Wails of the Bigfoot: Part II

HAUNTS & JAUNTS

By Rick Hinton

The BFRO (Bigfoot Field Researchers Organization) monitors Bigfoot/Sasquatch sightings across the country. The undisputed facts centering around these sightings and encounters are:

"It's a fact that for more than 400 years, people have reported seeing large, hair-covered, man-like animals in the wilderness areas of North America. It's a fact that sightings of these animals continue today. It's a fact that, for over 70 years, people have been finding, photographing and casting sets of very large human-shaped tracks. Most are discovered by chance in remote areas. These tracks continue to be found to this day!"

Apparently, Indiana is not immune.

BFRO is one of several internet databases logging in sightings and encounters throughout the state. Obviously ... if one does not make a report, then there is no record for that particular area. BFRO's latest sightings in the Hoosier state were for 2012 and 2015? Did they all just go away?

No. I don't believe there was a lag in sightings, only ones in reporting. Predominately, the majority of sightings in Indiana involve the heavily wooded areas of southern Indiana. Spring and fall are a hot time for reports. Brown County and Monroe County had the most reported sightings among all of the counties in the state. However, there are exceptions with sparse sightings in the donut counties surrounding Marion County. (Avon, in Hendricks County, laid claim to a sighting as did something lurking in the woods of Camby in Marion County) Yet, these were years ago. ...

"It's a fact that the cultural histories of many Native American and First Nation peoples include stories and beliefs about nonhuman 'peoples' of the wild. These descriptions bear a striking resemblance to the hairy man-like creatures reported today." "These are some of the facts. There is, however, much disagreement as to what these facts mean. ..."

Past sightings in Indiana are numerous, including: Clay County's Brazil in 2001; Parke County with stories dating back to the 1940s; "something" in the trees around Crosley State Fish & Wildlife Area since the mid-2000s; a Nineveh sighting in 2002; Yellowwood Lake in the Yellowwood State Forest, 2015; continual Putnam County sightings; Bloomington, 2016.

Yet, in March of 2019, three friends camping near Turkey Run State Park, located in Parke County, witnessed an at least 8 foot, hairy, large framed creature hitting a tree with a piece of wood. They watched from the safety of their camper 80 to 100 feet away. They claimed his eyes shone like a light. The creature finally stopped the thumping, raised its arms into the air, grunted and walked away. The trio quickly exited the campground, spending the rest of the night in a parking lot several miles away. This was not reported to BFRO.

"To many, these facts, taken together, suggest the presence of an animal, probably a primate, that exists today in very low population densities. If true, this species, having likely evolved alongside humans, became astonishingly adept at avoiding human contact," BFRO concludes. And adds - "To others, these same facts point to a cultural phenomenon kept alive today through a combination of the misidentification of known animals, wishful thinking, and the deliberate fabrication of evidence."

It's a big strange world out there!

Next week in the conclusion: my favorite for the creepy factor, Morgan Monroe State Forest and TV fame; conspiracy theories; the FBI declassifies a minor Biafoot file.

Franciscan Health hosts 24-hour cycling and walking fundraiser for cancer treatment programs

Fundraiser - Several cancer survivors who were treated at Franciscan Health Cancer Center will soon be setting the pace for a good cause benefiting current and future patients. They will join other survivors and participants at 24 Indianapolis, a 24-hour cycling and walking event at Butler University, on June 28-29. The event is hosted by the 24 Foundation, a national organization whose mission is to inspire and engage communities to make an immediate impact on the lives of people affected by cancer. The foundation uses non-competitive cycling and walking events as a vehicle to raise funds for cancer survivorship and treatment programs throughout the United States. Part of the proceeds from 24 Indianapolis will benefit the Cancer Center's Moving Beyond program, which blends a unique and holistic approach, combining physical, emotional, mental and spiritual health components for survivors, loved ones and caregivers. Moving Beyond is a free 12-week program and offers ongoing classes throughout the year. Bicyclists will pedal a secured 3-mile closed course in the Butler-Tarkington area surrounding Butler University. Walkers will follow a 1.6-mile trek in an adjacent area. Neighbors along the course offer support, snacks and activities to participants during the 24-hour ride. For more information, go to 24foundation.org/Indianapolis.

