BGCS needs volunteers for Grab and Go meal program

Those interested in volunteering with Beech Grove City Schools and Chartwells K-12 Food Service are invited to help serve meals for the Grab and Go program. Through the program, community members in need may pick up a free meal to take home. A prescreening questionnaire is required for potential volunteers to help prevent the spread of COVID-19.

Local community helps Johnson County hospice patients

Some patients disconnected from family and friends during COVID-19 restrictions feel isolated, lonely and depressed. After a request from Main Street Hospice in Franklin, handmade cards, artwork and homemade face masks donated by the community flooded the facility. In addition, hospice volunteers, currently restricted from visiting patients, have been making phone calls, writing letters and delivering toiletries, grocery items and home-cooked meals to home patients unable to leave their homes.

Phantom odors – another piece of the puzzle in the paranormal world

HAUNTS & JAUNTS

By Rick Hinton

Dusted off and reprinted from 11/29/2015

Have you ever woken up to the smell of breakfast cooking, yet no one's in the kitchen? Or, smelled a strong whiff of cologne or perfume in the air when being the only one in the house? Had the odor of flowers, and you have no plants in the home? Or perhaps the smell of wet animal fur, much like after a bath, when there are no longer any animals in the residence? If so, you may very well have had a paranormal encounter; and not even cognizant it has happened!

Phantom odors are a very familiar component in the realm of paranormal investigations, and as evidence, equally as important with audio recordings, camera footage, shadow movement and apparitions. While still a personal experience, when it happens to more than one person at the same time, it's something to consider. These odors sometimes tell a story, putting a time stamp upon a life once lived. Yet, for whatever reason after death – do not depart.

Unexplained smells from reported experiences have included food cooking, bread baking, tobacco (cigarettes, cigars and pipe); former fire damage, cologne, perfume, deodorant, hair spray, body odors and occasionally the smell of rotted meat. It is thought a house (or building) can literally absorb these past odors and replay them in short bursts at times. Skeptics will reason there's nothing paranormal about it, and all coincidence. Maybe ... but these odors seem to always tie in with a former resident and their stroll through life. They may have become a calling card of sorts.

My wife, Laura was awakened once in the wee hours of the early morning by an overwhelming odor of what she describes as "grandmotherly" perfume. I slept through it oblivious as I most often do. The smell emitted from her side of the bed (the location of most of the occurrences in our home) and was so thick she almost got sick from it. And then, just as quickly, it disappeared. It was not the smell of any perfume she uses. She woke me up. Afterward, from our neighbor, we learned the first owner of our house had been an elderly woman. Coincidence? The skeptical side of me would like to think so, but I have my doubts.

My father died in 1987, passing away on a couch in front of the fireplace of our longtime weekend house on Prince's Lake, just outside of Nineveh. The house was his labor of love for years and it was only poetic he would go there. Putting this as delicately as I can – my father retained large amounts of gas. It had a very distinct odor. He passed it a lot. Silent but deadly was my dad, but I loved him still. After his death – for many months – this odor would suddenly surface, and then just as suddenly disappear. Coincidence?

Had our weekend home – with so much of his soul invested into – become a place he chose not to leave? Did he even have a choice in the matter? I don't know. There's a reason for everything, yet, will paranormal investigators ever understand these gray areas? Some will say they have the answers; they don't! It's still a work in progress, and I expect to be for many years to come. Paranormal odors are another piece of the puzzle.

The Southside Times Educator of the Year: Susan Tomlinson

Franklin Central High School teacher uses a passion for history to inspire students and colleagues

By Nancy Price

Susan Tomlinson's passion for U.S. history started while listening to her third-grade teacher read the Little House on the Prairie series by Laura Ingalls Wilder. "The stories of these pioneer settlers fascinated me and gave me an appreciation for the history of the westward movement," Tomlinson said.

In addition, both sets of her grandparents travelled, bringing back gifts and stories of international culture, which sparked her interest in sociology. "I have traveled to 26 countries in Europe and Asia including China, Japan and Saudi Arabia and lived in Germany for five years during the time of the fall of the Berlin Wall and reunification," she said. "I use those experiences to enhance my teaching."

Tomlinson, a U.S. History and Sociology teacher for Franklin Central High School, has been named The Southside Times' Educator of the Year.

