WAMMfest raises $10,000 for local charities

By Nancy Price

Despite rain threatening the 11th annual WAMMfest last Saturday night, a healthy attendance for the fundraising event, celebrating wine, art, music and microbrew, helped to raise $10,000.

"Overall, we had a great turnout and couldn't have been happier," said Joshua O'Neal, Marketing Chair for WAMMfest. "We had a little hiccup at the beginning of the event with rain, but once that cleared out, all the WAMMfest festivities fired on all cylinders. Also, both attendees and artists expressed to us that the new layout was great.

"Being that WAMMfest is a charity event, we wanted to drive that message home this year with attendees as most do not know that 100 percent of the net profits go right back into our community. We presented checks, $10,000 in total, on stage to representatives of a few organizations and nonprofits that receive donations from The Sertoma Club of Greenwood, including Girls Inc., Habitat for Humanity, Hear Indiana and the Greenwood Parks Department."

1. Guests visited artists' tents that included paintings, pottery, photography, woodwork, clothing, accessories and more. 2. The Blue River Band entertained country music fans. 3. Music lovers were treated to local bands, The Windbreakers and Blue River Band. 4. The large attendance was helpful in raising $10,000 for local charities. (Photos by Darlene Harrison)

Digging up Dillinger: the conclusion?

HAUNTS & JAUNTS

By Rick Hinton

When John Dillinger's father was awoken with the news of his son's death, he stated quietly, "I knew this was going to happen. I've been expecting it for a long time." A father's grief turned into one of resignation. It was over. The Federal Government had spent more money trying to catch Dillinger than he ever stole. Eighty-five years have passed since that night when Dillinger took in the Clark Gable crime film, Manhattan Melodrama at the Biograph Theater, yet the years never fully silenced the rumors: it's not John Dillinger's body in that grave:

- DISCREPANCIES IN THE POSTMORTEM IDENTIFICATION RAISED SOME ANTENNAS. The non-match of eye color (his eyes were blue/gray while the corpse's were brown. Was it a pigment change upon death?).
- THE EAR SHAPE WAS OFF, and there was a protrusion from the head not associated with Dillinger.
- INCONSISTENCIES WITH PRIOR MEDICAL RECORDS. Noted was the existence of a rheumatic heart condition he did not have and signs of a childhood disease.
- THE CORPSE HAD A FULL SET OF FRONT TEETH. Dillinger was missing his right front incisor.
- FINGERPRINT ISSUES. Dillinger had tried to remove his prints with acid. The FBI claimed they had gotten a good enough read to determine it was Dillinger. Or had they?
- THE FBI WAS UNDER EXTREME PRESSURE TO BRING HIM IN. They, and lead agent Melvin Purvis' bungling of Dillinger's escape from the Little Bohemia Lodge in Wisconsin, resulted in civilian casualties. It was an embarrassment to the bureau, nearly costing J. Edgar Hoover his job. He was ordered to capture him alive; that didn't happen. Thus, the stories begin – the FBI staged the whole event, or knew it was the wrong guy.
- A GUN – A SMALL COLT SEMI-AUTOMATIC – on display for years at FBI headquarters and allegedly in Dillinger's possession that night was not his, and actually manufactured after his death. (He reportedly was reaching for it as he ran. Being Dillinger, I would expect that he had a gun on him at all times.)

- THERE WERE MANY CLAIMS FROM THOSE WHO KNEW HIM THAT THE BODY IN THE MORGUE WAS SHORTER AND HEAVIER THAN DILLINGER. A barber familiar with his hair claimed it was too thick.
- MANY FELT THAT THE MAN SHOT OUTSIDE THE THEATER WAS A DILLINGER LOOK-ALIKE and petty criminal, Jimmy Lawrence. Dillinger had been using the pseudonym Jimmy Lawrence for some time around Chicago.
- A SCAR ON HIS FACE WAS NOT PRESENT AT AUTOPSY. (However, Dillinger had recently paid $5,000 for plastic surgery to remove several moles and scars and to fill in his cleft chin. He had also dyed his hair black)
- DILLINGER'S FATHER INITIALLY CLAIMED THAT THE BODY WAS NOT HIS SON. Then he became rather quiet about it. Yet, his half-sister Frances positively identified the body as that of Dillinger after seeing a characteristic scar on his leg, a result of being shot in Minneapolis.

