaining the building's original design and integrity during the process: roughly 80 percent of the 1907 brick has been retained. Leasing of office space in the facility is almost complete. Presently one former building is now home for the Cornerstone Autism Center. The Faulkners—and Greenwood for that matter—are excited about what will result in the rebirth of a pivotal landmark in Greenwood's early beginnings. But, as with most things, it takes time.

Polk Place in early 2000 was a popular hang-out destination for the teenage crowd. Any element of folklore has to have its origins. Did it begin with these teenage urban explorers, on those nights when the silent buildings seemed to resonate with something unworldly? Reports of tall shadows shifting in the darkness, voices without a source and the general creepy feeling of being watched—all unnerving, and quite possibly manufactured by an over active imagination—originated in this era. Or not... who's to say? Folks associated with the Polk

Cannery have come and gone into the capsule of the past, yet remnants of the Polk era still remain and carry on, locked in a time capsule of brick, wood and mortar. Possibly some of the remnants of these folks also still remain?

The remaining buildings today once held court to a different place and time when the work was hard, yet there was a particular sense of innocence and wonder for the period. Some claim these types of locations—buildings and the surrounding grounds—can soak in the past like a sponge. That's a theory anyway.

People who have invested a part of themselves in a location will sometimes leave an imprint behind...to be replayed at a later time of their choosing. With the blood, sweat, and toil that was a daily part of the Polk canning operation, there was certainly that investment! There is the possibility that some never entirely go away.

So they say....

Painting an entrepreneurial pathway

Southport's Casey Domek learns entrepreneurial skills with Student Painters

FEATURE

By Nicole Davis

Southport High School graduate Casey Domek said he can see himself running his own business one day, and he's starting now by acting as branch manager for Student Painters, an exterior paint company.

"It's going to be a challenge," Domek said. "I'm looking forward to doing something a lot of 20 year olds don't normally get to do and help other college students."

Student Painters gives full-time students the opportunity to earn tuition and expenses for the following school year. The students receive all training needed, and can learn leadership skills by running their own businesses. Domek said they will paint exteriors or vacant interiors by brushing and rolling, with Sherman Williams paint. Domek is a sophomore at Indiana University earning a degree in health administration. He said he began working to gain clients early this year, though the actual painting doesn't begin until May when school lets out.

"The goal right now is to get the name out there," Domek said. "I don't know if anyone has done student painters on this side of town. With it being spring, now people are there are people thinking about painting. I come home every weekend so I can provide a free estimate."

As a branch manager, Domek will oversee a crew of 12-15 employees in the Indianapolis area, including Beech Grove, Southport and Greenwood. Painting will wrap up in August. Domek said he has been challenging himself to see just how well he can do this summer.

"I've been hard working since a young age," Domek said. "Any team I've been on, coaches

Kiwanis concession stand to open at Baxter YMCA

The Perry Township Kiwanis club will open its concession stand on April 5 to serve youngsters participating in the Baxter YMCA spring soccer and baseball leagues and their families. "The concession stand has become a tradition at these games," said event coordinator Scott Splichal. "It's not only a great community service project but also an important fundraiser for the club," added Splichal, who also serves on the club's board of directors. "We are grateful to the Baxter YMCA for making its facilities available to us for the concession stand. It's a win-win activity for both organizations." Patrons may select from a variety of healthful items, including fresh fruit, low-calorie soft drinks, bottled water, and low-sugar packaged snacks. Proceeds from these sales are used to support a variety of community programs, including college scholarships, Riley Hospital for Children, RISE Learning Center, Perry Senior Citizens, the Hunger Inc. food bank, and others. OUR VIEW

Writing on the walls

There's a new graffiti ordinance in town; and it states that if you are the property owner of a graffiti-vandalized house or business, you will receive a letter from the Department of Code Enforcement and have 30 days to remove or cover the graffiti or pay a $50 fine.

Supporters of the ordinance say that they don't want to penalize victims of a crime they didn't commit, but critics claim that's exactly what's happening. While we think it's good to clean up our communities and keep graffiti off our storefronts and foreclosed homes, this isn't exactly the incentive we were looking for. Yes, it makes neighborhoods less attractive to potential homebuyers—not to mention those of us who have to look at it every day—but dishing out fines is hardly the way to go about cleaning up Indy.

