Q: JANUARY 24 IS NATIONAL COMPLIMENT DAY. Can you recall a time when a compliment made a real difference in your life? What is a compliment you would like to offer another Southside resident?

"My grandparents always complimented me on helping them out and being more understanding of the fact that they were older and being caring. It made a difference in my life and it has carried over since then. I work with Visiting Nurse Service at St. Francis and I'm out with every day with their home health and their hospice." Tammy Dean, works in Beech Grove

"My dad helped me out a number of times throughout my life and throughout my career on my perseverance and how I've stuck to my goals and went after them as hard as I can despite any roadblocks I had in my way. It helped me strive to keep going. I'd like to thank my mom and dad for always looking out for me and my best interests. They have given me a lot of guidance on how I should structure myself and how I should achieve that."

Brad McCracken of Perry Township

Jeanelle Regal, works in Beech Grove

"My sister was diagnosed with cancer in July and I decided to shave my head and my co-workers clapped for me when I came in. That meant a lot to me and also meant a lot to her that they supported with fundraising. It wasn't a verbal compliment but was a physical sign of support that we are all in this fight together. My sister is 13 years younger than me. She is our hero. She showed us what strength was and what faith was."

Silent lucidity

HAUNTS & JAUNTS

By Rick Hinton

True love endures the test of time. Couples together for any length of time become as one. There's a sixth sense that transcends that reality. They not only finish each others sentences, but also reside on the same wavelength of mind. It's a comfortable state of silent lucidity as two travel life's adventures together.

Having a sense of humor in a marriage is good for the soul! When both partners share in laughter, merriment and the occasional prank upon one another, it becomes a tie that binds. The most successful couples I've seen have that gift of laughter and general yucking it up. Soulmates? Definitely!

Unfortunately, this road of life's adventure eventually comes to an end...

It would seem those connected in life's journey tend to remain connected after death. Does a surviving spouse receive visits from their soulmate? I believe, in certain instances, this can happen. There are those who claim these visits are a product of the mind or wishful thinking. However, in many instances, the evidence points otherwise. Sharon Kinder once had such a soulmate. He is described as one enjoying a good practical joke: cat food and sunflower seeds left on the dresser of a former home. She believes he has visited. Responding to an article from Jan. 5, "Ten most common signs you're being visited by deceased loved ones," she writes:

"Your topic was very timely. I had my very first realistic dream of my late husband (Don) 3 nights ago. He passed away almost 7 years ago. I found myself still talking to him as I was waking up...a very natural conversation. It felt so real that I checked my bedroom dresser for signs of cat food or sunflower seeds when I got up. Nothing there."

Bev Wagner shared her thoughts:

"The comment in your latest column about Sharon Kinder and her bird seed from Don reminds me of a conversation she and I have had about my deceased husband Jim. I found a stash of Halloween candy after he was gone. He used to hide it so I wouldn't know he was eating it. He also turned off my hot water for a few seconds while I was in the shower. Our lake cottage used to do that all the time, but this was in my home where it had NEVER happened. He still visits me from time to time, and it's been 3 years."

There are those that feel master illusionist Harry Houndi had supernatural powers. Prior to his death in 1926 he promised his wife Bess that he would let her know that all was well after he passed over. For years afterwards, until her death in 1943, attempts were made for contact. Unfortunately, no sign was ever given.

The Fowlers' 75th Wedding Anniversary Ronald and Fern Fowler will celebrate their 75th Wedding Anniversary on January 24th , 2017.

They were married at the Southport Methodist Church Parsonage by Fern's father, Rev. F. T. Taylor, on January 24th, 1942. Ron and Fern were high school sweethearts. Ron proposed at St. Agnes Catholic Church (at its former location on HWY 135 in Brown County). Fern accepted, and the rest, they say, is history...75 years of history.

Ron worked 39 years at Eli Lilly and Company. Fern was a comptometer operator, working at several of the department stores downtown. Later, she worked for Perry Township Schools. The Fowlers are the parents of two lovely daughters, Ann Kraft (Larry Sullivan), and Rita Towe (Jerry); four grandchildren: George Kraft IV (Olive), Pamela Taylor (Doug), Jerad Towe (Kristin), Jacob Towe (Lindsey Fleming); and six great-grandchildren.

Ron and Fern plan to celebrate this momentous and wonderful occasion with a small family dinner at Hollyhock Hill.

