Bridging the gap

Ashley Davis is the Southside's new community liaison while former liaison Gary Loveless switches districts

FEATURE

By Nicole Davis

Community liaison Gary Loveless has been the link between the Southside Indianapolis community and its government for more than five years, driving back and forth across Indianapolis from his Northside home. With four of nine Indianapolis liaisons traveling across the city to and from work, a change was made so that those who serve a community live in that community. Loveless now serves the Northside. Perry Township resident Ashley Davis took over the Southside, Perry and Franklin Townships, on Oct. 21.

"I am going to miss the people," Loveless said. "I have great friends all through here. The one thing my wife has said is everyone is nice on the Southside. She said that's what she will miss. The people down here are great, but getting to see my wife more has an appeal to it. She is a fabulous woman."

Loveless will still visit the Southside periodically to maintain his contacts with the Chin community, which he says is the "economic engine for Perry Township."

"It's taken years to get that connection," Loveless said. "I want to keep them and they want me around."

Davis is a graduate of Perry Meridian High School. She started her career in cosmetology school, and then went for business. She worked for SecurPros Inc. for 11 years before being asked to serve on the campaign for Jana Scott for Marion County Clerk. She has worked on other political campaigns since, and says the only difference between her work with that and being a liaison is the ability to take action and help more than simply telling people which resources could help them.

"It's more the behind the scenes," Davis said. "I never knew the department of public development and their roles, public works, parks department. There are just so many departments we have to work with...There would be a huge disconnect without community liaisons. The mayor, deputy mayor would not have the eyes and ears out there."

Though she is new to the position, Davis has been "looping in" for more than a month, getting to know residents and how the Southside government and community work. She will maintain office hours on Mondays in both Perry and Franklin Townships, and says she would encourage residents to visit.

"Right now it's a really good time because I have two hours to sit here, e-mail constituents and talk to people about their problems," Davis said. "I can coordinate with the councilors and have them come in to talk on a special issue. It's a way to bridge that gap (between the community and government)."

Mindful eating

NUTRITION

Please stop trying too hard. Eating healthy is about progress, not perfection. Be easy and compassionate with yourself as you begin your healthy eating journey. It's a marathon, not a sprint. Mindful eating involves knowing where your food comes from: a factory assembly line, or a friendly community Farmers' Market.

It's mindful food choices that feed your trillions of cells, ergo, garbage in, garbage out. It's about honoring your temple and Creation by eating fresh, local and clean food fare gifted from the universe. It's about feeling good and meeting your daily potential, but most importantly, it's about self-love.

Mindful eating involves knowing what your food choices are doing for your temple. Folks worship cancerous bacon and artery clogging doughnuts, but in the end, eating these foods leads to a lower quality of life and shortened life span. (The AHA, Mayo, Cleveland Clinic, Harvard, and the American Cancer Society).

Mindful Eating is allowing yourself to become aware of the positive and nurturing opportunities available through food preparation and consumption by respecting your own inner wisdom. It's choosing to eat food that's both pleasing to you and nourishing to your temple by using all your senses to explore, savor and taste. Mindful eating acknowledges responses to food likes, neutral or dislikes without judgment. It's learning to be aware of physical hunger and satiety cues to guide your decision to begin or to stop eating.

Chef Wendell
Nutritionist

Food stimulates a joyous flow of Heavenly intelligence, releasing your God-given innate social, physical, and spiritual mindsets. Once the flow sets up nothing else is necessary but to enjoy your life and dig the crystal clear connection to God plus your flourishing health. After all, we were created to thrive, learn and grow. This cannot be achieved eating today's hideous American diet.