Furthermore, who exactly is going to fine the city for all the graffiti on bridges and city-owned properties? For some reason, we doubt the city is going to be able to clean up every overpass, street sign and park within that 30 day window. And why are we so worried about graffiti when we're still having to cope with this influx of shootings and violent crimes? Get your priorities straight, Indy.

For now, though, this is what we're stuck with. Victims of vandalism can reach out to non-profit organizations like Keep Indianapolis Beautiful for free or discounted paint. Keep Indianapolis Beautiful, Inc., is located at 1029 Fletcher Ave., Suite 100, or call (317) 264-7555.

The terrors of bank transactions and trickery

I had a seven dollar and nine cent charge on my bank statement this week. Try as I might, I was unable to connect it to anything I had done over the past 30 days or so. It was a charge from a company I never heard of. I asked the wife and she had no idea either. The bank was unable to tell me anything. I came near to dismissing it until the morning newspaper came out.

Scott Emmett Columnist

The article in question detailed the newest internet scam. It seems some people get hold of what may or may not be an account number and try to make a small charge against it. If it works, they go after more the next time. Something like that. Anyway, the trick is to take small amounts at a time on the assumption that most folks will not pick up on it.

The human imagination can do wonderful things. It can create lofty ideals to elevate the state of man and dream great dreams of scientific discovery. It can also take some weird turns.

I woke up at 3 a.m. the other day and the seven dollar and nine cent charge was on my mind. One's imagination is more than creative at 3 a.m. It asked me where that charge came from and added a few suggestions of its own creation. First, it was a small time hood who just happened to guess at my account number and hit pay dirt. The small time hood grew to an international crime syndicate and wound up being arms smugglers and pirate gangs. I slept not a wink whilst my imagination suggested every malevolent creature in the free world having a hand in this seven dollar and nine cent exchange.

It was with some trepidation that I went to my bank the next day to investigate this seedy transaction. Friendly as she was, my bank representative was unable to track down the source of this evil that would remove all of my hard earned savings in short order.

After a few hours of searching, my bank friend called. The terror that had robbed me of seven dollars and nine cents had been located. It was a coffee shop at the university where my bride frequents. At least we kept it on the Southside.

Obamacare deadline has come and gone

So, the March 31 deadline came and went with much fanfare for registering for Obamacare. President Barack Obama's signature initiative reeled in a little more than seven million registrants. How many healthy, previously insured folks were piped aboard the Good Ship Socialist? How many we're previously uninsured? We believe you can make educated guesses at answers. We should all remain quite skeptical about anything this administration says. Remember, "If you like your doctor, you can keep your doctor?" Or, "If you like your plan, you can keep your plan?"

We found it interesting that the federal government actually recruited former NBA stars Earvin "Magic" Johnson and Alonzo Mourning to pitch Obamacare. On our dime, yet. Breathtaking. And we found it pulverizing to our collective intelligence that Vice President Joe Biden (can't believe we're using "intelligence" and "Biden" in the same sentence) took to no less a platform than the Rachel Ray Show in one last appeal to gain registrants last Monday. We always adhere to the old adage: The more explaining one has to do to sell an idea, it's probably a bad idea.

The life of misfit strays

READER'S WRITES

When I first put the food down the light grayish mother cat began to eat. One by one the small kittens came out from hiding and ran directly to the food. I moved back just a little to let them have their freedom, smiled to myself and turned around for home.

As the days went on, I continued to feed and watch these beautiful kittens grow. I was feeding them beside an old empty house that sat on private property. I found the owner's name and went to her for permission to feed the strays on her lot. She okay'd the feeding but told me that her dog had just killed two of the kittens. She tried to stop it but was too late. Saddened, I went to the lot hoping she was wrong and found the mother cat gone, and left by herself was the little orange one. I tried to catch it but she ran and hid where I could not go. I did notice she was limping but did not find out until later that her right rear leg was gone. I'm not sure if she was born this way, or the dog took it off as she was running. I named her Peggy, because of her peg-leg.