A Teaching Legend

"Mrs. Susan Tomlinson is a teaching legend," said Lisa Laker, English teacher for Franklin Central High School. "Recognized as our district's first Teacher of the Year many years ago, Susan continues to develop professionally and serves on the Indiana Council for the Social Studies executive board, the Indianapolis Sister Cities International executive teacher outreach board and she consults for Gilder Lehrman United States History organization. In this capacity, Mrs. Tomlinson was chosen to advise on award-winning Ken Burns' documentary, Vietnam. She has been awarded Indiana Social Studies Teacher of the Year by Gilder Lehrman, and she has been honored with a plethora of awards, including a Lilly Teacher Creativity Fellowship that took her on teaching adventures to Slovenia, Italy and Croatia. Susan is highly accomplished. She is my educational hero!"

"Susan is also a wealth of information acquired from her many travels, workshops and work within the field of social studies," added Caciinda Walters, Government, U.S. and World History teacher for FCHS. "Her dedication and contributions to our field is beyond description."

Tomlinson grew up in Mooresville and graduated from Mooresville High School. She received her bachelor's degree in Social Studies Education and her master's in Secondary Education and U.S. and World History from Ball State University. She studied post-graduate at I.U. Bloomington, Purdue and IUPUI. Tomlinson began her career by teaching in Muncie, Ind., including the Burris Laboratory School's Center for Gifted and Talented at Ball State University. She spent an additional five years teaching in Manheim, Germany. Tomlinson taught World Geography at Franklin Township Middle School for 10 years and has been with Franklin Central High School for the past 18 years. She was a founding member of the Freshman Academy and, with Laker, founded World Cultures Club 15 years ago.

Celebrating Diversity

"Our township was growing and with this growth came an increase in the rich diversity of our population," explained Tomlinson. "We saw World Cultures Club as a way to recognize and celebrate the cultures represented in our school. The response to the club was enthusiastic and within a few years it was the biggest club at the school. The highlight of the year was the Flashes Around the World International Festival which continues to be a showcase of exhibits and performances celebrating Franklin Township's multi-cultural community."

Tomlinson also created an annual "Eva Education Day" for students and the community to celebrate the life of the late Auschwitz survivor and Hoosier, Eva Mozes Kor. Kor founded the CANDLES Museum in Terre Haute, Ind. "When Governor Holcomb declared Eva Education Day in Indiana, the History Club decided to create an after-school event to recognize this event and to promote Eva's message of forgiveness," Tomlinson said.

Using History to Make a Difference

"History is made up of fascinating stories of people of different backgrounds, abilities and areas of talent," Tomlinson continued. "I want students to realize that they can make history in some way. Even as high school students they have a voice and ideas that they can use to make a difference in their lives and the lives of others."

Although Tomlinson has more than 40 years of teaching under her belt, she continues to learn every day ... from her students. "I continue to grow in my love and appreciation for these human beings who are my students," she said. "I learn from them, and I grow and explore with them. Teenagers are amazing creatures who can be kind, compassionate, caring, innovative, creative, funny and challenging. They keep me growing and learning ... and they keep me young!"

Tomlinson has been married to her husband, Chuck for 43 years. They have three dogs, a horse and one pony and live on eight acres of land in rural Morgan County.

Franklin Township Historical Society switches to calendar-year dues renewal

Historical society dues – The Franklin Township Historical Society is switching to a calendar-year renewal basis to make it easier for everyone to keep track of when renewals are due. If you joined or renewed your membership in the last half of 2019, don't worry – your membership is valid through December 2020. If you joined or renewed prior to that, though, it's time to renew now. (Lifetime memberships will not be affected by this change.) FTHS members receive a 10 percent discount on our publications and merchandise, can attend society meetings and special events and receive the newsletter. If you wish to renew, you can do so online at fths.org/membership or mail the membership form (available on our website) on a sheet of paper with your name, mailing address and email address, along with your dues, to Franklin Township Historical Society, P.O. Box 39015, Indianapolis, IN 46239. Individual member dues are $20 per year, $40 per couple, $50 per year for a family membership (one household), $100 per year for a sustaining member and 4200 for a sustaining couple and a one-time payment of $200 per individual for a life member.