IMPD Motorcycle Drill Team, commanded by Southside's Sgt. Bret McAtee, heads to presidential inauguration parade

BY NICOLE DAVIS

In his 35 years of law enforcement and 34 years as a member of the Indianapolis Metropolitan Police Department's Motorcycle Drill Team, Bret McAtee estimates he has ridden in more than 1,000 parades.

He is planning to retire in January 2018 and is starting his final year on a high note. The team has been selected to participate in the presidential inaugural parade in Washington D.C. on Jan. 20.

"It's a great feeling of honor," Bret said. "In the circle of parades, that's about as big as it gets. It's very difficult to get into an inaugural parade. The units are limited per state. Each state has many nominations. Once you've (been selected), you have gotten to the top of your game. I'm glad I get to do something of this magnitude my last year with the police department. It is exciting to represent our city and our police department in front of the president of the United States."

Bret, now a Franklin Township resident, grew up on the Southside of Indianapolis. He attended Glenns Valley Elementary and graduated from Perry Meridian High School. He went to work as a mechanic, later realizing his career interests were in law enforcement. His father was a police officer and had been a role model to him. "My dad, Joe M c A t e e, took an interest in the mo-

torcycle drill team," Bret said. "When I was a kid I was able to hang around these motorcycle police officers. They accepted me. Even as a kid I felt I was part of the family. That impression these motorcycle guys made on me when I was a young guy was lasting."

Bret had two goals when he joined the Indianapolis Police Department, now IMPD, in 1982: become a sergeant in the motorcycle unit and join the motorcycle drill team. He was assigned to the traffic division, motorcycle unit, in 1983 and promoted to sergeant in 1986.

"I know how difficult it is to not only get promoted in our department, but to get promoted and be assigned to the area you want to be in," he said. "I was one of the lucky ones. I've done it 34 years. I still love my job. I still love to go to work."

Bret became drill master of the IMPD Motorcycle Drill Team in 1988, running practices and calling maneuvers over the radio. In 2005, he became the commander, running the day-to-day operations. He continues to serve as both drill master and commander. A new sergeant will take his place the beginning of next year.

The drill team is considered a goodwill ambassador for the city of Indianapolis and IMPD. The team has a board of directors consisting of primarily business men and women in Indianapolis. This makes Indianapolis one of few cities in the nation to have a privately-funded motorcycle drill team.

"Wherever they go, they always have rave reviews for their professionalism and the show they put on for the families and those watching," said Jeff Cardwell, board president. "They are such a great asset to our city and state... Bret has been the leader of the drill team for a number of years.

He's done an outstanding job. He is a great ambassador for our law enforcement, our team and police officers in general."

On average the team performs 15 events per year, approximately 10 in Indianapolis and five outside of the city. Bret said the number of events they have time to attend is limited, as Indianapolis has become a "special events city" which has increased demand for the traffic unit.

From performing at schools to larger events such as the Indianapolis 500 Parade, each event is special, Bret said.

"I remember all of them," he said. "We do any kind of event. We do a lot of small towns. We go to a lot of schools and let the kids take pictures with the guys. Those folks appreciate what we're doing, why we're there, as much as any big event."

As a non-political entity, the team is always nominated and invited to participate in parades.

In its 63-year history, the IMPD Drill Team has performed in six presidential inauguration parades. President-Elect Donald Trump's inauguration will make the seventh. The first time Bret performed in an inauguration was 1993 for President Bill Clinton.

"We were selected for that from a festival we did in West Virginia," Bret said. "The chairman of that West Virginia parade had been contacted and they wanted to know if he had any recommendations for an outstanding group that could participate. Instead of picking his state, he said I think you should pick the, then, Indianapolis Police Drill Team."

That inaugural parade was quite the experience. The team staged in the Pentagon at 5 a.m. The parade didn't start until 3 p.m.

"You're standing around, killing time all day," he said. "There was a national law enforcement network that came around to interview us. They asked about the drill team, our participation and how it felt. I said how about we put a show for you right here in the parking lot. There were thousands of people in this lot waiting to go to the parade also. We put on a show. All these people were blown away, applauding."

