Q: What is your most prominent memory of going to the Indianapolis 500?

"I would have to say my most prominent memory I have of going to the race was Rick Mears taking the checkered flag. He was my favorite driver back in the 1980s. I have lots of memories of the atmosphere and the party, of all the hundreds and thousands of people, and the rush of the green flag dropping. That is my favorite part of the race."

Doug Herr, works in Perry Township

"The thing I enjoyed the most was seeing families come together and have a really, really fun time. I volunteered there for a veterans association for several years and it was just fun to see the grandpas and the grandkids come together and it be a tradition. Many of them would come to our vender booth year after year and I actually got to know some of them. It was really just a special time because of that."

Jana Denninger of Beech Grove

"When I was in high school and was able to go to the Indy 500 because my dad was working security. He was a state trooper and we were able to go in early and sit where the state troopers' families sat. It was really cold and so I had my elementary school sleeping bag. It was a Crayola sleeping bag and I was wrapped up in it. They actually took a picture of me and put it in the Indy 500 magazine."

Holly Ison of Greenwood

"Probably seeing Dan Weldon's last race before he died. Also, last year's race with all the passes for the lead. There were 63 lead changes."

Southside iCan Bike program needs volunteers to teach youth with developmental disabilities how to ride a bicycle

By Nicole Davis

Allison and Kristin Wietecha were 13 years old when they learned to ride a bike. Because of their cerebral palsy, balancing on the bicycle was difficult. Through the program Lose the Training Wheels, now called iCan Bike, they were riding within five consecutive days of instruction.

"Being a physical therapist, this is absolutely the coolest program I've ever had the pleasure of doing; the look on the kids' faces when they actually do this and the look on the volunteer's face," said Stephany Jenkins, physical therapist at Physiotherapy Associates, 549 E. County Line Rd., Greenwood. "Once they meet their kid they will help and the bond that forms... You teach a kid to ride a bike and they can ride a bike forever. It's the gift of giving them something that increases their independence, their self-esteem."

This is the 6th year for iCan Bike program, though it was not held last year due to lack of funding. The program began when Allison and Kristin's mother, Linda Wietecha, brought the need to the attention of Jenkins. They began working to bring this program to the Southside. A partnership formed with Rainbow's End Optimist Club, Easter Seals Crossroads and Indy Parks. The program teaches a person with developmental disabilities such as autism, Down syndrome or cerebral palsy to ride a two-wheel bike in five days, using a specially-designed roller that allows them to learn to weight shift and turn. In the past, it has reported an 80 percent success rate.

"It was worth it," Kristin said. "It was helpful. If parents don't know about it, they should encourage their kids to do this... The balancing at first was kind of difficult. Falling off was a challenge, and running into things. You eventually get the hang of it."

This year there are 40 participants with special needs of all ages, 8 and older. It takes 80 volunteers to run behind bicycles and pair up with the students.

"We desperately need volunteers," Jenkins said. "We have the Roncalli volleyball team volunteering for one whole session. It's a cool way to do it because it's a team-building thing. They use it as their conditioning because they run behind bikes."

There are five sessions, each filled with volunteers, including some previous participants such as Allison and Kristin who are currently graduating seniors at Indian Creek High School.

"My volunteer was good," Allison said. "One thing is some people don't talk to their riders. Don't be shy. If you talk, it helps build that trust."

Jenkins said she aims to have volunteers turn in their packets by June 1. There is a volunteer meeting June 15. The program begins June 16 and runs Monday through Friday at Perry Park Ice Skating Rink, 451 E. Stop 11 Rd.

"It's a way of giving back that also gives you something in return," Jenkins said. "From the volunteer perspective, they gain a lot from it – it's a lot of teaching, tolerance. They learn about the kids. They gain experiences of what it's like to be around children with disabilities. They learn these are just regular kids that want to learn to ride a bike just like they did. You are giving these kids something that in another situation you would not be able to do. You get back so much more than you've actually given to them."

Beech Grove Special Rollers League enters its third year, now as a not-for-profit

FEATURE

By Nicole Davis

Those involved with the Beech Grove Bowl Special Rollers League – children and adults alike – have actively gone out into the community throughout the last year, letting people know what the league is all about and raising money.

Continuing those efforts, league members will have a car wash on May 31, 1-3 p.m. in the parking lot outside Kmart at Thompson Road and Emerson Avenue, with proceeds benefiting the now not-for-profit league for children ages 14-and-under and those with disabilities of any age. They will also host a yard sale at 1314 Main St., Beech Grove on June 5-6.

The league held a fundraiser at the Arby's on Southport Road on May 8, raising more than $250. Erica Redman, 13, sold her handmade bracelets during the event, raising an additional $70.

"(Being a nonprofit) has given us the opportunity to approach some bigger companies," Seach said. "It's how we were able to get our fundraiser at Arby's. Our sponsorships are about the same as last year. The fundraisers the kids are doing are making a difference. We're anticipating close to 100 kids this year."

The league was created in 2012 when Beech Grove resident Anna Lee was trying to find a sport for her son to play, but he couldn't participate in many of them due to his epilepsy. Scott Seach suggested creating a league at Beech Grove Bowl, 95 N. 2nd Ave., Beech Grove. They began working to get donations and sponsors to make it affordable for any child wanting to participate.

"I thought it was really sweet because my brother can't play sports," said Lindzie Lee, 11. "He looks forward to it and so do I. I like that it's nonjudgmental. It's not like one team wins and another loses. It's been a family thing. I really enjoy all of it... It's fun being with my brother. It's more like we're friends. When you're playing, you're having fun."

The participants have stayed active throughout the year. Along with their car washes and yard sales, they have participated in the parade during the Beech Grove Fall Festival. For this year's July 3 fireworks in Beech Grove, they will sell pizza. Most of all, the participants have enjoyed gaining new friends in a fun environment, Erica said.

"She wasn't able to play sports," said Jim Redman, father. "She tried but it was a lot harder for her. We were looking for something she could still be on a team like everyone else. (The Special Rollers League) seemed like a really good way for Erica to meet new people and find friends. It's been better for her self-esteem. It makes it a lot easier when you have people like yourself."