Nothing Bundt Cakes opens in Greenwood

FEATURE

By Amy Moshier

Sometimes in life, patience can be a virtue. That was certainly the case for LeAnn, 51, and Charles Brown, 50, who just had a very busy recent grand opening for Nothing Bundt Cakes bakery in Greenwood.

"My husband and I have been married for 27 years and have always wanted to open our own business," LeAnn said. "We have been patiently waiting for the ideal opportunity and partnership that served our mission to serve others in an extraordinary and unique way."

Around 600 guests attended the bakery's grand opening. "We had a line outside the building and down the block. We had so much fun serving guests," she added. "The first 50 received a card for a free Bundtlet (a miniature Bundt cake) every month for a year."

Nothing Bundt Cakes was founded in 1997 by Dena Tripp and Debbie Shwetz. They joined forces, or better yet kitchens, to make cakes to entertain their friends and family, who said the cakes were delicious and unlike anything anyone had tasted. As a result, their friends and family asked them to entertain more. They quickly realized this side project of theirs could be something more. There was a gap in the world for delicious cakes, readily available, that didn't compromise on quality ingredients. Flash forward and Nothing Bundt Cakes has grown nationwide. Dena and Debbie's vision was to have the warmth and nostalgia of its home-kitchen roots, but also take a modern approach for the world today.

LeAnn's family has a rich history of several successful entrepreneurs in the community. "My family is from the Southside and we have several entrepreneurs in the community. My parents own Kacey's Twin Eatery in Whiteland and have been serving the Southside for over 40 years. We are bakery #359 in the Nothing Bundt Cakes brand and are absolutely thrilled to have been chosen among 5,000 applicants a year to represent the brand in Greenwood."

She and Charles – high school sweethearts – have fond memories of how they were introduced to the Nothing Bundt Cakes brand. "Our first introduction to the brand was while visiting my brother in North Carolina last year. We were impressed with the "ma" and "pa" feel, quality of the cakes and surprised to learn it was a franchise! It brings us joy to see the expressions and sound effects of guests when trying (their Bundt cakes) for the first time. Cake was not our dessert of choice until trying Nothing Bundt Cakes for the first time ... it's seriously addicting!" she said.

The Browns have been glad to experience the support they have received from the corporate level of the franchise. Nothing Bundt Cakes has its own real estate team, who helped support the ideal location. "Luckily for us, the location – at 3113 W. Smith Valley Road – was our first choice," LeAnn said.

"We are a one-stop shop for all occasions. We offer Bundt cakes in four sizes, 10 flavors and have a variety of gifts, balloons and cards for all your celebration needs," she added. "It's our desire to bring joy and happiness through Bundt Cakes. I would love for everyone in the greater Greenwood area to join our eClub and receive a free Bundtlet on their birthday. All of our cakes are a great way to share with others how much they are appreciated every day!"

Butler University awards full scholarships to two Perry Meridian seniors

Scholarships – Butler University has awarded full scholarships to two Perry Meridian High seniors, Victor Barona and Amy Dilley. Barona is the recipient of the Dr. John Morton-Finney Leadership Scholarship, whose namesake was an alumnus of Butler and earned 11 degrees and practiced law for 53 years. He retired two years before his death at the age of 108, making him the oldest practicing attorney in Indiana. Dr. Morton-Finney believed in education and served the Indianapolis Public School system for 47 years as a teacher and administrator. While academic performance is considered, the scholarship is awarded to students who demonstrate an active leadership role to promote diversity and inclusion through high school and community activities. They must also engage in professional development opportunities. Barona plans to study accounting at Butler's Lacy School of Business. He is one of only five students, out of nearly 800 applicants, to receive the Leadership Scholarship. Dilley's scholarship surprise came as she sat inside calculus class. She received the Butler Tuition Guarantee, which provides full tuition each year when combined with all federal, state and university scholarships and grants. It's available to Marion County students who have a solid academic record, as well as participation in high school extracurricular activities and community service projects. Dilley also plans to study business at Butler's Lacy School. Dilley is one of 10 students to receive the award.

Beech Grove Chamber helps all local businesses and nonprofits through the end of May

FEATURE

By Nancy Price

The Beech Grove Chamber of Commerce is currently assisting all local businesses and nonprofits, regardless of whether or not they are members of the chamber, through May 31, in response to COVID-19.