Getting a second wind HOT SHOTS POWER SOCCER TEAM WELCOMES THOSE WITH DISABILITIES

By Stephanie Dolan

It's easy to take for granted the basic abilities most of us have: walking, running, playing. Sadly, when we get to a certain age, many of us stop playing games in lieu of more "adult" activities like worrying about jobs, family, the mortgage or just what the unknown of tomorrow might be.

Sometimes play can be found in the unlikeliest of places. Sometimes it takes a person without these basic abilities to remind the rest of us to remember the things that are most important in life. Sometimes what we need is just to play a really great game.

According to their website, the Hot Shots Power Soccer Team is a team of transformation. It is comprised of eight individuals ranging in age from 9 to 36 years old. The team is made up of disabled players who utilize Strike Force wheelchairs to play the game of soccer on a basketball court. The Hot Shots are a part of the United States Power Soccer Association.

"I started playing for them this year," the team's oldest player, Marie Harmon, 36, said. "Right now it's pretty much my life. I can't work anymore. I run our social media page, and I do a lot of work behind the scenes. Ever Friday night we have practice and it's draining. But it gets me out of the house and it helps me interact with people again. The adults as well as the kids. I can understand the parents' situation dealing with the kids' disabilities but I can also understand the kids' struggles."

A RARE DIAGNOSIS

Harmon has a rare form of organic acidemia called 3-methylglutaconic aciduria. This disease causes mitochondrial disorder within the body.

"It basically causes an energy deficiency because of the mitochondrial disorder," Harmon said. "I have severe fatigue. It causes neuromuscular disease. I have a neuromuscular lung weakness and I use a power wheelchair to get around pretty much 90 percent of the time. It's actually part of the newborn screen now. When I was young I was actually very active and athletic. When I was 16, I started developing symptoms which caused me to have to stop running. I started playing wheelchair basketball at that time but wasn't diagnosed. No one could figure out what was wrong with me throughout the rest of my high school career."

Harmon wasn't actually properly diagnosed until a geneticist ran a test when she was 31.

"Looking back it probably is something I was born with," she said. "I just didn't start manifesting its symptoms until later."

Harmon's husband, Michael, 35, is an

IMPD officer who is also assistant coach of the team as well as president of the board.

"The coach asked if I'd be willing to help out," Michael said. "I like doing the mentoring and training and coaching. As the season progressed I had more free time, so I started taking over more practices because I had the time to do more research on how people play."

The board consists of one person from each team member's family. They have created a 501(c)(3) to help with fundraising.

The Southside couple just celebrated their 13th wedding anniversary in May.

"We both kind of got into it at the same time," Marie added. "I've always been active in sports even as a young kid. I'm the most competitive one in my family. I was the sports person and my two brothers were more artistic."

Harmon was at one time a social worker for mental health agencies as well as a Marion County probation officer.

AN EXCITING ALTERNATIVE

"Eventually my disease progressed to the point where I couldn't work full time anymore," she said. "I needed something to do. I heard about power soccer, looked it up and fell in love with it."

"It's definitely more exciting (than regular soccer)," Michael said. "I've watched soccer, and it's very long and a ton of just passing and passing and passing. This is played on a basketball court. The action is close together. When someone has control of the ball there can only be two defenders. There is one goalie and three players on the floor. And the goalie is allowed to leave the goal and come out on the floor. Because of the speed of the chairs there's constantly action going on. I've never been a fan of able-bodied soccer because it was just too slow for me. This is interesting to watch and watching people maneuver their chairs is extremely impressive."

The game itself could be improved by just one more thing: donations.

"I would just like people to know that while we are a young team we've seen a lot of growth out of the brand-new kids who've never played before," Harmon said. "They're actually using chairs over 15 years old. They have what's called Strike Force wheelchairs, and a lot of teams have sponsors and the best equipment. Our kids are holding their own against them. The biggest thing we need right now is some donations or corporate sponsorship so we can get the equipment we need so we can play at our full potential."

For more information, or to make a donation, visit hotshotspowersoccer. com or find them on Facebook at Hot Shots Power Soccer Team.

5 QUESTIONS WITH the Harmons

Who or what inspires you?

MARIE – For me a couple of things inspire me. The kids inspire me every day. The growth and improvement that they've made. Their dedication to the sport. They're definitely going to go far. Starting out as a young age and learning a sport is different than starting out at 35. I also had an uncle with a disability – spinal muscular atrophy – he taught me how to live life to the fullest with a disability. That was prior to me developing my own symptoms. Remembering those moments as a child with him reminded me that it's not the end of the world, life goes on and live every day to the fullest.