This year's league will take place Saturdays at 11 a.m. or 1 p.m., starting June 7. The fee of $60 includes two games of bowling for eight weeks, a t-shirt and shoe rental. There will be a pizza party and awards at the end. Sponsorships and donations will offset the end of the season costs.

"When the league is over Erica will talk about it until next year," Jim said. "It's been a great success. Scott and Anna are the heart of this. They do a great job, both of them. As a parent, you have to thank both of them. Without them, it doesn't happen. They are a true blessing to everyone that's able to be involved in this."

GOVERNMENT WATCHDOG

Greenwood Common Council

■ What happened?

New business – Ordinance No. 14-26, which would amend Greenwood Municipal Code to allow overnight parking in city lots by permit, was subjected to some heated debate from much of the council.

■ What it means:

This ordinance, if passed in its current language, would allow a $360/year parking permit (an amount suggested by the Controller's Office) to be purchased for overnight parking on any city property. Councilman Tim McLaughlin said, "If (the language) is left this general, it could be a very slippery slope." Other councilmembers raised their concerns as well, saying that the ordinance needed restrictions on the type of vehicles, who would be allowed to purchase a permit, as well how Greenwood Police Department and street crews would patrol cars or clear around them in the event of snowfall. What's next: A motion was passed 8-1 to limit the permits to be purchased by residents of Greenwood only. This ordinance will be up for first reading at the next council meeting on June 2.

■ What happened?

Ordinance No. 14-15, 14-16, 14-17 and 14-18 passed their second readings, each with a unanimous vote from the council of 9-0

■ What it means:

Amendments can now be made to certain provisions of the Greenwood Municipal Code in order to update outdated language as it refers to current departments, position titles, park properties, petty cash funds for various city departments and the rainy day fund.

■ What's next:

The amendments will be made in order to update old clauses and documents in an effort to maintain efficiency and legislative integrity within the Greenwood Common Council

■ In brief:

There was a Town Hall Meeting on May 17, from noon to 2 p.m. at the City Center Building. Councilors present were Mike Campbell, Linda Gibson, David Hopper, Ezra Hill and Ron Bates. Topics discussed included a variety of needs for repainting traffic lines, trail markings, better signage and bridge/road repair work. Other concerns were dilapidated homes in the community (especially on Howard Road), the need to improve aesthetics and architecture in downtown Greenwood, and a more user-friendly city website.

Southport City Council

■ What happened?

Ordinance 13.04.01, addressing overnight parking, was voted down on its second reading.

■ What it means:

The councilmen agreed that there was not enough information on the justification of establishing a new ordinance on overnight parking, and that more research is necessary before it should come across the council.

■ What's next?

Parking ordinances will remain the same.

■ What happened?

The Southport City Council approved two new ordinances, 14.05.01 and 14.05.02, at its March 19 meeting which would alter fines and administrative fees within the police department.

■ What it means:

Ordinance 14.05.01 changes the administrative fee for fingerprints to $12, accident reports to $25 and all other police reports to $12, whether the person is a Southport resident or not.

Ordinance 14.05.02 will increase speeding fines to $150 plus court costs in a school zone. Exceeding any posted speed limits will now be a fine of $75 plus court costs for exceeding the speed limit by 0-25 miles per hour and $100 plus court costs for exceeding the speed limit by 25 milder per hour and over.

Compiled by Nicole Davis and Eric Ellis

■ What's next?

These changes are effective immediately. Currently there are no posted school zones in the Southport city limits. However, Vaughn said they are looking into the legalities of establishing those boundaries.

■ What happened?

Clerk Treasurer Diana Bossingham proposed an expense approval of creating an employee handbook and job descriptions for the city. The council approved the formation of a committee consisting of Mayor Jesse Testruth, Bossingham, Councilman Joe Haley and Police Chief Thomas Vaughn to review requirements for this project.

■ What it means:

The cost for the handbook would be $6,000, plus $160 for each job description. There would be approximately eight job descriptions. Bossingham said this can be covered under the planning budget, none of which has been spent yet this year.

■ What's next?

The committee will oversee the creation of the handbook and job descriptions.

■ In brief:

• Southport Police Chief Thomas Vaughn reported that the police department has a new mascot, which was named through a contest at Southport Elementary. The winning student, naming the mascot Justice, will receive a pizza party on Friday.

• Also in the police department, Chief Vaughn reported that they are filling six open positions. The department will receive the first of its two new vehicles on June 2.

• The parks department has begun restoring its playground equipment. The old pieces are being stripped of the old paint and repainted. This should be finished in the next month.

• The Redevelopment Commission announced that it has changed its meeting from twice a month to once a month. They will now meet the second Monday of each month, 7 p.m.

UIndy releases two more feature collections from Mayoral Archives

Indianapolis' historic Unigov consolidation and Richard Lugar's political rise are the subjects of two new online feature collections from the University of Indianapolis Mayoral Archives. UIndy's vast physical trove of documents, images, recordings and other materials from former Indianapolis mayors and political leaders is being digitized and posted online for viewing by students, researchers, community leaders and the general public. The online interface was launched in October. The two new features will have each item cross-referenced through names and topics to steer interested viewers toward thousands of related items in the archives. Unigov: From City to Metropolis offers 17 items about the controversial consolidation of city and county government that began in 1969 and is now credited with elevating Indianapolis' profile. The Making of a Mayor comprises 12 items from Lugar's 1968-1976 tenure as mayor of Indianapolis. Browse and learn more about UIndy's Mayoral Archives at uindy.edu/mayoral.

Westside Park...then and now

HAUNTS & JAUNTS

The locally published book, Memories of the Wonderful World of Greenwood, by John Myers and Elaine Hullinger is excellent documentation into the history of the area with insightful recollections from those who lived in the early days of Greenwood. It quite adequately covers the development of Westside Park.

In 1969 problems that were inherent to the new park began to be resolved: the Army Corp of Engineers took on the task. Pleasant Run Creek was excavated and straightened to correct the flooding problems in the valley. Devil's Backbone disappeared in the process and little trace of a former boyhood preoccupation remains today.

Thickets and brush were cleared. A softball diamond at the western border of the park was constructed. Tennis and basketball courts, playground, restrooms and a shelter house were soon added. The valley on the lower western edge of the historic Greenwood Cemetery became a true park and is presently a favorite venue.

