Feline pancreatitis – don't let it go unnoticed

PAWS for THOUGHT

Last month, we talked about pancreatitis in your pet dog. We cannot forget about our feline friends. They are also affected by this condition. However, it is a bit different in the cat.

As in the dog, the cat's pancreas is a small but important organ involved with the production of insulin and digestive enzymes. These enzymes are normally stored until needed for digestion. When the tissue becomes irritated, they can leak and begin "digesting" the pancreas and surrounding organs. This can be deadly.

Dr. Jeff Ambrous
Veterinarian

There can be many different causes such as infection, trauma and drug reactions. Most of the time there is no known cause. This is called idiopathic pancreatitis.

Unlike dogs, cats tend not to vomit or have pain. Instead their symptoms are more vague. They include lethargy, decreased appetite and dehydration. Treatment is largely supportive with IV fluids, nutrition and pain relief among others.

Dr. Jeff Ambrous is the owner at South 31 Veterinary Clinic and can be reached at (317) 788-0893.

FURRY FRIENDS

Marigold

Marigold, a true ginger and white female feline, is still looking for her family. She is fully vetted and approximately 2 or 3 years old. Marigold is sweet and loving. She would do best as an only cat or with one other. She came to Cats Haven from a hoarding situation out of the county. Her adoption fee is $40. For more information or to adopt, contact Cats Haven at (317) 925-7001.

Tessa

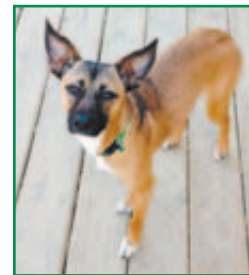

Tessa is a special dog. She can't go up or down steps or jump into a car so she'll need a family with no steps or just one step. She knows how to sit pretty and doesn't take up a lot of nor bark much. Tessa is potty trained and will follow you around wherever you are in the house just so you can be in her sight at all times. She will even watch over you when you sleep. Tessa won't jump up on things because she likes all four feet on the ground. She has really grown on her foster mom and gets along pretty well with her two foster sisters but doesn't like to play with them. Tessa loves Granny Smith apples! She gets them as a low calorie treat every day and she'll remind you if she doesn't get them. For more information or to adopt, contact indianasheltierescue.org or call (317) 984-5737.

Miley

Miley is a 1-year-old whose birthday is in February. She is still working on training. A slow and gentle lifestyle would be the perfect set-up. Initially, Miley can be a little reserved but once she grows comfortable, you will have a forever friend. Miley is very tender and affectionate. Adoption fee is $135. For more information or to adopt, contact the Humane Society of Johnson County, (317) 535-6626 or visit hsjc.org.

Fired up for pizza!

FOCUS

By Nicole Davis

In recognition of National Fire Prevention Week from Oct. 5 to 11, the Beech Grove Fire Department partnered with Dominos Pizza on Oct. 8. The firefighters accompanied a pizza delivery to check on the smoke detectors of a Beech Grove household. If the smoke detectors worked, the person received their order for free. "I was surprised," said Brandy Reel, after the fire department came to her house. Her two smoke detectors were in working condition, and the fire dept. installed an additional one where it was needed. "I thought it was a really cool idea. It's a nice experience. I have two boys so it's nice for them to experience this. I love what they're doing for the community." Fire Prevention Week promoted "Working Smoke Alarms Save Lives: Test Yours Each Month!"

Greenwood breaks ground for I-65 interchange at Worthsville Road

The City of Greenwood, in conjunction with the Indiana Department of Transportation, Gradex Inc. and E & B Paving Inc., broke ground Oct. 15 at the I-65 interchange at Worthsville Road. Mayor Mark Myers said the City annexed approximately 1,800 acres of the surrounding area to bring economic growth to Greenwood and complete an open east-west corridor the City's been working on for over 30 years. "We're excited to see it started," Myers said. "We're going to hit the ground running," said Harry Maginity, media relations director of INDOT. "We hope to have the whole project knocked out by Thanksgiving, 2015." Maginity said construction will begin immediately and the current Worthsville Road bridge could be down as early December.

The grave in the middle of the road, conclusion

HAUNTS & JAUNTS

The subject of moving Nancy Kerlin Barnett's grave from the center of a small county road just outside of Amity, Ind., became the fuse on a stick of dynamite when this road was eventually widened. Who would win?

As the road building crews approached this single headstone on the rise of a hill Grandson Daniel Doty was not in the mood for any kind of nonsense—especially of that concerning moving his grandmother's grave. Armed with a shotgun, and often perched on the grave's headstone, there was little room for argument; the road crew left.

This tactic and Doty's continuous petitions to county officials ultimately halted all discussion of her disinterment. The county relented and rerouted the road around this single gravesite. Life continued on as the family gradually dissolved into the past.

On Aug. 8, 1912, a concrete slab was poured over the grave for protection against potential motor vehicle mishaps, and perhaps those of the human element. Nancy Kerlin Barnett consequently became sealed into eternity...and myth.

Highway style signs on the approach of the hill from both directions indicate a divided-road. A cross is emblazened in the center. One can only wonder if the Indiana Department of Transportation has erected the only warning signs of this kind in the state. A historical marker was added in 1982 by Barnett's great-great-grandson, Kenneth, and his son, Richard. Now the story of Nancy was available to the masses. There was a sense of completion.

Any odd piece of local lore will generate stories; they always do. Some claim this site is haunted. Others pay it no mind as they cruise past the monument with only a sideways glance. The tales of this out-of-place final resting site of Nancy Kerlin Barnett, however, has eased quite comfortably into the annuals of 'weird' Indiana. Myth though has become fact in the minds of many: anything from this being the grave of an Indian princess to that of her having been a witch. Some say the grave glows on certain nights. And Halloween always brings the visitors....

To visit the grave travel south out of Franklin on U.S. 31 to Amity. Proceed to the intersection of County Road 400 South. Turn east (left) and travel roughly one mile to the grave. There is room to pull off to the side of the road. Respect the "No-Trespassing" signs on surrounding residences

Q: What are some of your favorite October family activities?

"I like to go to the Covered Bridge Festival. I like to go to Brown County. I just like the fall season in general, going on nature walks and being outside during this time of year."

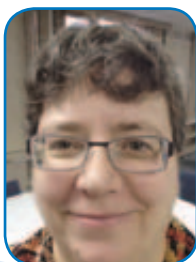

Nancy Zywicki,
Perry Township

"I have six horses and four of them will be running in Keeneland in Lexington, Ky. and my favorite thing to do is for those three weeks in October is to go there and enjoy the horse races. Also we have a hayride and wiener roast at my cousin's every October to celebrate fall with the whole family - good fun. The other reason I like October is it is my birthday month and I celebrate all month. Those are three good reasons why I like October."

Judy Hoeping,
Center Grove

"I love being outside in nature, especially as the leaves are falling. I love to hike. I love to walk around the neighborhood. That is probably the thing I like to do the best. Also I enjoy reading, actually all year long. Getting together with friends and sometimes we like to go down to the Whistlestop down in Beech Grove. Walking down there is one of our favorite things to do."

Julie Sewell,
Beech Grove

"I think one of the favorite activities that we do in October is we go on a vacation for my wife's birthday. This year we went to Myrtle Beech. We go all over. Last year we went to Branson. We usually like to go to a warmer climate."

Beech Grove firefighters raise $4,500 for Fill the Boot drive

Beech Grove Fire Department, Local 416 raised $4500 during the annual Fill the Boot drive on Aug. 15, 22 and 29 to benefit children and adults affected by muscle disease throughout the Beech Grove area. "For six decades, fire fighters have fueled MDA's mission to find treatments and cures for life-threatening muscle diseases, and this year's Beech Grove Fire Department Fill the Boot results are a perfect example of the true dedication the department has toward supporting the families we serve," said Executive Director, Sarah Stackert. "We're grateful for the support of these inspiring, selfless individuals who provide life-saving help that will fund research, advocate for children and adults affected by muscle disease, and rally our community to fight back." Funds raised through 2014 Beech Grove Fill the Boot event will help support MDA's programs of worldwide research, specialized health care services, and day-to-day support - which includes sending children affected by muscular dystrophy and related muscle diseases to a weeklong, barrier-free MDA summer camp at Happy Hollow Children's Camp in Nashville, Ind.

