The beginnings of Greenwood Cemetery: Part I

HAUNTS & JAUNTS

By Rick Hinton

Cemeteries and paranormal investigators? Intended more as a memorial for the living, cemeteries are a repose of peace, tranquility and temporary separation from the routine of daily life. They encompass reflection in an oasis of quiet reverence, where one contemplates their own mortality amid a calming setting of trees, grass and monuments. Life temporarily demands a degree of utmost importance during the span of our visit. Yet, for many investigators, sometimes there is false reasoning: it's a graveyard ... it must be haunted! This is also just an assumption.

Cemeteries are hallowed grounds of historical significance – highlighting the life and times of a generation come before us, often shaping a town's history. Cemeteries are also our own final destination, with our own pages to write and leave behind.

The Greenwood Cemetery, 620 W. Main St., holds a silent vigil as the surrounding area has steadily grown with change throughout the years. Expansion has transformed the US 31 corridor, remodeling the veneer of a former small town residing in the countryside. Officially established in the summer of 1884 by a group of 34 motivated town residents, it consisted of only 12 acres. It was humble beginnings as the ball began rolling. The first burial was in that same year. It wasn't until 1907 that the cemetery expanded north by the acquisition of 25 additional acres. It was then that the business of the Greenwood Cemetery took a firm grip.

New paranormal groups seem to gravitate toward the shadowy, mysterious world of cemeteries. It can be a training ground for equipment and personal reactions to sometimes adrenaline-fueled situations, however, the police will frown on trespassing. They don't care who you are or what paranormal shows you've been watching. There's a reason for this. Vandalism of cemeteries has resulted from night-time excursions by individuals with a completely different agenda. People are put on edge – and rightly so – when this vandalism occurs at the final resting place of their deceased loved ones. It all comes down to respect!

Originally, a caretaker's home was located to the left of the front entrance to Greenwood Cemetery. This residence was demolished many years ago and today not a hint remains that it ever existed. The present chapel building was dedicated on June 4, 1884, and still stands watch over rows of monuments. It's a building that has witnessed the progression of the unfolding years as Greenwood has grown. The chapel, small in stature, once hosted funeral services on its main floor. The basement held other duties – storing bodies during the colder months until the winter ground thawed. The chapel now serves as the office for the caretaker.

In 1894, bodies that were buried in Presbyterian and Baptist cemeteries in Greenwood proper were exhumed and moved to the west section of the cemetery. Graves from the North Madison Avenue Cemetery were also relocated when the church at that location vacated and moved. Throughout the years various graves of those born in the 1700s, and the remains of many others buried in cemeteries throughout Greenwood, were reburied in Greenwood's Cemetery. In its infancy, it was a beehive of activity.

Some feel that older cemeteries tend to be haunted, reasoning that rigid religious beliefs of the period helped to create a mind-set that contributes to paranormal activity. I suppose it's possible. Yet, another question that might be entertained – why would spirits linger to stand watch over their physical body? Or is it something else?

RIPE FOR THE PICKING

Adrian Orchards opens for the 95th season and searches for someone who will keep the family tradition alive

By Angela Morefield

Adrian Orchards owners George and Monika Adrian are looking for someone to keep their family business alive after the third generation Adrian retires.

"We are looking for someone who will continue what were doing here," Monika said. "Continue with the traditions and family values that have meant so much to us and so many people for generations."

Adrian Orchards was established by George J. and Edith Adrian in 1925 when George J. started farming as a hobby on the side of his construction business. During that time, farming was essential for survival, especially in big families like the Adrians. George J.'s main business was construction, and he built several churches in the area. He also built the iconic Adrian Barn and the Adrian home next door.

Following in the family footsteps, George's sister Jennifer and her husband took over the responsibilities of the orchards after their grandparents and parents passed away. As much as Jennifer loved the orchard life, after her husband passed away she decided to move on, leaving the orchards to George and Monika. Jennifer now spends her time fishing in Canada and visits the family at the orchard from time to time.

Adrian Orchards is celebrating more than 90 years of serving the Greater Indianapolis area, the orchard nearest to the heart of Indianapolis. All of the produce is hand-picked at its orchards in Morgantown and washed before being put out for customers to purchase. The orchards offer seasonal fruits and vegetables, as well as jams, jellies and household items. Customers not only come from the Southside of Indianapolis, but also from across Indiana and the U.S. Staff have even shipped frozen cider all the way to Hawaii.

has a down-home vibe, making customers feel welcome. Part of the original kitchen cabinetry from the Adrian house still sits inside the barn today. Adrian Orchards is well known for its fresh, unpasteurized cider. Every batch has a different blend of orchard-grown apples, giving each batch its own unique flavor. People come from all over to purchase Adrian Orchards' apple cider, which has won many awards and is one of its best sellers.

The Adrians have made a tough decision to find someone to take over their orchard so they can retire and rest. The Adrians' only son passed away, leaving no successor for the family business.

The Adrians' stated in their monthly news letter, 'Our store has enjoyed solid support locally and is an important asset to the community. Since 1925 it has provided our family with a living, but now it is time to retire as George is over 70 and wants to slow down. ... In the meantime we will continue to operate this season on a scaled-back timeline. We will again host the Harvest Fest this year in early October. Our hopes are that the next owners will continue this tradition.'

This year, George and Monika will host the Harvest Fest 2019 on Oct. 5 and 6. During the Harvest Fest, the orchard offers a pumpkin patch, mini hayrides, a kids zone, music and plenty of craft and food vendors. Elizabeth Holloway, a longtime employee who has worked for the Adrians for 22 years, helps run the Harvest Fest each year. She studied business, and during the orchards' off seasons, she and other employees usually find work at greenhouses.

