IMPD & OPHS announce staffing changes

The Indianapolis Metropolitan Police Department (IMPD) Chief Bryan Roach and Office of Public Health and Safety (OPHS) Director Paul Babcock made appointments designed to foster stronger collaboration across city public safety agencies. Captain Harold (Steve) Turner has been appointed as Major of the IMPD Criminal Investigations Division and Commander Kevin Wethington appointed as Chief of Public Safety Communications Division of OPHS. The changes mean IMPD officers will have better access to the resources and technologies that support their service to Indianapolis neighborhoods and make their jobs safer.

A stressful host produces a stressful ghost

HAUNTS & JAUNTS

By Rick Hinton

Can stressful situations escalate paranormal situations? I believe they can, and do. The last couple of weeks at the Hinton compound has been an example of this very thing. However you term it: anxiety, aggravation, depression, the flu, or even just a mild dose of melancholy, it has ignited our house spook to bold new frontiers of paranormal excellence. “Yes ... we are quite aware you are still here, and watching from the shadows. But as of lately, you’ve been emerging from the shadows, making your presence known. Thanks for the contribution in an already stressful situation!”

There are things we can’t control. Currently, these are driving my wife, Laura, to new peaks of patience and endurance: her father’s sudden stroke and his stubbornness to accept rehabilitation; her mother’s health (she lives with us) and trying to sort out doctor’s visits and the challenge of receiving VA benefits; juggling not only work, but also babysitting grandkids and two weeknight Bible studies. All are important. Parents need to be cared for, and we wouldn’t give up the grandkids or our fellowship for anything. But at the end of the day, it all comes down to a stressful situation suddenly magnified by a ghostly helping hand.

Our ghost plays by the rules in general. There are no hissing and swirling apparitions. It (she/he?) lets us know on occasion that it is still in charge, but generally stays quiet ... only most likely messing with the cats (and my mother-in-law) during the day when Laura and I are not home. The last two weeks, there has been something going on almost daily: Laura unlocked the front door so my stepson, John, wouldn’t have to use his key one evening. While we were downstairs watching TV Laura heard the door open. (I heard the click of the dead bolt.) No John, and when we investigated, the dead bolt was again locked; while Laura was in the upstairs hallway getting ready for work, she watched the medallion on the dream catcher swinging and slapping against the wall. No windows open ... no heat register ... no breeze.

She awoke one night to the strong smell of cologne on her side of the bed. I was gently snoring and not wearing cologne; we’ve all heard sounds of rumbling and rattling inside the kitchen cabinets. Nothing is ever array; it’s the sound of someone upstairs in John’s bedroom when he is gone. We wearily investigate because, well, we have to. Everything is in order; little things disappearing and then reappearing.

Most often, in academia, paranormal experiences are readily dismissed by a subtle rolling of the eyes when they think we can’t see such. I can say, “I was once there with you, bub, but nowadays — you don’t live in my house or seen the things I’ve seen.” Yeah ... our spook is mild, nothing on the level of a good horror movie. It’s a quiet roommate generally, until it has something to say. When it speaks, it’s usually Laura who is the recipient. It might have something to do with her sensitivity. I’m the bad cop in the good cop/bad cop scenario. I tell it to behave or I will send it out of here! It ignores me most of the time.

I know that these sudden instances (parents and ghostly mirth) will level out in time. They always do.

ONE STEP AT A TIME

Perry Meridian senior wins first prize scholarship after a life of adversity

By Stephanie Dolan

Overcoming adversity. It's something we've all had to do at one point or another. Typically, adversity strikes in adulthood with bills, illness or the loss of a job. Sometimes, though, younger people are stricken with adversity far too soon in life. Thankfully, the Kiwanis Club of Indianapolis recognizes that some young people require a helping hand. On Feb. 8, they celebrated some of these young people at the 44th annual Abe Lincoln Scholarship Awards Program. The Abe Lincoln award is given to a high school senior who has overcome adversity in his or her life.

The recipient of the $16,000 first prize was Perry Meridian High School senior Jordyn Sloan. Sloan has experienced hardship in her young life, dealing with episodes of homelessness after losing her father at the age of 7 to a car accident and her mother to drugs.

"Her nomination was a group effort," Perry Meridian guidance counselor Rebecca Shull said. "Her name was at the top of the list because we knew the kinds of things she was up against, and we thought she would be the most appropriate candidate for that scholarship. She's really deserving, considering all the obstacles she's had to overcome in order to get here, to graduate and go on to the next level. I'm super proud of her."

"I think when I was nominated, I didn't realize how big a deal it actually was," Sloan, 18, said. "I didn't even realize there was an interviewing process or a banquet. I just thought it was a run of the mill kind of scholarship where you send in your application and hope for the best. I went in for a preliminary interview with the scholarship committee. At the interview, I met other candidates for the scholarship, and it made me feel really honored and humbled because there were a lot of people with really diverse stories. I sort of felt like I wasn't deserving to even be nominated because the people I was surrounded by were so incredible. I think any nominee could have received that scholarship and deserved it."

HUMBLING EXPERIENCE

Sloan attended the awards banquet with her brother Shaun, and her two English teachers, Jacqui Sheehan and Jessica Hunter.

"It was only right to bring them because of all they've done for me," Sloan said.

"It's amazing," Sheehan said. "A lot of people keep saying 'congratulations on your work with Jordyn!' I didn't really do anything. She already possessed the tenacity to work through her struggles, but I got to be a part of the story and that makes me pretty happy."