OUR VIEW

Be thoughtful about the Ebola outbreak

It was recently discovered that a second nurse who had been treating Liberia native, Thomas Duncan, who died of the Ebola virus disease (EVD) earlier this month, has tested positive for the virus. She and nurse Nina Pham are the only two U.S. citizens to have contracted EVD while on U.S. soil – a number we hope health officials are able to keep relatively low.

It was also discovered, however, that the second nurse was on a flight (Frontier Airlines flight 1143) from Cleveland to Dallas just prior to showing symptoms of the disease.

While the U.S. Centers for Disease Control and Prevention (CDC) is attempting to contact the other passengers on the plane, let's take a minute to go over the facts of the situation.

According to the World Health Organization:

- "The first EVD outbreaks occurred in remote villages in Central Africa, near tropical rainforests, but the most recent outbreak in west Africa has involved major urban as well as rural areas."

- "The average EVD case fatality rate is around 50 percent. Case fatality rates have varied from 25 to 90 percent in past outbreaks."

- "Ebola [...] spreads through human-to-human transmission via direct contact (through broken skin or mucous membranes) with the blood, secretions, organs or other bodily fluids of infected people, and with surfaces and materials (e.g. bedding, clothing) contaminated with these fluids."

The contagion is more problematic in west African nations where access to clean running water and modern medical facilities not as prevalent as in the U.S. Despite the media's fanfare of fear mongering, there is little chance the average American should be worried about contracting EVD.

However, we've seen a slew of tasteless Hazmat Halloween costumes poking fun at the outbreak. While it's good to laugh, perhaps its best to take this outbreak seriously, especially since it's affected two healthcare workers in the U.S. now in addition to the thousands affected in west African nations like Guinea, Liberia and Sierra Leone.

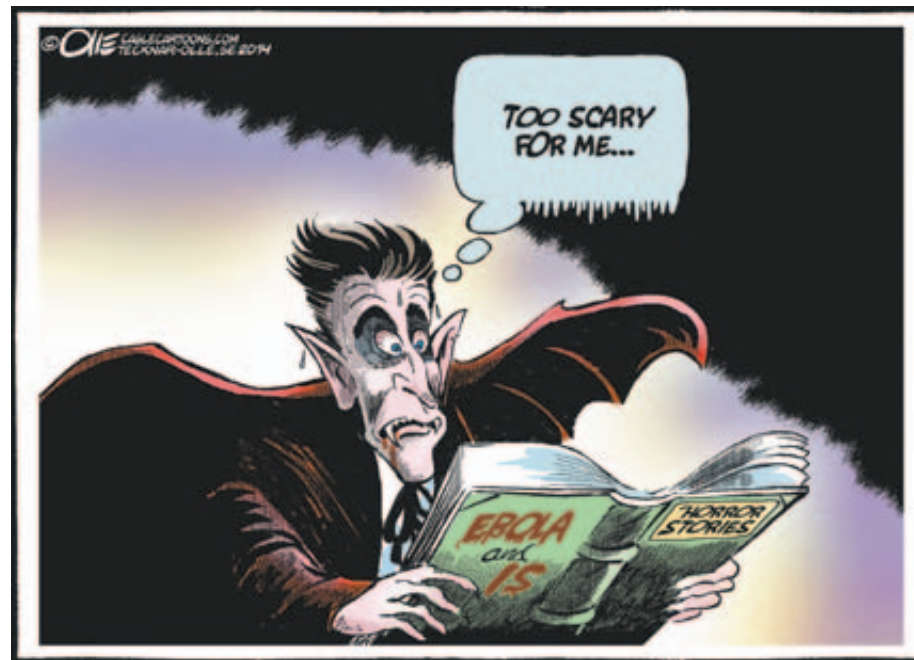

Maybe stick to ghosts and ghouls this Halloween and leave deadly viruses out of the mix.

Yes, 'kids,' your votes do matter

With the midterm elections bearing down on us – it's Nov. 4, for those of you scoring at home – it strikes us that we middle-agers might represent the more active of a declining breed: the active voter. We know plenty of twenty-somethings that couldn't possibly be less energized about casting votes for various candidates that could be among their would-be choices. Too many times we have been asked, "Why? My vote doesn't matter, right?" Wrong, Snapchat Breath. It matters plenty. If we all just take a closer look at the "deciding" United States municipality from the 2012 presidential election, that being Hamilton County in southwest Ohio, all those "my vote doesn't matter" folks and their counterparts, were they of the conservative persuasion, could have made a huge difference. We've written here annually of the right and (what we view to be) the responsibility for everyone 18 years and older to find a way to making voting a reality. Sadly, it's not nearly enough the case. We'd like to add privilege. Look around the world where true democracy doesn't reign; those folks do not enjoy the freedom to vote their conscience.

And so with right, responsibility and privilege in vote-eligibles' quivers, it stuns us that there is such disinterest or lack of understanding of what casting votes truly means. Here comes the finger pointing, then: It is, in our opinion, a problem that equally roosts in schools and in the home. Many teachers and parents – from our observations in recent years – simply gloss over it. Where it "doesn't matter" it should. No one will convince us otherwise. Whatever we can do to wake up the younger generation – all those still slumbering, as it were – will help us help them to have a brighter and more secure future. And, if they don't vote, they shouldn't whine about a thing. (It's now time for us to go get fitted for our canes.)

Bubbling brews

Growth in the craft beer industry reaches the Southside, creating a community of brewers

COVER STORY

By Nicole Davis

When Kwang Casey first opened Oaken Barrel Brewing Company in Greenwood, he said that he heard craft beer was simply a fad. Twenty years later, the business is still growing and more breweries are opening across Indiana, the Southside included.

“Indiana is lagging behind other parts of the country,” Casey said. “What we are experiencing now in Indiana, I saw it happen in Michigan 10 years ago. It seems like a bigger explosion because the growth they had the last 10 years, we’ve seen in two years.”

There are more than 3,000 breweries in the U.S. and that number continues to increase, according to brewersassociation.org. Indiana ranked as 20th state in the number of breweries per capita in 2013.

Casey said the growth of small breweries has, in a way, created a brewing community. He said he and other long-time companies will gladly work to help the smaller companies achieve success. He said ensuring that these new breweries are creating a quality product is the only way the industry will continue to grow.

“I will give advice to some of the newer guys coming on; your life revolves around beer, but don’t forget there is community,” Casey said. “Step back and see what’s going on in the community.”

Giving back and making their local communities a better place is something many brewery owners consider a valuable goal, said Andrew Castner, owner of Mashcraft Brewing Company.

“We put an emphasis on working with local charity organizations and schools,” Castner said. “We don’t want to just be a place that exists on the Southside. We want to be a community member. We are always looking for opportunities to get involved and do some good in the community.”

The largest concern with the industry boom is the cost of production. Casey said his brewer recently returned from a craft brewing conference, discussing the increasing demand for hops, a flower used as a flavoring and stability agent in beer.

“Indiana farmers are even thinking of switching from soybeans to hops,” Casey said. “But, that’s a five-year investment. Will this industry sustain it?”

As new brewers continue to open and existing breweries continue to expand, Southside brewers like Castner say the future looks bright.

“We now have two new breweries on 135 in the past four months,” Castner said. “If you combine that with the other Southside breweries, we have an opportunity to start a really cool beer-tasting tourism aspect. There is a mass of people who are looking for something different. People can come to Indianapolis and say if we come a little more south, we can hit three or four more breweries within 10 minutes of each other.”

