Greenwood installs new art sculptures on Polk Hill Trail

The city of Greenwood has installed four new public art sculptures on Polk Hill Trail. The sculptures are part of "Art on the Trailway," a program funded in 2012 by Greenwood's Economic Development Commission, the Indiana Arts Commission and the Greater Greenwood Arts Council. Greenwood Parks Department, which manages the program, calls for art sculpture submissions every two years, and new pieces are chosen by a juried panel.

Two Chicks and a Hammer stars on HGTV channel while renovating Southside homes

By Stephanie Dolan

If you're like me, you love reality TV. I know, I know... right away your brain went to a booze-swilling, club-hopping, Kardashian kind of place, didn't it? The kind of place where couples are on again/off again and the slap-fights going on around the more than one kind of reality TV. This kind of entertainment isn't always low-brow. Sometimes it's informative, educational and enlightening. Like on HGTV.

I love the "Property Brothers." I have a mutual crush on both Drew and Jonathan Scott. And there is nothing more soothing than a nice, long binge session of "Fixer Upper."

Team Gaines can do things with shiplap that are both stunning and beautiful.
But there is another show that I have a special soft spot for: "Good Bones."

The mother/daughter stars, Karen E Laine and Mina Starsiak, reside in Fountain Square and own and run Two Chicks and a Hammer. The show follows the business Two Chicks does of renovating homes. It is filmed here, and the pair are double-handedly revitalizing downtown Indianapolis, both on and off screen. At this point, Two Chicks has renovated nearly 100 homes.

"We bought our first house to rehab in 2007," Laine said. "After rehabbing a few and enjoying it, in 2008 we decided we had a business and gave it a name."

"Good Bones" aired for the first time on March 22, 2016. In June, the series was renewed for a fifth season.

"A production company, High Noon Entertainment, found our Facebook page," Laine said. "We went through the process of a phone call, a Skype interview, a sizzle for HGTV and a pilot. After getting picked up for season one, we have just kept rolling. HGTV is a wonderful place to make television; they are like family."

While the duo complements each other, working closely and bouncing ideas off each other, they each feel quite differently about being on television.

"Everything is strange about being on TV," Starsiak, 34, said. "I had no idea what to expect. I guess what's weirdest is being in the dentist office or bank and hearing my own voice on the TV!"

Laine, on the other hand, took right to it.

"I am one of those odd people who don't mind a camera," she said. "It didn't take any time at all to get used to it."

Laine, 59, a former defense attorney, is likely a little more used to being in the spotlight.

"I started practicing law around 1992,"

she said. "I became a deputy prosecutor in 1995. I started my own criminal defense/family law practice in 2005. I went back to the prosecutor's office for a bit, then left again to run my own practice. I am currently licensed to practice law in Indiana and before the Federal Courts. When we were given our first season, I slowly closed down my practice and now only give non-court related legal advice, or work for the company."

Starsiak was a waitress at Pizzology before quitting to work full time on the filming of "Good Bones."

"I finally quit serving when the show got picked up, and I didn't really have the time to continue working outside of the filming schedule," she said.

The work that Two Chicks and a Hammer does focuses mainly on homes in the Fountain Square and Bates-Hendricks neighborhoods.

"It is where we built our first office," Starsiak said. "It is also where we are building out our storefront and will be building our permanent headquarters so it's home."

"Bates-Hendricks is close to my own neighborhood, North Square," Laine said. "It has a wonderful neighborhood organization, and the people are working hard to improve their neighborhood. It is an honor to be a part of that."

While both react different to being on camera, there is no doubt that the Two Chicks are excited about the direction their business has taken.

"It didn't seem real for quite some time," Starsiak said. "Honestly, it still doesn't. We are just so busy that there hasn't really been time to focus on how cool this really is."

What is a typical workday like for Laine and Starsiak?

"There is no such thing," Starsiak said.
"Every day is different, even between mom and I. I manage the business side, so my day typically involves time at the office if I can swing it in between filming and checking in on properties on top of the entire day being filled with calls and texts to troubleshoot with my team."

Starsiak also said that, even though she is enjoying more opportunities for design, she considers herself more of a builder while Laine considers herself to be a real estate developer.

5 QUESTIONS WITH Mine Stersiek AND Keren C. Leine

1. WHO OR WHAT INSPIRES YOU?

MINA: My team! They bust butt with little to no glory and keep the wheels spinning behind the scenes!

KAREN: For me, inspiration is always a surprise. I really have no idea from where in my brain it comes. What usually happens is I see something, and then I see it in a different way.