There was the talk about John's father's actions of reinforcing the grave. Was it just to protect anyone from tampering with the body or did he know it was not John buried in that grave and wanted to prevent it from ever being dug up?

The story has taken a twist that could change everything. The conclusion has been put on hold. It now involves what the family wants ... and doesn't. We'll explore next week.

The academy is an engaging, yearlong learning experience for participants who were either nominated by the principals or who submitted an application to join. Over the school year, administrators will provide academy participants with a transparent look into each area of running a district, including academics, finance, operations, transportation and more. During the first class, participants learned about the district's unique, diverse population, proven academic growth, their award-winning culture and received introductions to building principals. The conversation was a two-way dialogue. The group asked thoughtful and insightful questions regarding student academic growth.

A SAFE PLACE TO LEARN

Perry Meridian senior creates one-of-a-kind sensory room for students with special needs

By Stephanie Dolan

To attain the honor of Eagle Scout, a Boy Scout must meet certain requirements, including the completion of a service project that demonstrates both his leadership skills as well as his commitment to duty.

A senior at Perry Meridian High School has completed his service project in the interest of earning the rank of Eagle Scout. His name is Kevin Waggoner, he's 17 and – before the school year began at Abraham Lincoln Elementary School – he installed a sensory room to be utilized by and for students with cognitive, emotional and physical disabilities.

"I was looking for a project, and I was originally going to do a handicapped playground," he said. "I researched the prices for that, and it was way more than I could have raised in the amount of time that I had. One of my best friends' mom was the occupational therapist at Abraham Lincoln Elementary, and she said they needed a sensory room. I started researching that, and we decided that's what we were going to do."

"I was very excited when I heard about this," Abraham Lincoln Principal John Sponzel said. "This room really was kind of a dream of ours. We had a room for sensory here, but it just had a few items in it. It wasn't conducive to a process where you walked in the room and knew exactly how to support students. Now the room is user friendly."

"They actually have one of the largest amounts of special needs children in the whole township," Waggoner said.

Waggoner set up a Go Fund Me page to get the fundraising going for his project.

A HEART FOR SPECIAL NEEDS

"It really surprised me how easy it was and how quick it was," he said. "In two weeks, I had raised $3,500. A lot of it was from people I'd never met before but who were involved in the special-needs community. There was a lot of outreach from the community that really helped that out."

The room consists of a light area with lighted tables and a bubble panel on the wall along with several manipulative boards. Some have magnets and others have ball drops and other tactile devices. There is a workout area where students can get their energy out and includes an exercise mat, Bosu ball, trampoline and a swing. There are also bookshelves filled with many toys and devices.

"Every area is color coded with a rug that corresponds with whatever mood a student might be feeling,” Waggoner said. “If I’m feeling energetic and need to get some energy out, I’ll go over to the orange rug.”

“On a regular basis I would say we have between 50 and 60 students who use the room on a regular basis,” Sponsel said. “We hold three of our life skills classes in the room. These are special education classes for those with more severe cognitive needs. But we have been trying to support all our students both socially and emotionally. This has become a major need for our building. Sometimes a student just has a bad day and is struggling just getting in the right frame of mind for learning. This room provides a safe spot and helps them learn to the best of their ability.”

From start to finish, Waggoner said the whole project took about six months.

“I started fundraising in January,” Waggoner said. “I raised the money and had to wait for the ‘go ahead’ from the school. It was the end of May through mid-July that we were working on it, and we finished it in July. It was an old computer lab so it’s a pretty big room.”

BIG PROJECT, BIG PLANS

This may have been a big project, but Waggoner is used to projects as he’s been a scout since the age of 5. And, next year, he plans to enter the military, most likely entering the Naval Academy, before studying law.

“I’ve learned how to be an effective leader and a good citizen, and I think just a well-rounded individual,” he said. “It’s taught me a little bit of everything.”

Waggoner also said he’s always been cognizant about the issue of disability because he had a cousin with special needs.