Do you have any pets?

MICHAEL - We have four cats – all rescues. Kitt Kat, Reese, Oreo and Lilly.

What are you currently reading?

MARIE – I am reading a book called Strangers Assume My Girlfriend Is My Nurse by Shane Burcaw. He's very popular on YouTube. He has spinal muscular atrophy, and he's a really funny guy – he talks a lot about his disability and how he overcomes obstacles.

Do you have a favorite movie-night movie?

MARIE - Secondhand Lions

Describe your perfect date night

MARIE - Staying home on the couch watching a movie together with our cats. Michael's busy as an IMPD officer all week long and with soccer it takes a lot of energy out of me, so I don't do a lot. It's rare we go out and do anything because it wears me out.

Library news - Nearly 15,000 public school students in Perry Township have joined over 60,000 other Marion County students in receiving free Indianapolis Public Library cards, giving them access to a wide range of electronic resources to help in their academic study. A distribution ceremony at Abraham Lincoln Elementary School on May 20 marked the completion of a three-year process to provide library cards to all 14,697 MSD Perry Township students in grades one through 12, of which 10,557 are new cardholders. It represents another step toward IndyPL's goal to provide free library cards to every school student in Marion County. The eResource card gives students online access to eBooks, eAudiobooks, streaming music and video and more than 80 research databases. It also allows limited borrowing of books and other physical materials, but young children can upgrade to a full library card by visiting any IndyPL location with a parent or guardian.

Be mindful during summer sun season

By Dr. Nydia Nunez-Estrada Family Medicine Physician at Eskenazi Health

July is UV Safety Month across the United States, a time when everyone should remember to take precautions to protect against the harmful ultraviolet (UV) rays from the sun.

SPONSORED

Southside Times

The skin is the largest organ in our bodies and being neglectful in protecting it from the sun can have harmful effects. Sunlight, tanning lamps and beds are the main sources of UV rays that can cause skin cancer, the most common form of cancer in the U.S. The amount of UV exposure a person gets depends on the strength of the rays, the length of time the skin is exposed and whether the skin is protected with clothing or sunscreen.

People who live in areas with yearround, bright sunlight have a higher risk of skin cancer. Spending a lot of time outdoors for work or recreation without protective clothing and sunscreen dramatically increases your risk.

Skin cancers are one result of getting too much sun, but there are other effects as well. Sunburn and tanning are the short-term results of too much exposure to UV rays, and are signs of skin damage. Long-term exposure can cause early skin aging, wrinkles, loss of skin elasticity, dark patches and pre-cancerous dry, scaly or rough skin.

One very significant way to limit your exposure to UV light is to avoid being outdoors in direct sunlight, particularly between the hours of 10 a.m. and

ESKENAZI

4 p.m., when UV light is strongest. If you are unsure how strong the sun's rays are, use the shadow test: if your shadow is shorter than you are, the sun's rays are the strongest and it's important to protect yourself.

Wearing long sleeves and long pants are effective ways to shield you from the sun's harmful rays, though it's not often feasible to do so when the sun is at full force and the heat index skyrockets. Thin linens and cotton clothes are comfortable to wear when it's hot, and wearing a wide brim hat that protects your face, neck and ears is a great way to fend off the sun's rays.

Applying sunscreen to exposed areas of your skin is always a good idea, but it should not be used as a way to prolong your time in the sun. Even with proper sunscreen use, some UV rays still get through. Because of this, sunscreen should not be thought of as your first line of defense. Consider sunscreen as one part of your skin cancer protection plan, especially if staying in the shade and wearing protective clothing are not available as your first options.

When choosing a sunscreen, be sure to read the label. Sunscreens with broad spectrum protection and with sun protection factor (SPF) values of 30 or higher are recommended.

Apply sunscreen 20-30 minutes before going outside and reapply it every two hours so it stays effective. If you've been swimming, you will want to reapply sunscreen after getting out of the water even if two hours have not yet passed.

Many people don't realize the correct amount of sunscreen that should be applied. You need at least 1.5 fluid ounces of sunscreen to cover all exposed skin on your body. That's about as much sunscreen as it takes to fill an average shot glass.

City of Beech Grove receives $1 million for roundabout at Churchman and Perkins avenues

FEATURE

By Angela Norris

Beech Grove Mayor Dennis Buckley has announced plans for a new roundabout, to be located at Churchman and Perkins avenues in Beech Grove.