2. HAVE YOU MET ANY OTHER HGTV STARS AND BEEN COMPLETELY STARSTRUCK BY THE EXPERIENCE?

MINA: We have met a handful, but honestly, they've all felt like old friends.

KAREN: We have met a few other HGTV (stars). (Drew and Jonathan Scott) are the ones I think of first, but I had hardly any time to be starstruck because they are so incredibly nice. Moments after meeting them, I felt like they were my best, hardest working, most handsome, funniest and intelligent friends. They are excellent mentors! Happy to share their knowledge and help young HGTV talent along.

3. WHAT IS YOUR FAVORITE TV SHOW

(may or may not be HGTV related)?

MINA: Anything on the ID (Investigational Discovery) network!

KAREN: I like "This Old House" because I learned so much from them. I also really enjoyed "Trading Spaces" because of the variety of design inspirations that show shared with its audience.

4. WHAT ARE SOME FAVORITE LOCAL SHOPS THAT YOU FREQUENT IN OR AROUND FOUNTAIN SQUARE?

MINA: I like City Dog Bakery for the pups!

KAREN: You can find me at Vintage Vogue, which is a Goodwill store, my friend Jess's shop, Nine Lives Vintage, and of course the local small grocery store, Wildwood Market.

5. WHAT DO YOU TWO LIKE TO DO TOGETHER WHEN YOU'RE NOT WORKING?

MINA: I'm ALWAYS working!

KAREN: My favorite thing to do with my family when I'm not working is hang out at one of their houses, have a cocktail, something to eat and just enjoy their company.

Garfield Park Children's Garden transformed in memory of Franklin Central graduate

By Nancy Price

The memory of an all-state track runner and 2010 graduate of Franklin Central High School lives on in a garden in Garfield Park. On July 19, the community celebrated the legacy of Blake Bowell with a ribbon-cutting and unveiling ceremony for the Garfield Park children's garden, renamed "Blake's Garden."

Bowell died June 5, 2017 at the age of 25 after a six-year battle with a rare form of brain cancer called glioblastoma. An honor student who also lettered in football at Franklin Central, he received an appointment to the United States Naval Academy in Annapolis, MD. After a serious medical injury, Bowell was honorably discharged with a Veterans of Distinction, and transferred to Murray State University to study business.

In the summer of 2013 he was diagnosed with glioblastoma, yet he continued to fight the disease and, along with his father, established BlakeStrong, a 501 © 3 nonprofit to help fund cancer research and those in need.

Bowell also worked for two summers at Garfield Park.

The children's garden includes new artwork and other elements donated or supported through the project, as well as an outdoor learning area called "Fran's Place," in honor of the late Fran MacAllister, wife of P.E. MacAllister, the first chair of the Indianapolis Parks Foundation.

The centerpiece of the garden is an aluminum sculpture named "Divine Light," designed and fabricated by Herron Art Student Kenzie Funk. The installation is Bowell's height, 5'8".

The ribbon cutting was held the day before the third annual BlakeStrong Fest, presented by Friends of Garfield Park at MacAllister Amphitheater in Garfield Park. Funds supported Blake's Garden and other nonprofit organizations.

The BlakeStrong Bowell Fund uses funds raised for community programs and supports families by offering scholarships and financial support to young community members in need. As well, it provides support for Riley Hospital for Children and Purdue University Cancer Research.

The Greenwood Cemetery – through the years

HAUNTS & JAUNTS

By Rick Hinton

There's a belief among various cultures that until the mortal body completely disintegrates, the soul is not fully released, waiting and biding its time. Some theorize the spirit remains behind to reconnect and "energize" with their bodies. There are also theories aligning with spirits freely choosing to frequent residences and other locations; they don't know they're dead and can move on. Or, perhaps they have some association to a particular location - even a cemetery in a former capacity as employee, caretaker or director? Some souls can't let go of their mortal shells; a vanity or longing for the way things used to be? Possibly a premature or sudden death? And, there's the family and friend's visitation to the cemetery (at least initially), emitting waves of emotional energy that "imprints" the ground. Could this be a cause to remain? The paranormal is a hodgepodge of theories.

In the Greenwood Cemetery, the serene and passive grounds are the final resting place for many early pioneers. The grounds are dotted with a multitude of unique and distinctive headstones: from precision replicas of tree trunks to the memorials dedicated to Ebbie and Arthur Morgan, father and son blacksmiths. The Morgan's blacksmith shop formerly resided next to the Presbyterian Church just off Main Street and had been a gathering spot for local farmers in the day. Ebbie passed in 1961, his son Arthur in 1988. Both are buried in the newer section of the cemetery, and both have the anvils used in their trade mounted on top of their stones. The Polk family, whose entrepreneurial vision of a vegetable canning operation eventually employed a majority of Greenwood, giving the town recognition across the country, is buried in a prominent mound as you enter the cemetery.