Jim Hillman and John Murphy's book, Images of America-Greenwood, notes that different eras brought forth different uses of the park. I would, however, venture to say that there is nothing new under the sun that hasn't been done previously regardless of the time period. People are people, and commonly proceed the same way over time. Alcohol consumption and evening parties certainly graced the grounds of Westside Park throughout the years of its growth, perhaps spawning stories of the "haunted" cemetery above. Maybe those children who had once conquered imaginary foes on the slopes of the mighty backbone returned as adults with minds still fueled by childhood speculations?

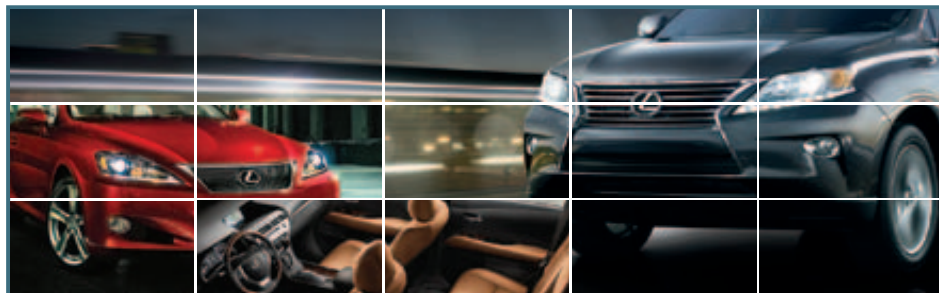

Rick Hinton
Paranormal Examiner

It's a great tactical move on date night for a boy (or man) to offer his strong protective arm to his date, shielding them against the swirling and hissing gruesome entities residing on the graveyard hill above. But at the same time, truth can be stranger than fiction. And with an imagination fed by the adventures of a young boy or girl in a remote section of Greenwood, stories don't always remain on the shelf of youth.

Perhaps there exists a small mixture of truth in the stories regarding paranormal activity on the cemetery hill above which over the years may have descended to the park grounds below? Perhaps as you are walking the loop trail bordering the sanitation plant, you find yourself suddenly alone. The wind becomes still, the insects and birds become quiet, and you feel eyes upon you. Do you become a believer? Do childhood fantasies take on a certain reality?

Westside Park in Greenwood—a family venue for a variety of activities, and possibly also a haven for ghostly shenanigans.

NUTRITION

Seems abnormal that 21 Century American society struggles learning how and what foods to eat to achieve health, happiness and social harmony. You weren't created to love junk food and to despise God's awesome apothecary; you were methodically taught. Truthfully, you were designed by the Divine to instinctively gravitate to plant foods, but bankers, commodity brokers and Big Food executives today's concocted American diet for profitability, not to feed the greater good of our species. And highly impressionable, trusting Americans fell for it. Society's so far off the road of nutritional righteousness; they've fallen and can't get up. Because many hard-core meat-and-taters folks consciously choose to be sick, fat, full of rage and anger, walking around half dead, they're apparently passionately in love with suffering.

Your miraculous temple's ability to heal and sustain itself is greater than anyone has permitted you to believe, however the temple speaks the language of heavenly sourced living foods from the garden, not an assembly line. Like sleeping and breathing, food keeps you alive. Medical science proves this repeatedly. What you eat becomes a physical part of you within 45 minutes of digesting. There is joyful news. There are multitudes interested in real, honest to goodness foods. They realize being mindful of the foods they eat affects all aspects of their lives.

Chef Wendell NUTRITIONIST

Mainstream nutritionists drink from the Big Pharma Sippy cup, so you're not going to get the whole picture; just what they want you to see. Parents are children's first teachers. If parents hate veggies, so will the kids. Parents, mindfully express your deep love for them by being an example. Let your kids decide for themselves instead of inflicting your silly fears upon them.

The trillions of cells and stardust that compose you require proper, heavenly feeding: food that speaks the language of your omnipotent body intelligence. The monstrous foods concocted by man in dark moments of hubris, don't speak a language your cells understand. Ergo, you're mildly malnourished, ripe for the pluckin', hardly a miracle here.

All calories, though, are not created equal. The calories in a Poop Tart don't parallel high-quality calories in avocados, for example. Our corpulent 'role models' wheeze that Indiana's health is lagging, but no one mentions 'quality' calories. So, you must fix your mind and diet before you can fix your health.

When sports role model Olympian Michael Phelps announced he ate 12,000 nutritionally empty fast food calories before and after competing, I had a cow. Yes, he won numerous medals, but he was just a kid, able to withstand crappy nutrition, oblivious he was capable of so much more. Eating low grade food isn't what our creator planned. Truth is, only you can release your inner miracle.

How are Southsiders working to keep race fans safe at the Indianapolis Motor Speedway?

FEATURE

By Nicole Davis

Dave Clark, a Perry Township resident, has spent more than 30 years keeping people safe while they attend events at the Indianapolis Motor Speedway. Every year has been different. The economy changes the size of the crowds. Weather impacts the amount of people needing medical attention. Clark said it's a unique challenge that he looks forward to with each event. As the Indianapolis 500 takes place May 26, Clark said one thing will remain the same — the dedication of the medical personnel to keep everyone safe and enjoying the race.

“Like most things, when you go to a football game or you come out here to the Indianapolis Motor Speedway, you as a citizen don't usually look at all the preparation that's taken place across the venue,” Clark said. “If we're doing our job right, you don't notice that.”

Clark began working as an Emergency Medical Technician in 1984. About 10 years ago he became the EMS Coordinator. Five years ago he was promoted to Manager of Emergency Medical Services for Methodist Hospital. Along with working at the IMS, he also serves at Lucas Oil Stadium, Victory Field and the Convention Center.

“At times, if you came and rode in my pocket for the day, you may think it seems like I don't do anything,” Clark said. “If we've done our preparation correctly, I don't have to worry about anything. We spend a lot of time in preparation and making sure our people are trained. Through longevity you notice and you see patterns, whether it's weather or something else, and we know we need to gear up. We try to do whatever we can to be preventative through the front end. We try to downplay the drinking of alcoholic beverages and make sure you're hydrating with sports beverages. We take it as it comes and make adjustments.”