“I grew up around him,” he said. “I knew of that issue. I would tell people that they just need to be more aware of those people – I guess just try to do more – maybe other schools can start rooms similar to this. It doesn’t have to be an Eagle Scout project. It can just be a group of kids who want to do something nice for the community and want to do something like this.”

Waggoner’s cousin passed away in 2015, and he said that this room is also certainly dedicated to his memory.

While sensory rooms in public schools are not unheard of, they are more typically found in private or specialized schools.

“This is the first room of its kind for public schools on the Southside,” Waggoner said. “I hope the students who use the room can enjoy their time in school more than they would have and develop the skills they need to be successful in their life.”

Waggoner also said that the creation of this sensory room would not have been possible with the help of the Perry Township community.

“The whole Southside really,” he said. “And the staff of Abraham Lincoln Elementary School.”

“Abraham Lincoln Elementary wants to be the model for other schools on social and emotional awareness, and we want to be that model school on how to support students socially, emotionally and academically,” Sponsel said. “We want to be a well-rounded school in serving the whole student and not just what they get through math or language arts.”

“This room provides a safe spot and helps them learn to the best of their ability.”

ISDH reminds parents of school immunization requirements

Health & Safety – The Indiana State Department of Health (ISDH) is reminding parents that immunizations are an essential part of getting ready to go back to school. School immunization requirements have changed for the 2019-20 school year. Two doses of the hepatitis A vaccine are now required for grades K-7 and 12. Two doses are recommended for all other grades. In addition to these requirements, ISDH also encourages parents to make sure that their child is current with all recommended vaccines, including: an annual influenza vaccine; the human papillomavirus (HPV) vaccine; and two doses of the meningococcal serogroup B (MenB) vaccine for students entering grade 12. Some Indiana universities require this vaccine for incoming students. A complete list of Indiana school immunization requirements is available at state.in.us/isdh/17094.

Southside graduate flies high as an athlete, global volunteer and pilot

FEATURE

By Angela Morefield

A recent Franklin Central High School graduate is flying high with hard work, hopes and dedication.

Ethan Olnick, a recent Franklin Central High School graduate, is now attending Trine University, studying Social Studies Education. Olnick was a model student, excelling in academics and graduating with a GPA of 3.89. Olnick was a star soccer player for Franklin Central High School and Club Soccer. "My favorite high school memories is when I played soccer with my best friends in high school, and I loved every second of it," he said. "There are so many memories that I never will forget."

Olnick played a total of 32 games for Franklin Central High School, with a total of 30 points, 13 goals and 16 shots. He was named player of the game in August 2017, September 2017 and August 2018. In 2000 Olnick played a year with Club Soccer. "We had an undefeated season and won the state championship. We also made it into the group stages of the regional tournament in Saginaw, Michigan," Olnick said. "It was by far the most fun season of soccer I've ever played, and I am so happy I got to do it with my best friends."

Olnick is also a student pilot and is currently working on his instrument ratings to be able to fly in more circumstances such as low clouds. Olnick took his first flight in September 2017. "Being a pilot is very hard work, but it is also very rewarding; there is nothing better than being up in the clouds, and I have been so blessed by my parents that have given me the opportunity to make my dreams a reality," he said.

Ethan's plans for the future are to attend Trine University in Angola, Indiana, while at the same time working on what he needs to become a professional pilot.

Olnick has traveled to Uganda twice to volunteer to help and work at the African Hospitality Institute, a school that teaches hospitality to its students.

"For his first trip to Africa (he just returned Tuesday from his second trip), he learned that the hospitality school they would be visiting was in need of a refrigerator," said Dayna Brady, Grants Administrative Associate from Nina Mason Pulliam Legacy Scholars. "He took it upon himself to order bracelets from Mud Love and sell them to raise money to purchase the refrigerator. He raised over $2,000 and presented the school with a check. Of course, the school was ecstatic and couldn't believe a teenager could accomplish that goal."

Olnick travels to Uganda to help residents with different things, but most importantly to show them love. They often come from broken homes, or sometimes no home at all. "What most of them need more than anything is to feel like they are special, and are loved, and we try and instill that in them," Olnick said. "It is a blast." He also plays soccer almost every day with the students from the school and the people in Uganda. He will get to know the students by hanging out and talking with them. "They are the coolest, most loving people. It is really a special place and I'm am so blessed to have been there," Olnick said. "I'm hoping to go next summer. I can't wait to go back."