Older cemeteries are a wealth of symbolism. Just look at the monuments and engravings from days past when gravestones were not only a dedication to a life lived, but also a work of art: the symbol of a dove – purity and peace; the willow tree – grief, sorrow and immortality; a lamb – innocence; a finger pointing upward – the soul rising to heaven; broken branches – a life cut suddenly short.

For most of the years there was a physical preamble to a funeral service, and a chore behind the scenes: graves were dug by hand. It was quite the challenge considering the sections of hard pan clay that saturate the grounds. This would explain the sometimes lapse between death and the actual burial. Before the use of burial vaults, bodies were placed in simple wooden caskets and lowered into the ground.

Is the Greenwood Cemetery haunted? Are cemetery ghosts just a good story? Do cars traveling west on Main Street, with headlights bouncing off reflective headstones in the older section, result in a confusing configuration of shadows playing against the tree line? Yes. Does the gentle rustling of wind through these trees imitate an unworldly voice, causing us to imagine something much more ominous? Yes.

Next: the conclusion.

Heartland Film presents Indy Shorts International Film Festival

FEATURE

By Angela Morefield

Indianapolis' only short film festival returns for its second year to Newfields (Indianapolis Museum of Art) from July 25-28. Presented by Heartland Film Inc. and the organizers of the Heartland International Film Festival (HIFF), Indy Shorts International Film Fest is an Academy Award-qualifying festival dedicated to the art of short film.

Indy Shorts exclusively features short films 40 minutes or less in length, and it is the largest short film festival in the Midwest, with more than 150 films shown.

"We are pleased to continue our second year of Indy Shorts," said Craig Prater, Heartland Film President. "Short film filmmakers bring an incredible art form that presents what can be done creatively in a few minutes. Heartland Film is proud to be on the cutting edge of filmmaking and inspiring filmmakers to continue their careers."

Indy Shorts features films that may qualify for the Academy Awards, with winners to show encore screenings at HIFF in October. Films are categorized into Best Narrative Short Film and Best Documentary Short Film. Some short films featured in past years have moved on to be short-listed, nominated and winners of Academy Awards. Since 2009, shorts programmed by Heartland Film have gone on to earn 19 Academy Award nominations and seven Academy Award wins with an active five-year winning streak. Period. End of Sentence., a finalist in last year's Indy Shorts International Film Festival, went on to win the 2019 Academy Award for Best Documentary Short.

Emily Darr, Marketing Manager for Heartland Film, said, "Indy Shorts expanded as its own separate event from HIFF in summer 2018 and all winners (Grand Prize and Audience Choice Awards) will play encore screenings at HIFF in October 2019. Heartland Film created Indy Shorts to better showcase short films and shorts filmmakers."

Indy Shorts is one of the largest cash-awarding short film festivals in North America and will bestow $30,000 in cash prizes across multiple categories.

Special events for Indy Shorts are as follows (all events except Music & Shorts will be held at Newfields, 4000 Michigan Road, Indianapolis, 46208):

Indy Shorts Kickoff and After Party

- Thursday, July 25; red carpet kickoff starts at 6:30 p.m.; after party starts at 9:30 p.m.
- Join Heartland Film in kicking off the grand opening of Indy Shorts International Film Festival at this red-carpet style event. There will be multiple film screenings.

Summer Nights at Newfields

- Friday, July 26 at 7:30 p.m.
- Join us for an outdoor screening of a selection of Oscar-nominated short films and free pizza from HotBox Pizza.

Awards Show & Screening

- Saturday, July 27 at 7 p.m.
- Join Heartland Film in a celebration of Indy Shorts' filmmakers, honoring their outstanding work and moving stories. The event will feature cash prizes and filmmakers from around the world and a screening of the Grand Prize Awardwinning short films. Awards After-Party will take place at The Alexander, 333 S. Delaware St., Indianapolis, 46204.

Music & Shorts

- Sunday, July 28 at 6 p.m.
- For the last night of Indy Shorts, enjoy some short films and dance the evening away at The Jazz Kitchen, 45377 N. College Ave.

Heartland Film is a nonprofit arts organization founded in 1991 with the mission to inspire filmmakers and audiences through the transformative power of film. Heartland Film is a supporter of purposeful filmmaking, providing an outlet for filmmakers and storytellers from all over the world to be creative and honored for their work.