I continued to put food out for her, along with a shy calico cat that always stayed in the distance until I left. There were two older orange cats that I had been feeding in another location for about two years, I named them Orange One and Orange Two. They looked so much alike you could hardly tell them apart. They both were very friendly and would let almost anybody pet them. When they saw me coming with food, they would get excited and rub against each other until I got the food ready.

One day Orange 2 showed up with her tail all black and partially gone. It looked like she had gotten into some kind of acid, or someone poured something on her. Some people can be so cruel to animals. A couple of days passed and she was not looking good. I called Indy Feral and they came out to see if they could catch her; they were going to give her medical treatment. Orange Two was nowhere to be found and has not been seen since. I only presume she is in a better place. I know her buddy Orange One is very lonely, for they had been together for such a long time. Sometimes Orange One would follow me home and stand outside my door to watch me walk up the steps. When I peeked around the corner she would still be there. Who knows how long she waited. She has been feral too long to take in, but sometimes I wish I could.

One day while I was feeding Orange One I noticed a big dirty grey cat watching me from under a parked car. I took a bowl of food over to him and he came out on the sidewalk to eat. His body was large and ugly with the fur on his back thin and partially gone. He had a beautiful face, and looking closer I could see he had only one eye. The bad eye looked like it had been torn out, possibly in a fight with another cat. If these creatures could talk, what great stories they could tell. I named this stray Popeye, and I'm sure you know why. Popeye is a one of a kind feline, and a pure tom cat. He moans when I pet him and sometimes he tries to bite me when I pick up the empty food bowls. I know he loves his food, for when I walk toward the lot to feed the strays, he is waiting in the yard watching for me to come down the street. When Popeye sees me coming, he runs to the edge of the yard to greet me.

Today Orange One was sitting under my car and ran out to greet me. Her fur was dirty and ratted and her eyes were red and squinty. I reached down and petted her and she gave me that funny meow that only she can do. This cat has survived three years or more of living outside in the rain, heat and cold, and never having a real home. How much longer can she really survive?

Well I have four misfits to feed, Peggy who has only three legs, Popeye who has but one eye, Orange One who is now by herself because of her missing buddy and Calico who is just a loner and will never get close. She just looks up with those beautiful eyes and never makes a sound. My misfit felines, it is hard not to get close to these beautiful creatures.

It's all Goodrum

The Social of Greenwood has grown and changed over the past two years under the direction of Bob Goodrum...with more to come

FEATURE

By Nicole Davis

There has been a lot of change at The Social of Greenwood, formerly the Greenwood Senior Center, since Bob Goodrum came on as executive director two years ago, including new programming, new technology and transitions in staff. So far, Bob said those changes are reflected in the Social's membership. When he arrived in March 2012 membership had declined to 317 members, the same amount they had in 1989. It's now "knocking on 600."

"Now we're looking at the renovation of the facility because those changes have brought new members," Goodrum said. "We say this isn't your grandma's senior center. We're seeing adults wanting to be active longer and living longer. Sitting around and telling tall tales doesn't really appeal to them. When we become more active in our programs, our membership expands and we're looking to be able to accommodate that with a new parking lot and facilities."

Goodrum came to the Social with no background in working with older adults. After graduating from St. Paul Christian University, he began working as a teacher, coach and youth pastor. He then worked with the homeless in Indianapolis for 14 years and then for six years in youth mentoring organizations, more recently as chief program officer with Big Brothers and Big Sisters of Central Indiana. With budget cuts, that position was eliminated and Goodrum began searching for a new career. He said when he applied for the executive director position at the Social, he never expected to get it.

"They asked me, with seniors and youth, how that transition would work," Goodrum said. "I said I think whether you're a young kid in the inner city needing a mentor or you're 70, we're all looking for the same thing - love, acceptance and forgiveness. If you just give those, you'll probably do okay no matter where you are. I guess they thought the same thing."

Goodrum took over for Betty Davis, founding director. She stayed on part-time for a year before retiring, allowing Goodrum to learn from her. Once Davis left, Goodrum said there was another period of transition. They went from three part-time staff to one full-time staff, hiring Liz McKinley. He said even though they've reduced staff hours, their productivity has increased with McKinley's background coming from the Indianapolis Senior Center.