Indiana National Guard soldier dies at Fort Hood

Indiana National Guard
Headquarters

An Indiana National Guard soldier on orders as an embedded observer controller/trainer with Army National Guard Operations Group Wolf died at Fort Hood, Texas Thursday night in a tactical vehicle accident.

Staff Sgt. Andrew Michael St. John, 29, of Greenwood served as an infantryman with Company B, 1st Battalion, 151st Infantry Regiment, Indiana Army National Guard.

"For those who knew and worked with Staff Sgt. St. John, he was respected and admired for his great love for his country and family," said Lt. Col. Chad Pittman, commander of the 1st Battalion, 151st Infantry Regiment. "He continually sought ways to ensure the success of subordinates, better himself as leader and contribute to the achievements the organization. My deepest sympathy for his family at this sad and difficult time."

The cause of his death is under investigation and no further details are available at this time.

St. John previously deployed to Iraq and Afghanistan. Awards and decorations include the Army Commendation Medal, two Army Achievement Medals, the Army Reserve Components Achievement Medal, the Army Good Conduct Medal, the NATO Medal and Indiana Military Volunteer Emblem.

St. John was a father and husband. Indiana Governor Eric Holcomb issued the following statement:

Janet and I offer our heartfelt condolences to the family and friends grieving the loss of Indiana native, Andrew St. John, who passed away Thursday evening at Fort Hood in Texas. He served with distinction and was known as someone who always put others above himself. I ask all Hoosiers around the state join us in honoring his service and ultimate sacrifice to our state and nation.

Community bands from across the state to perform free summer concert

FEATURE

By Nancy Price

What began as a small music festival featuring a few community bands in the state five years ago has grown into a day-long event of back-to-back entertainment from hundreds of musicians gathering to the Greenwood Amphitheater on an annual basis.

Community Concerts in the Park, hosted by the Greater Greenwood Community Band, will be playing this Saturday from noon to 8 p.m. Eight community bands from all across Indiana will be performing a full spectrum of music, from big band, swing/dance and a variety of jazz to British brass, popular show tunes, marches and theme songs from TV shows.

“We will play some traditional and familiar tunes,” said Martha McQueen, member of Greater Greenwood Community Band. “Some songs, the audience may not recognize the name when they read the programs, but once we start playing, they will recognize the song. Our lineup includes “Semper Fidelis” (a march), selections from the movie soundtrack, The Greatest Showman, “Curtain Call,” “Clarinet Candy” (a song featuring the clarinet section), “Bugler’s Holiday” (a song featuring our trumpet section), “Explorations,” music of The Beatles (a medley of favorites), “Shenandoah,” (a great American folk song) and “Highlights from the Patriot” from the movie, The Patriot.”

The light-hearted, upbeat summer concert may appeal to children of all ages, according to McQueen. “It is a wonderful way to expose children to music,” she said. “For those young listeners in their school bands, they can see that music is something that they can participate in years after they graduate from high school. For our non-musician audience members, they can sit back and tap their toes.”

The band lineup includes the Indianapolis Symphonic Band (noon), Crossroads Brass Band (1 p.m.), Starfighters Big Band (2 p.m.), Hamilton County Community Band (3 p.m.), Terre Haute Community Band (4 p.m.), Madison Community Band (5 p.m.), Bloomington Community Band (6 p.m.) and the Greater Greenwood Community Band (7 p.m.).

Steve Roskowski, board president of the Greater Greenwood Community Band, said the central Indiana site and sound quality from the Amphitheater are draws for the growing concert’s popularity. “Being the Southside of Indy, it’s easy to get to from anywhere throughout the state, the Amphitheater has great projecting sounds and Greenwood has a long history of being a musical city,” he said.

“The band is looking forward to hosting this event for our community,” McQueen added. “The city of Greenwood has been very supportive of our efforts. We thank the city for providing this beautiful venue. In the past, visiting bands have complimented our venue. People who may not be familiar with Greenwood can see what a nice place Greenwood is.”

