Johnson Memorial opens new emergency department, partners with Boone County Emergency Medicine

Johnson Memorial Health just opened a new 17,400-square-foot emergency care facility as part of its $47 million addition, the largest in Indiana, that includes more space, an ambulance bay and a helicopter landing area. A new main entrance and outpatient services center opened earlier this summer. In addition, Johnson Memorial has announced a partnership with Boone County Emergency Medicine, which began staffing and managing JMH's emergency department on July 1. BCEM also provides emergency care for Witham Health Services.

Indy Library Foundation receives Lilly grant for racial equity resources

The Indianapolis Public Library Foundation has received a $140,000 grant from Lilly Endowment Inc., which allows the foundation to purchase materials that explore race and racial equity issues. The new materials – 4,000 copies of 180 fiction and non-fiction titles in various formats, including books, e-books, audiobooks and videos for children, teens and adults – are available to students and teachers with library cards. Some of the physical books will be given to 100 school media centers, including Indianapolis Public Schools.

'A Safe Place'

By Nancy Price

About two years ago, Center Grove resident Summer Huber realized there was little support for foster families in Johnson County. Often, children show up at their new foster homes with little but the clothing on their backs. Some may have been victims of sexual or physical abuse, or struggle with suicidal ideation. The experience for both foster parents and children can feel lonely and overwhelming.

Huber and another acquaintance saw a need in their community and decided to do something about it. They started Resources of Hope (ROH) a 501(c) (3) nonprofit organization, to meet the physical and emotional needs of foster youth living in central Indiana. Initially, before becoming a nonprofit, ROH started as a clothing closet, then expanded to include training and support groups.

Creating A Community

"One of the biggest things is just creating that community of others who are going through similar situations," said Huber, founder and executive director of ROH. "You might have support from family and church members, but until you are connected with a community of others who are going through a similar situation, sometimes you feel the support, but you also feel isolated because they can't fully understand the challenges

Two Center Grove women help foster families with resources and support that you experience as a family, the heartache that when you have to say goodbye to a child, and so having someone that you can relate to you on that level of a foster parent has been really awesome."

"Foster families can't do this amazing, hard journey alone," added Sarah Weber, a foster parent from Columbus who's been helped by ROH. "Having an organization to turn to in those moments of need, whether physical or emotional, is so encouraging."

Located in Whiteland, ROH offers foster parent and community trainings, such as suicide and sexual abuse prevention, CPR/AED and First Aid; Morning Meet-Up, a support group for foster parents, Safe Family hosts and kinship/guardianship care; an annual Foster Family Back to School Bash; Recharge, an afternoon off for local foster parents; Birthday Blessings; and Teen Connect.

Birthday Blessings, which started in February, "is one of our newest programs that's been huge for a lot of families," Huber said. Birthday Blessings relies on donated gifts and financial contributions so that a foster child may receive either pajamas or a new outfit and a gift valued at $25. Birthdays and other special days can be challenging for foster children because "they're not necessarily with their real family. We want to help make that day special, giving an extra gift to a child that is going through a hard time," Huber added.

Teens Connecting

The Teen Connect program is for youth either in foster care, adopted or in a kinship placement for those ages 12-17. "The second Friday the boys meet, and the fourth Friday the girls meet, and we have quarterly coed meetings," said Ranae Furnee, a Center Grove resident and executive assistant with ROH. "We have all different kinds of events, from making wood kits to doing our nails to sporting events to self-defense classes; we even painted pumpkins. There are adult mentors that lead these classes. We just want to be an arm of support for these kids that need it."

"They are very supportive," said a foster teen, a Center Grove High School sophomore who attends Teen Connect. "It's just a really good place to come and relax for a few hours and talk to youth our age who have been through similar situations like us. It really gives us kids a time to really get to know each other. I've never had a place like this that I could come to. It feels very safe."

"Talking with girls from other similar backgrounds has definitely helped a lot," added Kat Huber, a junior who also attends CGHS. Kat was previously in foster care and adopted by Summer Huber in March. "We all get together and hang out. Our backgrounds don't really matter to us. I've met a lot of great girls through the program."