■ New Day Meadery

1102 Prospect St.
Indianapolis, IN 46203

Owners: Brett Canaday and Tia Agnew

(Answering the questions is Tia Agnew)

Date opened: 2006, Elwood – 2010, Fountain Square

Why did you decide to open this brewery? We started New Day as a kind-of answer to the “brain drain.” My husband and I are originally from Indiana and we’ve worked all over the country pursuing former careers. Now we’re back in Indiana and we were lucky to find work. After so much time on the road we were tired of that. This is our way to be able to control our own destiny. We started mead making because we were amateur mead makers ourselves. We researched all sorts of food-based industries and found this really niche, fun, intriguing product we were making. It’s definitely been an uphill battle since we’re not traditional beer, nor traditional wine, but we love the idea of the challenge. We wanted to take something that was really obscure and bring it into the mainstream.

How do you feel the community’s response has been? Overwhelmingly amazing. We’re very humbled by how welcomed we’ve been as individuals and as a business and our products. People all over the state enjoying our products and because of that, we’re growing really, really fast.

What sets your brewery apart from others? Craft mead and cider! Everything we make is very well balanced – in flavor, alcohol content and carbonation level. We strive to craft a well-rounded beverage in the style of a hard cider.

Describe your beer. It’s very approachable – easy drinking, delicious. Drinks like an amalgamation of or something in between beer and wine. We have a myriad of styles from drier, hoppier flavors to fruitier and more intense.

Upcoming beverages include: Imperial Breakfast Magpie – in bottles in the tasting room only starting on Black Friday. Only around 100 cases of it. Next year we’ll have it by the glass and by the bottle. Regular Breakfast Magpie November 12 – extending the season by a month. “Our gift of the magpie.”

How do you envision this industry in the future? There’s so much more room for craft beer to grow. And it’s a great thing for the city and for the state and for the industry as a whole. It’s a fun time to be in the craft alcohol beverage industry. And because of the support we’ve garnered from customers and larger interests in craft mead and cider, we’ve decided to break outside Indiana’s borders. In 2015, we’re hoping to begin distribution outside of the state.

■ Mashcraft Brewing Company

1140 N. State Rd. 135, Ste. M
Greenwood, IN 46142

Owners: John Lee and Andrew Castner

Date opened:

June 6, 2014

(Answering the questions is Andrew Castner)

Why did you decide to open this brewery?

I’ve had eight years in brewing at Oaken Barrel and the RAM Restaurant & Brewery. From there, I knew that I could make good beer and was craving a little bit of creative control. The opportunity to get into ownership and develop the business model in the way I wanted to operate gave me the opportunity to do the creative control that I was craving. Combine that with my business partner John Lee who is in the finance sector and we were able to put the paperwork together.

How do you feel the community’s response has been? Awesome. The Greenwood area, Southside of Indianapolis and Center Grove have been great to us in the last four months. We are really excited about the reviews we’re getting and the responses.

Describe your beer: We always like to operate in three words: consistently great variety. Being a tap room, we want to make sure that no matter who walks through the door, they will find a beer they like and like a lot. We have three house beers that will be there all the time: Mashcraft Gold, Mashcraft Red and Mashcraft IPA. Then we have four on tap that will change and offer a variety.

What sets your brewery apart from others? I don’t think that we’ve needed to focus on that. We didn’t come in with the interest in competing with anybody else so we didn’t need to establish ourselves other than that we are in a unique location. We looked around for an area that was underserved. Currently we are at least a 10 minute drive from another brewery on the Southside. We are always looking for the best quality of beer, as with any other brewery.

Do you feel demand for this product has gone up? Why do you think that is? Yes, I think the numbers show that and the most recent report for the first half of this year nationally is craft beer has grown another 16 percent, on top of double digit growth for the last five or six years which brings a lot of dollars into our sector of beer. I think the growth is undeniable. Right now, everyone seems to be doing well right now. There are a bunch of different factors that go along with that. People’s tastes are changing. In the last 10 years, we not only have a new crop of beer drinker that has come onto the market, that are not only more aware of local products but are always looking for something different. It’s not just the 21-30 year olds. It’s 30-45 year olds and people that would have previously had a set beer are going outside their comfort zone more often. If you go back to Bud, Miller and Coors, they are now owned by companies in the US. If you factor in a better flavor, that creates a new product demand.

How do you envision this industry in the future? The first word is exciting. I think there is still a lot of experimentation, a lot of flavor variation that can happen. We're hoping we can be some of the forerunners in that. There is a little fear also. Supply in Indiana has far outpaced demand. Is that going to lead to some closings? All signs point to yes. There are some who might make some poor decisions and drop out. That goes back to us needing to constantly offer great quality. We might have more people who think beer is absolutely awful that will come around to drinking craft beer. If you combine the excitement with the opportunity and great beer, that's what's fueling us.

■ Oaken Barrel Brewing Company

50 Airport Pkwy.
Greenwood, IN 46143

Owner: Kwang Casey

Date opened: July 1994

Why did you decide to open this brewery? I've been in the restaurant business for a while. My former business partner, Bill Fulton, we bounced around some ideas. At the time, I was running Broad Ripple Steakhouse. Broad Ripple Pub was the first brewery in town. I had always wanted to do a brew pub.

How do you feel the community's response has been? It's been great. It took a little bit to convert Indiana people to craft brewery. The transition has been great. People are looking for craft brewers now. I feel like I kind of laid the groundwork for other people (who are opening breweries). People in Greenwood, they're willingness to try something new has helped us grow.

Describe your beer: We have a wide variety of beers. We have six house beers. We have everything from Belgium wheat beer to our IPAs and our raspberry beer which is a fruit beer that has won many national awards. Then there is our Indiana Amber which is our flagship, good entry level beer for people trying to drink craft brews.

What sets your brewery apart from others? We try to combine beer with food. We've done beer and food pairings for the past 20 years. Now people are catching onto that. I don't want to be the biggest brewery in the state; I'm more into quality than quantity. Also, the people that I have working for me are quality. The staff makes a big difference here. I've had many staff here from day one.

Do you feel demand for this product has gone up? Why do you think that is? In Indiana, we have a long way to go. It's gone up a quite a bit. We expanded our brewery two years ago, increased our capacity and have already maxed out.

How do you envision this industry in the future? We are going to grow still. You are going to see more and more breweries open. It seems like the gold rush effect. Overall, you will see an increase in the business and you will see it peeking out.

Owner: Andrew Groves

Date opened: March 8, 2013

Why did you decide to open this brewery? The brewery was a dream of mine as I homebrewed for many years. I got to the point where I had so many friends and family asking for beer, that I thought I should try to turn a hobby into a career.

How do you feel the community's response has been? The community's response has been overwhelmingly positive. I most certainly cannot make beer fast enough, and am already having to plan for expansion in the coming year.

Describe your beer: To date, I have brewed 26 different styles of beer, with many more on the horizon. Variety is what I have hung my hat on, as I have no house beers, just a steady rotation that I luckily get to create on a whim. On average, I bring out a new beer every other week.

What sets your brewery apart from others? I have a 2 barrel brew system (62 gallons), which puts me in the "Nano-brewery" category, and while I am in the process of opening a dedicated tap room in the suite next door, the current brewery/tap room is a snug 754 sq. ft., which also makes me one of the smallest breweries around. Due to such a small production capacity, I unfortunately have to say no a lot more than I say yes to bars/restaurants. I am currently in a few, but mostly rely on in house sales for the bulk of my business. I don't really do any advertising, as I rely more on word of mouth and social media. I figure that for the time being I'll let my beer do the talking.

How do you envision this industry in the future? With the influx of craft breweries opening in Indiana, I feel as if we have only scratched the surface of what it could be. The market is ready for a localized product, and since the industry itself is quality based, it naturally will weed out anyone not producing a good product. At Planetary Brewing Co., we still are only open for a total of 14 hours Friday, Saturday and Sunday, but will add to that when the new tap room opens.