Some of the Adrians' favorite memories was having thousands of school children visit the orchards over the years for tours and to learn about farming. "Most kids know nothing about farming or even know how to properly store an apple." George said, "You ask them where apples come from and they say the store. So we like teaching them and helping them learn to be healthy."

Adrian Orchards is home to the Guinness World Record holder for the fastest apple picker. George Adrian picked 365 ½ bushels (15,351.5 lbs.) of apples in eight hours on Sept. 23, 1980. His record still stands today. The Adrians are also known for their giant, award-winning pumpkins that they used to grow and enter into contests. Monika Adrian said, "One year he got into it so badly, and we had to figure out how to feed this monster. So we got an IV bag from a nurse friend and we're feeding it beer to gain weight. We had heard that the beer makes it heavy. It didn't work but it was worth a shot." The Adrians do not grow giant pumpkins for contest anymore, but still offer fall pumpkins for carving. George said, " We don't grow as many pumpkins as we used to, but we do still have a small, you-pick patch here."

The store will close early this season, staying open through December but not past New Year's as it has done in the past. Anyone with interest in purchasing the business are encouraged to contact Adrian Orchards to discuss options.

5 QUESTIONS WITH THE ADRIAN'S

- 1. HOW DID YOU BECOME THE GUINNESS WORLD'S RECORD FASTEST APPLE PICKER? I had to get a sponsor and verification of the weight of the apples by the Guinness book judges.
- 2. HAVE YOU WON ANY OTHER AWARDS? Multiple awards for our cider.
- 3. WHAT IS YOUR BEST SELLER? Apples of course, and our cider definitely.
- $\textbf{4. WHAT IS YOUR BUSIEST TIME OF YEAR?} \ \ \textbf{September and October right after the harvest}.$
- 5. WHAT IS YOUR FAVORITE MEMORY? Watching all the children enjoy the orchards over the years.

Grammar Guy' receives $2,000 grant through Indiana Arts Commission

Grant – Curtis Honeycutt, writer of The SST's weekly humor column "Grammar Guy," will receive a $2,000 grant through the Indiana Arts Commission's Individual Advancement Program. The grant, funded by the State of Indiana in conjunction with the federally appropriated funds from the National Endowment for the Arts, will allow Honeycutt to pursue some writing projects as well as a literary-focused event in 2020. Grammar Guy appears in over 30 newspapers across the country. Through his column, Honeycutt has received a national award from the National Society of Newspaper Columnists and was named Humor Writer of the Month in August 2018 by the Erma Bombeck Writers Workshop. With the grant, Honeycutt will attend a writing conference and complete the first draft of a nonfiction humor book about grammar. He will throw a grammar party and interactive seminar at a venue in Noblesville or Fishers. In addition to storytelling about grammar as well as a TED-style talk about grammar, Honeycutt will invite area newspaper editors to participate in a panel discussing the state of newspapers in a quickly changing digital landscape. "My long-term goal is to make a full-time living from my writing work," said Honeycutt, who recently joined the board of directors of the National Society of Newspaper Columnists. "Not only do I love words and writing, but I believe in the value and importance of local newspapers to help keep the public informed. I'm grateful for this opportunity and for the Indiana State Legislature and Governor Holcomb for continuing to fund this grant program." Stay healthy, happy and informed this summer

By Nicole Davis

Summertime fun isn't just for the schoolchildren. As we all find ways to beat the heat and celebrate the season with cookouts, vacations and other outdoor activities, it's important for everyone to remember to take those added steps to be safe in the heat. Senior citizens have a higher sensitivity to the heat, so it's all the more important to remember to stay hydrated (we can all use that reminder!), remember the sunscreen, and even check the side effects of prescriptions that may make you more susceptible to the sun.

It's Golden is a quarterly section in The Southside Times aimed at offering information to the senior population which can help them stay healthy, active and involved in the community. This edition offers a fun feature on one of our local residents and his historical hobby, as well as content from our advertisers educating on health alternatives, senior living and more. We hope to see everyone enjoying their copy of the paper as they prepare for the day, and this friendly reminder to take those steps to stay healthy and sunburn free.

CBD offers users many benefits

By CBD Health of Indiana

CBD (Cannabidiol) is one of a group of unique chemical compounds that are found only in the cannabis or hemp (cannabis sativa) plant. CBD does not get you high. In fact, when taken with THC, CBD can actually reduce how high you can get.

When CBD is activated (smoked, vaped or ingested), it turns on specific receptors that influence body functions including appetite, pain sensation, mood, memory and anxiety.

Some of the effects of CBD include:

- Antiemetic (reduces nausea and vomiting)
- Anticonvulsant (suppresses seizures)
- Anti-inflammatory (mitigates inflammatory disorders)
- Antitumoral (fights tumor and cancer cells)
- Anxiolytic (Combats anxiety and depression)
- Antioxidant (tempers neurodegenerative disorders)
- Anti-psychotic (mediates psychotic disorders)

CBD currently has potential to fight diseases such as: schizophrenia, psychosis, epileptic disorders, anxiety, depression, cancer, osteoporosis, loss of appetite, nausea, lupus, obsessive compulsive disorder (OCD), Parkinson's disease, chronic and acute pain, neurogenerative disorders (e.g.) Alzheimer's).

CBD lowers blood sugar levels and prevents type 1 diabetes by stimulating Th2 cell responses. In addition, CBD tested in lab mice show potential to neutralize the body's sugar imbalances.

Following is a testimonial from one of CBD Health's customers, Jan Burd:

"CBD Health has a super friendly staff, an excellent product line, and their knowledge is impressive. I cannot say enough good things about Ron, Barb, and all the staff who are all happy to spend as much time as you need answering questions. I moved here from MI in May and had spent 8 years with life-style altering pain in my hips, knees, and leg muscles. I was avoiding prescription drugs and was very depressed and worn down from living with 8-10 range pain every day.