Pay attention to eating. Quality infinitely trumps quantity. Meditate on what's at the end of your fork and how it's serving or weakening your temple. This may sound unattainable in today's boisterous world, but pause momentarily before eating and sit in silence, or say grace, so awareness begins the meal quietly. Consider food sacred; the supper table an altar of gratitude. Express thankfulness to the universe for its generosity. Instead of half chewing, slow down and take a leisurely time to eat. Chew food well and slowly till it's liquefied. Digestion begins in the mouth. Appreciate the company but avoid eating in any toxic company that makes you feel less than agreeable, but eat with congenial company, non-judgmental friends and family. Tell a joke, laugh or share an uplifting story. Finally, hug the ones you're with and express your love for them. Good hugs should last no less than 20 seconds.

You are worthy, beautiful, courageous and blessed. God is good.

CALLED TO SERVE

Two generations of Southsiders, Clyde Kerr and Joe Lohman share their common bond with Veterans Day

Clyde Kerr

Joe Lohman

COVER STORY

By Nicole Davis

It's about recognizing the brotherhood of those who served, appreciating freedoms and those who fought and died for them. Veterans Day has maintained its meaning and significance since it was recognized by President Woodrow Wilson on Armistice Day Nov. 11, 1919. On the Southside, veterans, regardless of age or time period in military service, have a common bond during Nov. 11 commemorations.

"I try to honor everyone that I find," said Clyde Kerr, member of the Beech Grove VFW and American Legion. "I just extend my hand and say 'welcome home brother.' We need to honor our military and people who have served, because they stepped forward and did it."

Kerr served for 26 years in Army National Guard, rising to the rank of staff sergeant. Growing up in the WWII era, Kerr said he was seven years old when Pearl Harbor was attacked. He had brothers and other family who joined the military, serving in WWII, and it eventually led to Kerr wanting to join.

"I remember the outpouring of people (after Pearl Harbor)," Kerr said. "... I wasn't drafted. When it came for Vietnam, I volunteered to go."

While in Vietnam, Kerr was in six major battles, including the Battle of Hue during the Tet offensive in January and February 1968.

He said he got to 54 combat operations in Vietnam before he stopped counting. He retired as a Captain in October 1994 with numerous medals and decorations, including Armed Forces Reserve Medal, Bronze Star medal, Vietnamese Cross-of Gallantry with Silver Star, Cold War Defense Medal and Vietnamese Armor Badge.

"I'm actually proud of the service I gave to my country," Kerr said. "I felt ever since I was a kid, if the only thing I owed to my country was a time of my life being in the military, it's a small price to pay for the freedoms I enjoy."

Nearly 35 years old during his service in Vietnam, Kerr said his views on the war and how he handled the conflict was likely different than those who are younger and serve, not fully grasping why they are there — and that aspect of war remains the same today.

This Veterans Day, Kerr will travel to Kentucky to visit his family and speak at his grandson's school. Nov. 11 will be a day of reflection for himself, and other veterans around him. Regardless of age and service, Veterans day is a day of remembrance and paying respects to those that served.

"Veterans Day already meant a lot, before I served, considering my father was a Marine in Vietnam," said Joe Lohman, Beech Grove resident and veteran. "It means a lot to me to have served in our military. For me, it's a day of reflection, thought and prayer and giving thanks to those who have served. Anytime I see a veteran, I still shake their hand and tell them I appreciate their service."

Lohman served in the Marines Special Op Command from 2008-12. While training in the Mountains in 29 Palms Calif., he fell 30 feet. Within four to six months of the fall, he developed kidney problems, back problems, nerve problems, and more. Before the fall, he had been promoted to Lance Corporal, picking up Corporal while working through his injuries. In 2010 the Marine Corps took him out of training operations to focus on getting better. After surgeries and spinal injections, a medical board said he was no longer fit for active duty.

"In one way, it's just sad that I can't do my job anymore," Lohman said. "The Marine Corp put all this money and time into training me. But apparently my destiny wasn't to be in the Marine Corps anymore."

Since he returned home, his wife Julianne has been his caregiver, helping drive him to the VA for additional treatments. He says the community has helped him through the experience, including Beech Grove Mayor Buckley and other politicians who have listened to his story. This November, Lohman said he will stay busy, attending many Marine birthday and Veterans Day events with his father and other veterans.

