Ryells reunited

The Suds drive-in in Greenwood to host The Ryells and its 50s-era music on June 28

FEATURE

By Nicole Davis

Lifelong friends will get together again to play at The Suds drive-in restaurant for the second year on Saturday, June 28, 6 p.m. until fireworks start at the Greenwood Freedom Festival. The Ryells is a band that played in high school together in Chicago. Bass player, Jack Fazio, resides in Greenwood and said this one of the couple times a year the band reunites to perform. It's the perfect venue, he said, with classic cars on display along with their 50s-style music.

"These types of events are the best," Fazio said. "It's a big crowd, an enthusiastic crowd. People that are there are about our age. We're playing to a crowd that really enjoys the kinds of music that we play."

The Ryells played all through high school, producing a record called Only as Good as You Want It, which Fazio said "got some pretty good air play" in Chicago. The band split up after high school, but reunited five years ago to play at their 25th high school reunion. For the last five years, members Bill Schultz, Bill Flosi, Steve Phiaum, Charlie Streff and Fazio have met to perform shows such as at the upcoming event at The Suds, playing British Invasion music, some Beach Boys and music from other bands from the 50s.

"It's amazing how little everyone' personalities have changed and it's like being in high school," Fazio said. "Nothing is a better time machine than music. That's really what it's about. You play a good song for people that takes them back - brings the good memories."

The Chin population in Indiana is close to 10,000, mostly on the Southside of Indianapolis. A group of organizations that serve these refugees on the Southside have joined forces in celebration of World Refugee Day on June 20, calling the event Giving Back to the Community.

"We want to be part of this community and we want to be productive citizens," said San H Thang, president of the Chin Community of Indiana. "We are here and part of the community and we want to do whatever we can to develop it. Most who come here today are high school students. We want to bring them to do this type of volunteer work so they can be productive leaders in the future."

World Refugee Day was formed in 2000 by the United Nations for those who had fled their country on the threat of persecution, conflict and violence. This Perry Township event began June 20, 2012 in partnership with Indy Urban Acres and 30 individuals who were refugees and immigrants from the Indianapolis Burmese community. All of the farm's produce is given back to local food pantries.

New to the event this year, the Burmese American Community Institute, Chin Community of Indiana, Chin Youth Organization and Perry Township Trustees Office attended a tree planting ceremony in the morning, before meeting at Indy Arbor Acres to help with the gardening project. The tree planting is a new service project this year, designed to be a long-term, sustainable development. The groups planted three trees at the Alcorn-Tilton Cemetery located at the Banta and Bluff Road intersection. "This is our signature event," said Lian Sang, of the Burmese American Community Institute. "It's giving back to the community, beautifying the community so the community knows our existence. We can beautify the community just as we beautify this cemetery." For more information, visit baci-indy.org.

"I prefer organic, however price does play a factor in it. I do love the health benefits of organic. I typically buy my produce at Meijer most of the time. I am really looking forward to some local markets opening here in Greenwood and I definitely look to move toward those locally-owned stores. I do tend to buy both."

Karen Brandon, Greenwood "For GMO produce, we don't really know a whole lot about GMOS. There are studies that say these will cause mutations in our cells and can cause cancer. They are also big business. What we support mostly is not necessarily organic, as far as USDA certification goes, but we do care about natural and local. We are trying this summer to get as much local produce. The least amount of time that it can be picked and put on your table is when you get the most nutrients from it. It is very important to know where your food comes from. We (at Moore Corner Store in Wanamaker) will be working with a few farms. One is Silverthorn Farms in Rossville, Ind. and another is Distelrath Farms."

Sara Moore, Franklin Township

"Organic is healthier and that is the way it needs to move. I mostly buy my food at Meijer and if I have time the fruit market."

ne of mom's objectives to moving back to Kentucky had been to be closer to her aging mother and help with her health concerns. One never quite gets away from needing their mom, regardless of the age or whatever form or intentions. My grandmother passed away in 2004; my mom remained and carried on. Since her time in Kentucky she had lost not only her mother, but her older brother and a younger sister. She had also lost the person that she formerly was.

This rural stretch of Kentucky has always held an eerie feeling for me even as a child, when the troop of cousins would somehow make it down for the same weekend and create utter chaos for my grandmother. We would play in the front yard of my mom's childhood home (the home that my uncle still resides in) as the sky darkened and the surrounding country gravel roads would ultimately bleed into the night sky. We would collect fireflies, place them in a mason jar and dance about with our self-made lanterns as the night wind rustled through the trees and across the adjoining tobacco field. I would gaze into the darkness always feeling something was just beyond my reach and understanding: something ageless, and hanging back for the moment. Yet...it always kept

To this day, I still get that feeling.