Date opened: Started distribution January 2014, opened gastropub September 2014, brewery to open October 2014

Why did you decide to open this brewery? Our partner group loves beer. We wanted to open a brewery that focused on Belgian beer because several of us lived in Belgium.

How do you feel the community's response has been? Extremely positive. We wanted to build in a small town to help support and grow our local community. Most of our owners and employees live less than 10 minutes from the brewery. We have been very fortunate because the local community has really embraced our business.

Describe your beer: Different. We use Belgian yeast in all of our beer and tend to stay away from heavy hopping. The Belgian yeast adds complexity to the flavor profile of the beer and restrained hopping allows the other ingredients to share the spotlight.

What sets your brewery apart from others? We brew styles of beer (Belgian) that are not frequently brewed by other Indiana breweries. We also have a beautifully restored 200 seat industrial modern gastropub that adjoins our production brewery. Taxman Gastropub features a locally focused menu, sourcing from Indiana farms using sustainable practices, and has 24 taps where customers can sample all available Taxman beers as well as rotating guest drafts. It is a one of a kind space and a great place to drink a beer.

Do you feel demand for this product has gone up? Why do you think that is? Yes, we see demand continuing to rise for all locally made, high-quality craft beers. (It is because of) product differentiation, quality and customer awareness.

How do you envision this industry in the future? Only three out of every 100 beers consumed in Indiana are made in Indiana. There is still a lot of room for growth.

Kill The Messenger... one of the year's best

MOVIE REVIEW

In a few weeks, Americans will go to the polls and select our leaders all over the country. I don't know about you, but rarely is there a candidate that I'm just so impressed with that I cannot wait to cast my ballot. As pessimistic as that may be, I think having little trust in our public officials is normal amongst Americans. The new film, Kill the Messenger, starring Jeremy Renner, examines an episode that gave Americans another reason to distrust our government leaders and organizations.

Adam Staten
MOVIE REVIEW

Kill The Messenger, set in 1996, is the true story of San Jose Mercury News reporter Gary Webb. One day Webb (Renner) receives a mysterious phone call informing him that the CIA smuggled cocaine into the country and used the profits to arm the Contra rebels in Nicaragua in the 1980s. Webb is obviously intrigued, but skeptical of the story's factual reliability. As Webb keeps digging and digging into the story, it becomes abundantly clear that the something is not right.

Confident in the story and sources, Webb publishes a series of articles documenting the CIA's involvement in the cocaine problem in America and its tie to the situation in South America. Soon after, Webb's life begins unraveling. He finds himself the target of a vicious smear campaign from everyone to the government to the national media.

As far as the pacing of the film is concerned, it's slow. Right up until Webb publishes his first story, it's especially sluggish as we're introduced to the story and all the main players in the scandal. This will no doubt turn many away, but stick with it. The film picks up considerably as we see how Webb and his family are affected by the aftermath of the articles.

The first 30 minutes of the film and everyone in it are just going through the motions. But last the portion of the film may have it in Oscar contention, especially Renner. Even though the film does tell this story of government corruption, it's a character study of Webb and Renner delivers in a big way. Renner terrifically showcases the emotional rollercoaster of someone going through such a terrible and unfair ordeal in order to shine a light on corruption.

Kill the Messenger will not satisfy all tastes. It's a bleak and depressing story, but is still one of the year's best, furnished with an outstanding performance. 4.5 out of 5.

"Even though the film does tell this story of government corruption, it's a character study of Webb and Renner delivers in a big way."

Adam Staten lives in Perry Township and is a movie buff. Staten graduated from University of Southern Indiana with a degree in Communication Studies.

Food bullies: The dark side of healthy eating

NUTRITION

Does anyone else get made fun of for being a healthy eater? Sandi and I get criticized whenever we dine out with friends because we choose healthier menu options.

For goodness sake, if someone you know is on a healthy eating journey to invest into their health equity, then please, don't ridicule, tempt or dismiss them as crazy health nuts. Judge not! Show some loving support, respect, understanding and compassion. Just because you haven't summoned the gumption yet to treat your holy temple responsibly... lose the attitude, shut your mouth and live and let live. Don't fun them simply because they've wisely chosen to be present in their own lives. It's none of anyone's business what trash folks place into their holy temple, so why should you care so much what they put into theirs? It's your job to love and accept, not judge (can you say "fear?").

Friends and family naturally want what they feel is best for the individual. Please realize it's not your job to control their decisions, nor change their behaviors. You must accept there are some things you cannot control in life.

Ridicule and temptation from friends, family and society makes the courageous, arduous journey even harder. When I hear, "Hey, Wendell, have a piece of bacon. Live a little," I'm incapable of expressing the absurd irony of this statement. My mental comeback is, "Live a little? Yes, a lot longer if I don't eat it." Instead of a self-justifying comment, I smile warmly and love them. After all, I overcame being 100 pounds overweight with a terminal heart disease diagnosis. Why would I go down that self-abusive road again to please someone else?

Unless you're a fear-filled, insensitive food bully, in your right mind, you wouldn't offer a recovering alcoholic a cocktail. Most everyone knows misery loves company. Healthy eater's represent what unhealthy eaters dread: having to stop eating their traditional dead foods. Millions of awakened souls are taking the courageous responsibility of putting an end to their suffering.

Chef Wendell Fowler
NUTRITIONIST

Mindfully eat foods that were intended by creation to enter your magnificent temple. We weren't created to hate fresh, nourishing and sustaining plant foods; we were taught by Toni the Tiger and Betty Crocker. We can 'unlearn' this destructive behavior to discover the joy and bliss of feeling lighter and more energetic, clear headed, truly happy and healthy inside and out. Listen to your temple, not your friends; pay attention to what your temple home is telling you.

Bottom line: you can't please everyone, so just focus on pleasing yourself. Be gentle. You're doing the best you can, in spite of your well-meaning, albeit imprudent friends. You've only got one body and one life to live, so kudos for becoming health conscious. Perfect health is your diving right. Claim it.

ANNIVERSARY

Gardners celebrate 65th wedding anniversary

Donald L. and Norma J. (McKinney) Gardner celebrated 65 years of marriage on Aug. 27. Don and Norma both grew up on the Westside of Indianapolis and attended Washington High School. They were married in the home of Norma's parents. Her sister, Joan Watt (McKinney) was the maid of honor and longtime friend John Rogers was best man. Donald and Norma are the parents of two children; Brenda (Jerry) Lewis of Indianapolis and Donnie (Tina) Gardner of Trafalgar. They have two grandchildren, Tina (Tony) Delph and Trey Gardner as well as four great-granddaughters, Tiarra, Tirzah, Tarryn, and Tristyn Delph. The family celebrated with brunch at the Indigo Duck in Franklin, Ind. They are always asked what the secret is to staying married so many years. They both agree that really being in love, always sharing and talking to one another, and not holding on too tight makes their marriage work.

Leave them with memories, not questions.

Through the generations we pass down more than recipes. We pass down traditions. And although we never had a choice on how we entered this world... We do have a choice on how we leave.

By preplanning your funeral you can make sure your family understands your wishes. And rather than leave them with questions, you can leave them with memories.