"For Veterans Day, people should stop to reflect on Nov. 11, 11 a.m.," Lohman said. "Just that people give respect to their veterans."

Hunger Inc and Meijer partner to provide hunger relief in Perry Township and Beech Grove

Dear editor,

People in our community continue to struggle every day to pay their bills and put food on their tables. Some are even forced to choose between the two, a heartbreaking decision that no one should have to make. I'm pleased to announce that Hunger Inc has joined forces with the Meijer Simply Give food pantry donation program this fall to help fill that void for our local families.

Each Simply Give campaign helps more than 200 food pantries in Michigan, Illinois, Indiana, Ohio and Kentucky keep their shelves stocked with food for those in need. But it also fosters a sense of community by encouraging customers to purchase $10 Meijer Food Pantry Donation Cards, which are then converted into Meijer food-only gift cards and given to the local food pantry selected by the store.

Hunger Inc will benefit from donation cards purchased at the Southport Road Meijer now through Jan. 4. Every $10 donated to Hunger Inc will be matched by Meijer. Also, on November 15-16, Meijer will Double Match every donation. This means that Hunger Inc will receive $30 for every $10 donated on these 2 days.

I want to encourage you to help us fulfill our mission of helping feed the hungry by purchasing a food donation card during your next shopping trip. Tell your friends, relatives, neighbors and co-workers because every dollar makes a difference.

And when we give, Meijer gives. For the second consecutive year, Meijer will contribute at least $1 million to the 2013 Simply Give program.

We are very encouraged about this opportunity to serve the hungry here on the Southside.

Dennis Thompson
President of Hunger Inc.
Perry Township

OUR VIEW

Our vets continue to serve us still

Iwo Jima, Inchon, Khe Sanh, Fallujah, Baghdad, Beech Grove, Center Grove, Franklin Township, Greenwood, Perry Township and Southport. Our veterans serve us still even though they may no longer be overseas. They serve in many roles in their communities, firemen, police officers etc... but they also serve us by humbling us with they and their families' sacrifices be it time, or wounds or even death.

They remind we who haven't served in the same capacity that we can still serve by serving our communities. And in doing so, we honor them and their service.

Veterans Day is Nov. 11. Remember the sacrifices these men and women have made for our country and the impact it has made on your quality of life. If you know someone who has served our country, please take the time on this day to personally thank him or her. Maybe even give them a hug. God bless these folks who have served our great country over the years.

HUMOR

Southside Saturday shopping

Oh no. The humanity! "Honey, would you go to the store for me? There's a sale on sausage links and I can't go right now." My wife expects ME to go to the grocery store! That would not be so bad but she asked me to go on a Saturday afternoon to go the big box store that requires a small bus to get through in a day! Of a certainty she has forgotten the time and of whom is she asking this favor of.

Scott Emmett Columnist

"Babe, you know it IS Saturday? This is the day that the entire free world shops at the store you want me to go to. You know it will take an overnight trip to get in and out of there, don't you?" I retorted.

"Well," she said, "The sale ends today and I know how much you like sausage links." I wish they would do these things on Thursdays. Nobody goes shopping on Thursday. Well, I don't know that for sure being as how I do not shop unless my life is threatened OR it involves sausage links.

So, off I went to the big box grocery store. You know there is a vast conspiracy about sales, don't you? Well, there is. They put stuff on sale, never carry enough of it, then they hide it. I'm telling you, it's true. After parking my car in the remote parking lot located a county over, I went to the back of the store; a walk of no less than one or two football fields (I did carry water). This was where I expected the sausage links to be. They were, alas, not there. I thought they might be among the frozen foods so made the trek back there. All I found there was hash browns and TV dinners. I theorized that they may be hidden among the piles of stuff strategically placed here and there around the store. No such luck.