Barb gave me a sample dose of Elixinol 1000, and 20 minutes later I got up and walked to pay for the product and forgot my cane at the table. As I realized what I had just done, I was astonished. The next time I went to see them I walked in without my cane. I am not pain free, since too much damage has been done by arthritis, but my pain level is low and tolerable, even without the multiple doses of OTC pain relievers I was taking every day. I am also enjoying my life, and have some sparkle back in my eyes! I am a CBD Health cheerleader because they have changed, and improved, my life."

Activities, maintenance care and seminars available to Brookhaven residents

By the staff of Brookhaven at County Line Road

A great deal of effort goes into identifying the needs and desires of senior citizens

- especially in regard to senior living. Herman & Kittle Properties conducted ample research on the matter and Brookhaven at County Line Road has put that research into action. Brookhaven offers two types of programs: Section 42 Affordable Housing Program and Market Rate for those who do not qualify under Section 42 tax credit guidelines. Their facilities provide one- and two-bedroom apartments equipped with a refrigerator, stove, dishwasher, garbage disposal, washer/dryer connections, ceiling fans and spacious closets with laundry amenities available on site.

A major concern of many people looking for senior housing opportunities is what kind of activities are available. Brookhaven's Resident Activities Director regularly schedules events and outings that include weekly bus transportation to the grocery store. They also have a variety of specialty rooms on site catering to various individual tastes - community a non-denominational chapel, exercise and billiard rooms and even a beauty salon. Activities include pitch-in dinners, game nights, coffee and donuts, casino trips and more!

ing is maintenance. Brookhaven's staff is responsible for repairs and servicing and also ensures that sidewalks and driveways are cleared in the winter months. In the spring, summer and fall, staff members maintain the lawn and flowers. A walking trail surrounding a pond on the premises offers residents exercise or a chance to walk the dog - since Brookhaven is pet friendly.

Additionally, Brookhaven works to keep seniors healthy and savvy by offering various seminars such as tax preparation, investments, insurance in-home health care, health and wellness and blood pressure checks. Walgreens delivers prescriptions to eliminate the hassle.

For more information, visit the office or call (317) 887-2822. At the time of application, a $35 fee and a $100 hold fee will secure your apartment home. The hold fee is applied to the first month's rent and there are various options for security deposits based on credit scores.

Ten Mistakes to Avoid in Funeral Planning

"I don't know where to start."

For most people, planning a funeral is an unfamiliar process. It's important to select a good funeral home that offers the services and pricing that are appropriate for your family's beliefs, values, and budget.

We've prepared this simple, straightforward guide to make the process easier for you ... and to help you make the most informed choices. Of course, we will be happy to answer your questions and offer any assistance you might need to help with your decisions. We hope the ten steps in this guide will help you plan the most appropriate tribute for your loved one – or for yourself.

NOW YOU CAN READ THE CONDENSED VERSION.

There are some topics most people would rather put off. But, whether for yourself or a loved one, funeral planning is easier to do before the need arises. Call or come by for a free copy of our guide. It can make life better for your whole family.

What are my options for final disposition?

By Paul St.Pierre, CFSP President, Wilson St.Pierre Funeral Service & Crematory

One of the most important decisions you will make when it comes time to plan a funeral for someone you love, or for yourself when preplanning, is choosing a final resting place – or final disposition option. There are many preferences, cultural elements and religious requirements that can go into such a decision, and the team at our funeral homes can help you determine your options. To get started, here is a list of questions and answers to guide the community through some of the most common choices available.

Q. How do I choose among the many kinds of caskets available?

A. That decision is highly personal and may be determined by preference and/or by budget. A variety of woods and metals are used in the construction of caskets, and the choice of styles is practically limitless. Maybe you want an American made casket vs. the immense amount of funeral homes that are buying imported caskets. Our funeral professionals can guide you through the many selections available and let you know what funeral homes carry American vs. imported.

Q. If I choose cremation, is a casket required?

A. That depends upon your wishes. Even when you choose cremation, you can still have a traditional viewing prior to cremation, and you would need at least a cremation casket for that purpose. If you choose to not have a viewing, then an alternative container is the minimum required.

Q. What is a burial vault or grave liner?

A. These are both containers into which the casket is placed. A burial vault is made of very sturdy materials — concrete, steel, copper, bronze or fiberglass, for example. A grave liner is also very sturdy but is a less protective version of a burial vault. The purpose of each is to keep the grave surface from sinking.

Q. What are alternatives to grave burial?

A. A casket, or cremated remains in an urn, may be placed in a building called a mausoleum. Most mausoleums are large and provide crypts to hold casketed remains and niches to hold cremated remains in an urn. Both crypts and niches are sealed once the remains are placed inside. Urns are sometimes placed in a columbarium, which may be located in a mausoleum or chapel. A columbarium is composed of several small compartments designed specially to hold urns.

Q. Are there other alternatives available to cremated remains?

A. If you belong to a church, we recommend you consult here first. For example, the Catholic church prefers the deceased to be buried, whether cremated or not, and prefer you do not separate cremated remains in cremation jewelry. Some people keep the remains in their home, in a special urn. Many cemeteries provide designated scattering gardens for cremated remains. If permitted by local regulations, you may scatter remains in a place that is meaningful to you – at sea, for example. It ultimately is your choice.

While your memorial options are many and vary, our funeral home knows there is one that is perfect for you or your loved one. Contact us today, and we will help you discover which one it is.