Strange and unexplained things started slowly happening when my mom returned from the nursing home. Lynn reported noises: footsteps, doors closing, conversations caught in the monitor, and then shadow movement in the rooms. They were infrequent and in no certain pattern. Weeks would go by with no occurrence. I wrote it off to either an overactive imagination or, if it were paranormal, something involving the land itself. I didn't feel it was the house because mom had been the only owner.

tio and into the backyard. The sun-room was where mom laid 24/7. I paid attention to this. What the heck...was she walking and strolling about in the night? Or was 'someone' visiting her? Mom began to have vivid dreams involving my father, his parents, and her mother. They would come to her in the night and talk to her. These dreams quickly became a part of her reality.

COVER STORY

By Nicole Davis

The Greenwood Freedom Festival will reach its 30th year on June 28, kicking off its largest celebration yet, said Molly Laut, marketing coordinator for Greenwood, during a year when Greenwood has reached its 150th year as a city.

"I think it's shaping up to be a great event," Laut said, for the city of Greenwood. "Everyone seems excited. It's hard not to be excited."

With a completely volunteer-based committee to organize the festival, Laut said they are re-energized this year, using the talents of many members that have been involved before. They predict that this is the first year the festival will break even. becoming sustaining, community-run event for the city.

For the first time this year, the street fair which runs from 9 a.m. – 2 p.m. will take place in Craig Park. In previous years it was held in Old City Park but fair-goers had a hard time getting there during the parade at 10 a.m. and a difficult time getting out after it rained on the event last year.

"What we hope it does is put more people in Craig Park, keeps them safe because we don't have people cutting across Meridian dodging cars," Laut said. "It's important that this is a fun time."

The festival is also partnering with Korn Country 100.3. The radio station will broadcast from Craig Park all day long, giving traffic reports and weather announcements periodically.

At 3 p.m., the Freedom Festival gears more towards the adult crowd with beer, wine and live music by The Woomblies, The Kegulators, Alan Kaye and the Toons. Laut said last year was the first year they had live music, and in turn increased the amount of food yendors.

"What we saw happen last year, is we thought people would leave after the music but they stopped, pulled out a chair and stayed for the fireworks," Laut said. "They sat and enjoyed themselves and it was very exciting. People are coming to this fair now just to see the bands.

The population of Greenwood plus the crowd size tells me there have to be people coming from outside the city."

Also included in the fair will be a magic show by Travis Easterling, local dancers, nearly 135 vendors and more.

Laut said parking will be different this year, and there are a lot of parking lots, city lots included, that will be open during the fair. For more information, visit greenwood.in.gov.

Tanya Henthorn organizes events at Southport Heights Christian Church which give back to local youth

By Nicole Davis

Things are starting to slow down for Tanya Henthorn, children's minister at Southport Heights Christian Church. She spent May and most of June in preparation for the church's summer and back-to-school activities. It's not over yet. Participants are still welcome in the Mega Sports Camp and donation still needed for the Backpack to School event.

"It's a lot of work getting it set up," Henthorn said. "I get out and try to connect with the community as much as we can. We just like to let them know we're here and we care."

The Mega Sports Camp runs from July 14-18 for children entering first through seventh grade. The cost is $10 for the entire week, making it affordable for anyone who wishes to participate, Henthorn says. Those interested in participating can register at southportheights.org.

"The camp is a sports ministry so kids can come no matter what," Henthorn said. "It includes basketball, baseball, soccer, cheerleading and flag football. We just try to make it a fun week."

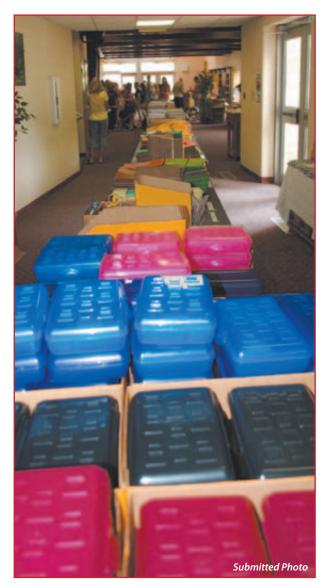

The sports camp will include a glue stick competition, encouraging participants to bring in glue sticks for donation to the Backpack to School event to be held July 26. This is for students at Southport Elementary, providing backpacks and other school supplies to children on the free and reduced meal plans. There are 325 students on that list this year. Certificates are made out to the families and the school mails those out so the names are not released to the church.