Rock Steady Boxing comes to Greenwood

The Social of Greenwood will kick off its affiliation with Rock Steady Boxing on Tuesday, Nov. 4. Required individual assessments begin on Tuesday, Nov. 4, from 9 to 10:30 a.m. and again on Wednesday, Nov. 5 from 2 to 3:30 p.m. with the first class being held on Wednesday, Nov. 12 from 2 to 3:30 p.m. Rock Steady Boxing provides an effective form of physical exercise for people who are living with Parkinson's. This non-contact boxing-inspired fitness routine is dramatically improving the ability of people with Parkinson's to live independent lives. The training classes, which will be instructed by physical therapist, Kristi Moore, and co-owner of Aboutium Fitness, John Kyle, include an exercise program that attacks Parkinson's at its vulnerable points. While focusing on overall fitness, strength training, reaction time and balance, workouts include focus mitts, heavy bags, speed bags, double-ended bags, jump rope, core work, calisthenics and circuit weight work training. No boxing experience is necessary and both males and females of any age who are Battling Parkinson's are invited to participate. The Social of Greenwood, 550 Polk St., provides programs, activities and services designed to enhance the quality of life of those 50 and beyond in our community. For more information, call (317) 882-4810 or visit TheSocialofGreenwood.org.

155 golfers join Perry Senior Services for fundraising

Perry Senior Services earned $7,000 to help take seniors to the doctors and deliver meals to homebound seniors. 155 golfers joined for the fundraiser at Winding River Golf Course on Sept. 24, the most the annual event has ever had. Sponsors included St. Francis Senior Promise, CarDon - Altenheim, Greenwood Meadows, Forest Creek Village and many other hole sponsors. Pictured is Kenny Winslow and Paul Cleary, senior golfers in the summertime and volunteers for Perry Seniors all year.

Carole's Fitness specializes in offering physical strength for anyone age 50 and older

FOCUS

By Nicole Davis

Carole Pefley, owner of Carole's Fitness at 5661 Madison Ave., says when people see her business' sign that says for ages 50 and up, they think the workouts are going to be easy.

"The point is not to come in here and do something easy," Pefley said. "It's to challenge themselves.

Pefley teaches each class, from beginner to advanced, participating with her students and showing them the proper form adjusted to each individual's needs. At age 76, Pefley said she knows very well how crucial staying physically fit is at any age.

"I decided to do something with seniors because I felt how much better I felt doing karate, primarily the stretching and physical conditioning," Pefley said. "There's something any senior can do. Every exercise we do, it goes for a minute. It's the idea of doing an exercise for as long as you can."

Pefley has been in the exercise world for 18 years, since she started taking karate and found an exercise routine which helped to maintain her interest through the long-term.

"Every time I'd start an exercise program, I would go gung ho for three, four or five months and stop," Pefley said. "I said I have to find something that keeps me going. I don't want this off and on thing. When you're off for a period of time, you go right back where you started."

While Pefley took karate classes, she went and received a senior training certificate from Body Recall Inc. She said most of the people taking the training worked in nursing homes, but she took it for a different purpose. She wanted to learn the issues that older adults face, and how to make them feel better. After receiving her certificate, she began working with Oasis approximately 16 years ago, teaching a class called Body Revive and later a class called ExerStart. She began teaching a small advanced class in her home three years ago in August and then opened Carole's Fitness more than two years ago, dedicated toward helping those 50 and older gain physical strength.

"There are four things you need when you exercise: cardio, strength, core strength and flexibility," Pefley said. "I designed a class that included all of those. Here, I've set up beginner, intermediate and advanced classes. We do all types of physical conditioning: we do planks, we do push-ups, we do core work."

Each class begins with a warm-up, then Tabatas, a high intensity workout lasting four minutes. Each exercise move is done for 20 seconds with 10 seconds of rest following.

"I've been coming pushing a year and a half now," said Shirley Conover, class participant. "I keep coming. I feel better. I have much more flexibility. I have some more strength."

While many of the moves are typical for this type of workout, Pefley said it is adjusted to meet the needs of her clients. Aside from the normal workout routine, she said that she has taught things in her classes that do pertain more specifically to senior citizens, such as how to fall. She said in her advanced class, they have practiced how to properly fall on the fatty part of their arms.

"You practice that long enough and it becomes part of you when you do fall," Pefley said. "It's muscle memory. We start at beginner level, starting at our knees and working up. What I'm doing is putting on their mind that when they fall, forget about falling on your hands."

Pefley said she is still taking clients, but does keep the classes small to be able to give the proper attention and instruction to each person. She said she likes to invite people over, talk with them about their capabilities and demonstrate some of the exercises, how to start slow and build up strength and endurance.

"These gals, when they started out they started doing nothing, by saying can't," Pefley said. "I showed them they where they could – where they can change (the exercises) somewhat and do it correctly. There's a saying I've got written out there (on a dry erase board) – don't believe you can be better than anybody else. Believe you can be better than you thought you could be."

Looking to move: Why wait?

LIVING

For The Southside Times by Lisa Holstein, HFA Executive Director, Morning Pointe

I have heard it many times from our families after settling their loved one into their Morning Pointe apartment. Soon after the move, the Morning Pointe partnership allows the caregiver to be supported in caring for their loved one by our caring staff, with support services including meals, housekeeping, transportation and medication administration. The unexpected ease in becoming a Morning Pointe resident can be attributed to the warm welcome and the fellowship provided by other residents.

"We should have done this sooner," is a great compliment to us and a relief to families who have in many cases made many attempts to provide care options.

Our Assisted Living environment supports apartment style living with services that allow a resident dignity, choices and personalized care to meet their personal, physical and medical needs. Our recreation program encourages residents to participate and even initiate fulfilling and purposeful activities of their choosing. Entering projects in the county and state fair, assisting in preparing bereavement meals, supporting causes such as the Alzheimer's Association, Relay for Life and sending care packages to our troops abroad are just a few of our resident chosen activities.

Morning Pointe allows a resident as much private time as they would like, but 10 year resident Martha Wales, tells every new resident "don't stay in your apartment, come out and enjoy all that we offer."

Apartment sizes range from studio, standard one bedroom and deluxe one bedroom options. Each resident bathroom is equipped with a call button as well as each resident has the option to wear an alert response device.

Our dedicated Memory Care area offers 15 studio apartments in a living atmosphere that includes a living room with fireplace, a kitchen and dining area and activity areas that model a school room, a porch setting, a garage and an outdoor courtyard with raised gardens. The Meaningful Day program encourages emphasis on residents remaining abilities and fulfilling activities.

We hope you will visit and see for yourself all that Assisted Living can be. Contact Executive Director Lisa Holstein at (317) 736-4665 for more information or visit morningpointe.com.

#1 family response:
"I wish we had moved sooner."

What are you waiting for?

"She had become isolated, all of her friends her age were gone; she was looking for some kind of recognition and value. She wanted to feel worthwhile. My mom is happy at Morning Pointe... she loves the caregivers. They do a wonderful job and they are like family to her."

When do we talk about assisted living?

LIVING

For The Southside Times by Forest Creek Commons

Do you have a family member or friend that needs more help than family can provide? These decisions can cause an enormous amount of grief. There is pain in recognizing that your parent- who provided strength, love, help and guidance for so many years-is now in need of care that you simply are not prepared, qualified or realistically able to provide.

You try to all pitch in to make it happen. You find yourself driving back and forth, juggling life's details-yours and theirs. You can't help but wonder... how long can we keep this up? Is this our best option? What happens when you can't be there? What happens when the weather makes traveling so risky? How do we make sure mom and dad are safe and well cared for?

Many seniors are still very independent yet need assistance with daily tasks that may include bathing, cooking, eating well, changing clothes, laundry and housekeeping.

Most people believe they want to stay in their home. Before life gets too hectic trying to assure that happens, be sure you have all the information and know your options. Many seniors are not aware of the lifestyle available to them and the independence that they can truly enjoy with some additional assistance.

Assisted living may be an answer. This option allows as much independence as able yet provides the security and confidence that comes from knowing that when help is needed, it is available-anytime, day or night and without bothering the kids with one more thing. This is not a nursing home. This is more like a nice apartment with services, transportation, entertainment and social life. They still have their own treasured furniture and keepsakes.

We all want to live with dignity, socialization and confidence. Visit an assisted living community and find the best fit for your family. The best approach to determine if a community is the right fit for you, of course, is to visit in order to meet the staff and some of the residents. It's important to see a community where both residents and staff thrive and enjoy their day.