Donna Kempf, a foster mom from Center Grove, said both of her adopted teenagers have participated in the Teen Connect activities. "Both of them frequently ask about and look forward to the next event," she said. "I would consider Resources of Hope a critical part of our ability to adequately care for the children in our home. Their support and resources they supply are invaluable. We've even been blessed with volunteers bringing supplies directly to our home upon initial placement when we were unable to get out. This is unprecedented in any other business."

ROH will be hosting an inaugural golf outing on Sept. 18. Proceeds benefit local foster kids. For more information, go to resourcesofhope.org/golf-tournament. If you are interested in donating, please go to resourcesofhope.org.

Bum-rushed by a shadow figure in northern Indiana: it tried to evict me

HAUNTS & JAUNTS

By Rick Hinton

Paranormal investigators – those of a serious mindset – during their nightly excursions have one goal in mind: evidence. This evidence can be of an audio nature, temperature fluctuations, photo or video abnormalities and numerous communication devices with twinkling lights and buzzers. Yet, one grand experience remains – the sighting of a ghostly apparition!

Physical apparitions are a rarity, and the holy grail of any paranormal investigator. One may never witness this throughout their entire ghost hunting career. However, as a consolation prize, shadow figures seem to be a common thread as investigators spin their evidence web through the darkness of the night. It's like fishing; they seem to bite. And ... when bum-rushed by a shadow that is darker than the night, and seemingly as tall as a house, let the good times roll!

Shadow figures can be the size of a softball or as tall as a grizzly bear. They can take a somewhat human form or be like a mass of smoke. They most often follow the curious investigator, appearing at floor level, along a wall or even on a ceiling. We will most often catch a glimpse out of our peripheral vision, or on occasion, straight on. They are blacker than the surrounding darkness and can appear without a moment's notice. There have been reports of some shadow figures having red glowing eyes. Paranormal investigators, and common folks not inclined to seeking out spooky presences, have varied reactions to these sudden appearances. They either shriek and run; go into a martial arts defensive stance; or stand impassively and wonder what the hell just happened.

I had my first experience with one in a former Odd Fellows hall in northern Indiana. In the second-floor hallway, a tall thick shadow appeared at the far end and literally erupted into a bum-rush from one end to the other — in a nano second — passing through me and then disappearing like a whisper. I reacted, going into a defensive stance with my fists held up in the air. I held my ground, feeling that whatever it was wanted to evict me from the building. It didn't evict me that night, and I have returned to that location many times since without a repeat of this occurrence.

What did it feel like as it passed through? It was a cold air mass. Others have reported the same, in addition to a tingling like an electrical surge. It made the hairs on their arms stand up.

My wife, Laura has experienced shadow figures moving about our bed at home. She watched as it moved about the walls, moving from her side of the bed to mine as I snored oblivious to paranormal ramifications in my own home. The bedroom window is on the back side of the house, so no car headlights can enter to cause this effect.

Shadow figures. Some feel they are apparitions not fully formed. Some are of the opinion they are evil nasties with a hidden agenda. Others feel they were never human and in a category all their own. Yet, in the general scheme of paranormal investigations, they most likely are what you will encounter if you so choose to seek out a ghostly experience. Your reaction to this encounter is totally up to you.

Greenwood man honors local former athlete, fallen soldier by mowing flag in yard

FEATURE

By Nancy Price

A Greenwood resident chose to celebrate freedom last month by mowing his 4-acre lawn in the shape of the American flag – with 13 stripes and 50 stars.

Rob Merchant decided he wanted to honor a former middle school wrestler he coached many years ago: Jimmy Waters, a Whiteland High School graduate who joined the Army. Waters was killed July 1, 2011 in Afghanistan.

When Waters joined the middle school wrestling team as a seventh-grader, Merchant remembered him as "a super quiet kid, kind of in the shadows." Waters was not yet confident in his athletic abilities. However, when Clark Pleasant Middle School was set to compete at a match against Franklin Community Middle School, a team nearly impossible to beat, the coaches – including Merchant, worked intensely with Waters for a week before the match.

"We basically took it upon ourselves to be his partner," Merchant recalled. "It was a rough week – we pounded him and showed him techniques. As the week went on, he was stronger and better and more confident. He went into (the match) with confidence and knocked down the No. 1 team."