Greenwood Meadows receives 2019 Silver National Quality Award

Recognition – American Senior Communities announced that Greenwood Meadows has received the 2019 Silver-Achievement in Quality Award bestowed by the American Healthcare Association and National Center for Assisted Living (AHCA/NCAL). This award is part of the AHCA/ NCAL's National Quality Award Program, which recognizes long-term and post-acute communities nationwide for demonstrating dedication to improving the lives of their residents through consistent, quality care. Applicants for the Silver Award status must have already attained the Bronze-Commitment to Quality Award, which focuses on a community's ability to implement a performance improvement system. At the Silver level, applicants continue to learn and develop effective approaches that improve performance and healthcare outcomes. This award lays the foundation for the program's next designation, which is the Gold-Excellence in Quality Award. "Caring people make the difference is not just a slogan, we intentionally seek individuals with a heart for service and a calling to serve seniors," said David Stordy, COO of American Senior Communities, "It's an honor to be recognized for our commitment to delivering quality care. Going through the process of achieving the Silver award only makes our organization stronger." Statewide for 2019, there were seven Silver Award recipients and six of those award-winning communities are American Senior Communities teams. All 2019 honorees will be recognized at AHCA/NCAL's 70th Annual Convention & Expo in Orlando, Florida this October.

Hellenic Senior Living helps seniors maintain independence

By Hannah Woodard

Hellenic Senior Living of Indianapolis is an affordable assisted living community that will help low-income seniors maintain their independence. The center will also be providing older adults with a wonderful alternative to a nursing home or struggling alone at home.

The community will comresidential apartmenthome living with the availability of personal assistance, help with medications and a variety of convenience and support services, such as meals, housekeeping, laundry and on-site physical therapy.

Residents will live in private apartments that they will furnish and decorate to their tastes. Each of the apartments will feature a

Let's get moving, Seniors!

By CarDon & Associates

Reduced energy? Do activities feel too difficult? If you're an older adult, you're not alone. And if you're caring for a senior with health problems, it can be hard for them to start a proper exercise routine. But don't give up just yet! Help them get back on track.

Let's start with some easy exercises.

Getting started is the hardest part. Starting slow and steady is key and helps seniors build up a tolerance. If you are a caregiver, why not exercise together? You will gain not only the benefits of the exercise but will be spending quality time with your loved one. And guess what? That can help reduce stress. It's a win-win for everyone.

A better quality of life.

Improved mood. Improved memory. Improved mobility. Older adults who regularly exercise or maintain high levels of physical activity can vastly improve their well-being. Physical activity is important, and possible, for people who have physical health, memory or mental health problems. Yes, health problems can make it a challenge to be physically active but taking part in exercise can still be beneficial.

Every step counts.

Even older adults with severe memory problems experience benefits from regular exercise. Studies have shown that exercising can improve the ability of people with dementia. Exercises help improve their mood and doing daily activities, such as dressing, bathing and breathing. And can take as little as 30 minutes a day, five times a week to see the benefits!

Two types of exercise.

The two types of recommended exercises are aerobic exercise and resistance. Both have amazing benefits! But the best exercise program is one that includes both aerobic and resistance activities.

AEROBIC: Helps reduce risk of cardiovascular disease, improves cognition and mood; includes swimming, fast walking, or bicycling.

RESISTANCE: Helps strength, function, balance and bone density, can reduce the risk for falls; includes lifting weights, yard work and using resistance bands.

What can you do?

The keys to helping your loved one get the most benefits from exercises are to:

 Help him or her consistently do exercises for the long-term. It usually takes around six weeks to notice the physical benefits.

- · Make sure they're doing the right exercises. Check with his or her physician or an exercise professional to get started.
- Use words of encouragement!
- · Set a time or schedule for exercising each day or every other day.

With 21 communities owned, operated or managed in the Midwest and more than 40 years of senior-living experience, Car-Don & Associates provides residents — our family — with the best senior living options and personalized care. For more information, visit cardon.us.

Glimpses into the past

Eighty-nine-year-old postcard collector retains memories from Southport

FEATURE

By Rick Hinton

"A picture postcard is the only tangible proof that we have of a person, place or thing," Joe Seiter proclaimed at the monthly meeting of the Indianapolis Postcard Club. "I'm 89 years old and have been collecting postcards for roughly 50 years. I've learned a few things along the way."

The hobby does have a name - deltiology, the study and collecting of postcards. And, as with any collection-based hobby, beauty is in the eye of the beholder. Some collect only. Some are dealers. However, a large segment of postcard enthusiasts is a combination of both. Value is based on condition, rarity, age and subject matter.

"I learned the hard way. I started out collecting Santa postcards (Joe has over a thousand of these). Then I branched out."

Joe has advice for the beginning collector - "I learned from the older collectors who are now gone. What I tell a new collector is to take your time, be slow and learn gradually," he offered. "After a while you'll find a subject, or a few, that are of interest to you. Lock in on those! The more categories you have, the less you learn about your cards. Specialize ... that's where you learn."

One of Joe's mainstays is Indiana small town street scenes. And especially the harder-to-find, small, incorporated towns. "I started out collecting everything Indianapolis," he smiled, recollecting. "Then I branched out to the surrounding counties, and then farther out from those." He figures he has four to five thousand small town cards alone.

Picture postcards are a glimpse into the past. Sometimes it's the only glimpse we have. Part of the learning experience involving these glimpses is to be part of a club. The Indianapolis Postcard Club was organized in 1975 at the Glendale Shopping Center. "I'm the only surviving charter member," Joe said, shaking his head with a slight smile. Presently the club has 100 members and meets the second Thursday of each month at the Greenwood Public Library. There are at least two sponsored postcard shows each year, in the spring and fall.

It's a growing hobby, that's what makes it interesting," Joe stated. "If you specialize and that's true with a lot of things in life you never stop learning. I still love to collect!"

GPL celebrates 50th anniversary of Appollo 11's lunar landing mission on National Moon Day

National Moon Day is observed annually on July 20 and commemorates the day man first walked on the moon in 1969. Fifty years ago, Apollo 11 landed Americans Neil Armstrong and Buzz Aldrin on the moon. Armstrong was the first to step foot onto the moon, inspired to state the words memorized by millions of Americans, "One small step for (a) man, one giant leap for mankind."

