Indianapolis International Airport earns accreditation in response to pandemic

Airports Council International has certified Indianapolis International Airport (IND) with an Airport Health Accreditation. IND is one of just eight airports within the United States to receive the designation as a healthy airport in response to the pandemic. Airports Council International assesses an airport's compliance with new health measures and procedures, including cleaning and disinfection, physical distancing (where feasible and practical), staff protection, physical layout, passenger communications and passenger facilities. IND is also noted as one of the cleanest airports in North America.

The wise and knowing eyes of Norm Hinton. I see ghosts! (Photo by Rick Hinton)

Burning down the house: a firm conversation with our house ghosts

HAUNTS & JAUNTS

By Rick Hinton

I had a business trip to Dallas a few years back when our dog Norm was still alive. Like clockwork, whenever I left, the house acted up. Now, you might think that a dog's barking is par for the course, and usually I would wholeheartedly agree. However ... it was those other little things in the mix which got my attention.

Laura stated the house had not felt right. She sensed a presence (she does this quite well). It was a weird energy, yet not threatening she felt. However, she chose not to go into the lower level of our home to watch the 2016 presidential debate on the big screen TV, rather deciding to view it on a smaller TV upstairs; something was going on down there, she claimed. There was Norm's barking – short little warning yips – as he locked his attention upon a wall down there. Laura had known this dog for 10 years and was well familiar with his personality. She had never heard this tone of bark before as it carried on from 8:30 to 10 p.m. all three nights I was gone. Jerry the cat was relatively new and was upstairs with Laura, looking at her as if to say, "I'm not going down there!" When her foot hit the steps to the lower level the barking would stop.

Our grandson Michael used to stay over three nights a week. He asked Laura one day if our house was haunted. He told her that one night his bedroom door swung open on its own. He got up and peered into the hallway – no one was there. While I was on that Dallas trip, Laura was escorting him upstairs to bed when the TV she was watching switched itself off. Jerry the cat was nowhere near the controller.

On Thursday nights Laura and I were in the Public Safety Citizen's Academy. That particular night we were meeting at IFD Station 9 in Castleton. Coming back home on I-465 we ran into road construction. Laura was on the phone with her son John, who at that moment was not a happy camper. The house didn't feel right, along with the creepy feeling of the hairs on his arms standing up. Norm had resumed his tirade of yipping in the lower level. Jerry the cat was with John on his bed. Laura sensed urgency as she spoke to him. He stated he wasn't scared ... more disturbed than anything. We were at a standstill in traffic, inching our way southward. Then he said, "Your bedroom door just closed!" From his bed he could see our bedroom door in the hallway. He watched the door swing shut (not easy due to thick carpeting) hard enough to latch. When we finally made it home, the bedroom door was indeed shut. Norm looked at us with a smile and a wagging tail.

The next day, with the house all to myself, I had a firm conversation. It was long overdue. Boundaries needed to be set. If we were to continue to coexist, then it needed to toe the line in silent lucidity. For reasons known only to my brain, the band the Talking Heads hypnotizing drum cadence from their song "Burning Down the House" played repeatedly in my head as I moved through the levels of the house during "our" talk. I do believe we arrived at a compromise.

ONE LOVE CHARITY

Two Southsiders start nonprofit in memory of friend who died of COVID

By Stephanie Dolan

Penney Bray, of Indy's Southside, has been an accountant for the state for 13 years. During that time, she was also a member of the Beech Grove Moose Lodge. This is where she met Terry Sellars.

"I've known Terry for going on two years now," Bray said.

Together, the pair have started a new nonprofit, One Love Charity, Inc.

"When we decided to do One Love, our whole point and aspect to it was to help people who are in need," Bray said. "I've had some very hard times being a single mom and not working. I don't want anyone to go through the struggles that I had to. I'm hoping that One Love will get up and going to help people who are truly in need. I think right now is the perfect time for One Love to make things a little bit easier for others. I think I've accomplished what we've set out to do."

"I've lost three brothers to cancer, and you walk around this city and you see people all over the place who need help," Sellars said. "What little bit we can do to help someone else is advantageous to everyone. I've always been a giver, per se. We want to try to make a small difference if we can."