“A business will succeed in a thriving business community,” said Renee Harlor, executive director for the Greater Beech Grove Chamber of Commerce. “We have the ability to help our entire community of business owners and nonprofit organizations at this time. Currently, we are offering free 30-minute consultations for any business or nonprofit. We will review the CARES Act and other business assistance programs. In addition they will receive a portion of our member benefits.”

The chamber is a nonprofit organization with the goal of creating a vibrant business community that residents can enjoy and be proud of, according to Harlor. In addition to providing business assistance, the chamber provides scholarships and free community events that help promote local business and provide the community with community focused entertainment. These events include the annual Music on Main, Spring Fling and Shop Small Saturday.

New this year is a job fair that was originally scheduled for May but will be scheduled for later this year. “We feel a job fair is a great benefit to our members,” said Harlor. “We are hopeful it will be able to be held in late September.”

Members pay an annual fee and gain access to networking events, training programs, business assistance, marketing and promotions.

“Our chamber brings a tremendous value to a business or nonprofit,” Harlor continued. “Our members receive a ton of benefits and membership often quickly pays for itself. They have access to classes, marketing assistance, networking and much more. It also shows the community that you not only care about your business, but the well-being of the community.”

Any business or nonprofit organization located in the Greater Beech Grove area can email the chamber at info@Beech-GroveChamber.org or call (317) 800-8499. “It is free of charge and we are working for them,” Harlor said. “We want business owners and nonprofit organizations to reach out to us with their concerns. Though many businesses are closed it is still important to market their businesses. We have a great checklist for businesses to use. We are a nonprofit organization that is here for the businesses and organizations in our community.”

Find your place at the library ... at home

This week is National Library Week. The theme is "find the library at your place," which highlights how libraries are offering virtual services and digital content their communities need as the impact of COVID-19 changes the work of libraries and library workers.

The Johnson County Public Library is inviting the community to participate by asking them to find their favorite reading place at home and snap a picture or design a bookmark and post a photo to the library's Facebook comments or email their submissions to Elyssa at everling@jcpln.org. Everyone who shares a photo will be entered into a drawing for one of four National Library Week prize baskets.

What are some good books out there the whole family can enjoy during their downtime at home? Amy Hamilton, adult/teen librarian of JCPL – White River Branch, suggests the following:

Adult

- Revolver Road by Christi Daugherty
- The Splendid and the Vile by Erik Larson
- The Silent Patient by Alex Michaelides
- Recipe for a Perfect Wife by Karma Brown
- The Mountains Sing by Nguyen Phan Que Mai

Young Adult

- The Loop by Ben Oliver
- Last Girls by Demetra Brodsky
- By the Book by Amanda Sellet
- Super Adjacent by Crystal Cestari

Children

Customers can redeem the digital cards now for takeout and delivery or for products and services later. There are no fees to participate.

QUOTE OF THE WEEK

"If people sat outside and looked at the stars each night, I'll bet they'd live a lot differently."

– Bill Watterson, American cartoonist

READERS' WRITES

Go slow on reopening businesses

In an earlier press conference Governor Holcomb began talking about working with neighboring governors to begin the process to reopen government and business. We must be extremely careful with this and take baby steps. Through the immediate future, I would certainly suggest that local citizens continue social distancing and if you have a fever or don't feel well to please stay home. Decisions to open businesses and government buildings to the public must be made after consultation with doctors or specialists who study infectious diseases.

Stay safe,

TOP 10 PLANS FOR MY STIMULUS CHECK THE WIFE HAS REJECTED

By Torry Stiles

10. Free "Torry's Top 10" T-shirts for all my fans. I'll need about three if I include my mom.
9. Four straight days of Sushi Club and Ritter's Frozen Custard.
8. Glamor Shots session. Tasteful nudes only, of course. Lots of soft-focus stuff.
7. Down payment on a city-county council seat. Vote Torry!
6. Boxer shorts emblazoned with the phrase, "Quarantine This."
5. "Feel the Bern" memorabilia. It's on sale. Cheap.
4. Season tickets to the Southport Little League tee ball games. Box seats.
3. 40-inch spinner chrome wheels for my 20-year-old Lincoln Town Car with the cracked windshield and exhaust held up by a piece of rope.
2. Sleepover in Long's Bakery followed by a week's stay at the diabetes clinic.
1. "Torry's Top 10" tattoo. She claimed it would be false advertising.