"We didn't have a ton of money growing up but my parents made sure we had fresh school supplies," Henthorn said. "It makes you feel empowered to do the work you are set out to do."

Henthorn says they have raised enough money to purchase the backpacks but they are still in need of supplies. This is her fourth year organizing this event, and she said it's her goal to ensure there is an abundance of items for the children so that no one is turned away. The monetary cost would be approximately $4,000 for the supplies, but donations of supplies offset that. There are dropoff locations at Lincoln Square Pancake House and AccuQuest Hearing Center. Henthorn placed a table in the church with pieces of paper scattered across it, with specific donations that are needed listed on them. Church members have taken some of these pieces with the promise of getting those supplies, but there are still a lot left.

"With Backpack to school, we try to make it a family event," Henthorn said. "We have hot dogs, free haircuts through Paul Mitchell. Kids pick out their own school supplies. The teachers come in and help that day as well."

Donations can be sent to Southport Heights Christian Church, 7154 McFarland Rd., Indianapolis with Backpack to School in the memo.

Where can you build a better block?

It feels like we are constantly writing about revitalization and improvement on the Southside – and for a good reason. We have so many people in different areas working really hard to make their neighborhood a better place. This type of work takes time and patience, so we're certain this won't be the last time the topic is brought up. This week, on page 10, we featured the 2014 Garfield Park Better Block event that will happen June 28. The day will give a little look at what is possible in the area- if businesses were to invest in the neighborhood. We loved hearing how this type of event has worked successfully through the story of Dan Sassano and David Sanchez. They will open The Garfield Eatery & Coffee shop in mid to late July. They chose the location not only because it's close to their home, but because they saw the potential in last year's event. While taking a tour through the construction of the to-be business, it is evident the investment the business owners are making to create a nice gathering environment. We are excited to see what the end result looks like once it opens, and we're looking forward to continuing news of the area's development. Who knows, maybe this year's Better Block will spark even more interest - filling the empty storefronts on S. Shelby Street and the surrounding area. With Sassano and Sanchez attending Better Block and sharing their story and showing of the work they've completed so far, maybe it could encourage more people to invest, aslo. A diverse location directly across Garfield Park, the potential is endless. This weekend is filled with fun events all around the Southside. We're hoping the weather is nice and every one of them has the attendance they deserve. If you have the time, why not check out the Better Block and support a neighborhood with so many people that care about growing it into something better?

Reid, pols have no skin in the game

By now, most know that the United States Patent Office recently pulled the registration away from the Washington Redskins because it had determined the name to be offensive. No matter what side of the issue you are on, this act should shock you. This is analogous to a police state – we have a few deciding what is and what is not offensive. Of course, Senate Majority Leader Harry Reid and the rest of the Democrats believe this is the noble thing to do. Of course, they have no real skin in the game; Redskins' owner Daniel Snyder does, as it will be tough for the Redskins to police others from profiting off the name. This is a complete sham.

Our president is on it! While we're dealing with unrest throughout the world (Iraq, Syria, Ukraine, Iran), abuse at the IRS and the loss of several years' worth of emails from ex-IRS official Lois Lerner (Even some of our liberal friends don't believe that one), Benghazi, Fast & Furious, VA mess, and the harassment of news reporters, to name a few, this headline reflects what President Obama is doing about it all: nothing

The more we think about this and the previous administration, we've come to the conclusion that we owe both George W. Bush and Barack Obama a deep gratitude. They have proven to us once and for all, that neither party is capable of solving our problems; in fact, they create them. Now is the time for all Americans to move on from the tired two-party system in this nation and look elsewhere. Libertarians? Independents? It's worth trying another way forward, free of the shackles of tired and failed policies, deep ties to lobbyists, etc. What do you think?

Jersey Boys... a must see film for summer

Adam Staten MOVIE REVIEW

MOVIE REVIEW

oy bands. There isn't much else that sends adolescent girls into frenzies like the catchy, generic, overproduced and overplayed songs of today's boy bands. Groups like NSYNC, The Backstreet Boys, and One Direction have brought new meaning to the word "talent" which, like beauty, seems to be in the eye of the beholder. Boy bands have been around for decades. They have been around for decades – the Jackson 5, the Monkees, and the Osmonds. Going back even further, one of the earliest groups that could be considered a boy band would have been Frankie Valli and the Four Seasons. The new film, Jersey Boys, about the trailblazing group opened this weekend.