"Sheehan and I have had all the Sloans in class, and what's amazing with each one of them is their ability to be so resilient but yet in very different ways," Hunter said. "It's been a beautiful journey to watch the young woman that she's become. She's handled adversity with decorum at times when she could have thrown in the towel again and again. She always manages to be humble and sincere and genuine and she's going to make a heck of a teacher. I can't wait for her to come back into this township and hopefully into this building."

Sloan, a part-time counter girl at Chicago's Pizza, will attend Indiana University in the fall. She'll work all summer before going to Bloomington to join her sister Jayla on campus.

"Before my sister left for college, we shared a room our entire lives," she said. "She's always been my best friend. Before I felt what it was like not to have her with me all the time, I was set on going to Franklin College. Once she went away to college I was having a hard time dealing with it, and I think that had a big influence in changing my mind and going to IU. I think I'm my best self when I'm with my sister. We're a team. It's a huge part of why I want to go to IU. It's a great school, and I like the campus but that's the biggest factor."

5 questions with Jordyn Sloan

Who or what most inspires you? I think that a person who inspires me is my dad. I always say that even though I only had seven years with him, he showed me the kind of love and loyalty and devotion that every child should feel. If it wasn't for him showing me that in that seven years, I don't know if I ever would have felt that or had the opportunity to grow into the person that I am. I feel like that's really done a lot for me even if I don't realize it most of the time. No matter what situation we were in, he never failed to make me feel loved. He taught me there's never a wrong time to show somebody you care about them or value their presence.

What's your favorite book? That's a hard one! I think it's probably Of Mice and Men by John Steinbeck. I read it during a particularly difficult time in my life during my sophomore year. I feel like I read it at the right time in my life and that left an impression on me.

What are you currently reading? The book I'm reading now is actually a biography, which is strange because I very rarely read non-fiction. The book I'm reading now is a biography on John F. Kennedy. I've read one before. I'm reading a different one now for some reason. I find his presidency really fascinating.

Who's your favorite president? The top three would probably be Teddy Roosevelt, John F. Kennedy and Abraham Lincoln. But my favorite is probably John F. Kennedy. I think in addition to his policies and what he did for the government, culturally, he was such an icon. I find it fascinating how it all weaves together.

What's your favorite hobby? Reading and writing. I think my love for writing is borne from reading other people's writing.

PLANS FOR TEACHING

Sloan took a journalism class her sophomore year and is now an entertainment writer for the school paper. She will be majoring in secondary education and English with a minor in journalism.

"I can't remember a time when English wasn't my favorite class," she said. "I took journalism my sophomore year. I liked it, but I decided that I wasn't going to join the newspaper. I didn't do it my junior year, but I did my senior year. My main goal is to be an English teacher. Once I get into college and once I start pursuing journalism a little bit more, I'll see where that takes me. Right now, the plan is to be a teacher."

Sloan said that journalism class was a completely different angle on an English class.

"It was a different world of words," she said.

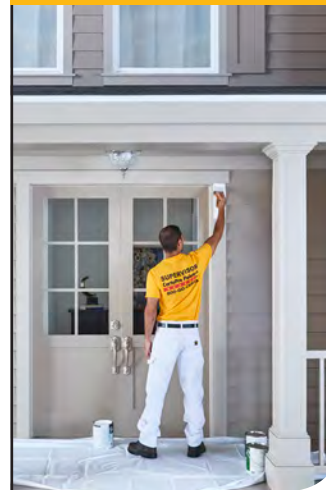

"I think it's such a great feeling as the leader of a building to have students amongst us who represent us so well - not only in our school, but in our community," Perry Meridian principal Kert Beodicker said. "And in Jordyn's case, her family. It's really enlightening and humbling to know that I have such an outstanding student walking in our hallways every single day and I have the ability to be connected with her. She's a great representation of Perry Meridian High School and what we believe in."

"I feel very blessed to have been able to attend this high school," Sloan said. "It's opened up my perspective in different ways. I love being able to see the different cultures and all the people who've come from different parts of the world. Opening my perspective to others is something I try every day to do. Being a student at Perry has made it so much easier and more accessible to do that and to understand people. If I've gained anything from high school it's valuing other people's backgrounds - valuing people no matter where they're from and no matter what they think."

Sloan expressed her gratitude for her recent blessings.

"I've expressed my gratitude a lot, but you can never do it enough," she said. "I'm endlessly grateful for Perry and Mrs. Sheehan and Mrs. Hunter and the people at the Abe Lincoln scholarship. It's nice to know you have people in your corner, and it's important to recognize your blessings."

GO GET E.M.

E.M. Company kicks off a yearlong celebration of 50 years of business as a ‘symbol of service’ in Southport

By Nicole Davis

Greg Schaub, co-owner of E.M. Company, Inc., says he was taught early on that, “you’re only as good as the people that surround you.”

He said he has a great team surrounding him and the proof is in longevity.

E.M. Company celebrated its 50th business anniversary Feb. 24 with an employee luncheon. Owners Greg and Peggy Schaub were joined by their family, work family and other guests to kick off what is planned to be a yearlong celebration. Southport Mayor Russell McClure read a proclamation congratulating E.M. Company on its anniversary, while Greg and Peggy’s sons, Patrick and Paul, read a proclamation sent from Indianapolis Mayor Joe Hogsett declaring Feb. 24 as E.M. Company Day.