How seniors can stay active in mind and body while social distancing

FEATURE

By Angie Antonopoulos

The outbreak of COVID-19 may have added an extra layer of isolation and anxiety for some seniors. However, these challenges can be overcome, according to some Southside experts.

"We focus so much on the physical nature of any kind of virus and how it's going to affect us physically, but we forget that there's a psychological component that is huge and plays a large part into impairing our ability to function on a day-to-day basis," said Franciscan Health psychologist Dr. Deann Harvey in Franciscan Health's blog. "What we strongly encourage is to stop, to take a step back, to take a deep breath and to look at the statistics. ... We need to be patient, take deep breaths and get in control of our thoughts."

Michelle Dial, a certified health coach for her business Michelle Dial Wellness in Perry Township offers several recommendations.

ESTABLISH LIMITS ON WATCHING OR READING NEWS. Control the amount of negative news you consume. "Stay informed," Dial said. "If you feel it's too much, find something else to distract you. ... Get outside. Open a window. Look at nature's beauty."

CONNECT WITH NATURE. Take a walk, garden or sit outside. Spending some time outside or looking at landscapes through a window or even a picture can help, she said.

KEEP A GRATITUDE JOURNAL. Write down what you are grateful for every day. "Write three to five things that you are grateful for," Dial suggested. "It puts you in a place of being thankful."

RESTART AN OLD HOBBY. "Take up the old hobby in your closet," Dial said. "Focusing on a hobby promotes staying in the present." Woodworking, knitting, painting, or photography are activities that can keep you occupied for hours.

CONNECT WITH FRIENDS, FAMILY AND PROGRAMS ONLINE. Access information, including music, classes, worship services, clubs and even those closest to you through the internet. Zoom and Skype can offer a way for you to see friends and family virtually.

MEDITATE. Close your eyes, Dial suggested. "Think about a challenging situation you encountered in your life. Take a few deep breaths." Then, think about a happy memory in your life. Breathe. "Trust that what is happening is temporary," she said. "Feel what you feel; it's okay to feel. ... Move on to the best feeling and the next."

EXERCISE. Walking, yoga and strengthening muscles are great ways to stay fit. Carole Pefley, owner, group instructor and personal trainer of Carole's Fitness near Edgewood, recommends working on your core. "If you have exercised for any length of time at all, and then even miss a couple of classes, you realize how quickly your body forgets to respond." She suggested tapping into what you've learned in class.

For chair exercise, she recommended finding a sturdy chair. "Lean back to touch the back of the chair and relax your core. Hold on to the back-chair legs, interlock your fingers behind chair," Pefley said. "Then, begin lifting your legs and knees together. 'Do as many as possible without stopping or too fast, four to six for one minute.'"

AROUND TOWN

A message from the Kiwanis Club of Perry Township regarding the coronavirus

our golf outing in June. Everyone stay safe and healthy and maintain your social distance." Co-President Scott Splichal added, "I believe the bike rodeo will be canceled and probably not rescheduled since the Baxter YMCA was fitting us into their schedule. In the meantime, we could get Southport Key Club members together on Earth Day or another time to clean up the 'Y,' Southport and Perry Meridian high schools, or some other place, perhaps a park. Also, for young people coming out of foster care, we could collect suitcases, so they have something to put their items into instead of using bags or backpacks." And past president Les Branham reminded us, "Please be as active as you can be under these circumstances and be thinking about the various needs in our community that we might help address."

Creative Franklin Township sisters produce and donate masks to local hospitals

FEATURE

By Angie Norris

Community members are coming together during the COVID-19 crisis to provide handmade masks for the public. Some have been sewing a long time; others have just started to learn because they want to help. They are using household materials such as T-shirts, bandanas and elastic out of pants. DIY face masks help to protect the wearer while also helping prevent them from unknowingly spreading the virus to others, useful when some people who have COVID-19 may show no symptoms, according to the CDC.

Alena Van Arendonk, a competitive costumer and Franklin Township resident, said, "In normal years, I would be traveling to conventions around the United States (and occasionally to other countries) to exhibit my costumes and teach costuming workshops. Because of the pandemic, nearly all the events I normally attend have been canceled, so my costuming work has ground to a halt." As soon as Arendonk heard about the supply shortages at hospitals, she looked up mask guidelines, began to sort through fabric she had and found enough cotton material to make at least 300 masks without ever leaving the house for supplies.

