Emmanuel Church named fourth fastest-growing church in America

Outreach Magazine has named Emmanuel Church as the fourth fastest-growing church in the U.S. in 2020 in its annual "Outreach 100," through collaboration with LifeWay Research. A survey is sent to thousands of U.S. churches seeking attendance averages for February and March (excluding Easter weekend). Numbers are then compared with the previous year, and churches are ranked, factoring numerical and percentage growth. Emmanuel's average weekend attendance grew 26 percent from 2019 to 2020, reaching 5,723 people across its online campus and four physical campuses in Johnson and Southside Marion counties.

Two area haunted attractions to open this weekend

Nightmare on Edgewood opens Friday night
 Nightmare on Edgewood opens this Friday with two new thrilling attractions: The Cinema, where guests find themselves stepping directly into their favorite scenes from iconic horror movies; and Conley Farm, a dilapidated barnyard and stable crawling with violent and grossly deformed farmhands, the unfortunate victims of hazardous farming chemicals.

Asylum House to open on Bluff Road this weekend

Asylum House will open every Friday and Saturday evening 8 p.m. to midnight through Halloween night. The new Asylum House Haunted House is at 6611 Bluff Road, Indianapolis, in the former roller skating rink. Tickets are available at the door or in advance at theasylumhouse.com.

ss-times.com/two-area-haunted-attractions-to-open-this-weekend

This year, Asylum House owner Patrick Greathouse will honor friend and former "Captain Spaulding" Robert Bettcher Jr. on the Southside Halloween scene with a portrait in the Asylum House Funeral Parlor Room. Bettcher passed away in November of 2018. Greathouse had a "zombified" portrait made of Bettcher for display in this year's Asylum House haunted attraction. Bettcher was featured on the front page of The Southside Times Oct. 24, 2013. (Submitted photo)

When pets are silent witnesses to the paranormal

HAUNTS & JAUNTS

By Rick Hinton

A reboot from 06/09/2016

Do you recall these occasions? Sweetie the pooch, or Studs the cat, suddenly turning their attention very intensely into a corner of the room, staring with a fixed gaze? Maybe there's a low growl from Sweetie, or hair standing up on the back of Studs as his tail twitches across the floor. A dark, empty barn produces nervous side stepping from the horses, with their tails twitching like fans. You are oblivious and see nothing, rationalizing it's just some kind of animal thing. It could be. Or maybe you have just experienced something of a paranormal nature and didn't make the connection.

Animals have a heightened sense of awareness. It is thought we humans once did also, but generally grow out of it after our childhood. Animals, however, don't grow out of it. They see and hear things that you and I never will. I don't know how it works; it just does. Is it a type of sixth sense that places a different spin on what we consider normalcy? Or ... are there things just behind the veil only privy to them? It makes a sort of sense.

There are paranormal groups that use dogs in their investigations. I haven't heard of any groups using felines, which I get. Cats could care less about helping you and have no desire to expand beyond their daily routine of food and long naps. Dogs, however, will most often let you know if something fishy is going on. If it's something of a supernatural nature, they generally go on high alert; or shrink back trembling and become useless. They can't vocalize what is happening but are sure entertaining to watch. I tried a dog once. He was on continual lookout for something to eat and begged snacks, pooped on the floor (twice) and had a strong desire for someone to rub his stomach continuously. He just wasn't into it! I haven't used one since.

I did think for a while that I had a paranormal cat. Years ago, Casey – the cat of wonder – would plant herself in the front bedroom of our mobile home (my newborn son's room) and stare transfixed at a painting of Jesus kneeling in the Garden of Gethsemane. Frankly, to see her sitting in the dark and staring at the picture for hours creped me out, yet I was determined to figure it out. Had Casey become a Christian puss? What exactly was going on in a cat's mind? I sat with her in the dark one night and possibly came up with a solution. Passing traffic headlights from the street outside played through the bedroom window shades, moving briefly across the glass of the picture. Debunked! I relocated the picture and the mystery was solved. It didn't, however, explain the voices coming from this room over the baby monitor. Casey was of no help in that area.

Presently, I can only imagine what transpires in our compound on Southport Road with Norm the dog (deceased) and Jerry the cat. It seems to be a house of "secrets." Paranormal quirks are almost a daily occurrence, and both animals are here all day alone. At night, they huddle with the humans and stare into a world we cannot see. They react to something just behind the shadows.