“It was a special day for us,” Greg said. “It was a chance for all of the people currently working for us plus the ones that were with us from early on to realize that we’re a part of something special. It was a humbling experience. By the grace of God, we can still put our E.M. Company key in the door and the fact that we’ve been able to do it so long, we don’t take that lightly.”

Three men started E.M. Company in 1969: Rocky Rockwell, Wayne Loy and Jim Carvin. They purchased the old Southport State Bank, where the business still exists today, and renovated it. The business offers commercial electrical, mechanical, refrigeration, food service equipment, plumbing services and more.

A summer-job-turned-career

Greg came to the company in 1973.

“I showed up in black wingtips, black dress slacks and a red and black plaid dress shirt to work for a construction company,” he said. “Let’s just say, the next day was different. I started by sweeping the floors, sweeping the gutter out front and cleaning the restrooms. I still do that today,” he said.

Greg intended for it to be a summer job, but after a year of college with the goal to become a priest didn’t pan out, he returned to E.M. Company and asked Rockwell to teach him the electrical side of the business. He took every opportunity he could to learn and work his way up.

“The only thing I knew was what a straight screwdriver was and a Phillips screwdriver,” he said. “The rest, I learned over the last 45 years. I was taught how to do the trade. I had a good work ethic from my grandfather and father, but my mentor taught me this is how you do it, this is how you act, this is how you go about the business that we’re in. Every aspect of this company, I have done. It’s important to me and I take pride in how I started. I’m still the best broom pusher there is. I think that’s critical for anybody. Start anywhere and work your way up, but never forget your beginnings.”

In 1983, he began to run the daily operations for his mentor, Rockwell, after he retired. In 1985, Greg and Peggy purchased E.M. Company. Since then, they’ve focused on growing the business while maintaining the work/family culture that was important to the Schaub’s predecessors.

“We always had a different culture here,” Greg said. “My mentor treated me like a son. I loved the E.M. Company work family culture. At one time, I had 11 of my family members in the business. Right now, we have nine. We have two husband/wife teams and brother teams. We truly are a work family.”

E.M. Company currently has 55 employees with a combined total of 592 years work of E.M. Company experience.

“That’s something we’re really proud of,” Greg said. “We have a lot of really good people and it’s critical for us to retain our work family. They know our culture, they know how we take care of our customers and they do it on a daily basis. Our people, I truly believe, don’t work for a paycheck. They work for a company and they work to give good service to our customers. I believe that’s what makes our folks different. They truly care.”

That consistency is something E.M. Company’s customers also appreciate. Jeff Townsend said his company, Townsend Business Forms, has done business with E.M. Company since 1975.

“We bought an old building at 1234 N. Pennsylvania St.,” he said. “It was pretty dilapidated and had a lot to do to get it up to snuff. Greg was the guy involved in that. He was real instrumental in getting it up and started.”

Consistency in service

Through the years, E.M. Company has worked with the Townsend family on numerous projects.

“One of the things I like about them, the service industry as a whole, there is so much change in the people that you deal with,” Townsend said. “With E.M. Company, we’ve had the same team of technicians for 40 years.”

Townsend attended the Feb. 24 celebration and said he wanted to thank the company “for all of the wonderful service they’ve done for us. I sure wish them well over the next 50 years. They’re great people and nobody deserves the success more than they do.”

The 50-year celebration will continue March 30, 11 a.m. - 3 p.m., with a community blood drive.

PERSONNEL MATTERS

Is your business hiring quickly to keep up with a job-seekers market?

By Mike Heffner

Forklift operators, customer service reps, accounts receivable clerks, mechanics, maintenance technicians, welders and inside sales professionals – these are just a few of the thousands of jobs on the Southside of Indy and Johnson County area that are open and filling fast. There are currently more jobs open than people actively looking.

The moment a job opens today, the clock starts ticking. An employer has about 48 hours to find and secure that ideal employee. Just 48 hours! Gone are the days a company could place an ad, gather resumes and take the time to interview a long line of qualified employees. This is a job seekers' market now, which means employers are forced to move faster, offer higher wages and provide better benefits. I have been in the employment industry now almost 14 years and it has never been more competitive.

The strong economy and low unemployment rate in Indiana has changed the hiring game. The current employment landscape is truly a market where the fast eat the slow. Companies that have a long hiring process and hoops to jump through are finding the applicants seeking work elsewhere.

This is a win for those looking for employment. They are seeing better salaries, premium benefits, flexible work time and often a better work-life balance. Based on research from Indiana Express offices in 2018, the areas that are in the highest demand are accountants, bookkeepers, machinists, maintenance technicians, material handlers and production managers.

The current market is advantageous for the "passive" job seeker as well. These folks are employed and happy with their current job but open to considering alternative employment opportunities if the right one came along. This is as many as 70 percent of the workforce right now.

If you are looking to hire in 2019, my advice is this: move fast, strengthen your job offerings, be open to those with talent but lack some experience and train for the skills you need. There are definitely good candidates available but it is a lot more work to find, attract and hire right now. Happy Hunting!

Upcoming chamber meetings and events

March 2019

8 - Legislation Matters Luncheon: Luncheon with our state legislators. Our Legislation Matters Luncheon is an opportunity for members to spend time with local state legislators who will participate in a panel discussion. During the luncheon, attendees will have a chance to pose questions to our top elected officials and get answers on matters that mean the most to them. Attendees are invited to vote during the luncheon, so those who represent us will know where we stand on certain issues. As voters and taxpayers, your vote matters, so join us and make your voice heard! March 8, 11:30 a.m.-1 p.m., Valle Vista Golf & Conference Center, 755 E. Main St., Greenwood. Greenwoodchamber.com.