Merchant created stripes in the lawn by mowing in the opposite direction, which produced a darker green color, and used a paint sprayer for the stars.

Once word spread about the flag during a twominute segment on WTHR in Indianapolis, it was posted with 10,000 "likes" and 2,500 shares. "There were articles based on it all over the country," Merchant said. Then, "it was posted in Afghanistan and Cairo. I talked to the Smiley Morning Show (a local morning radio program on WZPL) the next day. It was a cool 15 minutes of fame for a few days."

To Merchant, "the flag means to be a better person today than you were yesterday. A better husband, a better father than you were yesterday."

Before 9-11 this year, he plans to create the shape of the Twin Towers and the letters NYFD to honor the New York Fire Department next to the flag.

James A. Waters Memorial Foundation

In memory of her son, Valerie Waters started the James A. Waters Memorial Foundation to honor Jimmy's passion for athletics. The foundation helps supply student athletes with equipment or funds they need to participate in school sports. The foundation has served approximately 200 athletes. The foundation is selling shirts as a fundraiser through Aug. 20. Short sleeve, crew neck, long sleeve, baseball shirts and a youth option are available in many colors. For more information, please visit the James A. Waters Memorial Foundation Facebook page.

Haunts & Jaunts author publishes book of paranormal and historical columns

FEATURE

By Nancy Price

Rick Hinton, author of "Haunts & Jaunts," a weekly paranormal column for The Southside Times, has published his third book.

Roads Well Traveled is a compilation of articles published in The Examiner and The Southside Times over the last six to seven years. "There are paranormal themed columns and those of a more historical/human interest nature not necessarily affiliated with the paranormal," Hinton said. "The majority of columns are based on my own experiences and observations."

The book is divided into three parts:

- PART ONE: Articles from The Examiner, in date order. The first article, from 2013, is about an alleged UFO hoax Gulf Breeze, Fla.
- PART TWO: About the state, Kentucky, that became inspiration for Hinton's passion into the paranormal world, and the demise of his mother.
- PART THREE: Articles from The Southside Times, in date order. The articles are revamped to a larger size.

Hinton became interested in the paranormal as a youth while visiting his grandparents in Kentucky and reading books by Hans Holzer, an Austrian-American author and parapsychologist.

One of Hinton's most haunting memories includes a trip to Waverly Hills Sanitorium in Louisville, Ky. "I heard things moving around me as I lay in a morgue locker, experienced my first doppelganger and watched a ghost in solid form make its way up the death chute towards us," he said.

Roads Well Traveled is a self-published book produced by Jerry Bennett of local Bennett Books. Last year, Hinton published his second book, The Fog of Youth, about teenage angst, love lost and found, music as a guiding light and relationships with friends and parents. His first book, Scouting the Boundary, was published in 2016 and is available on Amazon.

A second volume of Roads Well Traveled will be published in the future.

Roads Well Traveled is priced at $14 and The Fog of Youth costs $10. To request a copy of either book, email Rick Hinton at rhinton56@gmail. com. Cash or check is accepted. An additional $3 for shipping will be added to any book that is mailed. Please make checks out to Rick Hinton, Books may now be purchased from The Southside Times office at 7670 U.S. 31 S., Indianapolis, IN 46227.

My Life as a Zucchini (Original title: Ma vie de Courgette)

A tender, mature but accessible stop motion film

MOVIE REVIEW

By Bradley Lane

Animation has been stigmatized as both a medium for children and, in turn, a medium where stories must be dumbed down for that younger target audience. However, the best films in this medium almost all universally deviate from this trend. Pixar made a name for itself not just by blazing the trail of computer animation, but by telling stories oriented toward adults just as much as children. 2016's My Life as a Zucchini is a slight variation on this type of storytelling that, rather than attempt to tell a children's story for adults, tells an adult story through the perspective of children.

The film opens with a portrait of 9-yearold Zucchini's troubled home life, as he draws on the floor of a dingy attic surrounded by empty beer cans. This visual information becomes all the more troubling when soon after this scene, his drunken mother takes a tumble down the stairs and dies in a freak accident. Without a father figure in his home, Zucchini is left without a legal guardian and is taken into a foster home where he meets a group of similarly disenfranchised kids. These new friends quickly give way to a series of events that teaches Zucchini, and in turn the audience, the value of friendship, trust, empathy and found family.