If only they could speak...the stories they could tell!

Rick Hinton, a Southport resident, loves researching things that go bump in the night. His articles can be read on Facebook: Rick Hinton, Southport Paranormal Examiner. Hinton conducts paranormal investigations with his team, South Central Paranormal.

OUR SEVENTH ANNUAL PET LOVER'S EDITION

More than 90 percent of pet owners consider their pets as part of the family, according to petpedia.co. Additionally, 90 million dogs are kept as family pets, with cats making up 88 million. As well, more than 95 percent of Americans buy their pets gifts during the holidays. Our first-place winner, Stella the cat, proudly displayed her most prized fashion accessory: her hat. (Wait, isn't it supposed to be The Cat in the Hat, not the hat on the cat?) In second place is Mini, a sweet 10-month-old Mini Labradoodle. Luna, a Chiweenie (a cross between a Chihuahua and Dachshund), is a beauty that placed third. Thank you to our readers for submitting photos of their amazing pets.

Antebellum Shamelessly derivative Get Out clone flops hard

MOVIE REVIEW

By Bradley Lane

Again, film lovers find ourselves in the midst of the industry adjusting to the fact that for the foreseeable future, movie theaters will not be safe enough to attract crowds large enough for any big-budget film to be profitable. In attempts to quell both financial losses and outcries from audiences disappointed by the delay of films with previously planned releases, Lionsgate films is releasing Gerard Bush and Christopher Renz's socio-political horror film Antebellum on a digital release. The results of the writing and directing pair of first-time filmmakers is a disappointingly boring slog through an hour-and-a-half of watching paint dry, culminating in nothing more than a tired pastiche of modern horror's biggest hits over the last five years.

Janelle Monáe stars as Veronica, a successful writer and advocate for black and poor people, who becomes suspicious of those around her. This story is mysteriously tied into the opening of the film set on a Confederate-controlled plantation during the Civil War where a newly purchased slave, Eden, also played by Monáe, adjusts to life on the brutally violent farm.

If that synopsis seems short or even vague,

I would tend to agree with you, but that is just because nothing happens in this film. The first half is filled with brutal violence and questionably employed sexual assault against our principal character before we can even identify with them. Then, in the second act, the audience is introduced to an entirely different character who does get some characterization but besides the most rudimentary of verbal exposition, this never actually amounts to any more than communicating that she is smart, kind and doing important work.

The most infuriating thing about Antebellum is that the marketing clearly attempts to imitate and capitalize off the works of other, more thoughtful filmmakers. The poster touts the film as being from the producer of Get Out and Us, but besides Sean McKittrick serving as one of six producers, the films share no other connection. This becomes self-evident when examining the messaging and targeted critiques of each of these films.

Jordan Peele's Get Out identifies white suburban liberals as a problem for black liberation because in order for black people to truly be free and equal with white people, it requires a change in the status quo that provides liberal America its economic security in the U.S. Similarly, Peele's Us centers on a subjugated section of poor people rising against, and ultimately overthrowing, their unwittingly oppressive upper-class counterparts. Here the message is clear that a lack of class consciousness is an obstacle facing disenfranchised Americans. Antebellum is a film severely lacking in similar levels of adeptness in its messaging that ultimately can be boiled down to, some white people are evil racists and they are bad because racism is bad.

No person needs to be told racism is bad; adults know that racism is bad. Additionally, when the systems that suppress black and poor people are boiled down to bad people doing bad things, it causes more harm than good. When these issues are detached from the context that drives those systems of oppression, it only does more harm in bridging the gap to understanding one another. This is painfully ironic because understanding one another could be the only solution to the issues this film set out to help solve. Antebellum is available to rent from all video on demand platforms.

Bradley is a Beech Grove High School alumnus and has been enamored by film for as long as he can remember. He recently graduated from IUPUI, with a degree in Media and Public Affairs with a minor in Film. Bradley can be contacted at blane2214@gmail.com.

Getting a flu shot is more important now than ever before

By Diana Morales-Zelaya M.D.
Family Medicine Specialist
Eskenazi Health

Medical experts have stated accurately for many years that one of the most important things we can all do when the leaves start to change color is to make sure to get a flu vaccination.