Darin Hoggatt, division chief of EMS at the Greenwood Fire Department, has worked with Clark at IMS for 20 years, becoming close friends. He also oversees EMS there, serving under Clark. Hoggatt started in 1994, brought in by Clark and his relationship with Methodist Hospital. He began working for the Greenwood Fire Department in 1996. He said the best part of working at IMS is the people he gets to work with — many of whom have served at IMS just as long as or longer than he and Clark. He even takes his paid time off from the Greenwood Fire Department to be able to work at the track during big events such as the Indy 500.

“It doesn't feel like work, even though it is,” Hoggatt said. “There are long days. We always have fun. It's a very tightknit group we work with, a family atmosphere. It's easy to go to work there with the people around...The biggest thing is the fact that everything is so tight-knit. Even with the drivers and the people that go through the medical center, it's a very comfortable family feeling. We provide that to the drivers and the people that come in. It's very relaxed, not like you're going to a doctor's office.”

Typically, Clark said they treat a lot of headaches, hangovers, cuts and scrapes at the Indiana University Health Emergency Medical Center located on the infield of the Speedway. He said people don't always prepare for the heat and humidity, get dehydrated and then drinking alcohol on top of all that.

The heat wears on everybody,” Clark said. “Most people don't really have an appreciation for the size of this place. More and more parking is outside of the venue so you have to be ready to walk several blocks. Being prepared to deal with the weather in each personal situation are the things we deal with on a regular basis.”

The medical center has a room set up to help with those everyday problems, along a room for those with more severe medical conditions and a room for the racecar drivers and staff.

“There used to be a lot more injuries in the past than there are today because of the strides in making it safer for these guys,” Clark said.

In addition to safety for the drivers, Clark said they have made strides in making the track a more family-friendly atmosphere. The infield used to be a big party area, but there is less space for that now. The focus has changed to race fans watching the race and the cars. He said the medical center has also doubled in size since he came to work at IMS, a sign that they have taken good steps at increasing safety.

“What makes my job is the fact that when we come here at the end of an 18-hour day, people have enjoyed the experience,” Clark said. “We have taken care of those that need assistance and in a timely way so people can get back and enjoy the race. Sometimes it's the little things. Somebody wasn't prepared. Someone's family has a little one that needs a stitch or is cut or just having a bad day because it's too hot. We cool them down and send them out with a smile on their face. We're happy if we don't have to do a whole lot because that means people are being safe.”

IN OUR SCHOOLS

Perry seniors can receive new incentive lounge

Senior students (who qualify) may enjoy lunch in the newly redecorated "Senior Incentive Lounge" at Perry Meridian High School. This incentive is based on the following criteria: 2.5 GPA in previous semester with no F's; 16 periods (2 days) of excused absences or less. No unexcused absences; no more than one Category One referral.

Matt O'Brien and Alex Aukerman

O'Brien and Aukerman named scholar athletes

Center Grove High School seniors Matt O'Brien and Alex Aukerman were honored as the 2014 National Football Foundation Central Indiana Chapter Scholar Athlete Award winners. The award is given to student-athletes in recognition of their success and leadership on the field and in the classroom. O'Brien and Aukerman are among 15 players selected from around the state of Indiana. They received the honor at the 20th Annual National Football Foundation/College Hall of Fame Scholar Athlete banquet at the Indianapolis Colts Pavilion.

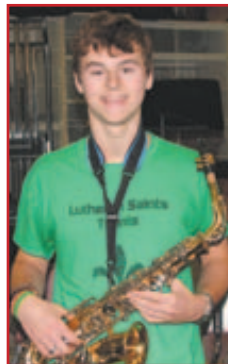

Roncalli adds three to Perfect Rebel Club

Roncalli High School senior Will Niezgodski and juniors Abby Whalen and Matt Cunningham became the newest members of the "Perfect Rebel" Club. Will scored a perfect score of 36 on the science portion of the ACT, while Abby scored a perfect 36 on both the science and reading portions of the exam. Making Roncalli history, Matt becomes the first Roncalli student to record a perfect 36 on the ACT composite as a result of earning a perfect score of 36 on the science and reading sections and a near perfect score of 35 on both the English and mathematics sections. The ACT composite score is the average of the four test scores earned during a single test administration. The "Perfect Rebel" Club recognizes Roncalli High School students who have scored a perfect score on the ACT (36) or the SAT (800). Currently, there are 20 members of the Perfect Rebel Club attending Roncalli High School bringing the total number of students admitted to the club since its inception in 2001 to 67. From left, Niezgodski, Whalen and Cunningham.

READER'S WRITES

Many Southside residents enjoyed family-friendly events in Southport on Saturday, May 10th. Nearly 2,000 people attended the Vintage Market at the Antique Mall and the Street Fair on Derbyshire and in the Southport Park. In addition to hundreds of people walking, there were golf carts and a shuttle bus transporting shoppers and guests from local church parking lots to the events along Southport Road. The safety of all was the top priority for the 20+ volunteer Southport police officers. These men and women are true professionals and public servants and we owe them our debt of gratitude. Chief Tom Vaughn and Major David Howe set high standards for the men and women who volunteer their time to keep Southport safe. Many thanks to all men and women who proudly wear the badge.

OUR VIEW

Commemorating Memorial Day

In the midst of all the action going on this weekend—the 98th Indianapolis 500, the Pacers and Heat rivalry in the NBA Eastern Conference Finals, and various other goings on in Indy and on the Southside—we can easily lose sight of an important national holiday this Monday...

Memorial Day, formerly known as Decoration Day to honor fallen soldiers who died during the Civil War, marks a day of remembrance to honor those brave men and women who have fought and died in service of our great nation.

Whether you've lost a friend, family member, or significant other—or you know someone who has lost a soul to the trials of military service—this holiday is much more than a needed day off from work or recovery from Race Weekend shenanigans. Memorial Day is a chance to respectfully honor our fallen veterans and reflect upon their ultimate sacrifice for the liberties and safeties of our citizens.

Join us in setting aside time on Monday to reflect and peacefully honor our fallen service men and women, or even visit the Indiana War Memorial. Let us not take for granted their sacrifice for the betterment of our nation—let us garner strength and wisdom to carry with us as we head ever onto a brighter and more peaceful future.