I was running low on water and did want to get home before it was time to go to work tomorrow so I asked a passing employee. He was very courteous in his explanation that the sausage links in question could be located with ease amongst the rest of the sausage links and breakfast fixings.

Well, that's just fine. Hide them right in front of me.

Celebrating Southsiders and band achievements

The Southside has a lot to celebrate – from the accomplishments of the bands to achievements of individuals.

At the Beech Grove City Council meeting on Nov. 4, Scott Seach, owner of Beech Grove Bowl was presented with the Distinguished Hoosier Award for his work organizing volunteers to paint the wall on Emerson Avenue bordering the Amtrak facility and for his work with the Beech Grove Bowl Special Rollers League. Congratulations Scott on this great recognition.

A big pat on the back goes to the Greenwood High School band for winning Class B State Marching Band Finals in the ISSMA competition last Saturday at Lucas Oil Stadium. Way to go Woodman!

We would like to welcome Ashley Davis in her new position as Perry and Franklin Townships community liaison. Southsiders can go to Davis with any issue they face in their community and her job is to find the best solution to that issue, reporting her findings directly to Indianapolis Mayor Greg Ballard. Filling the position of five-year liaison Gary Loveless, Davis has some big shoes to fill. Loveless was active on the Southside, attending business meetings as well as fun community events. We are sure Davis will do a wonderful job and we wish her the best of luck.

BELIEVE IT!

Our nation has all sorts of arcane, nonsensical laws on the books. Each week, we'll share one with you...

In Louisiana, a law was passed with the specific intent of stating the punishment for stealing crawfish. When the theft is less than $300, the offender shall be imprisoned for not more than six months, or may be fined not more than five hundred dollars, or both...

MOVIE REVIEW

Ever come across an unconventional, weird or just out-right bizarre product or idea?

Something at first glance that seems almost stupid either because of its simplicity or for its off-the-wall combination of ingredients or features, but for some reason, it works. Peanut butter and jelly. IcyHot. Unfortunately, we've also experienced the other side. Those combinations that don't work out; the Chicago Cubs and baseball. Britney Spears and music. Any food with the word "diet." Luckily, the new film, About Time, starring Rachel McAdams, is one of those rare opportunities to witness two very differing film genres blended into one expertly woven, beautiful story.

About Time combines science fiction, time travel with romantic comedy. The film is about a young English man, Tim, who is about to leave for his first real job since graduating law school. But before he ventures out into the world, his father lets him in on a family secret; all the men in his family can travel back in time. All that's required is an enclosed area and for the participant to close their eyes, clinch their teeth and ball their fists and think of a desired place in time and voila, there they are.

Like most men his age, Tim begins looking around at all the beautiful women that inhabit his city. Tim has never been the best guy with women, but Mary (McAdams) catches his eye. Soon, the two begin seeing each other, it escalates pretty fast, and we stay with these characters several years into their relationship as they experience, joy, pain, love, hate and every other emotion.

Adam Staten
Movie Review

About Time really is oddly written and have to admit that going in, the idea of a romantic comedy/love story and time travel seemed to be more than a tad absurd. But, if you're able to put your initial apprehensions about the film's premise behind you, you're likely to see the best written film this year. It's written in such a way that you're immediately drawn into the lives of these characters.

The chemistry between all the actors radiates off the screen and you feel as though you're peering into the lives of an actual family. Domhnall Gleeson (Tim) and McAdams are terrific.

About Time is easily the best film of the year. It's cleverly written with a sweet story, great characters and terrific performances. Do yourself a favor and check out About Time.