Alena's sister, Laura Van Arendonk Baugh is also a Franklin Township native and costume artist (cosplayer) and joined in to help. Their first batch of 62 masks went to Eskenazi Hospital.

"On the one hand, it's surreal to be making homemade equipment for frontline and support staff," Van Arendonk Baugh said. "On the other, I keep thinking this is what World War II must have felt like, in the WVS (Women's Voluntary Service) or the American Red Cross."

The sisters are both still in the process of making more masks. "You don't have to be experienced or really skilled to be able to help with this," Van Arendonk Baugh said. "Or you can support a mask-making friend by cutting cotton strips from old cotton T-shirts to make mask ties, or from cotton bedsheets."

"While sitting at home sewing is not a frontline job like working in a hospital or delivering groceries, it's one of the few ways that I can help," Van Arendonk added. "I'll keep making masks until I run out of materials."

Beech Grove's new 'prairie of poetry' to honor Sarah T. Bolton

FEATURE

By Angie Norris

Sarah T. Bolton Park in Beech Grove will soon welcome a new "prairie of poetry" just inside the park entrance. The new park project will showcase native Indiana prairie grasses and wildflowers that support native pollinator life and give Beech Grove residents a new opportunity to connect with the natural world while celebrating the legacy of Sarah T. Bolton, Indiana's unofficial poet laureate and a women's rights activist who resided in Indianapolis most of her life.

Coinciding with the 100th anniversary of women's suffrage, the new Sarah T. Bolton Pollinator Prairie will create a space where visitors can enjoy the heritage poetry, nature and activism of Indiana. This prairie will reside on land formerly owned by Sarah T. Bolton and will be an enhanced natural space to honor her life and talents through her poetry and stories of her background.

"I hope that people will walk the garden and enjoy its beauty," said Angel Calvert McKenna, facility manager for Hornet Park Community Center. "It's a culmination of ideas and desire to honor Ms. Bolton through her poetry and to provide a native habitat for our pollinators. It will give our community a peaceful place to enjoy natural beauty native to this area, learn about local history, and experience art created now and long ago."

The garden will include a walking path with Indiana native plantings attractive to bees, butterflies and birds. An educational signage honoring Bolton and the history of the park will be added along with gathering nodes with seating and small exhibits and a council ring for larger gatherings. Visitors will see artistic pieces and habitats placed throughout the garden.

The Beech Grove Greenscape Commission was awarded the 2020 IPL Project GreenSpace grant through Keep Indianapolis Beautiful, Inc., to be used for project installation and program implementation.

The project is created in collaboration with the city of Beech Grove, the Beech Grove Greenscape Commission, Mader Design, Beech Grove Artist Collective, KIB, the Indiana Historical Society, Samuel Bryan Chapter of the National Society Daughters of the American Revolution and several local residents.

The Indiana Historical Society will generate content and designs for the exhibits showcasing Sarah T. Bolton's life and poetry, and will work with the Beech Grove Greenscape Commission, the Samuel Bryan Chapter of the National Society Daughters of the American Revolution and local residents to gather additional stories and information that reflect the values of the community. The Beech Grove Artist Collective will coordinate community volunteer collaborations to create colorful, sculptural pieces that will accent the path. These sculptural elements will also hold bird and bat houses provided by KIB.

This community-based project will use many volunteers, both from the community and from local corporate groups wishing to give back to the people that they serve. Tree, prairie and ornamental plantings will all be completed with volunteers, as will the removal of any invasive plants. The park project will start in late spring and continue through the end of the year. Volunteer workdays will be planned soon. Check out beechgrove.com for additional information on how to participate.

Darnell Hillman reads to Jeremiah Gray Elementary students

Read Aloud Day – World Read Aloud Day celebrated its 10th anniversary in February. Jeremiah Gray Elementary School celebrated the day by inviting several guests throughout the day to read in every classroom, including Darnell "Dr. Dunk" Hillman, who played for the Indiana Pacers. Reading is a critical skill for all other learning. Literacy competencies impact success in reading, writing, speaking and listening – skills that extend to all academic content areas. Hillman spent 45 minutes reading several books to Shaun Sheppard's third-grade class. He talked to students about his love of reading and asked them engag-

LOCAL ENTERTAINMENT ENTERTAINING

Creativity during isolation can help your family stay healthy and happy

FEATURE

By Angie Norris

We're all striving for healthy and happy families. During these days of quarantine and social distancing it can be tough to keep our loved ones at home entertained, and in good mental and physical health. These activities will help your imagination and your family grow stronger.