The new West Perry Branch Library draws closer to reality

FEATURE

By Rick Hinton

A community meeting was held July 18, as the new West Perry Branch Library came closer to reality. The gathering was held at the Southport Branch Library with project architects, Lisa Gomperts from Schmidt Associates, and Kevin Kennedy from HBM. This was the third and final engagement meeting focusing upon design and function of the future campus. The room filled quickly.

Peggy Wehr, future manager of the West Perry Branch, kicked off the meeting promptly at 7 p.m., re-introducing Lisa to a crowd familiar with her from the previous two meetings. Lisa briefly recapped what they took from the sessions in March and June, highlighting the community's priority items: modern aesthetics, natural materials and a lot of glass!

Kennedy followed up with a layout of the physical design of the property and building. "How do you turn all of your good ideas into a building?" he asked. He proceeded to show the audience just how, beginning with the parking layout funneling into the SW entry plaza. "Libraries like to be seen ... to be visible from Harding Street," he said. It will be. The exterior wood, brick and storefront glass is an introduction to the interior, containing spaces for everyone: services for children, teens and adults; computers and new technologies; a large community meeting room and group study rooms; access to library services and collections. A drive-up drop box for returns brought a cheer across the room.

The $9.2 million branch near Harding Street and Southport Road will continue to be tweaked in its design and development phase until it is put out for bid early next year. Construction on the 25,000 square foot facility will start in the spring of 2020, with the goal of completion by May 2021.

IN OUR SCHOOLS

Roncalli to celebrate 50th anniversary with summer social

Anniversary - On July 27, Roncalli High School will kick off its 50th anniversary with a summer social on the Roncalli campus. This will be a family-friendly event. The night will start with mass at 5:30 p.m. in the Roncalli gymnasium, led by Father Douglas Hunter, Roncalli's new chaplain coordinator. Gates to the celebration will open at 6 p.m. Tickets are only $5 for an individual and $15 for a family. There will be free family activities such as bounce houses, slip n' slides, face painting and more! Everyone can dine and drink from Indy's hottest food trucks on site, or they can bring their own picnic baskets of food and drink. The Rebel5ive podcast will take place live on stage at 6:30 p.m. as Gary Armbruster, director of alumni services, interviews alumni Jimmy Matis R'76 and Matt Taylor R'04. At 7:30 p.m. Indy's premiere party band, MIXTAPE, will perform and rock until 10:30 p.m. Tickets to the event can be ordered online at roncalli.org/ summer-social or, if you prefer to buy tickets in person, call (317) 787-8277 ext. 238. Model agencies also demonstrate creative and innovative approaches to school-based policing. The Center Grove Police Department was one of three agencies nationwide to receive the award. "This award is a testament to the dedication of our officers and the exceptional leadership of Chief Ray Jackson," said Dr. Bill Long, CGCSC Assistant Superintendent. "Chief Jackson and I work to ensure our officers are fully trained on all aspects of school safety. We appreciate the support of our school board in recognizing the value of the police department as they protect and mentor our students." NASRO presented the awards June 24 during a ceremony as part of its annual National School Safety Conference.

Nearly 2,100 police officers, educators and others attended the conference in Pigeon Forge, Tennessee to receive specialized training and information.

BGCS announces new website and parent app

BEECH GROVE MARKETPLACE

Technology update - Hornets, Beech Grove City Schools has a new website and a parent app. The website and app have just been released, so we're still working out a few glitches. However, we wanted you to be aware so you could take a look at both and download the app so you are ready to receive notifications from us when school begins. Follow these steps when downloading the mobile app: 1. Search "Beech Grove City Schools" in your phone's app store and download the app. 2. Select "ALLOW" when prompted on initial download to ensure you receive notifications. 3. Open the Beech Grove app and navigate to the left side menu for "SETTINGS." 4. Ensure your settings are turned on and your school is selected. We hope you enjoy the new website and app. More information will be released in the next few weeks. Please have patience with us as we complete the transfer of information from the former website and work out all the glitches. Special thanks to STEPH ALFORD for her hard work with the very tedious task of transferring documents, photos and other information to the new website. If you have questions, please feel free to email either MELODY STEVENS, mstevens@bgcs.k12.in.us or STEPH ALFORD, salford@bgcs.k12.in.us.

Greater Beech Grove Chamber to host annual Music on Main event

REAL ESTATE

By Renee Harlor Executive Director, Greater Beech Grove Chamber of Commerce

On Aug. 24 the Greater Beech Grove Chamber of Commerce will host Music on Main. This event features live music, a kids' zone, food trucks, a beer garden and several other activities. The chamber is proud to host community events. They give local businesses the opportunity to sell their goods and services and residents the opportunity to enjoy a free festival, in a safe, fun and family friendly environment. There are still vendor spaces available. If you are interested, we ask that you call the chamber office.