At the heart of the film, complementing its gorgeously animated visual style, is a wonderfully crafted script from French cinema darling Celine Sciamma. It uses the perspective of the film wisely by not shying away from mature subject matter like abuse and suicide but interprets those ideas through the eyes of its cast of well characterized kids. By doing so, it makes the film approachable to younger audiences while maintaining its mature tone. But the film's greatest strength is that it uses the adult subject matter to encourage healthy dialogue between parents and children about these ideas.

Children will learn about mature content one way or another and with the proliferation of the internet, kids are learning about grown-up issues earlier and earlier in their development. The best thing you can do as a parent in this situation is expose kids to these ideas in a controlled environment, and in turn shape the narrative of these ideas in a healthy manner. The film makes an ideal setting for this dialogue as the strongest takeaways from the film are great lessons for children's development.

My Life as a Zucchini is a beautifully animated film that respects both children and adults enough not to dumb down a mature story for the sake of marketability. My Life as a Zucchini is currently available to stream on Netflix.

Junior Achievement survey shows most teens concerned about in-person classes this fall

According to a new survey from Junior Achievement (JA) by research firm ENGINE Insights shows that two-thirds of teens are concerned about attending school in person this fall. The survey of 1,000 teens between the ages of 13 and 17 was conducted in mid-July.

Despite concerns, 53 percent of teens report the quality of online classes from the spring was "fair" or "poor." Twenty-six percent stated they would prefer to attend school in person five days a week, while 36 percent prefer a blended schedule (attending school in person a few days a week and taking the rest of their lessons online). Thirty percent said they prefer classes exclusively online.

When asked about concerns for the future, the teens expressed the following:

- The quality of their education will suffer due to the pandemic (49 percent)
- They or a family member getting sick from COVID-19 (47 percent)
- Their dreams won't come true due to current circumstances (28 percent)
- Unable to have a job or career that pays a living wage (27 percent)
- Family financial situation worsening due to the economy (26 percent)
- Unable to provide for themselves or their families as an adult (21 percent)
- · Having to borrow too much for college (20 percent)
- · They or someone they know not being treated equally as adults (15 percent)

"These results show that our young people are just as overwhelmed and conflicted by current events as many adults are," said Jennifer Burk, president and CEO of Junior Achievement of Central Indiana. "At Junior Achievement, we are committed to providing young people with the tools, resources and support they need to navigate these uncertain times and strive toward a better future.'

Roundabout opens for traffic

Last week the roundabout at Churchman Bypass and Arlington Avenue opened for traffic. This constitutes a wonderful improvement for our city. INDOT and the Indianapolis Metropolitan Planning Organization have been very good to the city of Beech Grove. Now our focus is on the Thompson Road sidewalk project and the 2.2-mile greenway, which will change our city forever.

CORRECTION

Oops...

In the article, "Roncalli High School removes 'Rebels' nickname," in last week's issue, the correct spelling of the last name of Roncalli High School's interim president is Robeson. It was erroneously spelled as Roberson. As well, the correct spelling of the last name of Roncalli High School's principal is Weisenbach. It was incorrectly spelled a Weisenback. Also, the date the school announced its decision to explore the change of the nickname was July 22. In the article, it is listed as June 22. We regret the errors.

Overcoming challenges takes resilience, positivity and optimism

By Mike Heffner

In a normal business environment, it takes a ton of energy to develop a successful small business. It's even harder during a pandemic, economic turmoil and political unrest. So how do you press forward and find a way in times like these? You invest in optimism. You build a team and culture that focuses on moving forward. I often say, if you are not growing you are going backwards.

In a competitive environment, you will face all kinds of challenges, adversity, negativity, naysayers and failure. There will be times when it seems as if everything in the world is conspiring against you. There will be moments you'll want to give up. This is why optimism is so important.

Optimism drives innovation, creates jobs, and inspires people to think differently. It's what keeps your vision alive and allows the mission you and your team are on to be lived out. This may make you roll your eyes. All I can say is this, I have been through tough times before and these are the times when those that dig in and find a way – win.