Buckley received a check for over $1 million from the Indianapolis Metropolitan Planning Organization, presented by Executive Director Anne Gremling, on June 13. The roundabout, made possible by a federal grant, will be built in the shape of a peanut. Officials say that they hope to have the project completed by July 2022.

"I am pleased today to announce that we are awarding some funding to Beech Grove to fix the intersection behind me," Gremling said, "I know firsthand about the crashes that occur there. When the mayor was showing me the intersection, not only was there a crash being cleaned up when we approached the intersection, but we nearly got into an accident ourselves, so I think we can attest to the need for the intersection to be safer for the residents."

Buckley and Gremling said they believe the completion of this project will save lives.

"This project scored the highest of all projects in its category." Buckley said. "I grew up about five houses down that way (pointing down the road) on the north side of the street and I can remember being outside and playing and hearing crashes down here on this corner. This is long overdue. We have several projects that are going on throughout Beech Grove and the MPO has been very gracious and they're very strict on their scoring, but we've been very fortunate. This is a project that I am looking forward to not only as mayor but as a citizen of Beech Grove. This is our federal tax dollars coming back to Beech Grove and working for us."

Cures for the Dog Days of Summer

So far, we've had quite an unusual summer with cooler temperatures and lots ... and lots ... of rain. But get ready for the Dog Days of Summer.

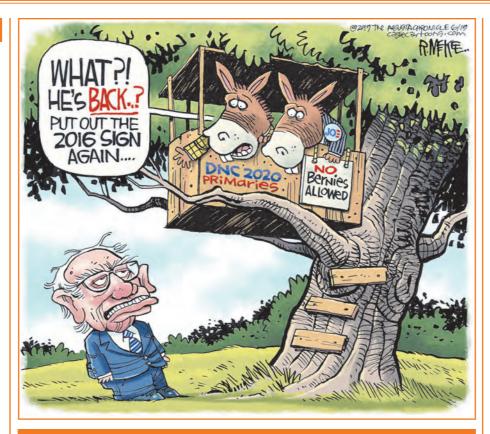

The Dog Days of Summer, usually between July 3-Aug. 11, includes a period of drought and occasional strong thunderstorms that bring the hottest and muggiest days of the year.

The Southside has plenty of ways to help you beat the heat.

- Freedom Springs Aquatic Park: From tall slides with twists and turns, a lazy river, cabanas and shelters to an "island" that functions as a stage for live music performances and a "Puppy POOLooza" event, when your favorite pooch can enjoy a swim.
- Free open house galleries and First Friday events. Grab an iced drink or cold glass of beer in an air-conditioned room while hobnobbing with artists and viewing works for sale. Visit Southside Art League's Open House, Beech Grove First Fridays and First Friday events in Fountain Square.
- The Summer Reading Program through all Indianapolis Public Library locations. Grab a spot in the shade and read from this year's recommended book list. Take the kids to a free "Summer Showtime Film" at the library as well.
- Learn new dance skills. The German American Klub is hosting dance lessons on most Wednesday nights throughout the summer (the next dance lesson is on July 10).
- Summer music concerts: Arrive early to secure the shadiest spot at free outdoor music concerts, including those performing at the Greenwood Amphitheater and the Greenwood Park Mall.

Stars: to the Greenwood Freedom Festival this weekend! Besides a catered dinner and drinks from Oaken Barrel Brewing Company, there will be 200 booths, live music and new and bigger attractions with the new Kids Zone.

Stars: to the 2nd annual Garfield Park Art & Music Festival, featuring local musicians and bands of diverse genres performing their own original music, around 40 artists, beers by Garfield Brewery, trucks and vendors, kids' crafts and activities.

Stars: to the Greenwood Rotary Satellite Club's first meeting this Friday at 8:30 a.m. at Brickhouse Coffee. Beech Grove senior receives multiple music scholarships

FEATURE

By Angela Norris

Spencer Chapman, a Beech Grove High School senior and standout percussion player, has been accepted to three local colleges with academic and music scholarships.

After receiving acceptance letters from the University of Indianapolis, Butler University and DePauw University, Spencer weighed his options. He ultimately decided UIndy was the best choice for his future and accepted a scholarship from the Richard R. Lugar Academic Recognition Award.

Spencer has had a love of percussion since he was a little boy. "It all started when I was 6 and I got a rock band for Christmas with the electronic drums," Spencer said. "He was always drumming on everything everywhere we went," Tonya Chapman, Spencer's mom, added. He found his talent.