12 - Chamber Day at the Statehouse. The Greater Greenwood Chamber is joining with other chambers from around Indiana for a Statewide Chamber Day at the Statehouse! All members and member company employees are encouraged to join our Greenwood/Southside team of business leaders and meet up with other business leaders from across Indiana at our State's capitol building. This is your chance to see the Indiana General Assembly in action. By participating, you can watch a session, tour the statehouse, Hear powerful presentations from our state's top leaders, get a personal look at the legislative process, meet legislators and enjoy lunch with other chamber advocacy teams from throughout Indiana. March 12, 11 a.m.-4 p.m., Indiana Convention Center, 100 S. Capitol Ave., Indianapolis. Greenwoodchamber.com.

14 - Business After Hours: By participating in our interactive chamber programs, members can develop candid, supportive relationships with like-minded, local business leaders. The relationships build confidence, which can cultivate greater business success. During our Business After Hours event, small business owners, business leaders and decision makers in the community will network with others to discuss success and strengths of running and maintaining a healthy business. Join us and meet with key people who make decisions in the Greenwood business community. Don't forget your business cards! Although there is no cost to attend, your registration is greatly appreciated. This is a 21-and-over event. March 14, 4-6 p.m., Big Woods Franklin, 1800 E. King St., Franklin. Greenwoodchamber.com.

BIZ WEB

Why computer owners need local backup drives and cloud-based backup services

By Andrew Angle

The more you rely on computers, the more likely you're going to realize the importance of making backups.

In the mid-'90s while I was getting my digital marketing career underway, I had several websites running on a server hosted at a local ISP. I was a busy guy trying to keep up with a whirlwind of tech changes while building websites for a variety of local businesses ranging from car dealerships to real estate offices. Some of the systems I built for them were quite complex.

Then, panic struck when a customer's website wouldn't load. I contacted the web host and found out that his server's hard drive crashed. He said the worst-case scenario is that he would have to restore the data from his backups.

As hours passed, my sense of dread grew. Eventually an email arrived informing me that the server was online again, but the backups didn't work. Every bit of data for every website they hosted was gone. That event virtually reset my career. All of the software I used and the programming I did was server-side. I had copies of websites, but not the code I had written. Back then, it didn't occur to me that the data wasn't safe on the server. The software I spent months writing had to be rewritten from my head. Getting it online again took working five 90-hour weeks without pay. I learned the hard way: Make backups of EVERYTHING!

From that point forward, I bought external hard drives and made backups locally. I felt safe. However, Murphy's Law struck when those external hard drives abruptly failed. The lost data included at least a couple years' worth of family photos and birthday parties that will never be seen again. Since that time, I've seen three more external hard drives fail.

This experience taught me that losing data sucks! I finally adopted cloud-based backup services in addition to local backup drives. I'm still evaluating options. As I compare backup products and services, I will share them with you. Think about your own files. What have YOU got to lose? Go to ss-times.com/make-backups for results of my research into backup methods and providers.

PEER TO PEER

'Dance with the one that brung ya'

By Howard Hubler

When my sons Russ and Greg were kids, they played for the South Stars Hockey Club. If at any time they scored three goals in a game, they called that a "hat trick". It's been given a special name because it's an extremely hard thing to accomplish.

Well, the good Lord was shining down on me this year. I have three kids, Greg, Russ and Christi. A couple of weeks ago I was able to score a hat trick: Russ partnered with me in an automotive dealership. Every now and then, the publisher of this paper looks the other way as I become a self-promoter of my kids. In addition to Greg Hubler Ford and Chevrolet and Christi Hubler Chevrolet, now our newest family member is Russ Hubler Chrysler Jeep Dodge Ram in New Castle, Indiana, home of our state's largest high school basketball arena.

Since then, every day Russ and I enjoy an hour drive one way to work. Yes, I should ask, "How about my grandson and my granddaughter? How are you and your wife adjusting to this new lifestyle?" The truth is, call it a guy thing, Russ and I just pound and pound on process and people and product. Then we start over and pound on process, people and product again. Where we thought processes might have been weak, we strengthen them; where we thought processes were wrong we corrected them; where we thought processes were absent we made them present. In two short weeks, to the people that work there, it has started to become a different culture.

It's exciting to be a dad and a process freak, and to see your son slip into process management as simply as he can slip into a T-shirt. It's also exciting to anticipate him creating record sales over the next several months, doing it principally with the same staff, just arranging things differently. As I have said before about my other two kids, when they become a dealer for the first few weeks, I wondered how they made the transformation so easily. Yes, I could say it's all about watching their dad for a lifetime but there are kids who watched their dad for a lifetime doing all kind of things and yet if they entered their dad's business they are clueless. I think my kids were just smarter than I gave them credit for and until your lifestyle is dependent on their skill set, you don't appreciate what all they know.

The teachable moment is as follows. Ronald Reagan once said, "Dance with the one that brung ya". Whatever got you your success, just don't forget it. I said to Russ, when the excitement is over, and this feels like a lot of work, if you want to have the same anticipated outcome, you need to continue the same anticipated process activity. If you have gotten that down right, then I can go retire in Florida and know the checks will keep on coming.