The film follows Frankie Valli as he and other members of the group they would form as they commit illegal acts in their small New Jersey town. As explained early in the film, there are only three ways out of their small town; prison, death or by becoming a famous entertainer. Desperate to avoid the first two options, the boys soon form a singing group and begin paying their dues at seedy bars, hotels, motels, bowling alleys, anywhere they can. Soon the group starts gaining recognition, and, as they say; the rest is history.

The rest of Jersey Boys follows the group during the highs and lows as they put out songs "Sherry," "Big Girls Don't Cry", and "Walk Like a Man" in the process. The film then takes a decidedly personal turn as it chronicles the tumultuous personal life of Frankie Valli and his solo career.

Even though the film is based on the Broadway musical, it hardly feels like one. There is no out-of-nowhere singing and dancing sequences. Instead, the music is part of the story and flows together seamlessly. The early portion of the film deals with the formation of the group and then their eventual breakup. However, what separates this film from others like it is the personal insight into the life of Frankie Valli.

fourth wall and talk directly to the camera.

Jersey Boys is an exceptional film with an engrossing story and terrific performances. It's a film that will certainly be remembered come award season and the best film of the year. A 4.5 out of 5.

"Jersey Boys is an exceptional film with an engrossing story and terrific performances."

AN OPTION

Tamales at The Tamale Place

The Tamale Place

The scoop: The Tamale Place is in its third week at Stop 11 Road and the US 31 South intersection and is the third The Tamale Place in the Indianapolis area. The food is true to the Aculpulco area of Mexico as the palm tree and beech mural in the dining room suggests. The tamales are their specialty. You can have your tamales mild, spicy hot, with no meat or sweet with options including pumpkin, pineapple, chocolate or apple/pecan. Also available are other popular Mexican foods including tacos, tortas, nachos, all which present a large variety of available toppings. The ingredients are fresh and they make in-house their own chips, tortillas, and tamale masa from corn that they grind in Indianapolis.

Type of food: Mexican.

Price of entrees: Typically around $6 to $10 per plate.

Specialties: The Tamales including mild, spicy, and sweet tamales. Meat can be chicken, beef, pork in red or green sauces. No meat options are available.

Recommendation: The beef tamale in red sauce is a favorite. Also the apple tamale with pecans is also very good.

Hours: Monday to Saturday 10 a.m. to 9 p.m., Sunday 12 noon to 8 p.m.

Location: 1155 E. Stop 11 Road, Indianapolis at the US 31 South intersection.

Phone: (317) 300-8748

BEHIND BARS

Flirtini

Bartender: Shannon Werling of Johnny Carino's, "Home of the $5 Martini," 920 N. US 31 in Greenwood.

Ingredients and directions: Pour one ounce of champagne in a martini glass and add a lemon twist. Combine in a shaker one ounce of vodka, one ounce of Triple Sec liquor, ½ ounce of cranberry juice, a squirt of lemon juice and a package of sugar. Shake and pour into the martini glass. Serve.

WHERE WE DINE

Lisa Kitchens, event coordinator at Grand Rental Station, 171 Melody Ave., Greenwood.

Where do you like to dine? Margaritas in Greenwood.

What do you like to eat there? I like their chicken flautas and their cheese dip, but I really like the guacamole tableside that they do. It is fresh prepared right in front of you. It is very good.

What do you like about this place? Everyone is very friendly. Roberto is one of the wait staff that is always on top of it. He is fast. You get your food, the food is always hot. They have very good food and very good service.

Margarita Grill is located at 1675 W. Smith Valley Rd. in Greenwood. The phone number is (317) 865-9830.

Dan Sassano (blue shirt) and David Sanchez (green shirt) will soon open The Garfield Eatery & Coffee shop, currently under construction. They decided to invest in the area after experiencing last year's Better Block event and seeing the potential in the community. They stand with a newly-hired employee, workers from Gilpin Glass Service helping fix up the windows and Donna Lund Jacobsen who is head of the Better Block committee.

Building a Better Block

Garfield Park-area event to provide entertainment and demonstrate the potential in revitalization

By Nicole Davis

The intersection of S. Shelby Street and E. Southern Avenue will be redesigned for a day during the 2014 Garfield Park Better Block on June 28, 11 a.m. – 4 p.m. The free event, put on by the Garfield Park South Neighborhood Association and the Garfield Park Neighbors Association in partnership with Big Car, is a demonstration which shows the potential to create a vibrant neighborhood with "pop-up" businesses and entertainment throughout the day.

"The community on the Shelby Street Corridor is concerned about showing the empty buildings," said Donna Lund Jacobsen, head of the Better Block committee. "We have several. But we want to show investors the potential in existing buildings."