Outside fun

A great way to get out of the house without actually leaving your home, is to have a campout in the backyard. Get your tents and sleeping bags and set up your spot. Make a small fire for roasting hotdogs and marshmallows for s'mores. You could do fun activities such as collecting bugs or leaves, then studying them to find out what they are and how they benefit nature. You could tell flashlight stories around the campfire as a family. Have one person start the story and then pass the flashlight to another person to continue and see what kind of fun story you can come up with. You could also play flashlight tag, have a three-legged race, or make an obstacle course out of household items like totes, chairs, hand weights and jump ropes. After all your playing is done and it's time to settle down for the night, lay down and look at the stars and moon. Try to see if you can find the constellations or shapes in the sky. These are not only exciting and fun activities but are sure to leave your kids with memories.

Spa day

Sometimes our bodies just need to relax. It's OK to do and it's good for your mental health. With salons and spas being closed, you could set up a home salon and have a relaxing spa day of your own with your kids. Set up a snack table with things like cucumber water, lemonade or tea. Have some things to snack on like fruits and veggies, cupcakes or

AN OPTION

Bob's Tu Your Door Pizza

Generations of families have ordered from Bob's Tu Your Door Pizza, a locally owned pizzeria for the past 54 years. "Growing up on the southside, it was the only pizza that would deliver to my family's farm back in the day, and became a Friday night tradition," stated a reviewer. "Best pizza ever! Loved it since my childhood and now my kids love it too," said another. In addition to pizza, options include a steak hoagie, hot ham and cheese sandwich, a meatball sub, Stromboli, hot wings, cheese bread, French cheesy bread, breadsticks, including pepperoni and cheese and chocolate chunk cookies. "The sausage was unlike any I've had on a pizza before and I really enjoyed the change," according to a Facebook review. "Hands-down the best pizza on the southside!" concluded another customer. Delivery is free and coupons are

Recommended:

The Indy Truffle – the shop's signature truffle made with 70 percent dark chocolate, whole milk from a local dairy farm, butter and vanilla.

About the chocolate shop:

Nestled in the Fountain Square district, Litterally Divine Chocolates handcrafts their chocolates in small batches in Greenfield, using all-natural ingredients and tries to go organic whenever possible. The truffles are anything but boring; names include barrel mocha (with notes of whiskey and bourbon) and spicy pink pepper (flavored with habanero pepper and topped with crushed pink peppercorn). Vegan options are not lacking: vegan almond toffee (dipped in dark chocolate and topped with more chopped almonds) and sweetalicious (dark chocolate with coconut milk, coconut oil and dusted with cocoa powder). A reviewer also stated that the shop has "by far the best coffee in the neighborhood."

Funfact:

Suzanne Litteral, the owner, is a classically trained dancer.

Top 10 movies to stream this week

MOVIE REVIEW

By Bradley Lane

- The Art of Self Defense (2019): Fight Club meets Wes Anderson in this karate, crime comedy. Witty and full of smart writing, this movie was my favorite independent production of last year. (Available on Hulu)
- Bad Lieutenant: Port of Call New Orleans (2009): Nic Cage, while holding serious dramatic chops, has become known for over-the-top performances. It is film-length satirization of the crime genre, it is over the top and weird, but that's what makes it fun. (Available for free on Tubi)
- Blazing Saddles (1974): One of the all-time greats of comedy, Blazing Saddles pulls no punches. It was so effective in its satire it basically ended a genre. Its impact is still felt in the way the western genre is presented today. (Available on Hulu)
- The Graduate (1967): After graduating college, Ben Braddock is avoiding the only question anyone can ask him, "so what are you going to do now?" This film is a tem-