A 'farm' in the city

A local business takes a spin on health consciousness

By Rick Hinton

Queen Anne's Farmhouse & Flower Shoppe is a unique business venture in Greenwood. The shop offers a philosophy on what we should be contemplating and how we can improve the quality of our lives.

Old houses carry a certain kind of romance — and opportunity. However, sometimes, a brick-and-mortar operation achieves the same goal. Queen Anne's meets those expectations.

It's not easy to find. Melinda (Mel) Smith's business, evolving in August 2018, is located at 200 Byrd Way, Suite 105, in Greenwood, next to the purring traffic of southbound I-65. If you find Brickhouse Coffee Co. and then The Nest Event Center, you have arrived. Go to the door inside The Nest, into the indoor mall and you will find Queen Anne's Farmhouse & Flower Shoppe on your left. For a new business, it's a frustrating location obstacle.

"We are trying to figure out creative means around zoning and regulations to let people know we are here!" Mel stated. "It's definitely a barrier. I wanted to stay close to the 'Farm', 10 minutes east in Rocklane. I knew I needed a storefront as a platform to start sharing info on what our ministry and journey was about. The Southside of Indianapolis has small business charm."

Regardless, there are those who have found it. And, glad they did!

A mission of wellness

The mission statement reads, "To create a community spirit of kindness through a simple business principle of selling time and quality ... with customers to be cared for as family, and products which reduce and reuse our carbon footprints and educate the relationships between nature and people."

The mission strives on beyond that — everyone matters ... it takes a village ... diversity IS community ... change is growth. Simplified, it's all about building a stronger community, one flower at a time.

Smith, born and bred in Richmond, Indiana, studied biology at Purdue. Deciding it was not to be her future occupation, she went into nursing, practicing for 14 years in the inner-city involving kids residing in an undeserved population area.

"I got to a point where healthcare changed. It wasn't what it was when I went into it," she stated. "It was cattle herding kids in terms of productivity and numbers, not the quality of spending the time they needed. I've always wanted to have my own business ... a ministry. To raise awareness of social platforms of kindness and healthcare reform. And, taking a holistic approach."

The business was not named after a particular style of Victorian house, but rather after the wildflower — Queen Anne's Lace.

Trisha Hassfunder, a native of Madison, Indiana, is a partner in the venture. A graduate from Purdue, she studied agricultural education for three years. Through the 4-H extension program, she met Smith. She asked her for the opportunity to work with her in her new venture. She has been at the Greenwood business for three months, calling Bargersville home.

"I hope it will grow into what we're expecting," she said. "I came here for the flowers but stayed for the teaching. I want to be a good resource for people. Being out on the farm, having the sun fall on your face and to hear and smell the animals, to groom a horse or a cow. ..."

It doesn't get much better than that!

An agrotherapy approach

Queen Anne's offers a variety of health-based options centered on agrotherapy concepts. "A connection to nature in terms of mental and physical health, blood pressure and pulse. Here, in Western medicine, there are only presently pills and instant fixes," Smith said.

In the shop are offerings of custom-made gifts, art, flower arrangements, piano lessons, fund-raising opportunities, faith-based classes encompassing the fruits of the Spirit, a book club, membership opportunities and field trips to the 'Farm' for science, nature, health and leadership training events.

What's been the community response thus far? "It's been absolutely amazing!" Mel responded, sitting behind the large farm table in her shop. "These are loyal, faithful, amazing customers! I don't even call them customers ... I call them family! We are very appreciative!"

Hassfunder added, "Building a community — one flower at a time — is not an overnight process. It's building a relationship — one day at a time! Faith drives you to that. The past is past and tomorrow's the future. You focus upon today, and God takes care of all the rest!"

Why did you decide to open this business?

Because I looked in the mirror, saw my gray hair and thought, what's my contribution? My contribution has to be more than clicking a button and sticking a stethoscope up to a kid's chest. That's not why I went into health-care. I have to leave a legacy of mentorship ... that you can dream big, and it doesn't happen without hard work and dedication. You have to be willing to be obedient and serve.

What did you do to prepare for opening your business?

Prayed. It's more than a business, it's a ministry. You have to trust that it's going to be OK. If He brought you here, He's not going to abandon you. He'll open up paths and doors to make it work!

Who is your ideal customer?

Anyone. We want everyone to feel welcomed here, to feel they have a place to come. To have a place at the table to be open and honest.

How do you plan to be successful?

By prayer ... and staying true to our mission. Everything we do and create has to meet that. That's where we pour our time and energy. If we do that, everything will fall into place.

What would people be surprised about your business?

That's a very good question! Our business is unique. How many places can you go where you can get truly local and know the story of it? I think that's our niche — that stories matter!

How would you describe your atmosphere?

Calming ... inviting ... homey ... friends. Something for everyone. We are just two farm girls who have a vision and a dream.

TODAY'S SUMMER CAMPS OFFER SOMETHING FOR EVERYONE

Compiled by Nancy Price

Traditional summer camp activities used to be fairly predictable: nature walks, non-competitive team sports, arts and crafts, canoeing and roasting marshmallows by the campfire.

Today's camps seem to offer something for everyone, from summer piano and youth theater to women's basketball elite and mega football. Children can learn how to design high-tech superhero gadgets, program futuristic robots and build and race electric go-carts. They can learn career skills, including physical therapy and cooking from top chefs. Or attend other academic camps, including MICI-AHEC doctor and pharmacy, without even leaving the city!

The Southside Times' summer camps directory is full of choices, from your local YMCA or park to IUPUI and the University of Indianapolis.