Guests attending the free concert are welcome to bring their own food and drinks or purchase a meal consisting of a burger or hot dog, chips, a drink and dessert for $5. “This is the cheapest date you can go on,” joked Roskowski.

Fans, especially younger ones, of the Greater Greenwood Community Band can look forward to the next concert on Sept. 22, also held in Greenwood Amphitheater. Selected music will appeal to children, who can interact with musical instruments and enjoy an evening of face painting, balloons and a petting zoo.

For more information about the Greater Greenwood Community Band, including concert information and details about the band’s trip to Ireland next year, go to greenwoodband.org.

The band also has future plans for small breakout ensembles, including woodwinds and brass quintets, and is seeking vendors where musicians can perform. For questions or more information, please email ggcband@gmail.com.

Beech Grove Chamber presents annual Music on Main

FEATURE

By Angela Morefield

Looking for a night of local family-friendly entertainment without spending a dime?

Look no further than Music on Main. The popular summer concert will be held this Saturday on Main Street in Beech Grove. "Music on Main is an important event for the chamber; not only does it promote local business, it is a free event that brings the community together," said Renee Harlor, Executive Director of the Greater Beech Grove Chamber of Commerce.

This summer concert features local and regional musical talents such as Tony Walker and the 2nd Half Band, 90 Proof, and Full Moon Dogs. Not only is this a community event; it attracts visitors throughout central Indiana. Visit food trucks such as Dem Kentucky Boyz BBQ and Kona Ice and have a treat with the music. Kids can enjoy a kids zone with fun games and crafts, a bounce house and face painting. Browse unique arts and crafts, jewelry, health products, a beer garden and about 40 vendors.

Music on Main is a free, family-friendly way to spend a summer Saturday night in Beech Grove. Music on Main is sponsored by The Greater Beech Grove Chamber of Commerce, Oak Street Health, The Tea Room of Rustic Root, Beech Grove City schools, Henthorn Agency, Mayor Dennis and Patty Buckley, Beech Bank Brewing Company, Whalen Realty Group, Franciscan Health, Cricket Wireless, Eckstein Shoe Store, Villa Baptist Church, Spalding jewelry, Peterman heating, cooling & plumbing, JE Brown Electric, and Newcomer Funeral Home.

Fall into some outdoor fun in September

The days are getting shorter and fall is just a month away, but don't mourn the loss of summer just yet. The Southside has some fun outdoor events for you to look forward to after Labor Day.

Golf tournaments:

Mini golf fest for kids: The Greenwood Kiwanis Club will host its third annual Firehouse Day golf fest, featuring putt-putt golf and other children's activities with prizes. The Greenwood Fire Department and Sparky the Fire Dog will be giving tours of fire trucks. (Sept. 14 at Otte Golf & Family Fun Center)

Perry Services & Friends Golf Outing:

Enjoy a day of golf, lunch/dinner, prizes and education from sponsors. All funds raised will support Perry Senior Services. (Sept. 25 at Winding River Golf Course.)

Opera:

Opera in the Park: Friends of Garfield Park is partnering with the Indianapolis Opera for a free concert, featuring the Indianapolis Opera Chorus and the fall 2019 resident artists and special guest soloists, Angela Brown and Daniel Narducci, conducted by new Artistic Advisor to the Opera, Alfred Savia. Bring a picnic dinner or purchase food available from Prime 47-Indy's Steakhouse. (Sept. 8 at MacAllister Amphitheater.)

Food tour:

Fountain Square Food Tour: Taste international dishes and contemporary Midwestern fare while learning the area's history. Don't feel guilty about the calories: you'll be walking them off for three hours. (Saturday afternoons, meeting in front of the Pioneer Family Fountain.)

Farmers Market:

There's still plenty of time to pick up fresh produce and other goods sold from local vendors, including baked items for your fur baby, at Beautify Beech Grove Farmer's Market. (The parking lot of South Emerson Church of God on Tuesdays from 3-6 p.m.)

For more information, please see the Night and Day Calendar of Events on pages 16 and 17.