When he first came to the Social, Goodrum said technology was a large focus. They were working with Radio Shack-brand cordless residential phones, but have since switched to a business phone system. The database was still in DOS, a program Goodrum said he hadn't used since college. They switched to a database called My Senior Center, allowing them to connect with senior centers nationwide. The computer system was upgraded, Web site further developed and social media sites like Facebook, Twitter and Instagram were introduced.

"If you look at the number of seniors living in Greenwood, we've only tapped 5 percent of the senior population in Greenwood," Goodrum said. "So there are plenty of ways to grow. So we're looking for new ways to market ourselves and social media is a part of that."

At the same time as improving its technology, the Social was engaging more with its members, with new classes in everything from exercise to education. This summer they plan to introduce two new classes - walking and gardening.

"Seniors and kids are a lot alike in the way you have to approach some things with them," Goodrum said. "Change is not something many of them readily embrace. What I've been blessed with is, when you take the time to explain the change, that the change is for their benefit and they clearly understand that, they are incredibly supportive. But don't change it without talking to them first."

Goodrum said their mission is to enhance the quality of life for older adults in the community, and he feels the new changes are helping fulfill that. Now, the facility needs to reflect it.

"We thought we were going to move, even

got an acceptable offer on the purchase of this building but finding what we needed square-footage wise and with parking at a price we could afford just didn't exist in the Greenwood market," Goodrum said.

They recently began fundraising to upgrade the facility at 550 Polk St., participating in Brackets for Good, a tournament for nonprofits taking place each March. The Social made it three rounds before losing to Southeast Community Services, Inc. Goodrum said through that, they raised 10 percent of what they needed to redo the parking lot. They will continue to raise money, offering a parking space sponsorship. He said they will add 10 new parking spaces and repave, completing the project by fall.

In addition to the parking lot, construction will take place inside. He said they will get both restrooms to ADA compliance by fall. For some of the renovations, he said it's just about utilizing the space they have in a more productive manner.

The Social's 2014 Senior Expo is coming May 8, 9 a.m. - noon at The Gathering Place, 1495 W. Main St., Greenwood. Goodrum said even that fundraiser has increased in attendance, sponsors and vendors - with offerings attendees won't find at every senior center. Along those same lines, he said he tells everyone the Social has things they won't find at every senior center.

"With the Social, I would like to invite people to move beyond their perceptions of a senior center and just come down and visit," Goodrum said. "If folks would come and see yes, we do bingo and things you would typically see in a senior center, but we also do things you wouldn't expect. We offer everything from a chair exercise and you use resistance bands and are seated the whole time to a NIA class for folks who are more mobile and more fit."

After two years at the Social, Goodrum said the future is looking bright. He said he has enjoyed spending time with the members. The downside to that, he laughs, is he's put on some weight because everyone bakes so well and is happy to share with him.

"I probably get more hugs per day than I ever have in my life," Goodrum said. "Everyone wants a hug and that's cool. I actually had a hug therapy class in college, talking about all the benefits, the endorphins it releases, how it leads to longevity of life and all that. Now I'm seeing those folks it really affects."

Donna Shortt, from the southside of Indianapolis, is one of 43 artists selected to display artwork at the Indiana Artists Club, 82nd Annual Exhibition, beginning April 6, at the Indianapolis Museum of Art (IMA). Her painting, "Southcreek Winter," is eligible for one of 20 awards, including a $3,000 award for "Best of Show." The award winners will be announced at a free public reception on Sunday, April 27, 2014, at 2 p.m. at the IMA, 4000 Michigan Road, Indianapolis. The exhibition was juried from more than 140 entries by the Melvin and Bren Simon Director and CEO of the Indianapolis Museum of Art, Dr. Charles Venable. The exhibition, which is in the IMA's Community Gallery, runs through June 8, 2014. It is free and open to the public during regular museum hours: Tuesday – Saturday, 11 a.m. to 5 p.m. with extended hours to 9 p.m. on Thursday and Friday; Sunday, noon to 5 p.m.