Although summer is just a few months away, some camps fill up quickly. Don't delay in signing up!

MAKE THIS A SUMMER TO DISCOVER AT THE Y

By Raena A. Latina

Camping, like many YMCA programs, is about learning skills, developing character and making friends. But few environments are as special as camp, where kids become a community as they learn both how to be more independent and how to contribute to a group as they engage in physical, social and educational activities. At the Y, we are dedicated to making sure camp is an amazing experience for every camper.

YMCA Camps are accredited by the American Camp Association (ACA), which means they have met or exceeded the highest nationally recognized standards for health, safety, staff training and program quality. We offer traditional, sports and enrichment camps with multiple popular themes. Our Day Camps provide age appropriate activities for each child and pool time is included with all camps. Families can choose half day, full day and overnight camp programs for their children.

Flat Rock River YMCA Camp is the Y's overnight camp, located 45 minutes southeast of Indianapolis at the beautiful 240-acre Ruth Lilly YMCA Outdoor Center in St. Paul, Ind. Flat Rock is a great way to give your child an experience away from home. All campers will enjoy amazing outdoor activities such as zip line, horseback riding, swimming, biking, kayaking, archery and more!

YMCA Day Camps will begin May 24 and run all summer, with more than 25 locations across the city, including the Baxter YMCA. Parents can register their child by stopping by any YMCA location, at indymca.org or by calling (317) 484-9622. Financial assistance is available and CCDF vouchers are available at most locations.

Overnight summer camp sessions begin June 2. For more information about Flat Rock River YMCA Camp and its spring and fall break camps, call (888) 828-9622 or visit flatrockymca.org for more information.

THE ROCK CAMP IN GREENWOOD OFFERS RELIABLE SUMMER CHILDCARE WITH A UNIQUE TOUCH

By the Community Church of Greenwood

The Community Church of Greenwood is offering a local solution for parents looking to place their kids in an all-day, all-summer camp this year. The Rock Camp is open to children entering grades 1-5. The camp runs from 6:30 a.m. - 6 p.m. on weekdays from May 28 - July 26. For just under $1,000 for the entire summer, The Rock Camp provides parents with a safe, age-appropriate environment for their kids to spend their summer weekdays.

The summer will be filled with several field trips to destinations around Indianapolis, a secure environment for play and growth at the church and fun use of The Gathering Place, a sports and fitness facility owned by the church on the church campus. Participants of The Rock Camp will experience a fresh and unique summer break where faith and fun come together in safe, stimulating environments. Parents can feel certain that their child is protected and gaining experiences that will help them develop important personal skills.

"The Rock Camp is not just another daycare alternative but a safe, creative and dynamic camp," Camp Director Kristen Baynai said. "We recognize the importance of academics and we bring that together with a focus on the imagination, the life skills and the relationships within a child's own world. At The Rock Camp, we bring all those pieces together."

The mission behind The Rock is to provide an enriching summer experience for children, but another important aspect of the camp is to give parents the assurance of knowing that their children are safe and secure all day while school is out.

"As a mom of two, I understand the anxiety of parents. At Community Church of Greenwood, we stand firm on our policies and procedures and make parents a priority. We want them to feel safe entrusting their children to The Rock Camp," said Baynai.

To learn more information or to register your child for The Rock Camp, visit rockcampgreenwood.com or contact Kristen at kbaynai@ccgonline.org. Community Church of Greenwood, 1477 W Main St., has been a part of the Greenwood community for 42 years. The church has services at 9:30 a.m. and 11a.m. on Sundays with programming for all ages. The Gathering Place, a sports and fitness facility located on the church campus, is run by the church and open to the community. ## FROM THE EDITOR

Local events honor veterans

March 29 is National Vietnam Veterans Day, recognizing veterans who served in the U.S. military during the Vietnam War.

On Friday, March 29, from 11:30 a.m.-noon, the Caroline Scott Harrison Chapter, NSDAR, is hosting a Bricks of Dedication ceremony to honor 51 Vietnam War soldiers missing in action. Honored guests include family members of those MIA and Vietnam War veterans. The speaker at the event will be CW5 Peter Lautzenheiser, U.S. Army (ret). There will be a reception following the ceremony at Indiana War Memorial, Shoup Hall. Please RSVP to Janet Shelton at dj2dd2sh4@hotmail.com.

Another event honoring all veterans is a free Veteran's Dinner/Program on March 10, 5 p.m. (program starts at 6 p.m.; please note Daylight Savings Time change is one hour forward on March 10). Active military, reservist, veterans, family members and survivors are invited to the "Veterans Welcome Home Program" at Christ Our Shepherd Church of the Brethren, 857 N. State Road 135 in Greenwood.

The speaker will be LCDR James Patton, who was deployed as a Navy Officer in Afghanistan. He served a year in-country with members of the Oregon National Guard. He was an embedded team trainer with the Afghan National Army (ANA) in Kandahar, Afghanistan. He will speak about the commissioning of the USS New York and share pictures. All are welcome. Please call (317) 416-7888.