The team rides in a formation, with letters on the front of their motorcycles spelling out 'Indianapolis.' It is a challenge during an event such as that, Bret said, to not be tempted to turn their heads and look to see the president as they're passing by. If they do, they could fall out of formation. "We as police officers, we serve our city and we serve our country. That's what we believe in," Bret said. "I've done many presidential escorts, all of the presidents since I've been a police officer when they come to Indianapolis. To look behind you and see a car that holds the president of the United States is a pretty good feeling. Your job is to assist with getting that person to their destination safely. So when you get invited to ride for the president of the United States in the inaugural parade, that's huge. The feeling, I don't know how to describe it. It's American."

This time around, the IMPD Drill Team was nominated by Cardwell.

"It's not about any political party," Cardwell said. "It's about the celebration of freedoms that we all enjoy. One of the greatest things our nation has is having a peaceful transfer of power. People around the world are watching how America has freedom, liberty and free elections. It's an honor to participate in such a historic event that is so important to our democracy." The team typically practices once a week through Veterans Day, then takes a couple of months off. Knowing they had been selected for this inauguration, the team continued practicing through January.

The team is prepared. All they're waiting on now is the good weather on Friday. They left Indianapolis on Jan. 18. They will set up a motorcycle display for the Indiana Society Ball at their hotel on Jan. 19. They expect to leave for the parade staging at 4 a.m. Jan. 19. The parade begins at 3 p.m. The parade is organized into five divisions, led by each branch of the military. IMPD Motorcycle Drill Team will perform in the second division, led by the U.S. Marine Corps.

"There are people that would love to do what we're going to do," Bret said. "It's been 24 years since we last attended one. The guys are super excited."

DID YOU KNOW? Brief history of the IMPD Motorcycle Drill Team

- The team started in 1954 with seven officers on motorcycles who were veterans heading to an American Legion convention. There were seven officers, specifically, to spell out "INDIANA" as they rode in formation.
- The following year, the team had 12 officers, to spell out INDIANAPOLIS as they ride.
- The team currently has 20 police officers.
- The team competed for 12 years at an American Legion national competition. They were national champions for 11 of those years. The final championship was held in 1973.
- The first Inaugural parade the IMPD Drill Team performed was in 1961 for President John F. Kennedy.

Revival of lost art form is explored in University of Indianapolis exhibit and upcoming film

By Marianne Coil

The rollers for ink, the miles of antique printing equipment in collectors' basements, the specimen books of beautiful Victorian typeface – These tools and their owners are celebrated in a new documentary, Pressing On: The Letterpress Film, which includes Indianapolis printers and their stories of friendship.

Visitors to the Christel DeHaan Fine Arts Center can meet the filmmaker, Erin Beckloff, during an exhibition of contemporary letterpress printing. Letterpress Hullabaloo is open at the University of Indianapolis.

Beckloff collaborated with Bayonet Media, which filmed and edited Pressing On, still under review by film festivals for a possible showing. Until Beckloff and the production team find out whether their work has been accepted, they can present just a few clips. Beckloff will share them during a lecture Jan. 23, 5:30 p.m. after a reception which is open to the public.

The film explores why, in the digital age, the art of letterpress has survived. In the film, local printer Dave Peat says, "Maybe people have the same feeling I have."

The act of making an impression on paper is the source of his satisfaction. "I just enjoy seeing this happen. What else can you do as a hobby that is like that?" Peat says.

Beckloff said she first thought the revival of letterpress signaled a new arts and crafts movement, but she now believes that people want to be connected to a physical process.

The exhibition helps to kick off the creation of Hullabaloo Press, the in-house printing force of the Dept. of Art and Design at UIndy, according to Katherine Fries, assistant professor of Art and Design. Hullabaloo will provide to art majors many resources, including the possibility of collaborating with external groups.

The gallery show features hobbyists and professionals from the Midwest who keep alive the art of manual printing from woodcut typefaces. Scott Moore, a type cutter who says he is one of three people in the world still making such products, will display tools and give a lecture Jan. 31. He is also Beckloff's father.

Connections among the exhibitors are typical of overlapping circles in the printing community, Beckloff said. She is an assistant professor of Graphic Design at Miami University of Ohio, where Fries completed her MFA degree. Also, many exhibitors belong to the Amalgamated Printers' Association. Samples from about 70 association members are included in a dome of prints clipped to printer's twine.

This dome by Beckloff is called *Letter*press Hemisphere, and the way to view it is to stand underneath and look up.