The flu is a contagious respiratory illness caused by influenza viruses that infect the nose, throat and sometimes the lungs. The flu causes mild to severe symptoms including, but not limited to: fever (or feeling feverish/chilled), cough, sore throat, runny or stuffy nose, muscle or body aches, headaches, fatigue, vomiting and diarrhea. It can cause mild to severe illness, and complications can lead to hospitalization or death.

In any given year, only around half of all Americans receive their flu shot, with many not knowing that the vaccination may reduce the severity of the infection, even when the vaccine doesn't prevent the influenza virus itself.

As the coronavirus pandemic continues to worsen in some parts of the country, public health leaders are urging as many people as possible to be vaccinated against the annual flu virus.

It's anticipated that flu viruses and the virus that causes COVID-19 will both spread this fall and winter, and health care providers may be swamped in having to treat patients who contract either one of the two afflictions. This means getting a flu vaccine during 2020-2021 is more important than ever before.

While there is no evidence suggesting that flu shots will prevent you from contracting the coronavirus, flu vaccinations can prevent you from getting both viruses at the same time, or getting one after the other before the body has had time to recover.

Eskenazi Health is encouraging everyone to receive the flu vaccine this fall at all Eskenazi Health locations, and to support accessibility to the flu vaccine, a vaccination task force has been created. Eskenazi Health has worked hard to ensure all patients can receive the vaccine. The vaccine is now available throughout the Eskenazi Health system. Patients are encouraged to visit any Eskenazi Health pharmacy location to receive the vaccine. No appointment is needed. Patients must be 3 years or older to get a flu shot at a pharmacy location.

Patients with regularly scheduled appointments are encouraged to receive the vaccine at that time. Efforts have been made so that all areas of Eskenazi Health can provide flu vaccines regardless of the service the patient is receiving. In addition, Sandra Eskenazi Mental Health Center is partnering with our pharmacy to be able to provide flu vaccines during patient visits.

According to the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention, flu vaccines prevent millions of illnesses and flu-related doctor's visits each year. For example, during 2018-2019, flu vaccination prevented an estimated 4.4 million influenza illnesses, 2.3 million influenza-associated medical visits, 58,000 influenza-associated hospitalizations and 3,500 influenza-associated deaths.

Getting vaccinated yourself may also protect people around you, including those who are more vulnerable to serious flu illness, like babies and young children, older people and people with certain chronic health conditions.

People who believe they may have been exposed to COVID-19 should contact their health care provider immediately. If you are ill with flu-like symptoms such as fever, cough or shortness of breath, please call your health center or clinic before coming to your appointment. At Eskenazi Health, please call (317) 880-7666 before coming to your appointment.

Health care professionals are available 24/7 to answer questions on symptoms and direct you to the most appropriate care. It is important to first call before arriving at Eskenazi Health.

Weekly Devotion

8 But Noah found grace in the eyes of the Lord.

9 These are the generations of Noah: Noah was a just man and perfect in his generations, and Noah walked with God.

GENESIS 6:8-9

Grace is a subject as old as time itself. It prevailed in behalf of Adam and Eve and continues to prevail in our time as well. God is the God of grace, which means that it is His desire to find reasons to save us. This is what drives Him to continue to reach out to us. I have often heard (and I have experienced it to be true) that grace is unmerited favor. In other words, you cannot earn the grace of God, otherwise it would not be grace but debt. God is in no way indebted to us. He owes us nothing and, for that matter, if we got what we deserve we would all spend eternity in the lake of fire separated from Him. No, God's grace continues to be offered and will continue to be offered until the end of time.

Verse nine tells us that Noah was a just man and perfect in his time. The word just means that he was a man who sought to do the right thing in every instance. I don't know if he did but because of His faith in God and walk with God, God saw him as a just man and that is what is important to us. There are those who do this same thing today. They seek justice for all. They seek to be just in their relationships, which means that they intend to be equitable in them. They do not lie or cheat or lust after what is not theirs. They know that their lives are blessed by God and that, this being true, they have what God wants them to have and they find peace in that. In other words, they are content with godliness and thus, as Paul puts it, they have the joy of grace in their lives. To walk with God is the goal, isn't it? To walk the walk of Christ is the mission. To do this and be happy and content. The gift of grace cannot be done without God's empowerment day by day. His grace is worth more than all of this world's wealth. If you have it, cherish it. If you don't have it, seek it. God wants you to have it.

God bless and go and have a great day.

Paul A. Kirby is the pastor at the Church of God at 3939 S. Emerson Ave.