We invite you to come visit us at Forest Creek Commons – a Five Star Senior Living Community.

Touring a skilled nursing community... the basics

LIVING

For The Southside Times by Jen Barnhart, CarDon & Associates

Touring a skilled nursing community can be an overwhelming experience, but it doesn't have to be. Whether planning ahead for yourself or a loved one, there are many things to take into consideration. Below are some tips to help make the process easier.

Plan Ahead

Don't wait until there is an immediate need; the element of urgency can make the decision process even harder. Put together a list of a few communities you have interest in and either attend an event at the community or take a tour.

Tour

Appointments are not required, but may be helpful when initially inquiring. When you arrive for your tour, a representative from the nursing community will sit down with you and talk with you about what you are looking for. This is the time to ask questions and find out more about the community. They will also show you around. Be sure to look at a variety of areas; resident rooms, the activity room, dining rooms and the therapy gym.

Ask Questions

Make a list of questions ahead of time and bring it on your tour. Inquire about their therapy department – do they have any specialized programs? How does their dining program work? What is their staffing ratio? There are also many great resources online that have suggested questions to ask.

Observe

While on your tour, look, listen and smell. Is it quiet? Are staff members being friendly to residents? Do residents look well cared for? Are there odors? Is it clean?

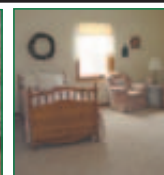

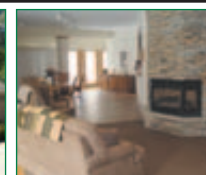

The Decision

When it comes time to make your decision, take into consideration all of the different information you gathered and go with where you felt most comfortable.

Tour one of the four Southside CarDon Communities today, Altenheim, Aspen Trace, Greenwood Health & Living and University Heights Health & Living. For more information about CarDon & Associates, go to cardon.us.

Lutheran High School Spanish Teacher Studies in Spain

Over this past summer, Lutheran High School Spanish teacher Diane Williamson spent five weeks in Salamanca, Spain, continuing courses for her Masters of Arts for Teaching Spanish through IUPUI. She had spent five weeks the previous summer there, as well. "The city of Salamanca is similar to Bloomington, Indiana. They are both college towns," Williamson said. The Universidad de Salamanca was founded in 1218. It is the oldest university in Spain and the third oldest in Europe. While in Salamanca, Senora, as Ms. Williamson is known by her students at LHS, studied the Spanish language, culture, and literature in daily classes. She also spent time with her host family and was able to visit the nearby walled cities of Ávila and Ciudad Rodrigo. She also traveled to Portugal for a weekend. She enjoyed gathering with friends in the Plaza Mayor. This outdoor plaza serves as a location for people to visit, eat, and watch televised World Cup soccer along with the many international students who study language at the Universidad during the summer. "Being fully immersed in the Spanish culture and experiencing daily life in Spain reaffirmed my love of the language and land," Williamson said. She has been able to share her experience with her Spanish classes and Spanish Club and continues to integrate much of what she has learned into the Spanish curriculum at Lutheran High School. Diane Williamson joined the faculty of Lutheran High School in 2007 as the Spanish teacher. She came to Lutheran after previously teaching in Lawrence Township and Calvary Lutheran School. She also serves as faculty advisor to the Student Council and Spanish Club.

Lady Rebels capture county tournament

On Oct. 4, the Roncalli girls volleyball team defeated Perry Meridian 25-22, 25-14 and 25-23 to win the 2014 Marion County Tournament. The title is the sixth Marion County Tournament crown in the program's history and the first since 2006. The Lady Rebels defeated Lawrence North in the semifinals. Both of the rounds were played at Speedway. "We have an experienced team that has been here (county semifinals and finals) before," said head coach Missy Marsh. "Our veteran players showed great leadership and the team was determined to see it through and come out on top." Pictured from left, Annie Strevels, Hayden Cole, Kenzie King, AJ Lux, Lizzie Britner, Livy Gillum, Libby Stahl, Bailey Schnell, Sam Fogg, Kalyn Schreiber, Kathryn Lemmel and McKenna Lundy.

Roncalli recognizes 2006 graduates with 2014 Alumni of the Year award

During halftime of the Roncalli homecoming football game, Father Ben Syberg and Father Tim Wyciskalla were recognized as the 2014 Alumni of the Year. The Roncalli High School Alumni Association presents the Alumni of the Year Award annually to one outstanding alumnus of Roncalli High School. The award is given to someone who demonstrates achievement in their chosen profession or community service and a continued devotion to their faith and Catholic education. While at Roncalli, Father Syberg participated on the cross country team, sang in the show choir, ran track and performed in the spring musicals. Father Wyciskalla was involved with the basketball program, student council and mock trial. Both men graduated from Roncalli in 2006, graduated from Marian University's Bishop Brute' Seminary in 2010 and then went on to St. Meinrad to complete their preparation to become priests. On June 7, 2014, they were ordained into the priesthood. Currently, Father Syberg serves as Associate Pastor at St. Barnabas Parish, and Father Wyciskalla serves as Associate Pastor at St. Malachy in Brownsburg.

Roncalli Salutes Our National Merit Scholars

The College Board announced that 13 members of Roncalli's senior class scored high enough on the PSAT, taken during one's junior year in high school, to earn the distinction of being a National Merit Scholar. This places them in the top 3% of the best and brightest high school students in the United States.

Congratulations to these outstanding scholars.

BEECH GROVE

Beech Grove to host Community Service Day

Beech Grove High School students will "swarm" the City of Beech Grove on Oct. 31, from approximately 9 a.m. - noon, to perform community service projects. These volunteer projects could include: raking leaves, cleaning streets or alleys, cleaning outside windows, etc. Residents of Beech Grove who are in need of some extra volunteer assistance, or know a Beech Grove neighbor or small business who could use some extra help with a project, the students can help. For more information, or to request the volunteer help from the students, email or call Eileen McManus, emcmanus@bgcs.k12.in.us or (317) 788-4481.

Beech Grove schools fundraises with Pacer tickets

Beech Grove City Schools and the Beech Grove Education Foundation are holding another Pacers Fundraiser to benefit the schools. This season's school night game will be held on Tuesday, Jan. 27, 2015. The Indiana Pacers will take on the Toronto Raptors. Once again, the Beech Grove High School Choir will sing The National Anthem. In addition, the Choir will sing the Canadian National Anthem. Tickets orders and payment will be due no later than Oct. 29. Last year's fundraiser raised $9,800 for our schools and Foundation.

Elizabeth (Lizzie) Miles is a gymnastics star

Elizabeth (Lizzie) Miles attends Beech Grove High School, where she is a junior. Lizzie has been involved with gymnastics since the age of 2, and has been competing at the club level since age 7. Although Beech Grove High School does not offer the IHSAA gymnastics program through the school, Lizzie is qualified to compete as an IHSAA gymnast through her affiliation with The Gymnastics Company. She will represent Beech Grove High School and will compete in the circuit, primarily with the Franklin Central and Roncalli gymnastic teams. Lizzie trains at The Gymnastics Company on Indianapolis' Southside and is also an instructor at the gym for preschool classes.

FRANKLIN TOWNSHIP

Franklin Central sparkles with new spirit

There is a new cheer squad at Franklin Central High School: Flashes Sparkle Cheer Team. The Sparkle Team brings together students with and without disabilities for a special cheer squad. The Sparkle Effect is a national organization with teams in 26 states. The purpose of the Sparkle Effect is to change the lives and outlooks of participating students. Two senior girls started this outstanding program in order to replace insecurity with confidence and joy as a Sparkle team's primary purpose is not about perfection but how students can make a connection with each other.