Beckloff's journey began when her inlaws gave her a letterpress printer as a wedding gift. Later, while completing her graduate degree in graphic design, she embarked on the film project to preserve the legacy of the printers. The film is backed by 951 investors who contributed on Kickstart.com to raise over $71,000 in one month.

GREENWOOD COMMON COUNCIL

Meeting January 16

What happened: Resolution 17-03 passes first reading 5-3. Ordinance 17-05 was introduced to the council.

What it means: Resolution 17-03 will give tax abatements to Scannell Properties #293 for their property located on Chaney Avenue. They plan to redevelop the property into a 232,500 square foot speculative warehouse.

Ordinance 17-05 will prohibit truck (defined as a semi-trailer truck cab with or without a trailer) traffic on the following streets: Main Street between Emerson Avenue and U.S. Highway 31; Alexander Street between Airport Parkway and Country Aire Lane; and (3) Country Aire Drive between Country Aire Lane and Emerson Avenue.

What's next: Resolution 17-03 will appear before the council for its second reading and Ordinance 17-05 will go for its first reading Feb. 8.

SOUTHPORT CITY COUNCIL

Meeting January 16

What happened: Ordinance 16.10.07 was approved on third reading. Resolutions 3, 4, 5 and 6 were approved. Ordinance 17.01.01 was approved on first reading.

What it means: Ordinance 16.10.07 is in regards to weed and rank vegetation, aimed to clean up Southport.

Ordinance 17.01.01 is an amendment to the ordinance on annual compensation of police, so that the police chief salary reflects pay for annual health insurance package.

What happened: Resolution 2 was approved, upon lengthy discussion.

What it means: Resolution 2 establishes RDC Special Taxing District Bonds. The Southport Redevelopment Commission has been working with Partnership for Affordable Housing to develop a senior living complex on the property which has been vacant many years. In case PAH's agreement with the landowner does not come to fruition, the RDC is seeking the option to purchase the property through a bond, in the maximum amount of $310,000, not to exceed 5 percent annual interest. This will raise taxes approximately $50 per household. Balance on the property is $284,000. "Part of the problem is we depended totally on the developers," said Duane Langreck, RDC president. "PAH has been in the process of this for two years... We have had no control or no leverage." He later continued, "We need to take control of our own destiny." If the PAH deal falls through at the end of the month, the city will close on the property by the end of February. They will give PAH six months to purchase it, but will immediately begin to market the property.

The audience spoke, the majority, in favor of this bond.

"I am begging this community to move forward. We have a fighting chance," said Jane Haganman, retired owner of Southport Antique Mall which neighbors the property the city is looking to purchase.

"The GSBA (Greater Southside Business Alliance) is all in favor of the city and we're supporting you on this," said Kevin Wheeler, owner of Cardinal Insurance.

"I don't know how many people here remember how the concrete plant got put in the middle of a residential area that was well established. If you don't control that land, then you're putting something like that, that people (on that street) live with for years," Marilyn Mayfield, lifelong resident of Southport.

"That property has been a negative on that whole section from the train tracks to Madison... Tonight is about the most important meeting I think this council will have... That property is so key to the future." said Wendall Adams, RDC member.

In brief...

• A public hearing was held prior to the council meeting. Amy Miller from Cornerstone Grant Management discussed the grant application for the Community Center Remodel Project. The Southport Community Center was first constructed in 1974. Langreck said with the police station and government offices relocating to a new facility later this year, there is a need to remodel the community center to better fit the city and community's needs. Miller asked for letters of support from the community. The city will be notified by July 1 if they receive this federal grant or not.

Taking action Becoming involved

The first Action Team meeting of 2017 for The South Indy Quality of Life Plan will be held on Jan. 24, 5:30 - 7 p.m. at Emmerich Manual High School, 2405 Madison Ave., Indianapolis.

The Southside Times is happy to have been following this story from its inception: the announcement of a community partnership leading to a bus tour around the Southside of Indianapolis to showcase the community and highlight areas which need improvement. It's tremendous how much this has grown! Community members far and large have come together to join the process, spreading energy about the endless possibilities of a better life on the Southside.