We are preparing to deliver our second round of welcome bags to new home owners in the area. These bright green bags contain a variety of items from chamber members. Members of the chamber volunteered their time to stuff the bags and hand deliver them to local homes. We were met with great feedback. We love activities that provide a benefit to business owners and community members alike.

In May we awarded two $500 scholarships to students from Beech Grove High School. Students were required to fill out an application and submit an essay. Our scholarship committee chose the winners. We are thrilled to be able to help young people succeed.

The Greater Beech Grove Chamber of Commerce is partnering to build a dynamic community benefiting the greater Beech Grove area. If you are considering starting a business or currently have a business in the area, we would love to partner with you. If you are a community member that has questions about local events or in need of a business recommendation, please contact us. More information can be found at BeechGroveChamber.org or by calling (317) 800-8499.

Trayce Jackson-Davis credits who inspired and shaped him ... as a player and a person

FEATURE

By Angela Norris

You may have heard the name Trayce Jackson-Davis around town, and there's a really good reason for that.

Jackson-Davis, who just graduated from Center Grove High School, has made his way to Indiana University to play basketball for the Hoosiers with determination and lots of hard work.

He is a power forward/center, standing at 6 feet 9 inches, and 231 pounds his senior year. As a junior in 2017-18, he averaged 21.9 points per game, 9.4 rebounds, 4.1 blocks and 2.6 assists while shooting 67 percent from the field. He helped his team to a 20 win season, county and sectional titles and the 4A regional final. During his senior season, Jackson-Davis led the Trojans to a 21-8 record and a place in the Class 4A state tournament semifinals. He averaged 21.6 points, 9.3 rebounds, 2.9 blocks, 1.7 assists and 1 steal through 29 games.

AN HONOR: athletically, academically and for exemplary character

He entered the state semifinals with 1,768 career points. On March 15, Jackson-Davis was honored as the Indiana Gatorade Player of the Year. He received the award not only for his athletic abilities, but also for his academic excellence in maintaining a B average, as well as his exemplary character in which he volunteered locally as a youth basketball coach and at the Wheeler Mission Center in Indianapolis, serving the homeless and those in need. In AAU basketball, while on the Spiece Indy Heat, he averaged 19.1 points per game, 7.1 rebounds per game and 1.8 assists per game while shooting 59.1 percent from the field.

Jackson-Davis was the 2019 winner of the prestigious honor signifying the best high school player in the state of Indiana, Indiana's Mr. Basketball. He was voted as the winner on 179 of 311 ballots and the second consecutive winner to head to IU-Bloomington.

"It is honestly just a blessing and an honor just knowing the guys who have been through this and won," Jackson-Davis said. "You get names like Greg Oden, Kyle Guy, Romeo Langford, Steve Alford, Damon Bailey, just huge names in the state and just being considered on the same list as those guys is such an honor that I am astounded by it."

Jackson-Davis gave credit with his success as a player and how he is shaped as a person to his family, teachers, classmates, teammates and mentors, including CGHS Boys Varsity Basketball Head Coach Zach Haun.

"I'm just honestly blessed just to have them around," he said. "I'm also surrounded by great people all year; my teammates, our senior class, they will be my brothers for life. What we did this year is just a blessing and an honor. My school has been there for me since day one when I came in as a freshman. That's when they brought in Coach Haun, so he kind of took me under his wing and the rest is history I would say. We have great teachers here; it's a great community and a great place to live."

GOOD ADVICE

Jackson-Davis was also inspired as a freshman by advice he'll never forget from former NBA/professional basketball player and current motivational speaker Chris Herron.

"He talked to us about his life and his story about drug and alcohol use and I just took a lot away from that and how he got himself back on track and I thought that was really cool and I try to be a person like that because he really inspired me to be a better person," Jackson-Davis said.

As well, "my family inspires me the most. Off the court they try to make me be the best basketball player and person I can possibly be. And on the court I think that LeBron James would be my male role model just how he presents himself on and off the court. He's a really good dude off the court and he gives back to the community so I try to inspire to be someone like that," he said.

Jackson-Davis is the biological son of Karla Jackson and Dale Davis (former Indiana Pacers power forward/center). He was raised by his mother and step-father, Raymond Jackson, and decided to hyphenate his name his freshman year to honor his stepfather.