In 1971, President Richard Nixon proclaimed National Moon Landing Day on July 20. By July 1975, 12 states had sponsored bills observing Moon Day. James J. Mullaney, former Curator of Exhibits and Astronomy at Pittsburgh's original Buhl Planetarium and Institute of Popular Science and Staff Astronomer at the Allegheny Observatory, supports National Moon Day and has been working toward making National Moon Day an official federal holiday.

The Greenwood Public Library invites the community to attend the 50th anniversary of Apollo 11's lunar landing mission this Saturday, June 20, at 1 p.m. with a special program. Local resident Randall Harris, a retired Aerospace Technologist, will be speaking. He will discuss how the U.S. surged ahead in the space race, the Apollo program and how the space program changed over his 34 years with NASA researching lunar landing, flight physiology, manned flight simulators and flight display systems. A Q&A session will follow his presentation.

All ages are welcome. Please register on the library's website at greenwoodlibrary.us or by calling (317) 885-5036.

STARS & STRIKES ON THE SOUTHSIDE

The Southside Times is all about people and our community. What do you like in your neighborhood? What don't you like? Who has done something nice, no matter how small, and should be recognized? Email your "Stars and Strikes" to news@ss-times.com.

Strike: To the individuals who stole a van belonging to Johnson County Senior Services on July 11. While the driver was dropping a passenger off at the Franciscan Health South Cancer Center, someone stole its newest Dodge Caravan with a wheelchair ramp. Johnson County Senior Services is the only free door-to-door transportation service in Johnson County, servicing seniors and individuals under 60 years old with disabilities. "We have been caring for the needs of Seniors for 40 years and it is heart wrenching to think that someone would steal a vehicle from a hospital while taking a patient in for life- saving treatment," wrote Executive Director Kim Smith in a letter. The stolen van has blue Municipal plates with the number 54394. Those who see it are encouraged to contact law enforcement.

Star: To the Bean Creek Neighborhood Association on the Southside of Indianapolis which has advocated for and secured new street lighting and the demolition of fire damaged homes. "That is the power of neighbors getting together," wrote the South Indy Quality of Life Plan on its Facebook page.

Star: To Coffeehouse Five on a successful five years in business. The not-for-profit coffee shop which provides free counseling to those in need celebrated its "birthday bash" on July 12.

Star: To Vinny's Barbershop in Beech Grove for hosting Free Cuts 4 Kids on July 28, 10 a.m. - 2p.m. The business will also collect pop tabs for Riley during the event. Kuddos to owner Vinny Berberena and staff for offering this great community service just in time for the start of school.

TOP 10 RANDOM THOUGHTS AS I SIT IN TRAFFIC

By Torry Stiles

- 10. Nothing is a better motivation to staying off those embarrassing sites than the knowledge that if you had a wreck you wouldn't have time to clear the web browser.
- 9. A kid selling bottled water out here could pay for college.
- 8. Can you imagine how nasty this would be on horseback?
- 7. There's nothing better than a traffic jam to motivate you into doing a bit of self-cleaning and inspection.
- 6. Why do motorcyclists claim they want to be one with the open road and then have the loudest sound system?
- 5. I invented the word, "Hrup." "Hrup" is what you say to the cars around you when you're stuck in traffic and really have to go potty.
- 4. If I let you into traffic I expect a "thank you" wave. Don't disappoint me.
- 3. When I pull up next to someone playing the same radio station I am I feel like we're bonding.
- 2. People say that we smoke less than our parents and grandparents. Some say it's because we are more aware of the dangers of smoking. I say it's because they got rid of those little vent windows and we got tired of ashes all over the car.
- Knowing we have another week of this makes me consider limping more and filing for disability rather than driving to work.

BELIEVE IT!

Our nation has all sorts of arcane, nonsensical laws on the books. Each week, we'll share one with you ...

In Fargo, North Dakota, one may be jailed for wearing a hat while dancing, or even for wearing a hat to a function where dancing is taking place.

Five tips to writing a winning offer

REAL ESTATE

By Dawn Whalen Whalen Realty Group

The real estate market swings on a pendulum, and right now it's on the side for the seller, which means there's a lot of people competing for a limited amount of inventory. When trying to purchase a home in this type of market, the buyer must consider what they're willing to offer in terms of money, time and allowances before presenting a bid to the seller. Here are five tips to crafting an offer the sellers will want to accept:

- 1. SHOW YOU'RE PRE-APPROVED Buyers can save a lot of time and headache by having a lender provide a pre-approval letter before the home search process begins in earnest. These letters take time, which is why it's important to get it done as soon as possible.
- 2. COMMIT TO EARNEST MONEY The more earnest money a buyer puts down can show the seller how serious they are to purchase the home. A healthy deposit will range from 3 to 5 percent and will be applied to the final closing costs.
- 3. DON'T BE TOO DEMANDING In a seller's market, the current home owner can sometimes choose from multiple offers, which makes it important to identify what expenses the buyer is willing to accept versus asking the seller to cover. For example, covering all closing costs will be appealing to a seller instead of asking for a 50/50 split.

4. MAKE THE FIRST OFFER THE BEST OFFER — The saying, "You only get one chance to make a first impression," is true in real estate offers, too. A buyer only has once chance to impress the seller and demonstrate how much they want the home. In a seller's market, a lowball offer will not work. Before submitting an offer, buyers should know what they can afford and have a price in mind that they're willing to pay for the property.

Additionally, when markets are competitive, sellers don't need to offer allowances for carpet, paint, wallpaper removal, or other cosmetic features because there are plenty of people competing.