TOP 10 REASONS YOU SHOULD VISIT YOUR LOCAL ANIMAL SHELTER

By Torry Stiles

10. It smells nicer than the average men's locker room.
9. The staff lets you touch the merchandise all you want, unlike those snooty clerks at the jewelry store.
8. If you happen to have some extra kibble you need to get rid of, they'll carry it in for you. The folks at Goodwill make you unload yourself ... and they don't take kibble.
7. The cats have been specially trained in Shiatsu massage techniques.
6. All animals are guaranteed 100 percent organic.
5. The adorable faces, courtesy of the Southside Animal Shelter, 1614 West Edgewood, Indianapolis.
4. You probably do have mice, but even if you don't, how could a little extra protection hurt?
3. All of these babies have had their shots and are usually house-trained. Your sister can't say that about her kids.
2. Your average shelter worker would never make fun of you for naming your new fur baby Mister Kitty Bun-bun. I would, but I don't work there.
1. Everybody knows that most store-bought dogs and cats are actually working for the CIA.

Beech Grove First Friday a success, plans to continue each month

By Nancy Price

More than 100 visitors attended a Beech Grove event last week that was a first of its kind in the community. Local artists held First Friday, a free art exhibit held at D's Taps and Beech Bank Brewing Company on Main Street.

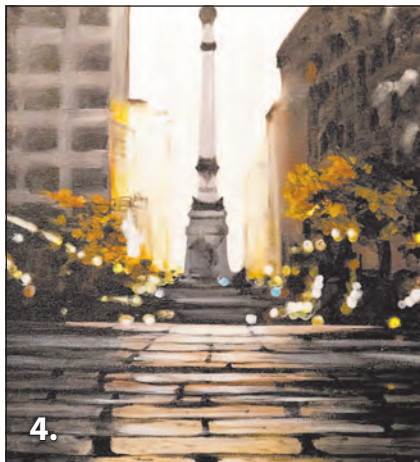

"I would say that it was a success!" said Claire Dillehay, one of the artists hosting the event. "Between all of the artists, there was a total of 12 pieces (of artwork) sold."

First Fridays have become popular over the years in other Southside areas of Indianapolis, including Fountain Square and Garfield Park. The events feature works from local artists; visitors socialize after work while sipping on wine and viewing the art for sale.

"Quite a few people said that they loved the event," Dillehay said. "Some even said they were wondering when something like this would happen. Many asked if there would be events like 'Beech Grove First Friday' in the future. As far as the art itself, we received a lot of positive comments!"

Dillehay said there are definitely plans to continue First Fridays on a monthly basis and invites art lovers to check out works for sale. In addition, she encourages local artists to participate in the event. Businesses in the Beech Grove community are more than welcome to host a future event. Dillehay also said she is looking into food trucks. Go to facebook.com/BeechGroveArtistCollective for more information.

"Thank you to everyone that joined us for our first 'First Friday,'" she said. "We, the artists, enjoyed very much bringing more art to the community, even if it was just for one evening. We hope to continue growing and bringing art to Beech Grove not only on the first Friday of each month, but in many other avenues as well."

Roma The Power of memory

MOVIE REVIEW

By Bradley Lane

If you're anything like me, you've wondered why movie theaters during the winter months at the beginning of the year are so barren in terms of quality films. The answer lies within how American distributors decide when certain movies show.

If films don't do well with test audiences or are made for extremely cheap with less bankable stars, they release them in "dump months." These "dump months" are usually associated with January and February but have also come to include August and September. These months are between the summer blockbuster releases and the award season releases toward the end of the year. So instead of tearing into a film not even the studio has confidence in, I decided to revisit the winner of the best foreign film winner from this year, Roma.

Roma follows the story of Cleo, a live-in maid working for an affluent family in 1970s Mexico. Trouble arise when the father of the family she works for leaves under mysterious circumstances that cause tensions at home. Make no mistake, though; this is not a mystery thriller. Instead, the movie focuses on the day-to-day interpersonal minutia of Cleo's life. Dealing with the family's kids, her romantic endeavors and navigating everyday life during the Mexican Dirty War, an extension of the Cold War.

Roma is an immaculately detailed film. Each scene is filled with extraneous detail that gives extra context to those audience members keen enough to pick it up. The style of the film is naturalistic and grounded; however, it explores themes of memory and recollection, which does cause some parts of the movie to seem confusing. Some shots frame small details as most important aspects of a scene while audiences might want to know more about the narrative implications of that scene. This is a technique director Alfonso Cuarón uses to simulate how people actually remember events in their lives. Certain songs, items and even people can instantly transport you back to a place and time, and Cuarón translates this phenomenon onto film.

Roma's technical aspects are also exceptional. If you decide to watch this movie at home, please watch it as loudly as possible. The sound mixing and editing is remarkably detailed, just like the visual aspects of the film. Dogs bark and engines roar yards off-screen but they all sound so real and as though you could place them around you geographically.

Roma does struggle with pacing and can often feel sluggish and slow; however, this is in service to the sense of normal everyday life that Cuarón is trying to portray, so it's hard to fault it for this alone. It can also be difficult to fully understand the story without any prior knowledge of the Cold War, and specifically, the Mexican conflict resulting from American and Soviet Union tensions.

Roma is an achievement in filmmaking and deserves to be viewed on the largest screen and loudest system you can find, and is currently available to stream free with a Netflix subscription.

Bradley is a Beech Grove High School alumnus and has been enamored by film for as long as he can remember. He is currently in his third year studying at IUPUI, majoring in Media and Public Affairs with a minor in Film. Bradley can be contacted at blane2214@gmail.com.

Fighting my wife's cancer with God's garden; raw, non-GMO produce

NUTRITION

By Wendell Fowler

In a heartbeat, everything changed; space and time decelerated as we focused on the words falling from the doctor's mouth, "Sandi, you have cancer". My reality shifted as the exam room closed into a misty grey, surreal tunnel. There it was. It was happening to us, not other people. How can this happen to the wife of the godfather of food as medicine? My heart crumbled into little pieces.