"As a parent, you always try to put your children in a position to be successful," Raymond said. "You give them tools and then see what they choose to do with them. Although Trayce didn't start to blossom into the excellent athlete he is today until around eighth grade, he always had ambition. Trayce was such a laid-back kid growing up, nothing really ruffled his feathers. "He was a late bloomer and didn't really take things serious until the end of eighth grade. Trayce asked me if he had what it takes to be the best and that he wanted to start taking basketball more seriously. I told him no matter what you choose to do in life, do it to your best ability and be the best."

What are Jackson-Davis' plans while attending IU and after receiving his degree?

"Wherever the Lord takes me is where I'll go, but I just plan on playing basketball down there and if the NBA is on the table then that's probably what I'll do next," he said.

"What we did this year is just a blessing and an honor.
My school has been there for me since day one when I came in as a freshman."

Fluoride protects children's teeth for the long haul

By Dr. Nydia Nunez-Estrada Family Medicine Physician at Eskenazi Health

In 2019, parents are protecting their children from all sorts of new dangers they never dreamt of when they were younger. From risks on the internet to an increase in various food allergies, a child's exposure to danger has never been higher. There is one danger, however, that parents can successfully protect their children from with the right amount of attention and diligence: poor dental health.

All people, regardless of age, need to brush twice a day and floss once a day to fight plaque build-up. Plaque is the soft, sticky substance that naturally accumulates on everyone's teeth from the food and drinks they consume throughout the day. Flossing and brushing is important for kids and adults to prevent plaque build-up because flossing helps remove the plaque that collects between the teeth that a toothbrush can't get. Only so much mouth maintenance can be performed at home, however, so it is still crucially important to schedule regular dental check-ups for parents and their children every six months.

A way for children to get an early start on their oral health is the use of fluoride. Fluoride, commonly found in tap water and many of the foods we consume, is one of the many tools dentists use to help prevent tooth decay and acid damage in their patients' teeth. Not only does it help fight against tooth decay, fluoride also strengthens the enamel, or outer covering of a tooth. Those functions, especially for children, are why fluoride should be another part of any parent's plan to keep their child healthy.

The best way for parents to introduce fluoride into their child's overall health plan is fluoride varnish. Fluoride varnish, which is used all around the world to prevent tooth decay in young children, is applied by pediatricians and dentists (depending on the child's age) on the teeth of a child. The small amount of varnish is applied to the teeth, hardens, and then is brushed off in the next four-12 hours. The varnish is completely safe and non-toxic.

ESKENAZI

I.U. School of Medicin

Here are other ways for children to get their much needed fluoride:

- Fluoridated water
- Eating a diet with plenty of calcium and vitamin D

Fluoride isn't a foolproof way to prevent cavities for children. A healthy diet, brushing, flossing and regular dentist check-ups are also just as important to overall dental health.

Eskenazi Health Center offers routine dental cleanings and emergency and preventive dental services at four locations in Indianapolis: Eskenazi Health at 1650 N. College Ave., Eskenazi Health Center Cottage Corner at 1434 Shelby St., Eskenazi Health Center Grassy Creek at 9443 E. 38th St. and Eskenazi Health Center West 38th Street at 5515 W. 38th St.

Dental health does more than just provide you with an attractive smile. It can also be an indicator of your overall health and if you could be at risk for chronic disease. Regular dental check-ups prevent not only tooth decay but also gum disease, which can be related to other health conditions such as stroke and heart disease.

Eskenazi Health Center provides dental services Monday – Thursday from 8 a.m. - 5 p.m. and Friday from 8 a.m.noon. Most dental insurance plans are accepted.

If you have concerns or questions about your health, the health of someone in your family or are in need of a primary care physician for yourself or someone else, please call (317) 880-7666 or visit eskenazihealth.edu/doctors.

Celebrate National Lasagna Day at your favorite Southside Italian restaurant

One of America's favorite comfort foods will be celebrated Monday, July 29. National Lasagna Day is dedicated to appreciating lasagna and is believed to have originated in Naples, Italy. The first recipe for lasagna appears in "The Liber de Coquina" (the book of cooking/cutlery), one of the oldest medieval cookbooks.

Here are a few fun facts about lasagna:

- According to the Guinness World Records, the world's largest lasagna weighed 5.29 tons. Chefs in Poland created the dish, which took 10 hours to bake and was eventually cut up into 10,000 slices.
- AllRecipes.com reported that a man named John Chandler created the world's best lasagna. In 2013, the recipe had been pinned on Pinterest more than 25,000 times, with 10,423 ratings. Every month, the recipe is viewed by 20 million visitors.
- Lasagna can be cooked in a dishwasher, according to the TV show "MythBusters" on the Discovery network.