"Memorial Day, formerly known as Decoration Day to honor fallen soldiers who died during the Civil War, marks a day of remembrance to honor those brave men and women who have fought and died in service of our great nation."

Memories of the month of May at the Indianapolis Motor Speedway

Consider Memorial Day weekend a sacred time. As a life-long Indy guy, and one who grew up less than a mile from the Indianapolis Motor Speedway, it's difficult to put in words what the Indianapolis 500 means to me.

So, as I gear up for my favorite weekend of the year, allow me to share a few of my favorite May memories:

- Late 60s – can't really remember but my father took me to the IMS for qualifications (Pole Day). I remember the long walk to the gate at 16th street – and I remember thinking the place was huge, the cars were fast and people in the Snake Pit were crazy. I was hooked.

- In 1973, the accident-marred and rain-delayed race was finally run in the middle of the week. All Indianapolis Public Schools were closed so folks could attend. I walked over to IMS at 12 years old, entered the gate at no charge and found a seat in turn one near the edge of the track, watching the race by myself. In addition, sometime either before the race or after, I found my way into the Snake Pit and a group of hippies, who were more than too eager to throw me up in the air in a blanket. Great fun. Can you imagine if this were to occur today? It'd be all over cable news and my mother and father would be dubbed the worst parents ever.

- In 1981 I was a photo stringer for the Associated Press. My job on race day was to not only shoot photos; I was also the turn's "runner." That meant if there was an accident, it was my responsibility to run around the turn screaming "AP" and collecting film in a bag to be taken promptly to the AP darkroom. Well there was a huge accident in turn 3 that year as Danny Ongias hit the wall. When his car finally came to stop it looked as though he hadn't made it – it was a very shocking experience for a 19-year-old. I was shooting photos, too. I remember running back to the AP dark room –nearly out of breath. After the race I was told that one of my photos had been transmitted across the AP wire. My love of photojournalism intensified after that day. By the way, I made something like $80 for the photo.

- In 2011 I met Mark Moore at an Indy Lights test at IMS. It has cultivated into a very good friendship. Mark owns Team Moore Racing.

I had the pleasure of watching the Freedom 100 (on Carb Day) in 2012 and last year as well from the pits – a very different perspective. I'll be there this year, too. I've also been able, through TMR, to travel to other Indy car venues and I am beginning to collect memories at those tracks as well.

I'll be at IMS on Sunday when the green flag drops, with my family and thinking, too, of all of the memories over the course of the years that have been created inside and around IMS. I'll also be thinking of the men and women who have served our country so unselfishly, defending my right to create those memories by attending the greatest sporting event in the world.

Happy Memorial Day!

Godzilla... A fairly entertaining remake

MOVIE REVIEW

Remakes. Most of the time it's an easy way for Hollywood to make a few million dollars to several hundred million without exerting much creativity in the process. Rarely do any of these films live up to the original film in terms of writing, acting, directing or in any aspect at all. Instead, what we get is a hollow sham of a film where the studio is just looking to capitalize off of the success of the original. Well, one film that seems to receive the remake treatment every 10 years of so is the classic monster tale, Godzilla. This past weekend, the newest reworking of the massive creature opened in theaters.

Godzilla tells the story of the immense prehistoric being and the scientists trying to contain the best as he starts to make his reappearance. This time around one of those scientists happens to be Joe Brody (Bryan Cranston). After an event that costs Brody his wife, the film flashes forward 15 years as Brody tries to piece together what exactly it was that killed his wife. Soon enough, the military is the only thing standing between Godzilla and total world annihilation. However, there may be more than just more than one prehistoric being wrecking havoc.

As far as story is concerned, Godzilla gives you what you want and expect and does so admirably. It's a non-stop fast-paced, action adventure thrill ride that keeps you more than engaged and engrossed for the duration of the film. It's not a terrific story, but for this kind of film, it hits every spot when you expect it to do so and in an above average way.

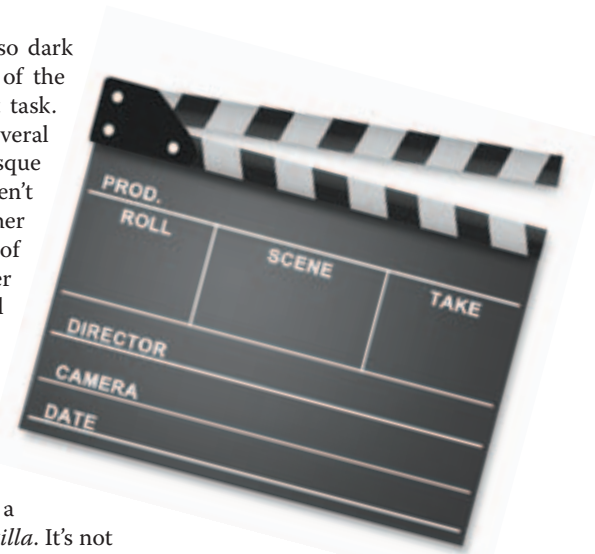

Visually, the film is nothing to get too excited about. Most of the film is so dark that making out much in terms of the mammoth creatures is a difficult task. Throughout the film, we get several shots of the revolting and grotesque beasts, but it's nothing that we haven't seen many times before. The other special effects, the destruction of entire cities, landmarks and other structures is pretty weak in several places.

Godzilla surprisingly manages to keep and hold your attention for a fair amount of the film. Even with a fairly predictable story with some pretty sizable plot holes, you could definitely do a lot worse at the theater than Godzilla. It's not going to blow you away, but it's still a good way to kill two hours. I generously give it a 3 out of 5.

Beech Grove's Ellis serves aboard attack submarine

AROUND TOWN

For SST by Mass Communications Specialist 1st Class Sunday Sawyer, Navy Office of Community Outreach

2013 Beech Grove High School graduate and Beech Grove native, Seaman Recruit Zachery M. Ellis is serving aboard a U.S. Navy attack submarine, the USS Hawaii (SSN 776). Ellis is a culinary specialist aboard the Hawaii-based boat, a Virginia-class nuclear-powered attack submarine, and the first commissioned vessel of its name. The submarine was named to recognize the tremendous support the Navy has enjoyed from the people and state of Hawaii, and in honor of the rich heritage of submarines in the Pacific. Measuring 370 feet long, 33 feet wide, weighing 7,800 tons when submerged and with a complement of more than 130 sailors, USS Hawaii is one of the Navy's newest and most technologically sophisticated submarines.