A SUCCESSFUL FIRST FUNDRAISER

This past October, One Love Charity, Inc. held a car show for St. Jude Children's Hospital and raised over $6,000.

"It was phenomenal," Sellars said.

"We had an amazing turnout," Bray said. "We never anticipated it would be as big as it was. It was held at Manual High School, and we developed a really good rapport with them. We'll be holding our annual car show to benefit St. Jude at Manual from now on."

Bray and Sellars were also inspired by another friend who would have been a third team member at One Love, Roberta Shelton, otherwise known as "Birdie."

INSPIRATION FROM A LATE FRIEND

"We met her through (Beech Grove) Moose as well," Bray said. "She is the one who inspired me to do fundraisers. I just sat back and watched her. She did a lot of celebration of life and fundraising for people who didn't have money to bury their family members. It amazed me how she dedicated hours on end to do raffles to make sure families had money to bury their loved ones. She and I talked about it, and she said that I could do the same. I just started doing the same thing she was doing. I had a fundraiser for my sister last September. We had a phenomenal outpouring of love and support. It went very, very well, and I'm just grateful that everyone we reach out to has a giving, loving heart and wants to help."

Sellars said that Shelton was one of the first people in the state to pass away from COVID.

"Birdie was a very good fundraiser and was a great friend of Penney's," he said. "Her death affected a lot of people. When Penney and I talked about this, Birdie was going to be a part of it as well, but COVID took her away from that. That's a tragedy. She was a very giving lady."

March 16, 2021 will mark one year since Birdie passed.

"At that time, I'm going to host a huge celebration of life in honor of Birdie," Bray said.

But that's not One Love's only plan for the future.

THANKSGIVING BLESSINGS

"We'll be blessing four families for Thanksgiving," Bray said.

One Love Charity, Inc. will be providing Thanksgiving dinner to four families in need this Thanksgiving.

"We will also be doing raffles for Christmas fundraising," Bray said. "I've been trying to find a place to do a craft fair but with COVID I can't rent out clubhouses and it's been difficult to get that done. Trying to get people together with COVID guidelines – it's been very difficult and a challenge. We're going to do Facebook raffles, and getting One Love a website is also on my to-do list."

"We hope to be able to give and help people as much as we can," Sellars said. "That's the goal of any charity is to be successful at what they do. I hope for a very successful year of One Love in our community."

Bray said that, so far, she's been blown away by the outpouring of love and support from the community in One Love's fundraising.

"I'm forever grateful," she said. "I hope this will be ongoing."

"One Love is a very new charity," Sellars said. "We could use all the support and volunteering that we can get from community members. We plan on doing this for years to come."

Donations can be made through Teachers Credit Union under One Love Charity, Inc.

Southport resident turns 100 on Halloween

FEATURE

By Amy Moshier

If you ever wondered what it would be like to grow up as the 11th out of 12 children, ask Marjorie Galloway, who recently turned 100 years old. The age range from the oldest to the youngest in her family was 31 ½ years.

Galloway has resided at The Wellington at Southport for seven years and turned 100 on Halloween. Her advice to others? "Always do the right thing," she said.

Galloway ran track in seventh grade. "She was a very fast runner," said Cindy Daniel, sales director at The Wellington. Galloway did not attend school past the eighth grade.

Her father was a sharecropper. "Marjorie started cleaning houses at the age of 12," Daniel said. "She earned $1 a day."

She married at age 17. Her husband was 22 when they married. "Marjorie couldn't remember how she met her husband, but her son mentioned that one of her other sisters had gone out on a date with him," Daniel said.

"Galloway was a very hard worker," said Daniel. According to Daniel, Galloway and her husband of 53 years built the house they lived in. "They lived in the basement while they worked on the floors above," she said. "They were a very poor family. They did not have a telephone until 1958. Her father-in-law gave them a television in 1947.

Galloway's husband passed away in 1992. She took care of him at home until he died, Daniel said.

Galloway also loved to garden. She grew both flowers and vegetables and canned the vegetables, especially green beans. Galloway reported that irises and roses were her favorite ones.