The University of Indianapolis, Fifth Third Bank, Indianapolis Neighborhood Housing Partnership (INHP) and Local Initiatives Support Corporation (LISC) partnered in 2015 to lead the Quality of Life Plan. A steering team was formed with approximately 20 members consisting of elected officials, neighborhood and community leaders. Scarlett Martin was brought in that year as a community builder to conduct interviews and surveys with Southside residents and educate them of the importance of a quality of life plan.In February 2016, a Visioning Summit was held and afterwards volunteers formed seven action teams to create each part of the plan. Those action team topics are: community building, housing, connectivity, Madison Avenue Corridor, education and workforce, Shelby Street Corridor and health and wellness. The plan was released on Dec. 13.

Not it's time to take action and put that planning into work. All of these action teams are looking for new members to assist in their efforts. Those interested in becoming more involved in their community - and maybe just didn't know how before - are encouraged to join in on Jan. 24. Big or small, every effort counts! For more information, visit soindy.org or contact info@southsideindy.org.

TOP TEN REASONS YOU'RE BANNED FROM THE MALL

By Torry Stiles

- 10. The bulk candy store might tolerate a bit of "free taste" but seven pounds of gummi worms is pushing things a bit too far.
- 9. Mattress displays are for selling not Wrestlemania re-enactments.
- 8. The Fitting Room is plainly marked, "Fitting Room." The restrooms...
- 7. "Marco!" "Polo!"
- "Marco!"
- "Polo!" "Hey! Get out of the fountain!"
- 6. The folks at Spencer's Gifts are tired of chasing you away from the inflatables. Go find a real girlfriend.
- 5. Those massage chairs are for relaxing not for earthquake drills.
- 4. This was the third time you got caught crop-dusting the women's apparel department with tester bottles.
- 3. "You'd think a fancy mall jewelry store would have stronger glass in their showcase."
- 2. The guard told you not to ride your skateboard in the mall. Borrowing your buddy's skateboard isn't a legal loophole.
- 1. Times are tough in the retail market. You set up a nickel apple stand outside Macy's. Tacky. Very tacky.

BELIEVE IT!

Our nation has all sorts of arcane, nonsensical laws on the books. Each week, we'll share one with you ...

In Montana, it is illegal for married women to go fishing alone on Sundays, and illegal for unmarried women to fish alone at all.

Bowlin' with Dolen

Southside native Carol Dolen shares how a lifetime of activity has helped her be part of her community

By Cleveland Dietz II

Five years ago, Greenwood resident Carol Dolen and her family went on a 7-mile canoe trip down the Blue River in southern Indiana. She was in a canoe with two girls; her grandson was in another canoe with his wife; her husband, Mike, was in another with two more people; and two older girls were in a fourth. They were on their family's annual summer vacation.

At 74 years old, Dolen sat in the back of her canoe paddling and steering the boat. It made sense — she had an American Red Cross canoeing certification. For the most part, the river was placid, but there were areas of swifter water. Her granddaughter got the canoe turned sideways on one of them and Dolen couldn't correct it in time. They went under.

"It was alright," Dolen said. "It was hot anyway. It was a good way to cool off."

Her thoughts on the spill may have been different had they gone under ahead of the cattle wading in the river in front of them.

Dolen got her canoeing certification during her time with the Girl Scouts of the United State of America, which totaled almost 60 years despite several moves related to Mike's employment. After joining the Girl Scouts in second grade, she earned badges, went camping at Camp Elwood and sold Girl Scout Cookies. When her daughters were old enough, they joined, too.

Dolen didn't intend to become a troop leader when she offered to help with her first daughter to join. "By time I came home, I had a Girl Scout troop and it wasn't the one my daughter was in," she recalled.

Dolen held most of the volunteer positions she could in the Girl Scouts, including serving on area councils after her daughters grew up. It was one way she met people after the moves.

Another way was bowling. For the last 30 years, Dolen said, she's been using the same ball. "One of these days, I expect to throw it down the alley and see it split open, but so far it's holding up."

Now she plays in a senior league on Thursday mornings from September through March at Expo Bowling Center. Most league participants are the same each year. Occasionally people leave or join. The league shuffles teams each season, so people meet most of the other participants, which is an aspect of it Dolen appreciates.

She also serves on the reunion committee for Southport High School's class of 1955. Since moving back to town in 2000, she has helped plan three reunions. "I assume if there's enough of us around to do it, we'll probably do it again (in 2020)."

The committee plans the date and time of the event, the location, the food and all the other details that go along with it. It doesn't book entertainment, though, because the get-together itself is the entertainment. A lot of the time, the planning takes place over lunch. "That's the fun part of it — you get to eat. You go to these committee meetings and you get to eat," Dolen said.