The Baxter YMCA introduces new training program

This April, the Baxter YMCA, 7900 S. Shelby St., introduced Synergy, a new team circuit training program that is led by a certified personal trainer and designed to build strength and endurance. After listening to the needs of its members, personal training program and group exercise participants, the Baxter YMCA designed a training program to challenge the fittest athlete and encourage growth in beginners. "You could compare what we do in the studio to a Crossfit class, except the Y has child watch, classes are led by a nationally certified personal trainer, we have showers on site and participants can even chill out in the pool after class if they want," Wellness Director David Smith said. Synergy sessions take place in a new, small group training studio at the Baxter YMCA. Working in groups of six to ten, participants will meet weekly in the studio featuring LifeFitness Synrgy360 equipment. For more information, contact David Smith at dmith@indyma.org or call (317) 865-6463.

Bad Words... Spells F-U-N

MOVIE REVIEW

Ever watched the Scripps National Spelling Bee only to be put to shame by a 10-year-old kid's ability to spell malacophilous, oleacranon, or some other word that hasn't found its way into your vocabulary? Likely, by the second or third word you found yourself dumbfounded and googling those terms to see if they exist. Well, what would happen if you took this spelling bee setting full of adolescents with high IQs and big vocabularies and threw in a 40-something guy with low self-esteem and even lower character? Put those two elements together and you get the new film, Bad Words, starring and directed by Jason Bateman.

Adam Staten Movie Review

Bateman plays 40-year-old Guy Trilby, who because of a rule technicality, has managed to finagle his way into a regional spelling bee. After managing to find a loophole in the system, Trilby understandably finds a healthy amount of hostility from judges, parents of children, the media, and everyone in between. Soon Guy is on his way to the national spelling bee along with his media sponsor, Jenny, an online reporter desperately trying to uncover Trilby's motivation for entering the competition.

During the flight to the national spelling competition, Trilby encounters fellow competitor, inquisitive and friendless 10-year-old Chaitanya Chopra. Despite Guy's barrage of profane and racist comments, Chaitanya persists on befriending Guy. Eventually, the two form an odd friendship as Guy takes him out for a night on the town, which consists of burgers, pranks, alcohol and topless women. As Bad Words progresses, we learn of Guy's real motivation for entering the competition and get a few twists and turns which threatens the newly formed friendship between Guy and Chaitanya.

Bateman, who plays the mean-spirited and vindictive Guy Trilby, does so adequately and admirably. Bateman displays enough of his trademark wit and sarcasm to carry the film and keep it consistently funny. Anytime the film gets a little slow or uninteresting, Bateman is good enough to keep you more than interested in this deeply twisted character, Guy Trilby.

Similar to Bad Santa, Bad Words is a story about a character who swears up and down and exposes a child to less than wholesome behavior. However, unlike Bad Santa, Bad Words somewhat cops out for a happy ending and Guy's "motivation" for entering the competition is unlikely to keep him going throughout the competition.

Even with Guy's insane motivating factor and an ending that doesn't quite fit, Bad Words is a consistently funny and good time.

Southside library branches included in Gun Lock Giveaway partnership

The Marion County Sheriff's Office and The Indianapolis Public Library announced an expansion of the gun lock giveaway program. The pilot program for this partnership between the Marion County Sheriff's Office and The Indianapolis Public Library began with pick-up locations at six Library branches, however, the program's popularity, including more than 500 gun locks being distributed out of the Irvington Branch alone, led to expanding the number of branches at which the free gun locks are available. Free gun locks will now be available at branches including the Franklin Road Branch, 5550 S Franklin Road, the Garfield Park Branch, 5202 Shelby Street. This is in addition to the original six pick up sites including the Southport Branch, 2630 E Stop 11 Road.

Change coming for credit cards?

The recent massive data breaches at retailers over the holiday season that compromised at least 70 million customers' credit card information have some experts predicting an increased call to get chip-based cards to become mainstream in the United States. Credit cards that use smart chips instead of magnetic strips, called EMV cards, are harder for hackers to duplicate and are common across Europe, according to Rob Sadowski, director of technology solutions for cyber security firm RSA. However, they have yet to be implemented across the United States as many merchants do not have the proper technology to accept the cards in stores. - Fox Business

Nativity student Charlie Seed wins swim championship event

Charlie Seed, a seventh grader at Nativity Catholic School, competed in the Indiana Age Group State Swimming Championships the weekend of March 14-16 at the IU-PUI Natatorium in Indianapolis. Charlie qualified to swim all events in his age group. He placed 12th in the 200 Individual Medley and 13th in the 50 yard backstroke. He was a top 10 finisher in the 50 yard freestyle, the 100 yard butterfly and the 100 yard freestyle. Charlie capped off the weekend by winning the boys 11-12 year-old 50 yard butterfly event. Charlie swims with the Jaguar Aquatics program, and is coached by Ed Merkling and Sarah Voiles.