Franklin Central seniors, Abi Jones and Kaylea Albertson took the lead to start a Sparkle Effect team. Abi and Kaylea started with an idea they shared with the principal, Mr. Koers, and also gained cheerleading sponsors Coach Dir and Coach Ledbetter along with faculty advisors Cassie Trimble and Pam Speckman. The FCHS cheerleaders have been involved teaching the cheers to the Sparkle team.

Franklin Central High School is the first in Central Indiana to have a Special Needs Sparkle team. The team consists of 10 Sparkle cheerleaders (eight girls and two boys). They will be introduced for the first time at an upcoming basketball games.

Franklin Central got All Shook Up

Over the weekend of October 3rd, Franklin Central High School Theatre presented All Shook Up, a musical featuring the music of Elvis. All Shook Up is the inaugural production for Franklin Central's new Director of Theatre, Michael Howard. The story takes place in the 1950's when a hip-swivelling guitar playing roustabout arrives in the Midwest after being released from prison. After a broken-down jukebox comes to life so does the singing and dancing.

Roncalli grabs tennis sectional title

On Oct. 3, the Roncalli boys tennis team won the Franklin Central Sectional championship with a 5-0 defeat of Beech Grove. Singles players Blake Amonett (junior) and sophomores Chad Ransburg and Jake Evans won their matches, as did the junior doubles pair of Michael Saling and Keegan Cougill and the doubles duo of Cameron Papandria (senior) and Bryson Meek (freshman). The Rebels advanced to the sectional final with a 3-2 win over Franklin Central on Oct. 2 afternoon's semifinal. For the Rebels, the sectional title was the eighth in the program's history and the first since 2009. Senior Night: Athletes reminisce on last game at home

Dominick Dillon, Reporter

Senior Night. The last time a senior will ever play on the home field they've have grown so accustom to over the last four years. With parents and fellow class mates by their side the emotions they feel standing on the field may be unbearable. There are hundreds of things that could be running through the mind of a senior in his last home game. "Usually block everything out and focus on the main goal winning the game and telling myself we will win this game," senior Conner Stout, cornerback said. Their last time ever playing with teammates on a home field can be something one may remember forever, all that hard work put into the offseason with teammates is paying off, for the last time. "The brotherhood was the most important thing that was built in the weight room and on the field. I've gone through some of the most challenging things in my life with my teammates. We aren't just teammates anymore, we are brothers," senior Ethan Smith, defensive end said. As one hears their name being called over the intercom, with parents standing by their side, and everybody cheering them on everything that a player has trained for becomes so real. "To be honest I will just be proud what I have become as an athlete and as a person," Stout said. With four years of hard work and it comes down to one moment, 48 minutes of their final home game as a senior. "It's going to be a very emotional game for me and the rest of my senior teammates, it's going to be the last time we can prove to the city of Greenwood that we made something of this season and show how hard we worked. We're going to leave it all on the field and hopefully put a show on for the fans," senior Smith said. The intensity of senior night is like no other, everyone on their feet cheering hoping their seniors can grab a win there last time at home. "I expect the intensity to be extremely high; it's going to be an emotional as well because it's all the seniors' last home game as a woodman. I would expect to see all the students of Greenwood attending the game against Franklin to show their support for the seniors and the rest of the team," senior Gordon White, linebacker said.

Perry students recognized for excellence

On Oct. 6, 2014, there was a "Recognition of Excellence Reception" held at the Perry Township Education Center to honor two Perry Meridian High School students, both Juniors. Marcus A. Goelz and Sabrina Bruno-West, both earned a perfect score on the 2014 spring English ECA (End of Course Assessment) assessment test. Marcus and Sabrina are the ONLY two students out of over 1,200 high school students in Perry Township to earn perfect scores. Marcus and Sabrina were recognized by Perry Township; principal of Perry Meridian High School, Rolland Abraham; Perry Township School Superintendent, Thomas J. Little; and other Perry Township school staff. Each year, the ECA is taken by over 75,000 students in the state of Indiana. Perry Township is honored to have these two exceptional students recognized by our school district. Pictured is Marcus A. Goelz, Rolland Abraham, and Sabrina Bruno-West.

Southport hosts annual fall festival

Southport celebrated its annual fall festival on Saturday, Oct. 11 with more than 60 vendors. "We had a great turnout and good weather," said Marylyne Winslow, parks director. "The playground (did) not stop. The kids have bounced around and had a lot of fun. We had two great bands, Random Harvest band and Emerald Field. We had two great dance groups that came in, pony rides, a softball throw and lots of great volunteers."

Dr. Frank Giles oversees physical operations for Perry Township schools

Dr. Frank Giles serves as the Associate Superintendent for Operations for Perry Township Schools. His overarching responsibility is to oversee the physical operations of the district and areas of non-instructional support. Departments that fall under his supervision include facilities, maintenance, food services, school police, nursing services and transportation. "My bachelor's degree, master's degree and my doctorate were all earned from Indiana University. I have 33 years of experience in education. I began my career in education as a math and science teacher at Clinton Central High School in Indiana for students in grades 7-12. I then taught chemistry and all levels of math through Calculus IV at Brebeuf Preparatory School. My career continued with teaching and designing introductory computer classes on the graduate and undergraduate level at IUPUI. Next, I served as Technology Coordinator in Lawrence Township, Director of Technology for Mt. Vernon Community School Corporations and MSD of Pike Township. In May of 2004, I became Perry Township Schools' Director of Technology & Media. I now proudly serve as Associate Superintendent for Operations. My goal is to make sure everything is in place so teachers can do their job. Outside of work, I enjoy reading, travel, ballroom dancing and scuba diving of which I was a master instructor for over 20 years." ~ Dr. Frank Giles

Pasta's perfect for casual supper

RECIPE

For The Southside Times by Family Features

Be it a relaxing night in with friends, watching the football game or just catching up, such occasions call for great food. This flavorful, creative pasta skillet meal inspired by the time-honored appetizer, spinach-artichoke dip, is just the ticket.

Creamy Spinach-Artichoke Penne with Garlic-Thyme Breadcrumbs is quick, easy and ready in 30 minutes. To make the super simple pasta sauce, just saute garlic, stir in cream cheese, spinach and artichokes until the cream cheese melts, then add Parmesan cheese. Toss with Dreamfields penne, sprinkle with the irresistible crisp breadcrumb topping and serve. It's sure to be a crowd pleaser.

familyfeatures.com

- 6 tablespoons finely grated Parmesan cheese
- Grated Parmesan cheese for garnish (optional)

Cook pasta according to package directions. Reserve 1 cup cooking liquid; drain pasta and return to pan.

Meanwhile, heat 1 tablespoon oil in large skillet over medium heat. Add panko and toast, stirring frequently, until light golden brown, 2-3 minutes. Add 2 minced garlic cloves (about 2 teaspoons), thyme and a sprinkling of salt and pepper; continue toasting until fragrant and golden brown, 1-2 minutes longer, stirring occasionally. Transfer to medium bowl; set aside.

Return skillet to stovetop. Heat remaining tablespoon oil and remaining minced garlic over medium heat; cook just until garlic sizzles and turns golden. Add cream cheese, spinach with liquid and artichoke hearts. Cook until mixture melts to simmering sauce, stirring frequently. Stir in 6 tablespoons Parmesan cheese.

Add sauce to pasta; toss to coat. Add enough reserved pasta cooking liquid to make a light creamy sauce, if necessary. Adjust seasoning, including salt and pepper, to taste. Serve immediately, sprinkling generously with toasted breadcrumbs and additional Parmesan cheese, if desired.

Note: One can (14 ounces) artichoke hearts, drained and coarsely chopped can be substituted for frozen artichoke hearts.

A nod to healthier eating

Even though this dish sounds as decadent as its namesake dip, this version uses fat-free or reduced-fat cream cheese to decrease calories and fat. Plus, there's a boost of fiber and protein by using Dreamfields pasta. Made with premium durum wheat semolina and a special blend of fiber and plant protein, Dreamfields brings the delicious taste and texture of traditional pasta with five grams of fiber (twice that found in traditional pasta) and seven grams of protein per serving. To learn more about Dreamfields and for additional recipes visit dreamfieldsfood.com.