In its second year, the event has proven to work. Dan Sassano said he and his partner David Sanchez decided to invest in the community which they reside in after seeing the potential during Better Block last year. He said the day started out rainy and he was wondering if people would even attend. The weather cleared up and there were 30-40 pop-up businesses.

"What I experienced with Better Block is the community saying enough is enough," Sassano said. "We can't wait for big business to invest. We have to do something about it. Having experienced that event, it was nice to know we live close to good people... If you explore the neighborhoods, they are beautiful and well-kept. There are so many neighborhoods more in the limelight, but we're so close to downtown, to Fountain Square or University of Indianapolis."

He and Sanchez will open The Garfield Eatery & Coffee shop in July. They had looked at other locations, and Sassano said he had been in the building when it was a bar – which closed in March 2013 – and he could see the potential in it. He said he has worked well with the landlord, Bob Peale, and other local businesses to renovate the space. The shop will have four to five full-time employees with a couple more part-timers. He said they just hired his lead barista, who has 12 years' experience.

Sassano and Jacobsen both say they are looking forward to the 2014 Better Block event, and showing more people the potential in the neighborhood. Along with businesses, live music and performances will take place throughout the day, including a beer garden with Hank Hazard, the Garfield Shakespeare Company at 2:30 p.m. and more.

"The thing I look forward to the most is the moment the first band starts" Jacobsen said. "The first note of music begins at 11 a.m. Then it's no longer music. It's real."

Garfield Park Better Block is part of a larger effort with Better Block projects performed throughout the country. The goal is to allow cities to rapidly implement infrastructure and policy changes that spur community revitalization. For more information, visit betterblock.org.

ating at a local eatery with friends recently, I ordered my usual iced tea with lemon.

As an observant writer and ex-waiter, my eyes enjoy darting about, reminiscing and relating to the servers scampering table to table like ants on fire. Drifting away from the dangling conversation I watched the waiter ring up everyone's beverage order and assemble our beverages. (Fill a tea glass with ice, pour in tea and add lemon.) Then the server approached our table, served each iced tea glasses with their fingers grasping the drinking rim and placed it at our settings. "Here's your iced tea sir," the server sang with syrupy perkiness.

"No, that's YOUR iced tea," I returned, politely informing the clueless server they'd handled my tea with their fingers grasping the drinking rim and I wanted a fresh glass please. Why? Because I know what succulent microbial critters lurk under everyone's nails and grimy fingerprints. I mean think about it. Our hands and scalp host trillions of germs like Staphylococcus, Corynebacteria, Streptococcus, E coli, Myobacteria and Haemophilus. These bacteria are also found in the nose, eyes, mouth, gut and vagina, though the rate of incidence might vary. Different Streptococcus strains cause infections affect the throat, lungs, dental caries, and can seriously damage your heart and kidney.

In 2008, a Colorado's Department of Ecology and Evolutionary Biology found 150 types of bacteria on human hands. Not all bacteria are bad. Some probiotic bacteria actually protect us from illness.

Good probiotic bacteria prevent the growth of the harmful bacteria.

Then, my mind raced onward, curious if the server washed the lemons before cutting them up for tea or cocktails? Why? The Journal of Environmental Health Study on lemon wedges found that 70 percent contained potentially harmful microorganisms.

"OMG, did I just see our server run fingers through their hair? If they do that in front of the customers, did they wash their hands after using the isolated bathroom? You should wonder if the food you eat is clean; washed of field dirt, animal droppings, and cancerous agribusiness chemicals.

Ever wonder whether your table top was washed and sanitized from the last customer? I've sat down at tables that were sticky and tacky from old food and snark left by previous patrons. The Serve Safe program requires Indiana restaurant management to keep a sanitation bucket and clean towels available for all servers and bus person to bleach down each table between diners.

When I waited tables as a reckless youth, I merely brushed off and rarely sanitize the tabletops and usually water was kept in the sanitation bucket rather than antimicrobial bleach water. If the table is dirty, politely ask management to have it sanitized for your protection. So, if someone suggests you, "go suck a lemon", clean it first, okay? Also watch their facial expression when you ask management if the prep-cooks wash the fruits and veggies.

■ Inflammation linked to diabetes and depression?

A new study claims that people with diabetes and depression may experience more inflammation in their blood than those with only diabetes. Of the 1,227 people diagnosed with type-2 diabetes in the study, those who reported having symptoms of depression tended to be heavier and younger. Researchers hypothesize that the best way to combat both depression and diabetes is balanced diets and regular exercise. – Reuters

MATTERS OF HEALTH

By Access Mobility

At some point in life, it's time to admit that your body is slowing down. You might not be able to stay on your feet for as long as you'd like and physical exertion may be a little bit more challenging. If this is the case, there's no point in marching on as if nothing changed. It's time to adapt your lifestyle to suit the needs of your body – without sacrificing anything in the process.