Little Mermaid, Jr. comes to Nativity

The 6th, 7th and 8th grades of Nativity Catholic School recently sang and danced their way through the musical production of "Disney's Little Mermaid, Jr." More than 50 Nativity middle school students participated as either actors or stage hands in the musical version of the movie based on a fairy tale by Hans Christian Anderson. The cast was under the direction of Mrs. Margie Hamm, Nativity School Music Educator. The Nativity stage was alight with sea creatures such as mermaids, seagulls, electric eels, fish and a lovely red crab.

Super-doooper spring asparagus

NUTRITION

As a lad, at Mom's request, my brother and I picked fresh asparagus from a patch in the corner of the back yard that grew larger, hardier and more bountiful with each return of spring. Obediently, we carefully harvest spears, playfully jabbing at each other, imitating swashbuckling pirates. Mom would cook them to oblivion; flaccid, faded green and nutritionally DOA. The remainder of the year we ate it out of the can. To this day, when I see limp, overcooked asparagus, I'm grossed out. However, it was the norm.

You have every reason to add fresh asparagus to your diet and here's why. Asparagus is a rich source of glutathione - ("gloota-thigh-own"), a detoxifying compound that helps break down carcinogens and harmful free radicals. It's the mother of all antioxidants, the master detoxifier and maestro of the immune system. Eating fresh asparagus may help protect against and fight certain forms of cancer, such as bone, breast, colon, larynx and lung cancers. Within a half-hour of consumption, 40 percent of human life forms notice their urine has acquired a sulfur-like, pungent odor. Get over it; you're not dying. Dad often used the expression when something was offensively odoriferous that it "smelled like an asparagus farm outhouse."

The Huffington Post reports more than 89,000 medical articles have pontificated on the benefits of glutathione. The secret to slowing down aging, preventing cancer, heart disease, and Alzheimer's is in hand, alas many Hoosiers refuse to add plant foods to their daily diet as creation intended Mindful Eating means taking a moment in your distracted, busy life, to observe what's at the end of your fork and intelligently recognize its heavenly significance to your wellbeing. Every food on Earth has a reason for existing, just like you do. Where was the asparagus grown, who watered and tended it, is it genetically altered, was it sprayed with insecticide, should I wash it, and most importantly, is it nourishing my temple or trashing it?

Please don't feloniously assault your asparagus. Simply steam, grill or boil the emerald gems no more than one minute. Emperor Augustus created the idiom, 'velocius quam asparagi conquantur,' meaning to do something faster than you can cook asparagus. Julius Caesar talked of eating it with butter, and King Louis XIV dubbed asparagus, "The King of Vegetables."

Asparagus, a member of the lily family can be wrapped in poached Leek tops, scrambled with eggs, garlic and Parmesan, blended into a smoothie, added to vegetable tray, or eaten raw. Sandi keeps it fresher longer by storing the green goodies in the fridge in a ball jar like cut flowers. Canned or frozen asparagus is bogus. Check out Chefwendell.com/recipes.

We all must eat. It's a basic requirement of living, like breathing and sleeping. Love yourself and establish a healthy and joyful relationship with real food and say hello to your highest potential.

Effortless Easter ham

RECIPE

For The Southside Times by Family Features

This year, make your Easter ham effortless by ditching the oven and using your slow cooker instead. While most people think about slow cooking for staples like chili and stew, it's also perfect for center-of-the-plate feasts — like an Easter ham.

Using the slow cooker, you can minimize both prep time and cleanup time, leaving plenty of room in the day for church, hunting eggs and enjoying time with your loved ones.

Ham is a tradition for many families this time of year, and because it pairs well with a multitude of ingredients, you can create a unique dish every time.