"Her son tells me she was able to snap off a rose stem, soak in water and then re-plant in soil," Daniel said. Galloway also drove a tractor until she was 92.

Additionally, Galloway and her husband planted over 60 apple trees and several cherry trees on their property. She would only use Jonathan apples, and, according to her family, "she made the best apple pie ever," Daniel said.

Galloway enjoys attending church services at The Wellington, according to Daniel. She was raised in the church and loved to sing hymns with the congregation. Her family chose The Wellington at Southport and found a "kind, friendly and welcoming community," Daniel said. "Marjorie loves our soup of the day option!"

Former Perry Township administrator and coach achieves 40-year daily running milestone

FEATURE

By Angie Antonopoulos

For more than 40 years, Southside resident Steve Dial, 81, has laced up and run 1 to 2 1/2 miles every day – before dawn.

It's a commitment the former assistant principal for Perry Meridian Middle School made to himself on Sept. 14, 1980, when his friend and neighbor Hal Cole wanted a running buddy. "It feels pretty good," Dial said of reaching his 40-year milestone. "Every single day I run at least a mile," added Dial, who used to coach boys track at Perry Central Junior High and Southport High School. "You realize you can do it. I look forward to starting my 41st."

Whether it's raining, snowing or he's on vacation, Dial maintains his stride. He has run in Hawaii, Alaska, the British Isles and Europe as well as places with high elevations in the United States, such as Breckenridge, Colo. and the Great Smoky Mountains. To combat the cold weather, he doubles up and wears snowmobile gloves.

He wakes up every morning at 4 a.m. to run, mainly in the neighborhood he resides, splitting his year between Indianapolis and Tucson, Ariz.

Dial began running as a junior in high school and won the county sectional and became the No. 1 runner in cross country. Through his track and field experience, he earned a full ride scholarship at Ball State University to run cross country and graduated with a bachelor's degree and master's degree in health and physician education. He became the No. 2 runner his junior and senior year in college and broke the school's record in the 2-mile run with a 950.5 – 9 minutes and 50.5 seconds in 1962.

"I am very proud of my dad's accomplishments," said Chris Dial, Steve's son. "He is an inspiration to our entire family. Dad has encouraged my boys, Ryan and Alec to run and they are currently enjoying a great year on the Perry Meridian Middle and high school cross country teams."

Steve's wife, Marilyn Dial, said her husband's early start time began mostly because of his work as assistant principal. "He had to get up early and showered before the teachers called in for substitutes." The start time didn't change after retirement. She recalled how challenging it was when they took a river cruise in Europe. "He did a 2 ½ mile run on the walking course," and woke up a few people below deck, Marilyn said, chuckling.

Before running daily, Dial ran a few days a week and even ran during the Blizzard of 1978. "He looked like Dr. Zhivago, with frosted eyelids and frozen tear ducts," Marilyn recalled. She said the whole family is active and does anything fitness. "We walk, hike and bike all the time."

Dial thanks his mentor, the legendary Southport High School Coach Tom Hathaway for his approach to coaching and life. "You don't give up. It's like anything; it's going to take work," he said.

Most of all, Dial said, he enjoys the satisfaction of a daily run. "I still feel like I have a lot of wind," he said.

Hunger and homelessness don't stop for the holidays

National Hunger and Homelessness Awareness Week, held annually the week before Thanksgiving, serves as a reminder that hunger and homelessness don't stop for the holidays, but continues all year long.

In the U.S., 43.1 million Americans live below the poverty level, and one in five of those are children.

Food pantries, shelters and other service organizations need support. Supporting local organizations help people find jobs, permanent homes and treatment when needed.

Several Johnson County organizations are providing a Thanksgiving meal to those in need:

- The Refuge: Clients of The Refuge have signed up to receive a box that includes all items needed for them to prepare a typical Thanksgiving meal at home. The drive-through pickup is held Nov. 24, from 6-8:0 p.m. at The Refuge.
- Johnson County Banquets: A carryout or delivery Thanksgiving meal is free to all Johnson County residents at Scott Hall in Johnson County Fairgrounds in Franklin on Thanksgiving Day, Nov. 26, 11 a.m.-1 p.m.
- Greenwood VFW Post 5864: A Thanksgiving meal including turkey, sides, rolls, dessert and soft drinks and coffee will be provided Thanksgiving Day, Nov. 26, noon to 3 p.m. by Greenwood auxiliary member Beth (Martin) Vidales.