Attack submarines are designed to pursue and attack enemy submarines and surface ships using torpedoes. They also carry cruise missiles with conventional high-explosive warheads to attack enemy shore facilities. They also conduct intelligence, surveillance and reconnaissance missions, mine laying and support special operations.

As a 19-year-old with numerous responsibilities, Ellis said he is learning about himself as a leader, sailor and a person. He added that his choice to join the Navy was about needing direction.

"I was not really sure exactly what I wanted to do and part of me wants to follow in my families footsteps and be a law enforcement officer but you have to be 21 for that so I am hoping the Navy will give me the direction I need to help me grow and make a decision," said Ellis.

Hawaii, along with all other U.S. Navy submarines, is manned solely by volunteers from within the Navy. Because of the stressful environment aboard submarines, personnel are accepted only after rigorous testing and observation. Submariners are some of the most highly-trained and skilled people in the Navy. The training is highly technical and each crew has to be able to operate, maintain, and repair every system or piece of equipment on board. Regardless of their specialty, everyone also has to learn how everything on the ship works and how to respond in emergencies to become "qualified in submarines" and earn the right to wear the coveted gold or silver dolphins on their uniform.

Ellis said he is very proud of the work he is doing as part of the Hawaii's 130-member crew, protecting America on the world's oceans. Imagine working and living in a 370-foot long, 33-foot wide, three-story building with no windows and surrounded by technology. Then lock the doors, submerge beneath the surface of the ocean and travel silently underwater for months.

"I'm very proud of all USS Hawaii sailors and equally impressed with the type and quality of work that goes aboard the submarine each day," said Cmdr. William A. Patterson, Hawaii's commanding officer. "Our team is filled with highly qualified young adults, reliable, flexible, and ready to respond worldwide at any time. Their work ethic, enthusiasm, and esprit de corps are second to none and they are the backbone of the Navy's undersea war-fighting capability."

As a member of one of the U.S. Navy's most relied upon assets, Ellis and other USS Hawaii sailors know they are part of a legacy that will last beyond their lifetimes.

WHERE WE DINE

Pat Van Valer, Chairman of the Board of Masters Heating & Cooling by Van Valer.

Where do you like to dine? Stone Creek Dining Company

What do you like to eat there? I particularly like the Ahi Tuna. That is one of my favorites. There is not much on the menu that I don't like actually.

What do you like about this place? The location is great. The people from those at the front door, to the servers, to the bartenders, and the chef are all very, very positive, upbeat and helpful.

It was then up to the jury to determine which character is telling a "Tall Tale".

DISPATCH

Mortgage rules loosening • A gauge of mortgage-credit availability ticked up last month, and has been heading higher for two years, according to data released Tuesday. The trend could support the housing market's recovery, economists said. Headwinds remain from high credit hurdles implement after the financial crisis of 2008, and any easing in standards will be welcomed by first-time borrowers and other would-be home purchasers who have been blocked from the market. According to the Mortgage Bankers Association, its gauge of mortgage-credit availability rose to 113.5 in February from 113 in January, and 109.1 in February 2013. And for those worried about recent easing, wondering whether risky lenders are setting up the economy for another disaster, consider this: MBA's gauge would have been about 800 during the bubble year of 2007. - Yahoo! Indy Library adopts new plan for services through 2020

After 10 months of citizen input, research and assessment, The Indianapolis Public Library Board of Trustees approved a strategic plan, "Yours to Experience," to define the Library's role and scope of services in the community for the years 2015-2020. The plan includes realigning branch locations to maximize access, reducing or eliminating the leasing of facilities, and developing new relationships with community centers and other partners. Included in the plan, resources of the Fountain Square Branch, a leased facility, would be relocated to an expanded location in Perry Township north of I-465 to fill a large service gap between the existing Garfield Park and Southport branches. Approval of the plan will allow the Library Board to include expenditures for the initial steps of implementation in the Library's 2015 budget and operations plan to be devised later in 2014. To learn more, visit imcpl.org/strategicplan/.

Greenwood roundabout receives funding earlier than planned

The Indianapolis Metropolitan Planning Organization (MPO) notified the City of Greenwood regarding an amendment to the Transportation Improvement Plan. This amendment officially moves the Averitt Road & Main Street Roundabout project from the 2016 Fiscal Year to the 2015 Fiscal Year. Further, it has increased the federal share to 100 percent. This will result in a cost savings to the City of an estimated $134,400. Mayor Mark W. Myers commented, "This is great news for us, and will happen sooner than we expected. That intersection is crowded, dangerous and typically backs up commuter traffic. It will improve east-west flow safely." Moving the project to 2015 allows the City to construct the roundabout during the summer break for Greenwood Schools. There is still paperwork to complete, but the project has been approved and planning is in motion.

Southport HS holds appreciation luncheon

Southport High School Pre-Vocational Education Services, headed by Mary Beth Hanley, hosted an Appreciation Luncheon. The luncheon was to honor businesses that have willingly worked with exceptional needs students. The Perry Township Trustee's Charitable Contributions Initiative offers an environment for students to learn skills that will help them transition into the job market upon graduation. Also included in the luncheon was Gleaners Food Bank, VA Hospital, YMCA, Teachers Treasures. Pictured from left, Sam Merl, Perry Township Trustee Dan Moriarty, Jodie Bristow and Dr. Little.

Getting STEM ready

Greenwood Middle School introduces its students to the engineering world through its community partnerships

FOCUS

By Nicole Davis

On May 16th Cummins engineers spent the entire school day visiting with Greenwood Middle School to demonstrate CAD software that allows engineers to virtually walk through some large projects and make repairs.

"What we're trying to do is get (students) fired up for science, technology, engineering and math, the STEM classes," said Chris Campbell, teacher at GMS.

Nicole Otte of Central Nine Career Center and college student Katlyn Driesbach attended the school to tie in what steps the students can take throughout high school and college to get to the careers and opportunities mentioned by the Cummins engineers.

During the virtual reality portion of the Cummins presentation, each student took turns looking at and into a 3-D engine.