For a fresh spin on the classic ham, try this Sweet Southern Slow-Cooker Ham recipe from the National Pork Board. Apple cider and bourbon (or vanilla extract, if you prefer) combine to create a rich flavor complemented

Sweet Southern Slow-Cooker Ham

Yield: 12 servings

Prep time: 10 minutes

Cook time: 4 to 8 hours

- 1 bone-in fully cooked ham, about 5 1/2 pounds
- 1 cup apple cider
- 1/2 cup dark brown sugar
- 1/3 cup Kentucky bourbon
- 1/4 cup honey
- 1/4 cup Dijon mustard
- 4 fresh thyme sprigs

Place ham in large slow cooker. Whisk cider with brown sugar, bourbon, honey and mustard. Slowly pour over ham. Scatter thyme sprigs into slow cooker.

Cook on high for 4 hours or on low for 8 hours, or until very tender. Remove ham to rest on cutting board. Pass remaining cooking liquid through fine mesh sieve into saucepan. Simmer for 10 minutes or until slightly reduced. Carve ham into serving pieces. Brush ham pieces with cooking liquid before arranging on platter. Serve warm or at room temperature.

Note: For a non-alcoholic alternative, replace the bourbon with 1/4 cup water and 1 tablespoon vanilla extract.

Huck swims under the direction of Roncalli boys swimming and diving head coach Ed Merkling, who was recently named the Franklin Community Sectional Coach of the Year.

Giving 'short shrift' its proper due

GRAMMAR GUY

Question: "I noticed the words 'short thrift' in the phrase 'The others may get short thrift.' This quite possibly can be an auto correct that made an incorrect change or a typo, but it should read 'short shrift,' which means to make short work of or dismiss summarily. According to my dictionary, it originally meant a very brief period of confession and absolution before death." (Joy Shepherd, Hendricks County)

Question: "Dear Jordan, did you perhaps mean 'short shrift' [in your column]? I enjoy your column. English was one of my favorite subjects to teach." (Marcia Lehrman)

Answer: Oh, I do love you, dear readers, especially when you teach me new things (and find polite ways to say, "Uh, Jordan, I think you're wrong here").

A few weeks ago I used the phrase "short thrift" in a column. It seems the phrase is in fact "short shrift," and I've been using it wrong for all these years. I'm pretty sure I still sing

"Stairway to Heaven" wrong too, though, so it's in good company.

The phrase I wanted, "short shrift," means "little or no attention or thought" — as in, "I gave my younger brother short shrift when we were kids."

As Joy accurately mentioned, the phrase derives from an archaic word which is itself no longer used — "shrift" — meaning a confession or absolution given by a priest. According to the American Heritage Dictionary of the English Language, the phrase "short shrift" came about meaning a "brief penance given to a person condemned to death so that absolution could be granted before execution."

While "shrift" has more or less died off as a word on its own, the phrase "short shrift" has lived on with a decidedly less morbid meaning. So, never fear, older siblings of the world: We can continue ignoring the younger ones without portending their imminent demise!

Center Grove to sell Olive Branch Road property

Center Grove Community School Corporation (CGCSC) plans to sell property it owns along Olive Branch Road. The property spans approximately 12 acres on the south side of Olive Branch Road between Runyon Road to the east and Morgantown Road to the west. The plot has a considerable amount of road frontage along Olive Branch Road and extends all the way south to the former Walnut Ridge Golf Course, which is also for sale. The CGCSC Board of School Trustees voted Oct. 3, 2013 to approve the sale. Sealed bids will be accepted until April 23 when a public sale will take place. # New Hope connections

Greenwood's Brooks family stays actively involved at New Hope church for 20 years

WHERE WE WORSHIP

Kelly and Matt Brooks have reached their 20th year of worshipping and actively participating at New Hope Greenwood. Kelly has attended the church since it opened, and after college asked Matt to give it a try, just for a summer in 1994. During that time, he was asked to serve, got involved, and the couple never wanted to leave. Now their two children, Saddle and Charlie, are actively involved at the church as well.

"It all goes back to the opportunities," says Kelly, who teaches 6th grade at Center Grove Middle School Central. "We take those opportunities and that's why we feel so connected. If someone's coming to a church, it's important to find that connection."

Kelly says she enjoys the size of New Hope Greenwood; it's not extremely large, but not too small, so there are a lot of opportunities to serve and get to know other church members.