Rather than confining yourself to the sofa, why not invest in a mobility scooter? A mobility scooter gives you back the spontaneity of youth. Imagine a morning in the park, an afternoon at the mall or watching your grandchild's baseball game. The possibilities are endless! Access Mobility is here to help give you back a little piece of independence!

Here are five benefits that mobility scooter owners receive:

- 1. Stay Independent: Many elderly residents have a hard time moving around on their own. A mobility scooter can keep seniors more active and more independent.
- 2. Prevent Falls: Falls are a scary thing!

Mobility scooters make it possible to get around easily indoors and outside without any risk of falling or suffering from related injuries.

3. Avoid Hospital Visits: By safely getting seniors from point A to point B, mobility scooters can help the elderly avoid extended hospital visits. With a scooter, you can avoid broken bones and other injuries and save money on costly hospital stays and doctors' visits.

4. Heal Faster: If you or a loved one is recovering from > an illness or injury, you know how hard it is to get rest and stay put for weeks or even months at a time. With a mobility scooter, owners don't have to worry about overdoing it after surgery, yet they can still get around the house or yard without feeling trapped.

5. Shop Easier: Big box stores and shopping malls can be a real challenge for older adults with mobility problems. Scooters make it possible to go shopping with family and friends without risking fatigue, exhaustion or falls.

Celebrate your freedom and get your independence back today! Access Mobility offers many different styles to choose from! Plus save $800 off the month of July! Let us help you find the best scooter to fit your lifestyle and keep you mobile and on-the-go. Stop in our showroom for a test drive! We are located at 4855 S. Emerson Ave. Indianapolis, Indiana, just a ¼ mile south of I-465. Call us for more information: (317) 784-2255.

CGHS football team hosts CampAbility Field Day

Center Grove High School (CGHS) football players and staff hosted their second annual "Field Day" for children from the Easter Seals Crossroads CampAbility at the CGHS football field. The week-long CampAbility serves students with special needs from ages 4-11. Players helped students navigate drills on the turf, try on equipment, and even run through the Trojan helmet used for Friday night football games. The CGHS cheerleaders were also on hand to share their pom poms and teach some cheers. Cheerleaders granted Zoe Neal-Gibson's (pictured at right) wish to be at the top of a pyramid. Players who volunteered to help with the program went through a disability awareness training session with Easter Seals Crossroads to learn how to best support the students during the field day activities. Pictured: Senior Austin Smogor spent most of his day following Eli Knight who seemed to have boundless energy, despite the heat and humidity. "It's almost as hard as practice," Smogor said after running the length of the field on the heels of little Eli. "But it's more fun though."

FOCUS

By Brian Ruckle

Cancer never sleeps and neither did a hardy group of Indianapolis area residents during the 24 hour Relay For Life event Saturday and Sunday at the Beech Grove Middle School track and football field.

The Relay for Life of Southeast Indy raised $59,540 for the American Cancer Society during the 2014 campaign, just shy of their goal of $63,000. They have until Aug. 30 to complete the campaign.

"Our goal last year was $43,000 and we made so much last year that we increased our goal to $63,000. To get so close makes us very proud of the amount that we raised," said Andrea Brooks, co-chair for the event with Angie Ogen.

The Relay for Life of Southeast Indy includes teams from Beech Grove, Perry Township and Franklin Township.

Perfect pair for patio dining

Serve up Grilled American Lamb and Pinot Noir

RECIPE

For The Southside Times by Family Features

The weather is warming and your patio is calling. It's time to make the grill your go-to for everyday dinners and entertaining alike. Add variety to your grilling fare by including American lamb. From burgers to chops, fresh lamb is a fast, delicious and simple weeknight option.

A flavorful pair

Experts recommend pairing grilled lamb with a rich, structured pinot noir.

"Aim to match the distinct flavor of lamb with a full flavored wine," said Steve Peck, red winemaker at J. Lohr Vineyards & Wines, the California coast family-owned winery established in 1974. "Our Falcon's Perch Pinot Noir pairs perfectly with lamb. Made from grapes grown in the Arroyo Seco region of central Monterey County, a cool climate region with a reputation for producing world-class pinot noir, this wine features aromas of wild strawberry, cherry, rose petal and dried herbs, with a deep, earthy character — perfect for summer sipping with tender, grilled lamb."