Spencer started playing percussion with the Marching Hornets his sixth grade year. "I really wanted to get into percussion so I tried really hard and I think I was the last kid to get in, actually," he said.

Spencer not only learned about music, but he learned strong leadership and everyday life skills. Learning how to build communication skills was a very important part of his lessons through band. He has met and made lifetime friends and memories.

"It's a ton of fun with people who become your family," Spencer said. He has also participated in pep band, concert band, jazz band, winter percussion and solo and ensemble. In 2019, Spencer won three gold medals and one silver during his solo and ensemble performance. Spencer was also awarded outstanding percussion in 2017.

During his senior year, Spencer ventured into a new passion for the stage with his girlfriend Mackenzie Martin by his side. The pair played Kenickie Murdoch and Betty Rizzo, respectively, in the musical Grease, and Colonel Mustard and Miss Scarlett in the production of Clue. Spencer also helped build sets for plays.

"Spencer is the most kind, humble (person) and he is extremely talented and he's handsome too," Mackenzie said. Spencer was also asked to play percussion for the Beech Grove show choirs. He is a National Honor Society member and teaches percussion in an advanced music instruction class to the younger students at Beech Grove Middle School.

Cory Wynn is the band director for BGHS; he taught Spencer for six years. Spencer decided he wanted to be a band director his freshman year.

"It was just unusual from an early on age that he decided he wanted to be a band director." Wynn said. "He decided he had a goal and made it happen."

Spencer had a strong drive and grew to become a student leader and idol to the other students in the band program.

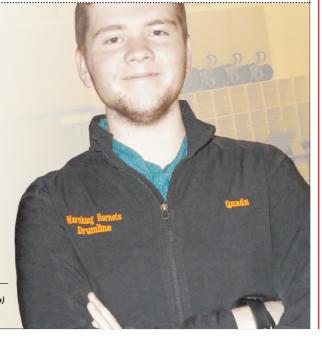

"It really has nothing to do with music," Wynn said. "Watching young adults grow up and evolve into confident people with morals and life skills, I think that is the most important thing I can give my students." Wynn has high hopes Spencer will be a great band director one day in front of his own students. "I will be watching with pride," Wynn said.

Tonya, who also attended BGHS, joined Beech Grove Band Boosters the first year Spencer was in marching band. She started by feeding the students and eventually became treasurer. Tonya would spend 20 hours or more a week doing "band mom" duties.

"The first year it was very eye opening. I didn't realize everything that went into making this happen." Tonya said. "I wanted to be a band mom because it does take so much time and that was time I could still spend with him to support him. I am his biggest cheerleader and I always want him to know I'm there for him."

One of her favorite memories is seeing Spencer come out onto the field as a seventh grader with the high school kids and feeling so proud that he was feeling confident.

BGHS Marching Hornets wish Spencer the best for his future. The Marching Hornets end each practice, saying loud and in unison, "with pride." Spencer Chapman has delivered that.

Area service professionals can help you weather the heat and make your home beautiful

By Brian Ruckle

Last Friday was the official start of summer and Southside service professionals are on standby to help you keep your home cool, your lawn green, your garden bountiful and your interiors comfortable and attractive.

Doug Bartram of Annee & Bartram Heating and Cooling emphasized not neglecting annual service calls and changing out filters every three months.

"Make sure you have your air conditioners cleaned and checked so they work properly.

If the condenser coils and evaporator coils get dirty they will not cool," Bartram said.

Chris Huser of Lamping/Huser Heating and Cooling stressed the importance of keeping a consistent temperature in your home or office.

"Don't fluctuate your thermostat up and down. It is hard on the unit and it is harder to maintain a constant temperature. I recommend keeping it at 72 or 74 or whatever you are comfortable," Huser said.

Dan Hornaday, of Flooring by Stretch Rite, said today's big flooring trend is hard surfacing.

"Hard surfaces are very popular," he said. "Many consider replacing carpet in large room areas, (since) hard surfaces are more durable in high-traffic areas.

Bill Heidenreich of Heidenreich Greenhouses and Garden Center said there is still plenty of time to plant for this season.

"We are coming up on the end of the spring season and it isn't too late to plant. It has been a really wet season and people are still planting. You will want to make sure you keep everything watered up and fertilized. If things get big and leggy on you, you can cut them back and that will help them look fuller," said Heidenreich.