Success belongs to those who believe in it. It takes resilience, positivity and optimism to overcome all the challenges. If you want to get control of your negative thoughts and stop them from spiraling into fear and pessimism, you may want to look at these three things:

- 1) Become self-aware What are you saying to yourself? Are your thoughts based on complaints, self-doubt, fear and negativity? Those lead to unhappiness, failure and unfulfilled goals. When you notice these thoughts, you should find a way to tap into your optimism. Your self-talk must be positive and lead to positive action. Find ways to fuel your mind with thoughts and phrases that give you strength and power as you look to overcome challenges.
- 2) Talk yourself through the fear Don't buy into the lies. Fear will lie to you. If you believe the fear-based thoughts, then everything around you will validate what you believe to the point where you eventually start to believe it. Instead of listening to the negative lies, choose to feed yourself with the positive truth. Go enjoy the outdoors, work out, tap into things that you love.

3) It's impossible to be grateful and stressed

- Research shows we can't be stressed and thankful at the same time. If you feel blessed, you won't be stressed. Spend time looking at the things you have – your health, friends and family. Spend time in meditation, prayer and reading material that lifts you up versus the news that will fill your mind with negativity.

Positive leaders invest their time and energy in driving a positive culture. I can tell you that I recently was caught up in the fear and negativity and had to find my way out. I did this by looking for optimism, belief and addressing the negativity that had become toxic in my mind.

PEER TO PEER

It's business as usual, and Hoosiers are back into spending mode

By Howard Hubler

Indianapolis is starting to become business as usual in many areas. While Indianapolis restaurants seem to be struggling, and many are yet to open, it seems as though the brethren in the outlying areas are opening and doing pretty well. Our state makes a tremendous amount of its income off of sales tax, my industry, automotive is booming and sending hundreds of millions of dollars' worth of sales tax to Indiana. We are an essential industry. However, we are running out of inventory.

The other day I went to a marina to purchase a small boat. The boat business is currently booming, and their inventory is also cleaned out. It seems to me that if the business is about home goods, groceries, residential remodeling, transportation or the great outdoors, it seems like Hoosiers are falling back into spending mode.

I try to be a student about this whole CO-VID-19 thing. I'm researching how many people are getting it, how many people are getting over it, how many people are dying from it. From what I can determine, younger people are getting it more, it's easy for them to pass it, somewhat like influenza, and then it seems to be over. It seems like hospitals are resuming business as usual and many other more filling up with elective surgeries.

We are looking at some future government initiatives to put money in more peoples' pockets. As mentioned last month, in my world the biggest issue is finding people to show up to work. It seems to me that more free money will be an incentive for more people to spend the rest of the year at home living off the plan.

I continue to have a heart for small businesses that are truly struggling or facing closure throughout this ordeal. I just pray that any other government handouts are focused for the highest and best use of our nation's needs; employers need to hire, and people need jobs.

NSDAR Samuel Bryan Chapter cancels Suffragist Celebration Walk

Activity cancellation – Due to potential spread of the COVID-19 virus in Beech Grove, the Suffragist Celebration Walk has been canceled. NSDAR Samuel Bryan Chapter invites the community to don a Suffragist ensemble and be present Aug. 3 at the Beech Grove City Council meeting when the proclamation from Beech Grove Mayor Dennis Buckley will be read into the record. The public may also stop by the Beech Grove Senior Center to view the Rightfully Hers display posters from the National Archives, in partnership with the Women's Suffrage Centennial Commission (WSCC) and see other reproductions on display. A display case is at the Beech Grove Library to focus on the faces that were in the fight for women's suffrage. You may seek out the selection of titles the library has to offer for all ages on women's suffrage, the right to vote and the 19th Amendment. NSDAR Samuel Bryan Chapter is working to reschedule the Celebration Walk for a future date. Details will be announced as soon as they are finalized. Visit their Facebook page at Suffragist Celebration Walk to "like" the page, leave a message or tell them if you favor planning a Suffragist Celebration Walk in 2021.