After Thanksgiving, the Franklin Rotary Club invites those who would like to help raise money for Interchurch Food Pantry and the Johnson County Good Cheer Fund to a drive-through meal. The club is hosting its annual Jim Memorial Hog Roast at Scott Hall in the Johnson County Fairgrounds on Dec. 3, 11 a.m.-1 p.m. All proceeds will be split between Interchurch Food Pantry and the Johnson County Good Cheer Fund, which uses funds to provide assistance to food-insecure Johnson County families during the holiday season.

ANNIVERSARY

Dick and Marilyn Ellis celebrate 65th wedding anniversary

Dick and Marilyn (Hohn) Ellis will observe their 65th wedding anniversary Thursday, Nov. 19. The couple met while attending Southport High School in 1950 and were married in 1955 at St. John's United Church of Christ. Mr. Ellis attended Butler University and served in Germany with the U.S. Army. He was in the typewriter business for 42 years, retiring in 1998 after owning King Typewriter for 35 years. Mrs. Ellis was secretary for the Indiana Department of Agriculture and the University of Indianapolis before retiring in 1998 as a Senior Administrative Assistant with Eli Lilly & Co. The couple have three children: Vicky Hurley, Lisa Fleming and David Ellis; four grandchildren; and five great-grandchildren.

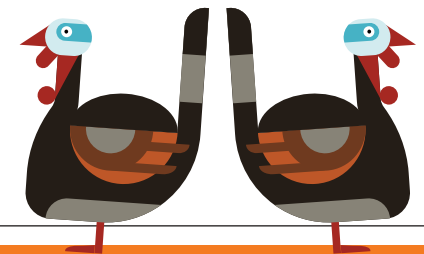

HUMOR

Top 10 changes for Thanksgiving 2020

By Torry Stiles

10. Attendance limitation means you won't have a kid's table to complain about.
9. After dinner everyone will go downtown to see the lights and new spray-painted slogans.
8. Holiday travel will consist of going to your bedroom to get on your computer.
7. Forget hairstyles and recipes. The women will be comparing face masks and home manicure techniques.
6. Family members will be judging your life choices on Zoom instead of in person.
5. Grandma is cracking into the rum balls and spiked punch before the celery tray is laid out.
4. Limited capacity rules on the stores will require that Black Friday shoppers battle for a place in line. Steel chairs allowed.
3. You stand a good chance of getting some deviled eggs when it's time for seconds ... provided you made deviled eggs, of course.
2. Far fewer slightly drunk uncles fighting to watch a football game.
1. When Santa appears in the Macy's parade all seven folks in attendance will go crazy.

Perry Kiwanis and Changing Footprints are 'Connecting with the Community'

By Nancy Price

Perry Township students and their families in need have a reason to be thankful over the holidays, thanks to the generous spirit of local community partners and volunteers.

The fourth annual Connecting with the Community event was held last Saturday, Nov. 14 at Southport High School. Volunteers handed out nearly 250 coats and 537 pairs of shoes to families, who stayed in their cars this year due to COVID. "The giveaway was very successful," said Scott Splichal, Perry Township Kiwanis co-president and vice president of Changing Footprints, a 501 (c) (3) nonprofit organization which collects donations of gently used or new footwear to give to those in need.

"When I started this event, I saw there was a great need to help the kids and their families in Perry Township Schools," Splichal said. Perry Kiwanis mentors students from Southport and Perry Meridian Key Clubs. Many of these students were on hand to help during the event, as well as a committee consisting of Stephanie Quinlan, assistant director of student services for Perry Township Schools; Splichal; and Kathy Niemcewica of Changing Footprints; and Dale Nordholt, co-president of Perry Kiwanis. Debbie Isenberg of Perry Township Schools also assisted during the event.