Dolen also books a quarterly luncheon with women from her graduating class. She said there's about 25 women altogether who participate, but the luncheons usually have 12 or 13 at a time. The women share stories about their lives and reminisce about old times.

"It's easier to meet people when your children are still in school," Dolen said. "Once your children get out of school, it's a little harder." But a lifetime of activity has helped her build and be part of the communities she enjoys.

Kirchhofer supports bill to fight cervical cancer in Indiana

Legislature – State Rep. Cindy Kirchhofer (R-Beech Grove) announced she will co-author legislation aimed at reducing the number of Hoosier deaths from cervical cancer.

"Each year, an estimated 12,000 women are diagnosed with cervical cancer, and of those, about one-third will die as a result," Kirchhofer said. "This cancer is largely preventable and highly treatable if caught early with regular screening tests. It is our hope that with this legislation we can continue to reduce the number of deaths caused by cervical cancer."

The proposal would require the Indiana State Health Department to develop a plan to decrease Indiana's cervical cancer mortality rate. Specifically, ISDH would be tasked with identifying barriers to cervical cancer prevention, screening and treatment, developing public and private partnerships to increase cancer awareness, and recommending actions to reduce the number of deaths associated with the disease. If passed, the legislation would require ISDH to submit a report outlining their strategic plan to the governor and General Assembly. For more information, visit iga.in.gov.

Brookhaven provides welcoming amenities for seniors

By Brookhaven at County Line

A great deal of effort goes into identifying the needs and desires of senior citizens – especially in regards to senior living. Herman & Kittle Properties conducted ample research on the matter and Brookhaven at County Line Road has put that research into action. Brookhaven offers two types of programs: Section 42 Affordable Housing Program and Market Rate for those who do not qualify under Section 42 tax credit guidelines. Their facilities provide one- and two-bedroom apartments equipped with refrigerator, stove, dishwasher, garbage disposal, washer/dryer connections, ceiling fans and spacious closets - with laundry amenities available on site.

A major concern of many people looking for senior housing opportunities is what kind of activities are available. Brookhaven's Resident Activities Director regularly schedules events and outings that includes weekly bus transportation to the grocery store. They also have a variety of specialty rooms on site catering to various individual tastes - community and media rooms, a library with computers, a non-denominational chapel, exercise and billiard rooms and even a beauty salon. Activities include pitch-in dinners, game nights, coffee and donuts, casino trips and more!

Another important aspect of senior living is maintenance. Brookhaven's staff is responsible for repairs and servicing and also ensures that sidewalks and driveways are cleared in the winter months. In the spring, summer and fall, staff members maintain the lawn and flowers. A walking trail surrounding a pond on the premises offers residents exercise or a chance to walk the dog – since Brookhaven is pet friendly.

Additionally, Brookhaven works to keep seniors healthy and savvy by offering various seminars such as tax preparation, investments, insurance in-home health care, health and wellness, blood pressure checks and Walgreens delivers prescriptions to eliminate the hassle.

For more information, visit the office or call (317) 887-2822. At the time of application, a $35 fee and a $100 hold fee will secure your apartment home. The hold fee is applied to the first month's rent and there are various options for Security Deposits based on credit scores.

The Gardens at Olive Branch

The Gardens at Olive Branch Cemetery and Mausoleum Park was opened spring 2010. Founded by Jeff Herrmann, it was designed to be the finest cemetery around. With generous flowerbeds and landscaping we want to bring a peaceful and beautiful cemetery to Greenwood. The mausoleum is made of all Hoosier components. Using real limestone, the mausoleum was designed in a radius style, making it one of two built like this in the world.

The Gardens at Olive Branch is also home to our 9/11 Memorial called the "Freedom Plaza." Mr. Herrmann created this beautiful structure to thank all of our servicemen and first responders. Our memorial boast a steel beam from the World Trade Center Tower 1, limestone rebuildfrom ing the Pentagon, and soil from the crash site of Flight 93. The beam is supported by brick columns that contain cremation niches and a pentagon-shaped planter filled with 8 yards of dirt hauled in from Shanksville, Pa.

There's also the eternal flame, with its limestone base crafted by Brian Swersky, who built an identical flame at John F. Kennedy's gravesite at Arlington National Cemetery.