5. WRITE A LETTER – It may sound odd, but buyers who write the seller a letter describing why they want the home can go a long way. For example, our agency recently had a client who accepted an offer nearly $20,000 less than the highest offer simply because the letter was so poignant. The buyer's letter detailed how the home would help the family expand and build stronger ties. The details of the letter tugged at the seller, which ultimately got the buyer the home.

Greater Greenwood Chamber earns 'Excellence' award for marketing campaign

Award - The Greater Greenwood Chamber was awarded a 2019 "Excellence in Communications Awards" from the Indiana Chamber Executives Association (ICEA). The chamber won the award for its "In the Zone" marketing campaign. The goals of the campaign were to advertise members experiencing business disruption due to road construction, encourage members and residents to do business with these members and to promote the business coaching and microlending available through their in-house partner, Business Ownership Initiative. The campaign included a series of postcards and emails to businesses within the construction zone ("in the zone") promoting business coaching and microlending as resources to manage the disruption and a series of emails to chamber members with videos spotlighting the affected members. Chamber Ambassador Committee members and staff visited the affected members to conduct the on-camera interviews. The videos were also posted to the chamber's social media. Award submissions were evaluated by a committee of out-of-state experienced chamber professionals and private-sector marketing professionals. This is the seventh consecutive year the Greenwood Chamber received an Excellence in Communications Award from ICEA. To see a video featuring Jockomo Pizza, go to greenwoodchamber.com. Crawl A tried and true horror formula gets a face-lift

MOVIE REVIEW

By Bradley Lane

The horror genre has long been separated into two types of horror films. Those designed to impress, scare and garner critical acclaim and those with poor production design, low budgets and more often than not, laughable special effects. These cheaply made films would become known as B movies because they would have previously been shown as the second feature in a double billing in theaters of the 1930s. Most of these movies revolve around monsters or creatures that hunt down a group of protagonists and are usually very campy and enjoyed in an often humorous way that is a trademark of the subgenre. It's a tried and true formula for reaching a very specific audience of hardcore horror fans. They have in one form or another since their inception, continued to be made up until the present day. Crawl is a film that has all the trademarks of a B movie story, but attempts to elevate those elements to a level of seriousness that it struggles to achieve consistently.

Crawl's story is super simple, another trademark of horror B movies, a daughter travels into a hurricane to save her semi-estranged father. Upon finding her father injured in their old family home basement she discovers that he was attacked by an alligator. The rest of the movie pits the father and daughter duo together against the forces of nature; both the storm as well as the alligators.

Crawl survives on director Alexandre Aja's horror knowledge and experience. Aja was one of the pioneering members of the French New Extremity around the turn of the century with his 2003 horror classic, High Tension. In it, Aja demonstrated a keen understanding of tension through gripping survival scenarios, gruesome and realistic blood and gore, interesting shot compositions and intelligent writing. Most of these qualities carry over to Crawl, but its script was not written or developed by Aja, and is by far the weakest part of the film.

The script does little to separate itself from any other run of the mill horror film. It is thanks to Aja that Crawl manages to work cohesively at all. The script plays out exactly how you would expect and in just about 20 minutes of watching Crawl, most audiences would already expect to see everything the film has to show you. Additionally, Crawl's weakest feature is actually what is being billed as its greatest asset, the alligators. The alligators are entirely computer generated, and it shows. Plainly put, their appearance does not hold up to any amount of scrutiny and consistently pulled me out of the film whenever they were featured prominently in frame.

Crawl works as a fine, tightly contained horror experience despite lackluster writing and special effects.

IN OUR SCHOOLS

Krista Nelson named District 9 Elementary Principal of the Year

Recognition – The Indiana Association of School Principals (IASP) has chosen Krista

Nelson, principal of Center Grove Elementary School, as its 2019 District 9 Elementary Principal of the Year. Nelson has led Center Grove Elementary since January 2017. During her tenure, the Indiana Department of Education awarded Center Grove Elementary with two "A" accountability grades. Before moving to Center Grove, Nelson served as an elementary principal in Mooresville and as a principal and assistant principal in Monroe County. She also has several years of experience as a classroom teacher in grades 2, 3, 4 and 7 in Lawrence Township Schools. She recently earned her Ed.S. and is currently pursuing her doctoral degree through Indiana State University. Nelson will be recognized Nov. 24 as part of the 2019 Principals of the Year Recognition Celebration, during the IASP's annual Fall Professional Conference.

Greenwood Goddard preschoolers learn about the environment

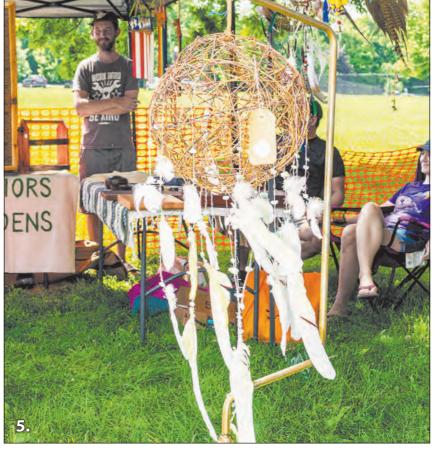

Environment – This month preschoolers at The Goddard School in Greenwood kicked off the 9th annual Root for Earth initiative. While the children learn about eco-friendly topics throughout the year, this month especially celebrated learning about the environment and what it means to be a good environmental steward. During this year's Root for Earth campaign, preschoolers engaged in a monthlong upcycling challenge where they collected all single-use plastics that come into the classroom (plastic bags, utensils, etc.) and used the items to create an art installation at the end of the month as a school. Additionally, the students revamped the school's brandnew outdoor classroom, where students from each classroom voted on what to plant - either veggies, fruit, or flowers - and work on the garden all month long! The food they grew will be used in menus for items such as zucchini meatloaf.