Southside FRA celebrates Veterans Day, Navy birthday and annual fundraiser

The Fleet Reserve Association (FRA) USS Indianapolis (CA-35) Memorial Branch 130 held a Navy birthday party at the VFW Post 5864 on Oct. 18. Items from the birthday party include the cutting of the birthday cake; recognizing the youngest sailor and the saltiest sailor present; but most important the tradition of the grog bowl. A birthday party at VFW Post 5864 for USMC will be on Nov. 8. The FRA has already put its annual fundraiser into motion, taking the model of the Indianapolis to various locations. Members give some history of the ship; tell them about the organization and sell tickets to Mike's Car Wash. The tickets never expire and are the same price as at the car wash but Mike's gives the FRA a portion of each sale. The organization uses the money for Toys for Tots and to help local residents who would not have much of a Christmas and have some money left over for its Christmas Party. The ship was at the Fort Harrison Commissary on the on Nov. 9. She will be outside the Kroger store at Emerson and County Line Road on Nov. 12. Dates and times are yet to be determined.

We salute you with a FREE OIL CHANGE Monday, November 11

To all our active and retired military members: thank you. On Veterans Day, we're providing free basic oil changes for you and the spouses of those currently deployed.

FACE to FACE

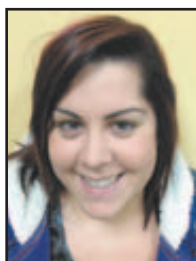

Q: Is there a veteran in your life that you admire? If so, who are they and why do you admire them?

Compiled by Brian Ruckle

"My step-dad Kenny was an Army Ranger and I admire him because he's a tough guy and always knows the right answer."

~ Roxy Zoderer, Perry Township

"That would be Clarence Weddle. I've worked for PNC for almost thirty years and I've known him that long. He was one of my first customers that I waited on. Just a great gentleman, always very polite, very personable. He was in the Battle of the Bulge and he talked about it quite a bit and he was very proud to serve our country."

~ Jean Stone, Southsider

"My father (Dennis Williams). He served his four years in the Air Force, came back home, served on the police department of my hometown and realized how much he missed the service. He went back part time, moved up the ranks to the highest rank you can get as a part-time serviceman to chief master sergeant. He helped save one of the bases in Terra Haute ... and saved a ton of jobs. When he retired, he received a letter from the president and a five star general came out to think him."

~ Jared Williams, Center Grove

Thanks & Honor

"I admire my dad (Rinell Vincent) for his service to our country in Vietnam. He has taught his love to his children and family and we respect him for all he did."

~ Mariruth Ferris, Southsider

Last Year's Record: 2-19

Outlook: Indianapolis Manual Redskins Head Coach, Ryan Baumgartner, says he "see[s] our season of having the opportunity to be a very special one, with the returning of so many key players from last year and key newcomers. I see great things happening with this team as long as they come together as a team and play hard all the time. They have to have progress on a daily basis and not have any setbacks. Not only on the basketball court, but most importantly the classroom." He continued, "I have very high expectations for this team and our main goal has to be to get better on a daily basis. We will accomplish this by working hard on a daily basis and becoming students of the game. We have the opportunity to play in the City Tournament. Our goal is to go in there and be competitive and see if we can win it. Then definitely have a goal of winning our sectional and advancing in the State Tournament to see if we can make some noise and bring home a State Title to Manual. My personal goal is to help these kids develop as students and basketball players, but most importantly help influence them in the right direction to become better overall young men and make something of their lives. I want to do my best to help them all move on to college whether it's playing basketball or not."

Beyond stuffing: celebrate with sage all season long

RECIPE

For SStimes by Family Features

Everyone loves the flavor sage brings to turkey and stuffing – yet there are so many great ways to enjoy this holiday flavor beyond its traditional use.

“Sage has that special aroma we all crave this time of year, which is why I love adding it in my potato gratin with creamy cheddar cheese for a dish that immediately says ‘holiday,’” said Mary Beth Harrington of the McCormick Kitchens. “You can use sage in your everyday favorites because it’s such a versatile spice.”

Make every moment of the season a little more savory by:

- Stirring sage into softened butter for green beans, broccoli and rolls.
- Sprinkling sage on sweet potatoes, butternut squash or other roasted harvest vegetables.
- Mixing sage into meatloaf for a festive family meal.