Sailing to the grammar isles

GRAMMAR GUY

Question: "I have a Facebook friend who constantly mixes up 'aisle' and 'isle' in his posts. Can you write a column I could (subtly) link to him?"

Answer: The grammar confusion I can address – but I'll leave it to you to find a tactful way to show it to your friend. Subtlety isn't always my strong suit.

Both "aisle" and "isle" come to us from Latin through Old French. Interestingly, the Oxford Dictionaries show them briefly coming together in the form of "ile" in Middle English. Their origins and meanings are distinct, though.

"Aisle" derives from the Latin ala, which

Jordan Fischer

"'Isle' derives from the Latin insula, which translates to 'island.'"

translates to "wing" in English. This is preserved in one meaning of "aisle," which is "the side of a church nave separated by piers from the nave proper." Most commonly, though, the word "aisle" simply means "a passage between sections of seats" or "a passage where people walk," like in a supermarket.

"Isle" derives from the Latin insula, which translates to "island." That's convenient, because that's what "isle" means in English, too. It doesn't have any other meanings either, to my knowledge.

This one is really simple: "Aisle" with an "A" is what you walk down and what politicians (theoretically) reach across. "Isle" with an "I" is an island. Since "isle" and "island" both start with "I," it should be a simple thing to remember.

As always, thanks for writing in! I'm always looking for new grammar issues to tackle, so please keep the letters coming!

Dokken family finds purpose at Greenwood church

WHERE WE WORSHIP

Elizabeth Dokken has lived on the Southside for only a short time. Originally from Cincinnati, Elizabeth has lived in the Hoosier State since 1999. She and husband Chris moved to Center Grove from Warren Township in November of 2013. Elizabeth is an occupational therapist while Chris works as an automotive technician at Capital City Ford. Together, they have three children: Lorelai, Carrington and Lukas.

The family used to attend Indian Creek Church in Indianapolis, where they continued membership until shortly after the move to the Southside. It wasn't until they were urged by a close family member that they decided to make the move to Stones Crossing Church.

"My father in law, Steve Dokken, plays bass once a month in the church band. He encouraged us to come to Stones Crossing because it was much closer to our new home. He felt that we would really like it," Elizabeth says. The Dokkens have always been avid churchgoers, although Elizabeth is the first to recognize that their attitude toward church was very "blasé" before they began attending Stones Crossing.

"We've become much more involved since joining Stones. It's really brought out the best in us and brought us closer to fulfilling God's plan for us."

What is it about your place of worship that helps you grow spiritually?

"As funny as it sounds, it starts with the greeters," says Elizabeth with a laugh. "They're extra friendly, and they greet everyone every day individually. At Stones, you're not just another member of the church. Everyone here makes you feel comfortable and loved, more so than any other church we've ever attended. It's a very open environment that accepts everyone, whether they're long time Christians or just realizing their faith. That's a big part of it for our us. They welcomed us with open arms and now they're like family. We pretty much call them our family."

What is it about your place of worship that helps you feel connected to your spouse, children, parents or family?

"Definitely the people. The people at Stones are so different from the people at any other church I've ever been to. I was raised Catholic, so I was a little nervous about how they did things at first," says Elizabeth. "We really enjoy the contemporary atmosphere. The music is modern and upbeat. They tend to stray away from the hymns that you would usually hear in a church. Before attending Stones, my family and I were never truly involved in the happenings of our church. Now we are so, so invested because we love these people. They have been so great in our lives by helping us remember that Jesus is our savior. They've welcomed us into their family and helped us feel comfortable."

What is one meaningful event that has taken place at your place of worship?

"For me personally, it was definitely Easter Sunday when I was baptized. It was very special. We also went outside to release balloons in between services. Each balloon had one of our individuals sins written on it. We literally released all of our sins on Easter Sunday. There was an obvious change that came over everyone after that, like a huge weight had been lifted. Everyone was happier," Elizabeth says.

Elizabeth says.

Stones Crossing is also preparing for another sure to be notable event. On September 14th, the church will welcome guest speaker Shaun Alexander. The former Seattle Seahawk and standout running back will speak about fatherhood as part of the church's 6570 Series.

"We're very excited about Shaun Alexander. I've been adamantly telling my friends about him coming to talk to us for weeks. It's a great opportunity for new people to come and experience Stones," she says.

Why would you recommend your place of worship to someone?

"They know your name here. You're not just a person off the street when you come into Stones. You're an important part of God's plan and the people here will make sure you're always heading in the right direction," Elizabeth says. "You can make a difference here, and I want people to know that. I want people to be able to feel the love that I've felt since I've been here. No matter what you're going through in life, or your color, or your race, it doesn't matter to them. You will always have your family behind you, and family doesn't always have to be blood. Church is family too. I'm out to help anyone find their perfect church homes and I would love for it to be Stones Crossing Church."

"Then the Lord answered Job out of the whirlwind, and said, Who is this that darkeneth counsel by words without knowledge? Gird up now thy loins like a man; for I will demand of thee, and answer thou me. Where wast thou when I laid the foundations of the earth? declare, if thou hast understanding."
~ Job 38:1-4

The most important words of this passage are: "Then the Lord answered Job." The question then becomes this, "Why would the God of creation answer to the created, at all?"

Here is the reason why the best that I can give it. For God so loved His created counterpart that He gave him an answer to his inquiry. God so loved Job that He wanted this verbal intercourse with him so that he could know Him better. This, my friends, is the function of prayer. We can approach God boldly but not brashly. There is quite a difference between the two. One is based in confidence and the other in arrogance.

No arrogant man will ever receive anything from God but silence. This is also the difference between Job and his so-called friends. Job is a humble man who is ready to take the discipline that God gives out as long as it is called for and justified. His friends want to be the instruments of that discipline when all the time they have a greater need of God's grace than does Job.

Job can go into his own house justified, if you will. His friends are not so justified as they are self-justified. They believe they have the solution to Job's problems with God when they have a greater problem with Him than Job does. Things have not changed much over the thousands of years since Job's day.

Today, we have a whole world of people who seem to know all of the answers to whatever question is being posed at the time. We see them on television and we hear them on the radio and we read their wisdom in the local newspapers and magazines. I am amazed at how much advice so many people can offer us when we are going through our time or trials and disappointments but when they are going through theirs, how lacking in wisdom they are.

"No arrogant man will ever receive anything from God but silence."

Then the Lord answered Job

God asks us all, "Where were you when I...?" God created this universe we live in and He is responsible for the order of it. The universe functions by certain "natural laws." Man alone can become an outlaw ignoring God's law and initiating his own law. It is about time that we get back to a study of God's laws, natural, social, and spiritual, and start living with and by them.

God bless and go and have a great day.

Paul A. Kirby is the pastor at the Church of God at 3939 S. Emerson Ave.

We'll get the job done. Fast!

THE QUICKEST ROUTE BETWEEN TWO POINTS IS DIRECT!

Direct Delivery isn't the new delivery company on the block. We've been around for decades, delivering materials of all sizes on time and on budget. Let's face it, when you need something delivered, you just want to make the call with confidence that your shipment is as good as delivered. Well, you're at the right place.

Direct Delivery is the answer for your shipping needs. In fact, you'll find that we are a reliable and responsible company that is always willing to work with you regardless of your needs. Not only do we take our business serious, we take our role in the business community serious as well. Welcome to our site, feel free to browse it or if you just need a delivery contact us and make it a Direct Delivery.

"We have used Direct Delivery for a number of years and have developed a strong relationship with them. Like us, they are locally owned and though we know there are other companies we could use, we know that the owner, Greg Mertz is always a phone call away, and we take great comfort in that..." - RJ Pile, Indianapolis