Because I've learned the universe/God is listening and then creates my reality out of my thoughts, I reigned in anxiety and dark feelings, centered myself on what must be done, resolute it's already gone. Never there. Heal my precious wife. It's a done deal.

I see firsthand, however, how it can be overwhelming at first when emotions are raw. So, over the upcoming weeks, I'm sharing my wife's journey, as our love, guardian angels, community of earth-medicine-loving, hard-praying friends synergize to restore Sandi to her original wholeness.

First, I'm becoming a wheatgrass farmer for her daily wheatgrass shots, juice a rainbow of fresh produce from God's garden and eat even more non-GMO raw foods vibrating with energy. Currently our diet is 80 percent raw. We don't smoke or drink alcohol, do not eat dairy, gluten, meat and sugar. We exercise regularly and participate in silent, mindful meditation frequently.

Including me, many agree cancer is a disease of modern society, manmade food and the malevolent, irresponsible use of alien chemicals and compounds (Roundup® glyphosate, et. al.), seasoned with greed, empty souls and a profound disconnection from the sacred earth that altruistically supports all life.

Researchers studying a thousand mummies from ancient Egypt and South America found only a handful suffered from cancer when today, it accounts for a third of all deaths. This suggests modern lifestyles and industrial pollution are the main causes and that it is not a naturally occurring condition or hereditary. Modern records show that the disease rate has risen massively since the Industrial Revolution, in particular, childhood cancer. A genocide moving at the speed of a glacier, so slowly no one notices as a sleepwalking society assumes cancer is normal. Sick? Really? If you believe that, then you need to find a new god.

Abruptly, we see life through vastly different lenses. There's no other focus than getting the living foods into my wife's temple so it can do what it has evolved over 250 million years to do: to heal using nature and to express perfect health. Next week: wheatgrass shots.

GRAMMAR GUY

By Curtis Honeycutt

I have a 5-year-old son. Right now toilet humor is big. Body parts are funny. Things that produce bad smells get big laughs. Basically, I'm in my comedic sweet spot when I'm with the pre-K crowd. Apparently, I act my shoe size more than I act my age. I'm OK with that.

Guess what, fellow word nerds? According to a 2017 Springer study that surveyed 821 participants, English speakers, as a whole, aren't any more mature than I am. The study asked participants to rate 211 words on a scale of 1 to 5, where 1 is not funny at all and 5 is downright hilarious. In total, the participants ranked nearly 5,000 words.

Let me cut to the chase and give you the top 10 funniest words in the English language in order of hilarity: booty, tit, booby, hooter, nitwit, twit, waddle, tinkle, bebop and egghead. I can safely guarantee this collection of words will never appear together in the same sentence again, although — if they did — they'd get tons of guffaws and chortles, based on the data.

Before you dismiss this list of funniest words, just know that 58 percent of respondents were women. The average age of participants was 35. Seventy percent of people who participated in the study had at least completed an undergraduate degree. So that means we can definitively say "booty" is a word people can't help but find funny. My 5-year-old and I would certainly agree.

Whether you're an egghead or a nitwit, isn't it comforting to know we giggle at the same things? Republicans and Democrats both snicker when someone says "tinkle." Black people and white people both think "waddle" is silly. Our collective immaturity gives me hope that we are more alike than we are different.

Comedic words won't necessarily fix our disagreements, but I do think they can help. So the next time you find yourself in a frustrating ideological argument with a Twitter troll or your crazy drunk uncle, I recommend casually dropping in a few of these words into your conversation. Just don't accuse the other person of resembling one of these words; if you do, you might end up on the receiving end of a swift kick to the keister.

Weekly Devotion

19 Quench not the Spirit.
20 Despise not prophesyings.
21 Prove all things; hold fast that which is good.

1 THESSALONIANS 5:19-21

Caution is a requisite of Christianity. So often, I caution the folks that I pastor to study their Bibles to be solid in the faith it recommends to all of us. As you study, listen to the Holy Spirit of Christ as He leads you into all of the truth. Thereby, we shall all be approved by God to be His workers and we will be qualified as one of those who "rightly divide the word of truth". This is so important in these days of mass communication. We have many who just want your money and could care less about your souls.

When in worship, who leads? Every Sunday I have a bulletin in front of me. It has in it an "order of service". This order of service never will, nor should it, override the will of God's Holy Spirit for that or any other service we attend.

The Holy Spirit should be free to lead. When He leads, there is never chaos. He is always a gentleman and everything will be done decently and in order. The songs we sing will be clearly songs of praise of God the Father and the Son or they will be invitations to come to them in order to be helped or saved. The songs we sing will be in celebration of the relationship we have with God through the Son.

Finally, all things taught either by the music, the message or by testimony must be provable by the written Words of God. If it doesn't agree with the Bible and if it leads you away from Christ, reject it. The proving of all things is an individual responsibility. There is not place in Christianity for lazy Christians where doctrine is concerned. These are the "rules of the road" for us. We must live by them or we will never finish the journey in any condition to make heaven our home. If we are uncomfortable with Christ here, we will not enjoy heaven at all. In all things and in every teaching, prove them by a study of God's Word and by leaning on the Holy Spirit.

God bless and go and have a great day.

Paul A. Kirby is the pastor at the Church of God at 3939 S. Emerson Ave.