For more inspiration on enjoying sage and other holiday flavors, visit McCormick.com,

Sage and Cheddar Potato Gratin

Makes 12 (1/2 cup) servings

- 2 teaspoons McCormick® Rubbed Sage
- 1 1/2 teaspoons salt
- 1/2 teaspoon McCormick® Ground Black Pepper
- 3 pounds Yukon Gold potatoes, peeled and thinly sliced
- 1 large onion, thinly sliced
- 1 package (8 ounces) shredded cheddar cheese (2 cups)
- 1 cup chicken broth
- 1 cup heavy cream

1. Preheat oven to 400°F. Mix sage, salt and pepper in small bowl. Layer 1/3 of the potatoes and 1/2 of the onion in lightly greased 13-by-9-inch baking dish. Sprinkle with 1 teaspoon of the sage mixture and 1/3 of the cheese. Repeat layers. Top with remaining potatoes, sage mixture and cheese.

2. Stir broth and cream in medium bowl with wire whisk until well blended. Pour evenly over potatoes.

3. Bake 1 hour or until potatoes are tender and top is golden. Let stand 5 minutes before serving.

Is “these ones” okay?

GRAMMAR GUY

Question:

“I ran across an article that you had written in The Southside Times about grammar. Grammar was not (and still is not) one of my strong points, but in today's world I constantly hear people using the term ‘these ones’ instead of just ‘these.’ Is there any way this is correct grammar? It's not really a major concern in the whole scheme of things, but it just rubs me the wrong way.” (Ed)

Answer:

Consider, if you will, a bakery counter full of donuts.

The counter has four types of donuts – chocolate, glazed, raspberry and cream cheese – arranged in groups from left to right. The clerk behind the counter is ready to sell you as many donuts as you would like, and, being a good and decent person, you're ready to oblige her.

Let's look at the ways this transaction could occur:

“I want one.” You haven't provided the clerk with much information. You're still getting a donut, but it could be any of the four types.

“I want this one.” Now, the clerk knows exactly which type of donut you would like and, in fact, exactly which donut of out that group you would like. “This” acts as a determiner to the pronoun, “one,” signifying an individual item within a group. When a pronoun like “one” is paired with a determiner, it forms a pronominal – or a pronoun phrase, more or less.

“I want five of these ones.” Here, we still have a pronominal. But is it necessary? Does it function any better than “these” – acting as a pronoun – would alone?

If we were to say, “I want five of these,” the clerk would have just as much information as the previous phrase. “These” and “these ones” both serve to indicate a subset of a group of donuts. And while “one” in the pronominal “this one” does double duty by indicating the quantity of donuts desired, it does not in “these ones,” instead acting as an indefinite pronoun.

I was unable to find a hard-and-fast rule prohibiting the use of “these ones.” However, it seems to me a redundant and inelegant-sounding phrase, and that alone should be cause to avoid it. If you do come across a rule about this phrase in your travels, I'd love to read it, though. As for me ... I'm suddenly craving donuts.

Why should God care for us?

DEVOTIONAL

By Pastor Paul A. Kirby

"O Lord our Lord, how excellent is Thy name in all the earth, who hast set Thy glory above the heavens! Out of the mouth of babes and sucklings hast Thou ordained strength because of Thine enemies, that Thou mightest still the enemy and the avenger. When I consider Thy heavens (the work of Thy fingers) and the moon and the stars (which Thou hast ordained), what is man, that Thou art mindful of him, and the son of man, that Thou visitest him?"

~ Psalm 8:1-4

Why should/would God care at all for us or about us? As far as I can see, He has no reason to care other than that He is the God of love and grace. He created us indeed. But that is not reason enough alone for all the patience and kindness that He has shown toward us. Many an artist has begun a work of love that they did not finish and even destroyed because it did not measure up to their initial expectations. And, to say the least, we have not by any stretch of the imagination measured up to God's expectations.