Devoted locavore, Chef Jesse Griffiths of Austin's Dai Due Supper Club, recommends marinating lamb chops overnight with yogurt and citrus. This tenderizes the meat and adds a bright flavor that complements the smoky char from the grill. Here's his recipe for an easy grilled American lamb loin chop dish. For more recipes, visit AmericanLamb.com.

Grilled American Lamb Loin Chops

with Yogurt, Orange and Olives Serves 4 to 6

- 1-1/2 pounds American lamb loin chops, 1 to 1-1/2 inches thick
- Kosher salt
- · Freshly ground black pepper
- 3 tablespoons plain yogurt, low fat or whole milk
- Juice and zest of one orange, divided
- 4 cloves garlic, finely chopped and divided
- ullet 1 small red onion, finely chopped
- 3/4 cup finely chopped green olives
- 1/4 cup coarsely chopped flat leaf parsley
- 1/4 cup extra virgin olive oil, plus more for grill

The day before serving, pat chops dry and season with salt and pepper. Lay chops in shallow non-reactive pan such as 8-inch square baking dish. Combine yogurt, half of orange juice and zest, and half of garlic in small bowl. Whisk ingredients together and pour over chops, turning once to coat both sides with marinade. Cover with plastic wrap and refrigerate overnight.

Remove chops from refrigerator 30-45 minutes prior to grilling to allow meat to come to room temperature. Heat gas or charcoal grill to medium-high. Remove chops from marinade and allow most of it to drip off. Lightly oil grill and arrange chops over heat. Grill three minutes, turn each chop 90 degrees, and cook for another three minutes or until chops are nicely charred. Flip chops and cook on other side for about six more minutes, turning halfway through. They should still be pink inside. Remove chops from grill and let rest while making sauce.

Combine remaining orange juice and zest, chopped garlic with onion, olives, parsley and olive oil in small bowl. Stir well to combine; spoon sauce over each chop and serve immediately. Enjoy with glass of pinot noir.

Active and passive voice

GRAMMAR GUY

GRAMMAR GUY

Question: "I hear a lot about the active and passive voices, and how the active is preferable. I seem to remember discussing them in school, but it's been a while. Could you do a quick refresher course?"

Answer: One of the first things they drill into you in journalism school is to USE ACTIVE VOICE. The second thing is always to triple check the spelling of a source's name ... but that's another topic.

Why is active voice stressed so early and so often? Well, as you may guess from its name, active voice is great for when you want to highlight the action early in a sentence. And with limited space on the page and limited attention spans from your readers, you need to make every word count.

We'll be using two words to talk about active and passive voice for the rest of the column: "agent" and "patient." To keep things simple, the "agent" is the person or object performing an action, and the "patient" is the person or object being acted upon.

Consider the following sentences: "Team USA scores a goal!"

"Ghana is scored on by Team USA!"

The first is active and the second is passive. Which conveys the action better? The first sentence does, because the subject and the agent are the same. In the second sentence, Team USA is still the agent, but it's relegated to the end of the sentence while the patient, Ghana, is moved to the subject. In active voice we want our subjects performing the action.

Now, there are some good reasons to use the passive voice. For one, you're not Earnest Hemingway. The passive voice is also used when you don't know, or don't want to mention, the agent. Consider this sentence: "Three suspicious fires were started overnight." The fires didn't start themselves, but we don't know who did.

Passive voice is also useful when the patient is more important than the agent. If someone asks you how your leg was broken, you might say, "I was hit by a car," rather than, "A car hit me." Either version is acceptable but, hey, forget that other guy — you're the one with the broken leg.

Investing time in the future

Emmanuel Church of Greenwood is place of home and worship for Rene Whitley and AJ Mamot

WHERE WE WORSHIP

Rene Whiteley is a Hoosier, born and raised. Though she grew up in Danville, she and her fiancé, AJ Mamot, moved to the Southside two years ago. Together, Rene and AJ have a 4-year-old daughter named Mya, and a 1-year-old son named Taylor. Of her fiancé, Rene said, "AJ just started his own company and also works at Bright House Networks. He is a hard-working, God-fearing man. He is a wonderful, spiritual leader for our family."

Rene has been a hairstylist for a little over five years.

"I like to use that time to reach out to people," she said. "And try to do a little work for Christ—as much as I can."

As a family, they enjoy going out to eat as well as musical entertainment.

"AJ plays the guitar and I sing along while Mya and Taylor go crazy," Rene said. "It's great! We try to be really active."

After moving to the Southside, Rene and AJ were invited to Emmanuel Church by AJ's sister since she recently began attending with her husband's family.