Second Annual Garfield Park Art and Music Festival attracts more than 2,000 visitors

By Nancy Price

What began as a plan for a small backyard concert has grown into an annual music and art festival at Garfield Park with an attendance of more than 2,000 visitors.

The Second Annual Garfield Park Art and Music Festival (GPAMF) was held June 29 at Garfield Park Arts Center. Six local bands, including Sister Sinjin, Jacoby's Invisible Band, Silent Bloom, Danni Al Mar, Brandon Wadley and Mina and the Wondrous Flying Machine, performed. In addition, guests were entertained by dance troupes from Grupo Flclorico Macehuani and Crossroads Dance Indy and spoken-word was provided by Indianapolis poet Jason Ammerman.

As well, there were 24 artists' booths and a kids' zone with art activities. Beer and wine were provided by Garfield Brewery.

The event was started as a grassroots effort by local musician and Garfield Park neighbor, Brandon Wadley. He had originally intended to have a small concert in his backyard.

"When his Facebook event outgrew the amount of guests he could fit in his backyard, he looked to the local arts organizations in the Garfield Park area, including the Garfield Park Arts Center (GPAC), for support," said Kavita Mahoney, manager of Garfield Park Ars Center. "We were able to help him promote his event and provide space for the music festival. This year, we built a planning committee of passionate neighbors who helped grow the event."

The event was part of Indy Parks' annual Pack the Parks day, an annual day of free programming city-wide in Indy Parks.

To volunteer or become a sponsor for next year's event, email Kavita Mahoney at Kavita.Mahoney@Indy.Gov.

Roger is a 6-year-old domestic shorthair male. He is as sweet as he can be and is looking for a nice lap to snuggle on; he is very laid-back. His adoption fee is $50.

All of Johnson County Humane Society's animals are spayed/ neutered and up-to-date on all vaccines, included with the adoption fee. They are always microchipped in case they were to get out of the house. For more information or to adopt, visit the Humane Society of Johnson County, 3827 Graham Road, Franklin, or hsjc.org. The Humane Society is open Mondays, Wednesdays, Thursdays and Fridays from noon - 5 p.m. If any one is interested in adoption and already has a dog, a meetand-areet is scheduled to make sure the animals aet along.

Euthanasia of a Pet

PAWS for THOUGHT

By Dr. Bruce McLaughlin

One of the most misunderstood and unasked questions is about euthanasia of a pet.

How is a pet euthanized?

Typically, an intravenous injection of a "double strength" anesthetic is given. The dose is great enough to stop the pet's heart and lungs. For people that have had an anesthetic, it is typically a pleasant feeling without any pain.

If an animal is very frightened or anxious we often give a subcutaneous injection first that relieves anxiety and facilitates giving the intravenous anesthetic.

How does an owner know it's time to euthanize a pet?

We all differ in regard to how we accept the loss of a pet. Ideally, we don't want to wait too long nor do we want to make a decision prematurely.

We as veterinarians can often give advice as to the chances of a very sick pet surviving an illness or a condition. There are times when I know with total certainty that a pet's chances of surviving is nonexistent. Instances would be an older pet with total kidney failure or total heart failure.

Other times it is a difficult decision that can be based on lab results, age of the pet, breed, amount of suffering, etc.

It is an owner's decision but I never discourage an owner from asking for guidance and as much information as possible to make a decision.

What are our options after a pet is euthanized?

Years ago most pets were buried in "back yards." In many areas this is now forbidden. More often now, a pet is cremated. The pet's remains may be returned to the owner in simple wooden boxes or even glass urns. Remains do not have to be returned.

Getting properly possessive

NUTRITION

By Curtis Honeycutt

John Lennon famously got in trouble in August 1966 when an interview from March of the same year dug up a single quote where he stated that The Beatles were (at the time) "more popular than Jesus." Although this quote from a March interview was out of context, it led to many former fans burning Beatle records in big, radio station-backed bonfires. It even led to some credible death threats during their 1966 U.S. tour, which was one of the reasons The Beatles stopped touring at the end of that year.

For the record, I'm a huge fan of both Jesus and The Beatles, but that's not what we're talking about today. Today I'd like to discuss what to do with possessive proper names that end in "s." Not only do we need to know whether or not they need an apostrophe and an "s" after them, but we also need to know how to pronounce them. We can work it out.

Let's think of some proper names that end with "s": Jesus, Beatles, Kansas, Curtis, and the lesser-known Greek philosopher Apostrophes (the last one is fake, but otherwise that is an excellent list). When we talk about the sandals that belonged to Jesus, how do we write it? Is it "Jesus' sandals" or "Jesus's sandals"? As usual, it depends on whom you ask.

The AP Stylebook (which is the gold standard for newspaper writing) states that an apostrophe on its own is enough, while the Chicago Manual of Style prefers the apostrophe followed by "s". So, AP would write "Jesus' sandals" while Chicago would write "Jesus's sandals." Because I write for newspapers, I almost always agree with AP style.

How do you pronounce these words? I'm a fan of pronouncing words like they're written. The Beatles' music inspired the new movie "Yesterday." When saying this sentence aloud, I would say "Beatles," not "Beatlesez." Similarly, I prefer "Jesus' sandals certainly logged many miles as he visited several ancient cities." I would pronounce the name "Jesus," not "Jesusez." Not everyone will agree with me here, but it's not something over which I'd break fellowship and start a new denomination. If you disagree with my all-or-nothing approach, I encourage you to simply let it be.

Amazon warehouse to open in Beech Grove

FEATURE

By Angela Morefield

Big changes are coming to the Industrial Park in Beech Grove at the end of the year. Dozens of full-time and part-time warehouse positions will soon be available at a new Amazon warehouse scheduled to open in Beech Grove.

Beech Grove Mayor Dennis Buckley announced July 10, during a press conference at City Hall, that Amazon will open a warehouse in Beech Grove.