Organizations that donated this year included Gleaner's Food Bank; Kids Coats of Hamilton County; monetary donations and donuts for volunteers from Long's Bakery; monetary donations and drinks from Perry Kiwanis; Support The Girls, a nonprofit for feminine hygiene items; Changing Footprints; the 500 Festival, donating mini-marathon shirts; Bubba's 33, giving pizzas to volunteers; Kim's Kakerly, donating cookies; a monetary donation from Wishing Well Fund; wooden toys made by Central Indiana Woodworkers that were donated from Servant's Heart of Indy; and socks from Bare Feet from Martinsville, Ind. "Their generosity was overwhelming," Splichal said. "Because of monetary donations, I was able to order hats, gloves, mittens and hoodies to supplement coats."

"I want to personally say 'thank you' to all those involved who gave their time to make this a great yearly event, especially Stephanie Quinlan for her exceptional organizational skills," he added.

Thanksgiving and your pet: use good sense when giving holiday treats

DR. JEFF'S MEWSINGS

By Dr. Jeff Ambrous

As we head into the holiday season, it is time to think about those things for which we are thankful. I am thankful for our many wonderful clients and their beloved dogs and cats who we get to see grow through the years.

It is for that reason that I am making this small list of things to avoid giving our four-legged friends as we enjoy our own Thanksgiving feasts.

BONES:

This is probably one of the first things that comes to mind when you think of what dogs like to chew. Turkey bones can splinter and easily irritate, puncture or even block your dog's digestive system.

RAW FOOD:

While a small amount of lean, cooked turkey might seem like a good treat, dogs and cats are susceptible to salmonella poisoning due to undercooked or raw food.

BREAD DOUGH:

The heat from your pet's body can cause the dough to rise and cause pain and vomiting.

OVEREATING:

A bit of cooked turkey and/or potato might be OK, but overdoing it can cause trouble. Feeding too much of a food that is not the regular diet can cause vomiting or diarrhea.

Remember that even though we love our pets we need to use good sense when giving holiday treats.

Dr. Jeff Ambrous practices at South 31 Veterinary Clinic and can be reached at (317) 788-0893.

■ DROGON

Drogon is a 3-year-old male. He is very affectionate and does well with other cats. His adoption fee is $80.

■ MIA

Mia is a 1-year-old terrier mix girl who came from a hoarding situation and is so shy she hides in the back of her kennel in the shelter. Outside is where she can truly be herself with someone she trusts. So sweet! Her adoption fee is $450.

■ BUSTER

Buster is a 1-2-year-old pit mix. He would not do well with small kids or cats (he is too hyper and needs some training for basic manners) yet he is nice to all people and loves to walk and play! His adoption fee is $150.

■ MAZE AND MAXWELL

Maze and Maxwell, our dynamic duo! This pair isn't fully ready just yet but should be in about two weeks! They are a bonded pair and their fee is $600 for the pair.

■ BUDDY

Buddy is a 3-year-old male and does well with other cats. He's affectionate and loves sunbathing in the window. His adoption fee is $80.

■ ZEEK

Zeek is a 2-year-old coon hound mix. He is a very smart, gentle boy! His adoption fee is $250. He would not do well for a household with cats.

Rosie's Southside Animal Shelter gives a lot of medical attention to their animals, especially dogs. Our shelter rarely turns down a senior dog in need. Our senior panels we do for any animal over the age of 8 years costs $110 alone. That doesn't count the meds needed, the vet visits, surgeries, vaccines, de-wormers, flesh and heartworm prevention. Our basic workup for the animals include age-appropriate vaccines, two to three rounds of de-wormer, flea and heartworm prevention, microchip and registration included in adoption fee, spay/neuter, heartworm tests for all dogs over 6 months, any needed surgeries for all animals in our care, grooming for those who need it, FIV/FELV tests for all our cats and kittens and rabies vaccines for all animals over 12 weeks old. We also assure that we will ALWAYS take our animals back no matter how long they have been gone. Rosie's Southside Animal Shelter is at 1614 W. Edge-wood Ave., Indianapolis, IN 46217. Hours are noon to 4 p.m. daily on Sunday, Monday, Wednesday, Thursday, Friday and Saturday; the shelter is closed on Tuesdays. The phone number is (317) 781-0755. AN OPTION