"We started going a little over a year ago after a tragic death in AJ's family, Rene said. "We needed to find peace and what better place to do that than church? We didn't' know the change and wonderful transformation that was about to take place in our life. We keep the kids involved in everything offered for them. We also attend groups and serve on the host team."

What is it about your place of worship that helps you grow spiritually?

The main thing that helps me in my spiritual growth is the groups. The accountability that they offer is wonderful. Not only in the groups, but also everyone at Emmanuel wants you to have an understanding of scripture. The way the messages are presented are not intimidating and everyone that we have brought along always says that they totally relate to what Danny Anderson, senior pastor, is preaching.

What is it about your place of worship that helps you feel connected to your spouse, children, parents or family?

Luckily for us, AJ and I are going through the premarital counseling they recommend doing before getting married. We have a wonderful mentor, Bill Miller. He has truly helped us connect on a spiritual level. We have also been in a couple's small group together. Emmanuel also offers a parent university class to help us bring God into the way we parent and discipline our children.

What is one meaningful event that has taken place at your place of worship?

A very memorable event that just took place in December was me and AJ were baptized. The best part was we were asked to give our testimony to everyone. I was so honored that I was going to share my (God's) story and that it could bring someone to Christ. It was the first feeling that he was using me to do his work. One of the best feelings I have ever had. We are dedicating our son Taylor on Father's Day.

Why would you recommend your place of worship to someone?

There are many reasons I would recommend Emmanuel to people. The people there genuinely care and want you to feel like Emmanuel is your home! That is one of the main reasons I would never move. I will never leave. They invest time in you. There is something there for everyone. The messages talk about how to live a good life. You can relate to them. They focus on saving lives. I would have never thought a year ago I would be where I am in my walk with Christ. I want to do more for my church in any way I can. It's my home and I absolutely love it there. One thing that really helped me was the testimonies I heard when I started attending. They had people who were at their lowest point in life just telling their stories to hundreds of people and everyone was overjoyed that this person was giving their life to god. In my mind I was like, "Oh my goodness you mean these people aren't perfect Christians?" These people are hearing this person tell all the bad things he has done and they are happy for him and not judging him? Then I would see those same people leading a group or singing on stage. It was a testimony in itself I knew that this was a church I wanted to belong to! That's biblical love!

Setting your mind on what is right

By Pastor Paul A. Kirby

"And when the woman saw that the tree was good for food, and that it was pleasant to the eyes, and a tree to be desired to make one wise, she took of the fruit thereof, and did eat, and gave also unto her husband with her; and he did eat. And the eyes of them both were opened, and they knew that they were naked; and they sewed fig leaves together, and made themselves aprons."

~ Genesis 3:6-7

The one thing that Satan wants to do is to distract us from the rightful rule of God. The main reason that God's rule is right is because His rule is righteous. God foresees the consequences of our sinful actions and attempts to head us off with His laws. He knows that if a man goes to lusting after another man's property and that lust exceeds the lusting man's ability to control his desires, the only end result will be disastrous for all concerned. This is how Satan breaks down relationships and ruins fellowships.

Satan has a way of getting our minds off of what they should be fixed on and distracting them to something else. Eve knew that the tree in the midst of the garden was not to be looked upon with lust, let alone to be touched and handled and eaten. Satan peaked her curiosity about the tree and its fruit and what it would be like to just take a little taste. After all, God surely won't miss just one piece of fruit since the tree is loaded with other fruit of the same quality. Eve should not have even been the vicinity of the fruit let alone looking on it with an impure look in her eyes. But all the while she is fighting the temptation to go to the tree, Satan is saying to her that the consequence of eating the fruit of it will only be that good things will happen to her and Adam if she can convince him to eat of it also. I mean, eating the fruit of this tree will give them the identical same knowledge and wisdom as God. The only difference will be is that God knows how to handle that knowledge and wisdom and mankind does not for if they were capable of handling they would not even be considering eating the fruit.

However you read this narrative in God's Word, you must come to the conclusion that Eve was deceived but only because she wanted to be deceived. Is not this true of anyone that listens to Satan? If the original thought of a person was even a little capable of leading them to sin against God, should not that thought have been dealt with in its infancy and not allowed to come to full maturity?

Sin is a matter of rebellion. It is never accidental. Understand this and you will find yourself seriously engaged in battle at all time against Satan. If you don't let him in the door, he cannot dirty up the whole house. The idea is to keep him on the outside. He may try to force his way in, but he cannot do that when the Holy Spirit is the "cop" at the door.

God bless and go and have a great day.

Paul A. Kirby is the pastor at the Church of God at 3939 S.