Buckley stated that construction is set to begin soon with modifying the site for Amazon's needs. The site's expected opening would be at the end of 2019.

Amazon prepared a statement for Buckley to the media, which read,

"I'm looking forward to welcoming Amazon to our beautiful, clean city. This is an exciting update for us, and we're thrilled for the addition of dozens of full-time and part-time jobs and entrepreneurial work opportunities for the talented people of Beech Grove."

The new Amazon warehouse will be in the old Meade Electric building at Churchman Press. The building is approximately 5,000 square feet and will create job opportunities for residents. The facility will help customers as it seeks to enable faster and more efficient delivery of larger products, including furniture and sporting goods.

This is a project that has been planned for at least six months. "They (Amazon) want to establish a facility in central Indiana that only deals with large ticket items, which would be furniture, televisions, lawnmowers, whatever," said Buckley. "So, they choose the city of Beech Grove. We've been working with them ever since; they were very good to work with. They like the area, they like the city of Beech Grove. They like the area out in the Industrial Park and we're looking forward to a long relationship as a city with them."

Buckley is working with Colliers International, a real estate agency for Amazon. Buckley spent time with two of the representatives from the agency, ironing out details about the project. They discussed plans over lunch, tea and scones at Rustic Root Tea Room in Beech Grove. Buckley said, "It shows how important small business is and they (the representatives) have come back since." The representatives also had a keen interest in the roundabout being constructed at Churchman and Arlington avenues. "The roundabout went out for bid today, and soon it will be under construction." Buckley added, "It's an industrial roundabout and they want to be up and running by the end of 2019, so we are anxiously waiting and willing to work with them."

Sherman to serve as state representative for House District 93

Elected - Dollyne Sherman of Indianapolis has taken the oath of office to serve as state representative for House District 93. Indiana Supreme Court Justice Mark Massa administered the oath during a formal swearingin ceremony in the House Chamber at the Statehouse. "I want those in our community to know I will always be accessible," Sherman said. "My focus and attention will be on the needs of those in House District 93 as we work on policies to make Indiana an even better place to get a job, start a business and raise a family." Sherman and her husband, David, live in Indianapolis and have a son. She has lived on the Southside of Indianapolis for 35 years and graduated from Southport High School. Sherman studied political science while attending Ball State University. In addition to 20 years of experience in the private sector, she also worked for former Governors Bob Orr and Mitch Daniels, and former Indianapolis Mayor Steve Goldsmith. She was also a part of Indiana Congresswoman Susan Brooks' campaign staff. "Dollyne's experience working at the state and local level will be a tremendous asset to our team and provide a strong foundation for her as she serves our community in this new role," said House Speaker Brian C. Bosma (R-Indianapolis). "I have no doubt she will hit the ground running as we work together to build on Indiana's strong economic momentum." Sherman will serve out the remaining term of former State Rep. Dave Frizzell (R-Indianapolis) who recently resigned his seat after 27 years.

First Lady Janet Holcomb to serve as chair of Indiana Conference for Women

State conference - First Lady Janet Holcomb has been appointed as chair of the Indiana Conference for Women, to be held Nov. 7. Nearly 2,000 women, of all ages and stages of careers, from across the nation are expected to attend the ninth annual conference to receive educational and professional development. Holcomb will work with the conference's board of directors to develop the Midwest's biggest one-day professional development event for women. Specific goals will focus on selecting leading experts in their respective fields and forging relationships to grow stronger networks of women. Beginning in 2009, she served as vice president of her family's manufacturing business, R&R Engineering, which has been producing and distributing bolts and fasteners across the U.S. and Canada for 50 years. For a decade prior to joining the business, Holcomb led many political fundraising efforts at the federal, state and local levels. She has used her fundraising experience to benefit many nonprofit organizations, including veterans' groups, social service providers, animal welfare, arts organizations and scouting programs. Tickets to the Indiana Conference for Women, which will be held at the Indiana Convention Center, are $325 each and can be purchased online. Additional speakers and presenters will continue to be announced. For more information, visit IndianaConferenceForWomen.com.

Weekly Devotion

22 But the fruit of the Spirit is love, joy, peace, longsuffering, gentleness, goodness, faith, 23 Meekness, temperance: against such there is no law.

24 And they that are Christ's have crucified the flesh with the affections and lusts. 25 If we live in the Spirit, let us also walk in the Spirit.

GALATIANS 5:22-25

The "fruit" of the Spirit is what the Spirit produces in us as He indwells us. Jesus Christ, following His crucifixion, breathed on His disciples and said, "Receive the Holy Spirit." Why did He do this? Because He knew better than any other person how much they were going to need His assistance in carrying out the mission that Jesus had assigned to them. Love, joy, peace, great patience, faith, gentleness, goodness, meekness, temperance, are all qualities that the Holy Spirit brings to the life of Christians. Not all experience these qualities because they reject the Holy Spirit that brings them. Some say they do but when they are put to the test they prove they don't.

Flying off of the handle, using words that are blasphemous, taking God's name in vain, condemning another person to hell as a way to get back at them, cheating on a person you have promised to be faithful to for a lifetime, taking someone into your home and treating them as though they were your husband or wife without God's blessing or sanction on your relationship - do I need to go on? These things are not the fruit of the Holy Spirit and that Spirit would never give you His approval if you were doing them. Those that practice such behavior will not inherit the kingdom of God no matter if they demand that they do. To win the approval of God's Holy Spirit we must not cause Him any grief, nor can we reject the standards that He brings to our lives. Man may wink at these sins but God does not. I enjoy the "fruit" of the Holy Spirit and His fellowship in my life. He is a blessing to have around. I hope that you find Him the same.

God bless and go and have a great day.

Paul A. Kirby is the pastor at the Church of God at 3939 S. Emerson Ave.