STARS & STRIKES ON THE SOUTHSIDE

The Southside Times is all about people and our community. What do you like in your neighborhood? What don't you like? Who has done something nice, no matter how small, and should be recognized? Email your "Stars and Strikes" to news@ss-times.com.

★ Star: to a number of Southside students making a difference in their community and worldwide, whether through fundraising for a sensory room to assist students with special needs or helping others in Third World countries by providing food, clothing and needed equipment in schools.

⚡ Strike: to the loss of Staff Sgt. Andrew Michael St. John of Greenwood. St. John was killed last Thursday in a tactical vehicle accident at Fort Hood, Texas, while on orders as an embedded observer/controller with the Army National Guard Operations Group. He received a number of awards and decorations, including the Army Commendation Medal, two Army Achievement Medals, the Army Reserve Components Achievement Medal, the Army Good Conduct Medal, the NATO Medal and Indiana Military Volunteer Emblem.

★ Star: to the annual Music on Main, presented by the Beech Grove Chamber of Commerce, this Saturday from 4-9 p.m. on Main Street in Beech Grove.

TOP 10 WRONG WAYS TO KICK OFF THE EMPLOYEE MEETING

By Torry Stiles

10. "Can I skip the meeting? I'm pretty sure I'm getting canned before lunch."
9. "I'm not going to yell but it won't matter because I have nothing useful to say."
8. "The HR department will be out of the office on a leadership retreat to the Bahamas. The sales team is at a convention in Las Vegas. Management has asked you all to gather in the break room to watch a safety video."
7. "The company encourages all of us to support our fellow crew members with things like a bridal or baby shower. Setting up a GoFundMe for a paternity test is not appropriate, however."
6. "When I call your name just say, "here," and not, "get stuffed."
5. "Quick show of hands: how many of you will still have a job here tomorrow?"
4. "Paychecks may be a bit late this week unless someone here knows where the bookkeeper went."
3. "As part of this company's desire to respect the religious diversity of our team Mr. Johnson will say a brief prayer, then Mrs. Scott will sacrifice a lamb."
2. "Joey! This is the third time this month that you're the reason for a safety committee meeting."
1. "You're going to feel a little pressure."

Mayor Hogsett recognizes Financial Center First CU for financial literacy

of Financial Center receiving its fifth national award for adult financial literacy by the Credit Union National Association (CUNA). Mayor Hogsett first recognized Financial Center in 2017, when the city of Indianapolis declared April 10 Financial Center First Credit Union Day. "In 2017, when the mayor first recognized our efforts, we were providing financial education outreach to 3,000 Hoosiers. This year, we have helped over 9,000," said J. Kevin Ryan, President and CEO of Financial Center. "Financial literacy is who we are, and we will continue to find new ways to reach individuals who are in need of financial education."

Southside author publishes The LaSalle Street Murders

Local author – Carol's Adventures car show promoter and local author, Carol Sissom, has added another book to her series: The LaSalle Street Murders, making a trilogy of the high-profile murder that rocked Indianapolis back in 1971. The LaSalle Street Murders: The Twist is currently available at local public libraries and will be for sale at book outlets soon. Besides the LaSalle Street series, Sissom has authored a variety of books, including Miracles Really Do Happen, Banking with Dillinger and Who Murdered Chynna. She has written for various local and national magazines and performed stunts as a television anchor and talk show.

Where'd You Go, Bernadette An intimate character study plagued by cliché

MOVIE REVIEW

By Bradley Lane

Writer-director Richard Linklater is one of the most enigmatic and well-rounded directors working in the Hollywood studio system today. Beginning his career with the cult classic 70s nostalgia trip Dazed and Confused, Linklater went on to bounce back and forth between making art house gems and mainstream classics. The same person who directed the sprawling 12-year shoot of Boyhood delivered the comedy classic School of Rock. He adapted legendary science fiction author Phillip Dick's novel, A Scanner Darkly, into a rotoscope animated film specifically to utilize the form to more properly communicate the ideas of the novel. This is all to say, Richard Linklater can write and direct any movie he chooses to take on despite stylistic, genre and tonal differences, all while maintaining a unique signature throughout his filmography.