- plate for what modern comedy gets wrong. It uses every aspect of filmmaking to deliver its jokes, and never shies away from serious emotions either. (Available on Amazon Prime)
- The Irishman (2019): The culmination of a life's work, Martin Scorsese has spent his entire life enamored by and contributing to cinema. The Irishman is not a high intensity gangster flick like Goodfellas or Casino, it is a meditative and thoughtful film. The kind of thoughtfulness that only reveals itself after an entire life has been lived. I, for one, am thankful that that thoughtfulness can be shared through film so eloquently. (Available on Netflix)
 - The Killing of a Sacred Deer (2017): A psychological horror spoken in a quick, almost comical prose that has become idiosyncratic with its director, Yorgos Lanthimos. The story concerns a mysterious young man luring a family into unimaginable horror. (Available on Netflix)
 - Last Flag Flying (2017): A touching tale about patriotism, the truth, aging, and loss. Directed with a tender touch by (my favorite working director) Richard Linklater,

- this movie works by itself but is an unofficial sequel to the 1973 film, The Last Detail. (Available on Amazon Prime)
- The Lighthouse (2019): Shot in stark black-and-white photography, two lighthouse keepers fight to maintain their sanity as the extended time they spend secluded from the outside world begins to take a toll on them. This film features dialogue written and performed in the style of late 19th century seamen so I would recommend captions for this one, to make it easier to understand. (Available on Amazon Prime)
 - The Princess and The Frog (2009): A retelling of the classic fairytale, this Disney adaptation shines most through its excellent music. It is also the last hand-drawn animated film Disney has released. (Available on Netflix)

Bradley is a Beech Grove High School alumnus and has been enamored by film for as long as he can remember. He is currently in his third year studying at IUPUI, majoring in Media and Public Affairs with a minor in Film. Bradley can be contacted at blane2214@gmail.com.

cookies. Dress the part by wearing robes and slippers, or just your pajamas will do. Have fun by making homemade all-natural bath bombs or face masks. You can get recipes for these online. Cut some cucumber slices for your eyes, fill up some small tubs or buckets with warm water and bubble bath or bath salts for a foot bath, and relax on the couch with some soothing music. Another fun idea is to set up a hair or nail salon. Take turns doing each other's hair in different styles, do each other's makeup, or paint each other's nails in fun spring colors. Having a relaxing day is good for us all, even the kids.

Use your imagination

Get the kids' creative side to come out by using your imagination. Create your own family game. It could be making your own board or card game, or a sport of some type. You could create a new meal. Everyone can come up with ideas to create a dish designed just for your family. Get the ideas flowing and come up with a family song, poem, or logo.

Getting outside, relaxing and keeping your imagination flowing are just a few ways to keep your mental and physical health off of your worry list. Make this time be the time you worry less about the outside world, and more about what's right around you.

*Annual Percentage Rate (APR) for Purchases 1.90% APR. Introductory APR for 12 months from account opening. After that, your APR will be at 9.49%-21.00% based on creditworthiness. This APR will vary with the market based on prime rate. APR for balance transfers- 1.90% introductory rate for a period of 12 billing cycles. After that, APR will be 9.49%-21.00% APR based on creditworthiness. This APR will vary with the market based on prime rate. APR for cash advances- 9.49%-21.00%, when you open your account based on creditworthiness. This APR will vary with the market based on prime rate. 2A Finance Charge will be imposed on Credit Purchases only if you elect not to pay the entire New Balance shown on your monthly statement for the previous billing cycle within 25 days from the closing date of that statement. If you elect not to pay the entire New Balance shown on your previous monthly statement within that 25-day period, a Finance Charge will be imposed on the unpaid average daily balance of such Credit Purchases from the previous statement closing date and on new Credit Purchases from the date of posting to your account during the current billing cycle, and will continue to accrue until the closing date of the billing cycle proceeding the date of which the entire new Balance is paid in full or until the date of payment if more than 25 days from the closing date. How to Avoid Paying Interest on Purchases- Your due date is at least 25 days after the close of each billing cycle. We will not charge you any interest on purchases if you pay your entire balance by the due date each month. The Finance Charge for a billing cycle is computed by applying the monthly Periodic Rate to the average daily balance of Credit Purchases which is determined by dividing the sum of the daily balances during the billing cycle by the number of days in the cycle. Each daily balance of credit purchases is determined by adding to the outstanding unpaid balance of Credit Purchases at the beginning of the billing cycle, any new Credit Purchases posted to your account, and subtracting any payments as received and credits as posted to your account, but excluding any unpaid Finance Charges.