Indy Rental & Sales, Inc. has equipment for working on your own landscaping and other home tasks. They have pressure washers and a variety of lawn and garden equipment including post-hole augers and dirt-moving equipment. Kelly Bowling of Indy Rental & Sales said that concrete and brick paver patios are very popular now. Equipment you can rent to make your dream patio includes a walk behind skid steer, a compactor with a Viton pad and a sod cutter.

The Last Black Man in San Francisco A touching and provocative film about love, loss and a house

MOVIE REVIEW

By Bradley Lane

The Last Black Man in San Francisco is a deeply human story told through an even stronger expressionistic lens. One of the film's earliest sequences sees its central two characters riding a single skateboard together. This sequence uses an almost documentarian style of filming by setting a deep focus on the faces of various onlookers as they traverse deeper into the titular city. We observe a progression as we move from a presumably low-income area populated by smiling predominately black and brown faces, to distained and confused less diverse, higher income areas. The decision to focus on these faces gets at the driving force of The Last Black Man of San Francisco, that despite focusing on and dedicating the entire frame to their presence, we know nothing about them. Within each face is a lifetime of experiences, wants, desires, trials, losses and triumphs that made them into the person on that screen, but by merely seeing them we know nothing of them besides our own hastily made first impressions. The Last Black Man in San Francisco aims to challenge our implicit biases and destroy the notion that people can be in any way, meaningfully categorized.

Jimmie Fails and Joe Talbot were childhood friends turned professional collaborators when they set out to make their first feature film together, with Fails in the lead role and Talbot in the director's chair, working with a script developed by the pair together. After a very successful crowdfunding campaign of over 1,500 donors and $80,000, Talbot and Fails secured full funding and distribution from Brad Pitt's production company, Plan B and the hottest indie production studio, A24. With such passion and talent behind the project, it is no surprise that The Last Black Man in San Francisco is a triumphant film that oozes with style and virtuosity. It is nearly unfathomable that this is Talbot's first and only feature film.

The story follows Jimmie as he passionately fights for his home, a beautiful 19th century two-story home in the heart of the city. Jimmie and his father had been evicted from that house when he was young and has spent the time since then bouncing from one place to another in an extended stint of experiencing homelessness. Jimmie is joined on his quest to take back his home by his best friend and aspiring playwright, Montgomery. Though completely impossible to take back his house, Mont and Jimmie give everything they have to try and secure their home.

Jimmie and Mont's friendship quickly becomes the most important aspect of the film as we view them open up to one another in strikingly honest and open dialogue. It is a beautiful relationship they have, which makes it all the more disappointing that the film whiffs its final moments as their relationship becomes the crux of an emotionally complex, yet ultimately hallow ending.

Despite its missteps in the final few minutes The Last Black Man in San Francisco is a visually striking and intellectually dense film that demands audiences walk out of the theater with thoughts spinning in their heads.

Dog=God? Proper nutrition for your pet's health, well-being and life span

NUTRITION

By Wendell Fowler

Sandi and my existence would be incomplete without the unconditional love, companionship and faithfulness of our two Morkies, Teddy and Scarlet, the diva. Feeding our beloved dogs properly is hugely significant to their well-being, life span and overall health. Ours too.

As tribute to our many dogs who crossed the rainbow bridge, I'm sharing ways we can show love to our "fur-buddies" while we can still rub their favorite spot as they lick and nuzzle our hand in gratitude.

While they eagerly walk beside you in life, enrich their vittles with nourishment they'd naturally eat in the wild: not GMO corn, wheat, soy and the entrails and internal organs of other animals. Read labels: The first item on the list of ingredients should be meat like chicken or lamb. Not chicken meal as the primary ingredient.

Look for healthy preservatives on the ingredients label like vitamin E (mixed tocopherols) or C. Sidestep foods with chemical preservatives ethoxyquin, BHA, BHT or Propyl Gallate, all implicated in many health problems, including cancer.

Never, ever treat your yard with cancer-causing Roundup, or feed them dairy, chocolate, coffee grounds, grapes, avocado, onions, garlic, raisins, nutmeg, baking powder/soda, raw fish, smoked meats, jerky treats from China, bacon, hotdogs, or sugary foods! With a few exceptions, today's doggie junk food is stepped-on with corn, wheat, soy, food colorings and preservatives. Corn and most grains are not easily digestible unless refined into a meal or flour and then cooked. Seek organic, grain-free food.