We are all of us "sons" of Adam. God has determined that all of us have sinned and come short of His expectations (glory). There are none righteous, no not a one of us, until God intervenes and brings to our lives forgiveness of sins and holiness of heart. These are acts of God and not man. None of us, no not a one of us, deserve His acts of kindness and grace, but He extends them to us anyways.

Think about it. God is able to destroy us in an instant and to replace us with a more perfect and improved model but for His own divine reasons He tolerates us. No wonder the Psalmist writes of His excellence. He is excellent in His creation and in His heaven.

In His heaven, He is exalted. On the earth too, He is exalted by those who have come to know, to experience His marvelous and great grace. The writer of this Psalm asks the question, "What is man, that Thou art mindful of him?" Who are we that God should care? What about us makes Him want to care at all? I can think of nothing that would endear us to Him except that we are His offspring and like our own offspring, we care about them no matter what they do or say.

I am thankful for God and His patience with me. I am most thankful that He is still working with me or, on me, as the song says. I am not His finished product yet, but I will be and only because of His great love and grace. Praise His holy Name!

God bless and go and have a great day.

Paul A. Kirby is the pastor at the Church of God at 3939 S. Emerson Ave.

A man mired in nostalgia

CHESTER'S CORNER

By James D. Allen

Jim has a strange sense of fun. Recently he and his wife and I visited Detroit. He spent his senior year in high school there. He wanted to visit "for old time's sake". Oh, it is hard to live with sentimental people! They're always stuck in the past.

He showed his wife his old house, his former church, and the high school he attended. He even searched for the old fast food joint where he worked! So? Big deal; that was 40 plus years ago. She sure is nice for putting up with such an old man mired in nostalgia.

We did spend a day at "GreenFieldVillage" a few miles away. THAT was interesting. It is a living museum covering 240 acres. We saw glass blowing, an "automated" grist mill, rode the train, saw farm animals, and (best of all) rode in a real 1927 Model "T". The guide said the car got 20 miles to the gallon and never needed an oil change! Jim asked how the later was possible. The guide answered, "It leaks so much oil that we have to put in new oil every day!"

Chester's Chuckle

Q: The Greeks conquered ancient Troy by sneaking into the city in a mortician's limo. What was the limo called?

A: A Trojan hearse!

We also saw a movie about "Lewis and Clark" and how they sailed/hiked all the way from St. Louis to the Pacific in 18 months. They faced wild animals, hostile natives, bitter cold, huge mountains, large water falls, near starvation and a host of difficulties.

Somehow, they got back in six months and became national heroes. Listening to one of Jim's sermons doesn't sound so bad now.

We got back in time for "Laity Sunday". I think that means when Jim preaches the people get sleepy and "lay down". So in his case every Sunday is "lay-ity" Sunday.

Chester is a ventriloquist dummy who visits Edgewood United Methodist Church in Perry Township on special Sunday services. Pastor Jim Allen and Chester enjoy joking back and forth to drive home a serious message at church.

Long-time critical care physician presented with Healing Hands Award

Gerald L. Braverman, MD, could have retired from practicing medicine a few years ago, but he has shown no sign of slowing his pace as a critical care physician. Braverman, a member of Indiana

Internal Medicine Consultants for 35 years, hasn't missed a beat in caring for patients at Franciscan St. Francis Health, where he directs the intensive care unit. That dedication and many other factors is what led to his selection as the latest recipient of the quarterly Healing Hands Award. With his colleagues, friends and wife, Elaine, looking on, Braverman was presented with the award on Oct. 31 at a reception hosted at the Southside hospital. Several letters of commendation accompanied his nomination for the award, many describing him as a teacher, mentor and friend. As one nominator put it, "Dr. Braverman is one of the cornerstones at our hospital. He has awesome, powerful healing hands!"