If you're too tired after work on Monday to create lasagna at home, treat yourself by dining at one of the following Southside Italian restaurants on Foursquare's list for "15 Best Places for Lasagna in Indianapolis":

TOP 10 SIGNS THAT THE STILES HOUSE IS GETTING OLD

By Torry Stiles

- 10. We still write checks and put letters in the mailbox.
- 9. We can read and write cursive.
- 8. We measure financial success by the number of doctors we can afford.
- 7. Seventy percent of our casual conversations begin, "What was the name of that place we used to go to. ...?"
- 6. We routinely go to work wearing clothing older than most of our co-workers.
- 5. We often argue with each other, the dogs, the guinea pigs and a variety of inanimate objects. 4. I have no idea what time the streetlights come on because I am already in bed.
- 3. I gave up explaining Shemp Howard, Tom Slick, "Petticoat Junction" and Monty Python long ago. When I have to explain The Ren & Stimpy Show to a 20-something co-worker then I know, it's time to quit.
- 2. A spontaneous trip to the store sees us bring home coffee filters, gauze bandages and tapioca pudding.
- 1. Cuddling on the couch used to lead to something naughty. Now it leads to napping.

The Art of Self-Defense A timely depiction of masculinity in crisis

MOVIE REVIEW

By Bradley Lane

Today, it can seem as though the world is changing at a breakneck pace. The mainstream push for more and more increasingly progressive social change is too difficult to ignore for anyone even remotely tuned into current events. Just months ago, an advertisement for razors sent the internet into a tizzy fit because it communicated ideas that challenged conventional ideals of masculinity. It depicted the negative effects of male to male aggression, illadvised sexual advances and gender inequality in the workplace. Most of the conversation around the ad centered in on the idea that it was attacking men and traits inherent to those who identify as male. The actual target of the messaging was not male identity as a whole, but rather the consequences that stem from harmful social expectations unfairly put on young boys and men. The idea that the way we have raised men for generations might be outdated, could be hard to swallow for some, but The Art of Self-Defense is specifically designed to help ease that transition in mindset with one of time's most tested medicine's, laughter.

Writer and director Riley Sterns had just one feature film to his name before The Art of Self-Defense released. Impressive, considering the uniquely awkward elevator pitch for the film; a lost and constantly emasculated man finds comfort and belonging in a karate dojo that slowly is revealed to be much more than just an instructional karate class, all of which is used to critique unexamined traditional masculinity. It is a film that truly needs to be experienced to be fully understood, which is a big part of how it separates itself from a crowded pool of indie releases.

The tone established by Sterns in the film is fiercely idiosyncratic, despite paying homage to its clearly identifiable predecessors like Taxi Driver, Fight Club and the entirety of Wes Anderson's filmography. The most striking element to the film is the consistently tactless and often overly explained dialogue from every character in the film. This eccentric means of communication makes for hilarious situations and a great platform to work in some scathing social commentary. By cutting through the pleasantries of day-today chit-chat and focusing on the underlying messages we seek to communicate, Sterns illuminates the uniquely performative aspects of masculinity. It pokes fun at the idea of men adhering to, and outwardly expressing a razor-thin set of attitudes so other people can perceive them as a strong man, in order to feel content and comfortable with their own masculinity. It feels like a personal and genuine exploration of what being a man means in a world where heteronormative gender roles have outstayed their welcome.

The Art of Self-Defense despite, and even more, because of its social critique is also viscerally entertaining; after all, it is a movie centered around karate. The movie would be vastly entertaining even told through the lens of a conventional Hollywood picture. The fact it is presented with such personality and thoughtfulness allows The Art of Self-Defense to stand as one of the year's best films and a cult classic in the making.

Bradley is a Beech Grove High School alumnus and has been enamored by film for as long as he can remember. He is currently in his third year studying at IUPUI, majoring in Media and Public Affairs with a minor in Film. Bradley can be contacted at blane2214@gmail.com.

An American love of efficiency and novelty Explaining portmanteau and other combined words

NUTRITION

By Curtis Honeycutt

I've said it before, and I'll say it again: we Americans love efficiency. We also become enamored with novelty - new things entertain us until there's a new shiny object that tickles our fancy. When you put these two things together, you get the Segway. A Segway is a two-wheeled scooter first introduced to the public in 2001 as a revolutionary personal transport vehicle. It combined our love of being efficient (walking is hard) with our admiration of novelty (Look! Spinning wheels!). Although the Segway is still very much a thing, when most people think of the invention now, they probably think of dorky tourists and/or mall cops.

Now I'll segue into the grammar portion of today's article. See what I did there?