"It was really neat to see everything inside," said student, Sammi DeCastro. "I like computer stuff and it's kind of cool to me. I actually really liked it. It's not what you see every day."

This was the first time for the school to host this type of event, Campbell said, though he hopes to incorporate it more in the future.

"I was here to talk about prepping for engineering in high school," Driesbach said. "It's good for them because 90 percent of the kids I've seen are 8th graders. They are getting ready to go into high school and ready to take these classes. You never know what you are going to do and how you're future will go. You need to figure out what you're passionate about."

What form of recreation can keep a retiree busy?

CHESTER'S CORNER

By James D. Allen

Jim's wife is retiring. Is that good or bad? How shall I play it? On one hand, she'll spend more time at the lake up north. So I'll have the run of the place and keep Jim dazzled all summer long.

On the other hand she'll resume governing the realm by early September. So where will I hide? How can I get away with things? She is sharper than Jim; her wits have been honed to a keen edge through four decades of dealing with students like me.

I could try flattery. I could pretend to turn over a new leaf. Women love big promises and talking is easier than doing.

Maybe she could be distracted. I could point out that as a pastor's wife, she'll now have more time to volunteer and help out. The parsonage is a few yards from the church but if I can just get her out the door I've created a breathing space. Like most churches, ours is dominated by women.

CHESTER'S CHUCKLE

Q: Mr. Potato and his wife had several children. What were the children called?

A: Tater Tots!

They do most of the work and give all kinds of leadership.

The physical stuff (e.g. fixing a pipe) is left for the trustees who're usually men. But committees are filled with good hearted ladies. Jim's wife will fit right in.

I could get lucky. Maybe she'll spend more time with the grandkids (they have 9!). I must come up with something or else she'll try to reform me (she still tries to re-form Jim, a hopeless stick in the mud).

Exercise! That's the ticket. Get her to go to the gym four days a week and take LONG walks the other three. I'll get Jim to take her out for tennis and bike rides. They'll both be out of my hair! She'll have less energy to govern. Even Jim will thank me for that idea.

Every age has its challenges. What in the world will I do when Jim retires? Yikes!

I may have to finally grow up.

Chester is a ventriloquist dummy who visits Edgewood United Methodist Church in Perry Township on special Sunday services. Pastor Jim Allen and Chester enjoy joking back and forth to drive home a serious message at church.

IN OUR SCHOOLS

Lutheran High School teacher Steven Lewer named STARs Fellow

Steven Lewer

Steven Lewer is one of 40 middle and high school teachers from across the country chosen to participate in the 2014 Siemens Teachers as Researchers (STARs) program this summer. As a STARs Fellow, he will work with the nation's top scientists and other educators on short-term projects focused on the most current and innovative science research happening today at Oak Ridge National Laboratory in Tennessee. Mr. Lewer received his Bachelor's in Secondary Education - Math Field from Concordia University Nebraska. His Master's Degree in Applied Mathematics for Computers is from Long Island University. He currently serves as the mathematics department chair at Lutheran High School where he teaches Geometry and Theology. He is the aerospace education officer and commander of the high school's Civil Air Patrol squadron and a mentor for the school's VEX robotics team.

The church, Christ and you

By Pastor Paul A. Kirby

"Take heed therefore unto yourselves, and to all the flock, over which the Holy Ghost hath made you overseers, to feed the church of God, which he hath purchased with his own blood."

~ Acts 20:28

An overseer is one who is given the responsibility to make sure that the church remains what God intended for it to be and nothing more or less. The word in the Greek is episkopos and it means superintendent. Another word commonly used is the word bishop. I Peter 2:25 says: "For ye were as sheep going astray; but are now returned unto the Shepherd and Bishop of your souls." The Shepherd and Bishop of our souls is Jesus Christ. He is also the High Priest of the priesthood of the church.

The word for Bishop is the same as it is for Overseer: episkopos. So, the term superintendent and bishop are the same word translated differently by those who translated the Bible from the Latin and the Greek into English.

Regardless of this, what we need to understand is that God is the Architect of the church and Christ is He who administers the design of the Architect. Of course they are One and the same person with different roles to fulfill. Neither you nor I have any right tampering with God's design of His church nor should we seek to over-rule Christ in His administration of its many facets. What I want to say is that the church is God's institution. He created it and He oversees it. We are all servants and none of us are masters. This is not to say that God has left His church without leadership for He ordains the leadership of His church. No man is ruler of it but all are responsible to God to make sure the church is a well-behaved organization of those who believe that Jesus Christ is God's only begotten Son and who died to take away the sin of the world. Those that God calls through His Holy Spirit are the only legitimate servants of the church. Those saved by the redeeming blood of Christ and sanctified by His Word and Holy Spirit are the qualified to serve. God gifts the church first with the Holy Spirit and then with spiritual gifts by the Holy Spirit. These gifts enable the ministers to do the ministry of Jesus Christ.

The church is the Body of Christ on earth and must always reflect by its words and its actions the life of Christ. The purpose of the church is to introduce the sinner to God through Christ and to edify the born-again to enable them to serve Christ. In other words, the church is here to make disciples for Christ and not merely to disciple folks to the church. May God help us all to see the difference between those two things.

God bless and go and have a great day.

Paul A. Kirby is the pastor at the Church of God at 3939 S. Emerson Ave.

City of Beech Grove takes legal action against Franciscan Alliance

Beech Grove announced on May 20 that it has filed a lawsuit in Marion Superior Court against Franciscan Alliance, Inc. for persistent, impermissible flows of storm water into the city's sanitary sewer system at the former St. Francis Hospital site, which is a direct violation of city ordinance and a public health hazard. Clear flows indicative of storm/surface water and drainage have been observed on the former hospital site flowing into the sanitary sewers outside the hospital. More than 30,000 gallons of water per day were being dumped from the former hospital site into the city's sanitary sewer system. "It has always been our intention to work with Franciscan Alliance to resolve these issues," said Mayor Dennis Buckley. "But our first obligation is to the taxpayers of Beech Grove. It is simply irresponsible to ask them to pay to treat this water and to live with raw sewage packing up in their basements, while placing an undue burden on our city's infrastructure." Franciscan St. Francis Health issued a statement regarding this lawsuit: "We just received notice today (May 20) that the City of Beech Grove has filed a lawsuit in Marion Superior Court and we have not had time to fully study its details. As policy, Franciscan Alliance and its division, Franciscan St. Francis Health, does not comment on pending litigation."