"We don't focus on lots of programs," Kelly says. "It's equipping people to go out and serve where they are."

Through the years, the family has served with many ministries. Matt is currently on the council chair. Here, Matt discusses more about the impact New Hope has had on their family.

What is it about your place of worship that helps you grow spiritually?

New Hope has a wonderful environment that promotes personal growth in the Bible as well as investing in people's lives. Our pastoral staff biblically teaches from the Bible and encourages us to live according to God's teaching. There are several study groups on Sunday morning and through the week that people can get involved in. One of the areas that had the biggest effect on me is Hope Groups, small cell groups where more intimate relationships are developed and promote study of the Bible, encouragement and accountability to how we live our lives.

It is also about being encouraged to live mission-oriented lives at New Hope. We have opportunities to serve people in our church as well as outside of our building.

What is it about your place of worship that helps you feel connected to your spouse, children, parents or family?

We have two kids, ages 16 and 11, and both are involved at New Hope. We have had the opportunity to go on a mission trip for spring break two years ago as a family with our church to Nicaragua. Our kids participate in youth programs and genuinely enjoy attending together.

What is one meaningful event that has taken place at your place of worship?

We have attended New Hope for 20 years, and it is hard to single out one meaningful event. However, one that is the essence of New Hope being on mission, is an annual Christmas celebration. We have a neighborhood outreach ministry that serves youth in a community as mentors, tutors, friends and families. During the Christmas season, we invite them to our campus and serve them by having a Christmas celebration banquet. It includes food, worship time, songs and presents for the kids. It is such a rush to the soul to see the enjoyment of those who come to the event whom we have established some solid relationships with for Christ. This event is put on by volunteers, Hope Groups and those that serve in the neighborhood ministry.

Why would you recommend your place of worship to someone?

New Hope has always been a place where getting connected is important. Once you're connected you start to serve. When you start to serve, you start to grow. So that is why we exist. We realize that not everyone is ready to jump right in. Our friendly congregation has a tendency to rub off on people, and the want to get connected.

New and better covenant

DEVOTIONAL

By Pastor Paul A. Kirby

"No man putteth a piece of new cloth unto an old garment, for that which is put in to fill it up taketh from the garment, and the rent is made worse. Neither do men put new wine into old bottles: else the bottles break, and the wine runneth out, and the bottles perish: but they put new wine into new bottles, and both are preserved." ~ Matthew 9:16-17

So, what is this all about? Is Jesus giving sewing lessons now or is He giving lessons on how to preserve and bottle new and old wine? No, not at all. What this is about is the fact that He has not come to repair the religions of man but to present to us a new thing packaged in a new way. The Old Covenant that God made with the Old Covenant people wasn't working. If it had been working, He would not have had to send His only begotten Son into the world to have someone to believe in for eternal life. If the law was sufficient to save a person's soul, Christ had no reason to die on the cross. The Jews had made the Law God instead of God being the Law. They had more concerns about a person breaking the Law as they understood it than they did about the repairing of broken lives revealed by the Law. Christ came to do away with the old and to establish the new. The old covenant was passing away and a new and better covenant was being revealed and established by the Son of God.

This new covenant was established on a better foundation. The old covenant depended on what man did in response to God's Holy Law. Nothing at all was wrong with the Law. Man just was not capable of keeping it completely no matter how hard he attempted to do so. Man is flesh and flesh and blood cannot inherit the kingdom of God. That being the case, Christ came to make a way by a new covenant relationship with man whereby man could win the long desired victory over the flesh and become a spiritual being capable of living sinless in this life and forever in eternity. The new covenant is in the blood of Jesus Christ. Matthew 26:28 "28 For this is my blood of the new testament, which is shed for many for the remission of sins." Without the blood of Christ the New Covenant cannot be established. This is new. The old covenant required the shedding of the blood of bulls and goats but the new covenant requires the one-time shedding of the blood of the Son of God for everyone and for all time. No more will any substitute be asked for because the blood that makes a difference has been shed.

I thank God for His new and better covenant with us which He made through His Son, Jesus Christ. May you come to love it, also.

God bless and go and have a great day.

Paul A. Kirby is the pastor at the Church of God at 3939 S. Emerson Ave.