The language equivalent of efficiencymeets-novelty is the portmanteau. I'll admit: when I first heard this word, I could've sworn it was a rustic wine village in the South of France. Portmanteau is a French word originally meaning "suitcase." However, author Lewis Carroll introduces a new meaning for the word "portmanteau" in his book, "Through the Looking-Glass." Humpty Dumpty explains to Alice that new words made from two words being smashed together – like "slithy" (slimy + lithy) and "mimsy" (miserable + flimsy) – are "like a portmanteau – there are two meanings packed up into one word.

I should note that "portmanteau" is itself a portmanteau: it combines the French words "porter" (to carry) and "manteau" (a cloak).

Why do I care to teach you about a French word that was redefined by a 19th century British author? Portmanteaus are fantastic, and they combine efficiency and novelty so well. The following are some of my favorite portmanteaus, which were all invented by someone who wanted to be cute and concise. You'll find all these words, by the way, in the Merriam-Webster Dictionary: chillax (chill + relax), skort (skirt + shorts), smog (smoke + fog), turducken (turkey + duck + chicken), glamping (glamour + camping), bromance (brother + romance), ginormous (gigantic + enormous) and flare (flame + glare). Portmanteaus are everywhere, and they're fantastic.

How about some new portmanteaus? I'll offer up a few: flarf (a flag that can become a scarf), phowner (a person who owns a phone), roboat (a robot boat), and singull (a seagull that isn't in a romantic relationship). Perhaps creating a portmanteau that catches on is tougher than it seems. Inventing new words from existing words is fun. It keeps our language alive and vibrant. Send me an email or a tweet with any portmanteaus you create.

Weekly Devotion

18 But if you be led of the Spirit, you are not under the law.

19 Now the works of the flesh are manifest, which are these; Adultery, fornication, uncleanness, lasciviousness,

20 Idolatry, witchcraft, hatred, variance, emulations, wrath, strife, seditions, heresies, 21 Envyings, murders, drunkenness, revellings, and such like: of the which I tell you before, as I have also told you in time past, that they which do such things shall not inherit the kingdom of God.

GALATIANS 5:18-21

Being led of the Spirit is so important as a Christian but what does Paul mean by this? It is to be under His supervision at all times and not just once in a while. Paul demonstrates for us with words what it means to do the will of the flesh and how that puts us at odds with the Holy Spirit. Paul gives us a partial list of those things that being led of the flesh does in the life of sinners. There are sexual sins, there are social sins, there are spiritual sins that put us at odds with Christ and His teachings. Among these are adultery, fornication, idolatry and witchcraft, envy and strife and so on. These should not happen in the life of the saints of God and most definitely in the life of the church.

It is no wonder to me that so many who don't associate with the church have to scratch their heads when it comes to those who do. Paul is addressing this because it is a problem not because he is looking for one. The church that he has taught to the people of Galatia is far different from that which exists there. We read about those in positions of leadership who have committed many of these sins, including the sexual ones. Why? The simple answer is that because they are neither filled with or being led by the Holy Spirit but by their own avarice and greed. Shame on them but shame on us as well for letting them back into those positions.

We live in a time when the church hardly knows what a holy life looks like and should be like. Anything and everything goes, so long as a person claims Christ as a savior. I remind you that Christ said that not all who cry Lord, Lord will enter into the kingdom of God and Paul reminds us that those who do these things will not inherit the kingdom

God bless and go and have a great day.

Paul A. Kirby is the pastor at the Church of God at 3939 S. Emerson Ave.

According to International News Media Association, printed newspapers boast the highest amount of ad engagement by readers. While other mediums allow for the option to ignore or "skip" an advertisement, newspaper ads are built into the content. (inma.org)

Newspapers offer a lower cost per thousand readers than radio, tv and direct mail advertising. (mediaspectrum.net)

Loyal readers and niche audiences are easier to reach when you know the geographic area and circulation. (fedena.com)

*APR=Annual Percentage Rate. Your rate may be higher; auto loan rates based on creditworthiness, term and age/mileage of vehicle. Subject to underwriting guidelines. Receive $500 when you finance or refinance your auto loan with Financial Center. Minimum loan amount for $500 is $15,000. Auto loans under $15,000 will be eligible to receive $100 incentive. Incentive not available with refinance of an existing Financial Center auto loan. Incentive will be posted to your savings account upon receipt of automobile title with Financial Center's lien properly affixed. Title with Financial Center's lien properly affixed must be received by Financial Center within 90 days of closing to be eligible for incentive. All loans must be current and in good standing to receive cash payout. Incentive will be reported for tax purposes. Deferment of loan payment for 60 days will extend the life of the loan and interest will continue to accrue on the loan. Cannot be combined with any other Financial Center offers. Offer available through 8/31/2019.