The Herrmann family, still today, provides the personalized service it did when it was founded in 1926. G.H. Herrmann is dedicated to you and your family.

PAWS for THOUGHT

By Dr. Jeff Ambrous

Have you ever seen your dog scooting his or her rear across the floor? One significant cause of this behavior is anal sacs that are full or irritated. Anal sacs are small pockets that are located on either side of the anus. There is a rather smelly secretion that is produced and collected in them. Normally, they should be emptied as your pet is outside "doing their business." However, in some individuals, there is not proper emptying. This will cause the sacs to fill up. The full sacs cause the feeling of pressure to your pet. There is not much they can do themselves to relieve this feeling, but they will try by scooting, licking or digging at their rear end. Most groomers or veterinary offices can empty the anal sacs quickly and easily for you when needed.

Occasionally, infection may occur in the sacs. You will notice a painful, red swelling in the area. It can also rupture and drain pus or blood. If you notice any of these signs, you should have your dog examined and treated by your vet. Some dogs will have repeated troubles with them. If this is the case, there are options which can vary case to case. You should have the vet discuss the most appropriate steps for your pet.

Dr. Jeff Ambrous practices at South 31 Veterinary Clinic and can be reached at (317) 788-0893.

Jet's Pizza

THE SCOOP:

Jet's Pizza on SR 135 and on Thompson Road have started the new year by introducing some new menu items. One of the brand new innovative menu items is the letzee. The Jetzee is like a sub sandwich but instead of typical bread they use their signature deep dish pizza dough, bake it into a flat crust and top it with butter and romano. Between two layers of this crust they offer a wide variety of Jetzees: Italian, ham and cheese, veggie, grilled chicken, chicken parmesan, meatball, pizza, steak and cheese, and tuna. One of the new specialty pizzas on the menu is the Philly Cheese Steak pizza with alfredo sauce, mozzarella, provolone, steak, mushrooms, onions and green peppers. New salads include the Caesar Salad, Buffalo Chicken Salad, and Chicken Caesar Salad. Also you can now personalize their 8-inch Deli Boats and Jet's Boats. If you are in the area of SR 135 and County Line or Thompson and Emerson, stop by and try their new tastes.

Live by Night Too much story, too little cohesion

MOVIE REVIEW

By Adam Staten

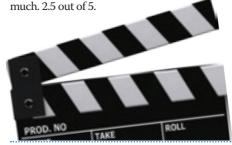

Whether we'd like to admit it or not, crime is a part of our everyday lives. Crime and its often-devastating consequences drive many of our decisions. We lock our vehicles and homes, carry firearms for protection and refuse to venture to that side of town after a particular hour. Despite our fear of being a victim of a mugging, identity theft or worse, from The Godfather films, The Departed, Scarface and the seemingly endless string of Law and Order series, crime is a popular subject matter for entertainment. One newly-released film fits very neatly into the popular crime genre.

Live by Night is the story of a Prohibition era bank robber, Joe Coughlin (Ben Affleck). While gangsters and their crime syndicates rule Boston and reach throughout a majority of the country, Joe is determined to stay out of organized crime. However, during one of Joe and his crew's heists, he encounters Emma (Sienna Miller). Soon after Joe and Emma begin an affair that goes on for some time, and unfortunately for Joe, Emma is also the girlfriend of one of Boston's biggest crime bosses. Word gets out that Joe and Emma are seeing each other. Emma ends up dead and Joe ends up doing hard time after several cops die when a bank robbery doesn't go as planned.

Flash forward three years, Joe is released from prison and with vengeance in mind, agrees to work for a rival crime family in order to get kill the man responsible for Emma's death. Per his agreement with the mob, Joe heads down to central Florida to secure and facilitate illegal shipments of alcohol. Soon after he arrives in his new land, the alcohol begins flowing, bullets start flying and the body count rises. The way in which Live by Night is structured it's almost as if there are two separate stories, two separate films. The first part of the film takes place in Boston; we're introduced to the main characters, both Joe and the eventual antagonists. Then as Joe heads to Florida, we get an entirely new set of characters and storyline that goes in a whole other direction. This setup leaves the film feeling very disjointed, uneven at times and is extremely distracting. It's nearly the conclusion of the film before the two seemingly independent storylines are tied together.

While there are some flaws in the structure and even the direction of the film, there is one noteworthy performance. Affleck and Chris Cooper as Chief Figgis, are both adequate in their respective roles. Elle Fanning, in a supporting role, as a charismatic teenage minister, steals every scene in which she appears.