Grammar Guy columnist wins national honor

Recognition – Curtis Honeycutt, writer of the weekly humor column, "Grammar Guy" and author of Good Grammar is the Life of the Party: Tips for a Wildly Successful Life recently won second place in the print humor category in the National Society of Newspaper Columnists (NSNC) annual column contest. Honeycutt, whose column appears in 30 newspapers across the country, including The Southside Times, was slated to speak at the NSNC's annual conference in Tulsa in Junes. Due to COVID-19 concerns, the conference was canceled. Through his humor writing, Honeycutt previously received a grant from the Indiana

C. Honeycutt.

Arts Commission, a third-place award from the NSNC in 2018 and was named Humor Writer of the Month in August 2018 by the Erma Bombeck Writers Workshop. "Honeycutt's 'Grammar Guy' column is addictive, especially for wordsmiths and lovers of language," offered NSNC Executive Director and syndicated columnist Suzette Martinez Standring. "Learning better grammar is dressed in wit and laughter." With this latest accolade, the Grammar Guy columnist hopes to offer his self-syndicated column to more papers around the U.S. "This has been a challenging time to write for newspapers and publish a book, but I'm encouraged to receive this national appreciation from my fellow word nerds," reported Honeycutt. "Newspapers play a critical role in our local communities and I want them to succeed." Connect with him on Twitter (@curtishoneycutt) or at curtishoneycutt.com.

Kirchhofer to chair public health study committee, look at impacts of COVID-19

COVID-19 - State Rep. Cindy Kirchhofer (R-Beech Grove) will chair the Interim Study Committee on Public Health, Behavioral Health and Human Services, which will study the impacts of COVID-19. By Sept. 18, Kirchhofer's committee will receive reports from the Indiana State Department of Health, Indiana Family and Social Services Administration and Indiana Department of Child Services outlining agency plans for handling similar public emergency situations in the future and recommendations for potential legislation. Kirchhofer said her priority will be ensuring the state continues to respond to the pandemic appropriately and that Hoosiers remain safe and healthy moving forward. Kirchhofer will also continue serving on the Commission on the Social Status of Black Males and the Medicaid Advisory Committee. Committees will likely meet virtually this year to help limit the potential spread of the coronavirus, and details will be released in the coming weeks. Committee hearings are livestreamed online and then archived so they can be watched later at iga.in.gov. The full list of topics to be studied can be found at iga.in.gov.

Face masks required at Hornet Park Community Center

Health and safety – Face masks are required upon entering the Hornet Park Community Center. If you do not have a mask, a disposable one will be provided. This is not up for debate with our staff members. This is a Marion County Public Health Department and state mandate. Those unwilling to comply will be asked to leave. Thank you for doing your part to keep our staff and community friends safe and healthy.

Weekly Devotion

9 But, beloved, we are persuaded better things of you, and things that accompany salvation, though we thus speak.

10 For God is not unrighteous to forget your work and labor of love, which you have showed toward His name, in that you have ministered to the saints, and do minister.

11 And we desire that every one of you do show the same diligence to the full assurance of hope unto the end:

12 That you be not slothful, but followers of them who through faith and patience inherit the promises.

HEBREWS 6:9-12

It is my serious prayer that everyone who knows Christ Jesus as their personal Savior reads and understands this passage today. An evangelist friend of mind once told me years ago that it is not required that we all understand every dot of an "i" and cross of a "t" of the Bible in order to be saved. It is not. If that were the case none of us would make it to heaven. There are things that are difficult to be understood and, for that matter, even the Bible tells us that the ways of God are past finding out. Let me just say that God knows us all to the nth degree and He knows what motivates us and whether we are sincere Christians or not. He searches the heart and not just the mind.

He separates the sheep from the goats as only He can. I am so glad, as another evangelist put it years ago, "I am not a tare puller." He knows the wheat from the tares and has not called upon us to do this job. Our job is to cultivate the fields in which the wheat is growing. In the last day His angels will do the separating. I have always felt it my calling to encourage the saints to keep on and to endure to the end for the caution of Christ is that it will only be those who do who will be saved. All I know is what the Bible teaches me to teach and I do not want to know anything else. All of the scriptural confusion that exists today is because so many are listening to the wrong voices and it is for sure that I don't want to be one of those wrong voices speaking my opinions and not God's truth.

God does and will forever honor the labor of all who do that work for Him and to His great glory and for no other reason. It is not a popularity contest; if it were, I would lose out in all directions.

God bless and go and have a great day.

Paul A. Kirby is the pastor at the Church of God at 3939 S. Emerson Ave.