Prescribe vs. proscribe

GRAMMAR GUY

Question: "Dear Grammar Guy: I've seen several friends make Facebook posts with- in the past few months about 'proscriptions' or 'proscription medications.' It doesn't have an alternate meaning that's the same as 'prescription,' does it?"

Jordan Fischer
GRAMMAR GUY

Answer: Thanks for the question! Since you saw this mix-up on Facebook, I'm willing to give your friends the benefit of the doubt and say they may have a cell phone's autocorrect feature to thank for it. That being said, for those who are interested, I think we can dig into this one a bit.

We're all familiar with what a prescription is: a written message from a doctor that officially tells someone to use a medicine. It can also be used more generally to indicate something that is suggested as a way to do something or make something happen. For example, a tech support representative might prescribe changing your password if your e-mail has been sending spam.

A proscription, on the other hand, is something almost entirely the opposite: an imposed restraint or restriction; something you shouldn't do or aren't allowed to do. To proscribe is to prohibit or forbid, or to make something illegal.

"Proscribe" isn't a word you see frequently outside of legal contexts, while "prescribe" is used in both medical and legal settings (Many states have laws prescribing minimum sentences for certain crimes, for example).

The best way to remember the difference between the two is to stick with what you're familiar with.

A prescription is something a doctor tells you to do, and since "proscription" is an antonym of "prescription," it must mean the opposite – something you shouldn't do.

As to avoiding autocorrect errors: I have no advice. Even the Grammar Guy is caught up from time to time by his know-it-all cell phone.

AROUND TOWN

New clinic offers primary care to Greenwood city employees, families

Employees of the City of Greenwood enrolled in a medical plan with ADVANTAGE Health Solutions Inc. SM (Advantage) now have a central location to have their medical and wellness needs met. Franciscan WorkingWell and Greenwood have partnered to offer an employee health and wellness center, which will open June 3 at the New City Center Building, 300 S. Madison Ave. The clinic's focus is to provide convenient primary care for acute illnesses and minor injuries for covered city employees and dependents over the age of 1. The clinic will be led by Daniel Wikse, MD, a family medicine and occupational medicine specialist with Franciscan Physician Network.

Southside AAA Insurance to promote bike safety

May is Bicycle Safety Month and AAA Hoosier Motor Club's Greenwood/Southport office, 1309 E. Stop 11 Rd., is sponsoring a children's coloring contest to help promote bicycle safety and awareness. The competition, coordinated by AAA Insurance, will run throughout the month of May and is open to children ages 4-12. According to information provided by AAA Traffic Safety Programs, approximately 200 bicyclists under the age of 15 die each year as a result of crashes while another 350,000 are injured. AAA Insurance wants to help children realize how they can minimize risk and maximize fun while bicycling. For those interested in participating in the AAA Insurance Bicycle Safety Coloring Contest, entry coloring sheets will be available at the Greenwood/Southport office throughout the month of May to children of AAA members and non-members alike. All entries must be returned to that same office no later than May 31. From the submitted entries, one coloring sheet will be randomly selected June 2, 2014 and that child will win a bicycle and helmet. For additional information, call (317) 882-1521.

IMCU hosts spring mortgage events

Indiana Members Credit Union (IMCU), Central Indiana's largest credit union, will host a spring mortgage event and give answers to real estate questions. IMCU Loan Officer, Kelly Mitchell, will be onsite at the following IMCU Southside locations; May 24, 9 a.m. – 1p.m. at IMCU Southside Branch, 5047 Madison Ave., Indianapolis; and May 31, 9 a.m. – 1p.m. at IMCU Greenwood Branch, 1115 N. Madison Ave., Greenwood. For more information, contact Mitchell at (317) 817-2426 or kmitchell@imcu.com.

Score a goal with a refreshing appetizer

Perk up your game day party with ceviche

RECIPE

For The Southside Times by Family Features

Can't escape the office to cheer on your favorite soccer team this summer? Record a few of your favorite matches during the week and replay them with friends, marathon-style, as part of a weekend soccer viewing party. Regardless of what teams everyone cheers for, keep your guests fueled and happy with endless tortilla chips and a refreshing Tabasco & Lime Ceviche.

Soccer Viewing Party Tips

Here are a few tips and tricks to help lead your viewing party to victory:

- For an unexpected twist, mix a few drops of Tabasco Original Red Sauce or Tabasco Chipotle Sauce into melted butter and drizzle over a bowl of popcorn.

- With games lasting at least 90 minutes, set up a self-serve snack bar for guests to quickly refill on tortilla chips, veggies, crackers, pretzels, dips and salsa during timeouts.

- Keep bowls of salsa, sour cream, dips and other condiments cool in a tub of ice.

- Prepare a variety of homemade dips and salsas in resealable plastic containers the night before for easy serving and easy eating on game day.

For more recipes and tips, visit TABASCO.com.

Tabasco & Lime Ceviche

Prep time: 30 minutes

Makes: 4-6 appetizer servings

Ceviche:

- 1 pound fresh tilapia or other fresh, firm white fish, diced
- 1/2 cup fresh key lime juice
- 1/2 cup chopped white onion
- 1 clove garlic, minced
- 2 teaspoons Tabasco brand Original Red Sauce
- 1 large Roma tomato, chopped
- 1/4 cup chopped cilantro
- 1 teaspoon salt
- 1 tablespoon olive oil

Garnish:

- 1 avocado, diced

Place fish, lime juice, onion, garlic and Tabasco Sauce in bowl. Mix well, cover and refrigerate 4-6 hours.

Stir in tomato, cilantro, salt and olive oil. Chill. Drain before serving, if desired.

Garnish with avocado and serve with your favorite tortilla chips.

We're for opportunity. For self-discovery.
And for you.

Indiana State offers you a one-of-a-kind MBA program in Plainfield for working professionals.

Only five percent of colleges and universities are nationally accredited by the AACSB. And we're named a "Nation's Best" program by the Princeton Review. We're among the elite.

We're for balance in your family, work, and school time. One night a week for ten weeks, three times a year. You'll see the goal and stay the course.