Despite, Fanning's enjoyable performance and a story with a lot of potential, the troubled structure and Affleck's disappointing direction are too much to overlook. Live by Night is simply a case of trying to do way too much 2.5 out of 5

Vitamin Deficiency: Magnesium

NUTRITION

By Wendell Fowler

Unfortunately, most people live blissfully unaware of how the intake of basic vitamins and minerals profoundly affects their birthright of whole health and well-being. You are not taking the role of vitamins seriously enough and that's a huge problem brothers and sisters.

You must wake up! The greatest country on earth suffers from 3rd world-style malnutrition. Your cells aren't getting even the minimum nourishment that allows your holy temple to grow, replace, repair, defend, think and sustain your temple. The processing of plant foods destroys their nutritional energy, leaving them extremely low in essential nutrients. The more processed foods you eat, the less you will get of these nutrients.

Your miraculous temple, a biochemical factories that requires a constant delivery of numerous vitamins, minerals, enzymes, good fats like essential fatty acids, and 'live' probiotics. Addressing just one simple deficiency can prevent a long list of present-day diseases while vastly improving the quality of your life.

Case in point: Over 80 percent of Americans deficient in dietary magnesium important to nearly every function and tissue in the body. Magnesium deficiency may be responsible for more diseases than any other nutrient. Magnesium supports a healthy immune system, prevents inflammation. Low levels of magnesium increase risk of diabetes, heart attacks, high blood pressure, kidney stones, cancer, insomnia, menstrual cramping, blood clotting, immune cell activity, insulin sensitivity and blood sugar transport, and controlling free radical damage.

Who's at highest risk? Diabetics, alcoholics, the obese and those with chronic gastrointestinal issues or heart failure and the elderly are more likely to be low. Seniors that eat lots of refined white flour products or have high blood pressure, the daily dose of magnesium should be larger. Individuals who die suddenly of heart attacks have been shown to have very low levels of magnesium in their temples.

Foods with magnesium include bananas, cucumber, avocados, raisins, Brazil nuts, pine nuts, almonds pecans, cashews, peanuts, sunflower, quinoa, sesame and flax seeds, , kidney, black and garbanzo beans. And then there is spirulina, spinach and dark leafy greens, baked potato with skin, shiitake, coconut meat, black tea, whole grains (whole wheat pasta), brown rice and millet, Tahini, Edamame and tofu. If you do not eat these foods, perhaps reconsider.

Before you start popping vitamins, do your research. Visit your local community vitamin authority and ask what dose is best for you, and then purchase an inexpensive bottle of magnesium / calcium citrate. I love leading horses to water because occasionally I find a grateful horse. And I care.

Weekly Devotion

11 Behold, I come quickly: hold that fast which thou hast, that no man take thy crown.

12 Him that overcometh will I make a pillar in the temple of My God, and he shall go no more out: and I will write upon him the name of My God, and the name of the city of My God, which is new Jerusalem, which cometh down out of heaven from My God: and I will write upon him My new name.

13 He that hath an ear, let him hear what the Spirit saith unto the churches. REVELATION 3:11-13

As I read this passage of Scripture I am brought to my spiritual knees in humble recognition of the power of Christ. First He tells us that "I come quickly" which does not mean soon but suddenly. It has been nearly two thousand years since He spoke these words to John and this being true, He has not come quickly, at least in man's calculation of time but, He will come suddenly and when He is least expected. He goes on to tell us that we need be very careful not to lose what we have lest we lose our crown. If we are not careful we will concern ourselves more with man's opinions than with His and let man rob us of our crown. That is the danger in every generation of the church. If we keep this in that context then we can see this as a sort of "honors ceremony" for the saints.

When we come to the end of our days I believe we will be honored by Christ if we remain faithful to Him. This is what He is saying, at least to me. He says that He personally will see to it that He will make those that He honors "pillars" in the temple of His God and write upon them the "name of His God" and "His new name" and they will be given permanent residence and citizenship in the "New Jerusalem" that comes directly down from heaven. The New Jerusalem is the church of God. Praise the Lord and to be accepted into it is the greatest privilege given to men and women of God.

God bless and go and have a great day.

Paul A. Kirby is the pastor at the Church of God at 3939 S. Emerson Ave.