Dogs should have a shiny coat, a high energy level and you should be able to feel their ribs through the skin. Enhance your dog's meals by adding ground flax seed or canned sardines in water that brim with Omega-3 fatty acids, critical for skin and coat health and preventing dry, itchy skin and hot spots. Add a pinch of turmeric powder, chopped wheat grass, kale, peas, carrots, green beans, cooked sweet potato, grated apples, coconut oil and probiotics. Dogs supplemented with appropriate nutrition live tail-wagging, long and healthy lives.

Your fur babies couldn't care less that Gravy Train makes its own gravy. Evolve, scrutinize labels and upgrade your pooch's meals. Although all life is born to die, we're never prepare for death's arrival, but we mustn't hasten it. Teddy and Scarlett love us no matter what – just like the great creator. I look up and I see God, I look down and see my dog.

What happened to 'to be'? A Midwestern rebel against Shakespeare

GRAMMAR GUY

By Curtis Honeycutt

The following is a scenario based on real events. Any names have been changed to avoid embarrassment and grammar-shaming.

My friend, Ann, drives a van. Ann drives a tan van, and she's married to Stan, but this story isn't about him. It's about Ann and her tan van. One day, Ann's tan van was uncommonly tawny in its hue because, you see, it was dirty. "My van needs washed," surmised Ann.

As soon as Ann said this, my ears felt as if they were going to explode. I resisted the urge to correct her, because we were with a group of people, and I try to avoid correcting people's grammar in public.

If Prince Hamlet wondered "To be, or not to be, that is the question," then my question is: what happened to 'to be'? You see, Ann's tan van needed to be washed. It didn't "need washed," as she declared. In this case, "washed" is what's considered a passive participle, and it requires the infinitive phrase "to be" in order to pass grammar muster.

I know this omission of "to be" doesn't only happen in Indiana; this may very well be a Midwestern grammar faux pas. I'm interested to see if readers from outside the Midwest hear this ear-splitting construction. If not, send me an email with your regional grammar issue.

Besides "need," I've also heard this phraseology used with the words "want" and "like." For instance: My pet bear wants scratched. My son likes fed multiple times per day. As I type this, my word processor's squiggly red line is having a field day. My pet bear wants to be scratched. My son likes to be fed multiple times per day.

I'm not sure what caused the omission of "to be." Maybe high school students don't appreciate being forced to read Shakespeare in their English classes, so they've begun a rebellion and have answered Prince Hamlet with a resounding "not to be."

When Shakespeare wrote his plays, he wrote many of his jokes for the broadest audience possible. Now his stuff is considered "classic" and "timeless." Perhaps there's hope for my writing to stand the test of time after all. Of course, much of it still needs to be edited.

Weekly Devotion

22 And was unknown by face unto the churches of Judaea which were in Christ:

23 But they had heard only, That he which persecuted us in times past now preaches the faith which once he destroyed.

24 And they glorified God in me.

GALATIANS 1:20-24

The two greatest powers in heaven and on this earth is love and truth. Put them together and you have love for the truth and the truth of the love of God for us all. Paul had come to realize all of them. He had come to the truth and had come under the powerful influence of the love of Christ and His love of the truth and there was no turning back for him.

Truth and love will win out in a world of hate and strife and bitterness and the vendetta politics that are being practiced by those who are supposed to be mature enough to lead the way for the rest of us. The truth of the words of Christ when He said. "Render unto Caesar what is Caesar's and unto God what is God's" becomes a growing force in my life. It is not only in politics we see the contrast between the truth and this world's vain philosophies, it is in everything that goes on outside of the realm of true Christianity. Religion itself has developed into a battleground as well.

Paul came to know what the "fellowship of the saints" was really all about and joined those whom he once detested with great passion. He found it to be honest and ever so sweet and a fellowship that was true to its mission. In the religion of his past all he found was hate and continual strife for supremacy over the general public. In Christianity there is a battle as well but it is for the supremacy of Jesus Christ over the philosophies and politics of the world. Jesus is Lord of lords and King of kings. He is the fullness of the Godhead.

Paul found this to be comforting and reassuring for time and eternity. Nothing could ever exceed this great truth that he had found to be Jesus Christ. You will discover this as well if you choose to stop and listen and join Christ in His mission to save the world from sin.

God bless and go and have a great day.

Paul A. Kirby is the pastor at the Church of God at 3939 S. Emerson Ave.