His newest project is an adaptation of a novel by Maria Semple centered around an artist who must reckon with having put her career on hold in order to raise her daughter. Bernadette Fox is a well-to-do former architect married to a successful tech developer, with a straight-A student at one of the best elementary schools in the nation. From the outside it seems as though she has it all, but beneath her many layers of irony and general disinterest in the people around her, she is suffering. It is this unique suffering that the film focuses on, and that ultimately leads to the disappearance of Bernadette Fox.

First and foremost, the standout attribute from the film, like with most Linklater films, is the detailed and naturalistic writing from Linklater. His writing brings so much depth in the dialogue to every character on-screen. Unfortunately, while the dialogue does shine through, the events as they unfold seem suspicious in motivation, and often feel as though they rely on trite plot conveniences to move the story along. This can most likely be attributed to having to adapt a larger work to the confines of a two-hour runtime.

The titular Bernadette serves as not only the focus of the story, but also as the main vehicle for the messaging of the film. This puts a lot of pressure on Cate Blanchett to deliver a performance that is emotive, but not over-the-top as to cheapen the film's themes. This is exactly what Blanchett does, and she makes it look so easy. Blanchett disappears into Fox and without such a strong performance from her, the film would be much weaker. This in part to the frankly, underwhelming presentation of the film. Despite some beautifully shot architecture, the film's look is bland and homogeneous with any run-of-the-mill Hollywood drama.

Even with these flaws, I found myself shedding a few tears as the credits rolled. The film is a bit of mixed bag, but it is ultimately effective in conveying just how important it is for artists to push forward through trials and tribulations.

Bradley is a Beech Grove High School alumnus and has been enamored by film for as long as he can remember. He is currently in his third year studying at IUPUI, majoring in Media and Public Affairs with a minor in Film. Bradley can be contacted at blane2214@gmail.com.

Apply sunscreen – early and often – especially if you’re a redhead

GRAMMAR GUY

By Curtis Honeycutt

Did you know that redheaded people only make up 1-2 percent of the world's population? There's a reason we are so scarce: the sun. I'm that person who can get a sunburn on a cloudy day. People have been known to get secondhand sunburns by just standing near me outside on a sunny day. I'm so white I get a moonburn. I'm like a vampire or something – I step out into the light of day and basically just burst into flames. This is why I always apply sunscreen; I apply it early and often.

If you noticed, I used a few adverbs just now (always, early, often). Not only did I employ a handful of adverbs, but I used a handful of adverbs of frequency. Adverbs of frequency describe how often something happens. They include always, usually, sometimes, never, frequently, often, then and weekly. And, I have more good news for you: adverbs of frequency come with their own set of rules.

When your sentence has more than one verb, use your adverb of frequency before the primary verb. Here's an example: I have often received a sunburn during the month of November. Here, we sandwiched our adverb of frequency (often) between our the bread slices of our sentence's two verbs (have and received).

If your sentence contains only one verb, place your adverb of frequency after your subject and before your verb. Curtis never tans. He always wears a swim shirt to the pool.

We use adverbs of frequency to signify things that happen on a routine basis. Because of this, we usually employ these adverbs with the present simple tense.

If you want to "throw shade," as the youths say, when you're using an adverb of frequency in the negative while forming a question, place your adverb before your primary verb. Are you normally so angry, or are you just like this on days that end in "-ay"?

Most of the time, place definite adverbs of frequency (including finally, last week, today, monthly and already) either at the beginning or at the end of your sentence. When the adverb is the focus of your sentence, save it for the end: I will do the laundry tomorrow. When it's not the emphasis of your sentence, use a definite adverb of frequency at the beginning: Sometimes I wonder if I'll ever do laundry again.

Practicing good grammar – much like applying sunscreen – is a fantastic life decision. I encourage you to do it early and often.

WHY PRINT?
ENGAGEMENT
 According to International News Media Association, printed newspapers boast the highest amount of ad engagement by readers. While other mediums allow for the option to ignore or "skip" an advertisement, newspaper ads are built into the content. (inma.org)

AFFORDABILITY
 Newspapers offer a lower cost per thousand readers than radio, tv and direct mail advertising. (mediaspectrum.net)

TARGETING
 Loyal readers and niche audiences are easier to reach when you know the geographic area and circulation. (fedena.com)