Rise & Shine Breakfast House

Rise & Shine Breakfast House is a small, family-owned business and likes to extend that "family feel" to its customers and community by providing an affordable "home cooked" meal. The restaurant provides breakfast and lunch every day of the week from 6 a.m. to 3 p.m. Pancake options are endless: banana pecan, strawberry, cinnamon swirl, peaches and cream, chocolate chip and whole grain wheat. In addition to crepes, waffle combos, French toast, omelets and skillet, there's honey chicken and waffles. For lunch, there's a variety of sandwiches, including the Frisco melt and California chicken club, as well as burgers, wraps, soup and salad. Locals can't get enough of the biscuits and gravy. "The best biscuits and gravy around," stated a reviewer. "The portions are very generous and yummy! The staff is attentive and kind." "The place is clean, quick service, excellent staff and the food is amazing! Delicious," according to a second review.

French toast topped with slices of banana, drizzled chocolate syrup and a dollop of whipped cream. (Submitted photo)

Spider-Man: Into the Spider-Verse

The definitive Spider-Man for the whole family

MOVIE REVIEW

By Bradley Lane

If you are anything like me, you are tired of seeing superhero films dominate the box office. In recent years superhero films have become increasingly uninspired and homogenized in their presentation, story and direction. Films in Marvel Cinematic Universe are especially unremarkable because they require a continuity that demands them all to stay grounded in the same reality and style of previous films, forcing them to eventually all look and feel like the same increasingly uninteresting film we have all seen before. This leads us to 2018's standout superhero film, Spider-Man: Into the Spider-Verse; because it is not a part of any preexisting cinematic universe it is given an incredible amount of freedom to take interesting, bold and completely worthwhile risks.

Spider-Man: Into the Spider-Verse takes place in a universe parallel to our own. In this universe we follow Miles Morales, a giftedly intelligent and creative teenager as he develops powers like his hometown hero, Spider-

Man. However, Miles finds himself struggling with his identity as a new Spider-Man after the death of the original Spider-Man shortly after developing his own powers. Luckily, an alternate dimension Spider-Man, more jaded and exhausted by heroics, crosses path with Miles in his journey to complete the original Spider-Man's mission and reluctantly agrees to teach Miles how to be Spider-Man.

Everything about this film should not work as well as it does. The over-the-top comic book animation style should take away from the more serious moments in the story, the decision to base the movie around a character unfamiliar to non-comic book reading fans should alienate new audiences, and the numerous amount of characters should take away from the larger story. But it all just works. Not only does this film balance an enormous cast of interesting and developed characters, but it also stays accessible to kids with a great role model in Morales and keeps the story grounded with a moral center that is sure to inspire children and adults alike.

One of the most important messages Into the Spider-Verse sends to its impressionable audience is the idea of developing a unique identity. Retracing the steps of an older Spider-Man doesn't lead to Miles becoming a hero; rather, it is only when he takes the lessons he has learned from Spider-Man and combined those with his own identity that he comes into his own as a hero. This works both as a great message for kids, but also functions as a commentary for the film itself. It borrows from Spider-Man films before it, while creating its own visual and tonal identity, to make something entirely new and original.

Spider-Man: Into the Spider-Verse is not content with being just another superhero flick and takes necessary and innovative steps to separate itself from the currently oversaturated market, all the while remaining massively entertaining fun for the whole family. Spider-Man: Into the Spider-Verse is available to stream on Netflix.

Bradley is a Beech Grove High School alumnus and has been enamored by film for as long as he can remember. He recently graduated from IUPUI, with a degree in Media and Public Affairs with a minor in Film. Bradley can be contacted at blane2214@gmail.com.

GRAMMAR GUY

By Curtis Honeycutt

I've never heard of an "aunt-in-law," but I know it's a thing. The beauty of having a spouse's aunt or uncle in your family is that you have every right to call them by his or her first name, unlike your in-laws, who get to dictate how you address them. Today's linguistic inspiration comes from my wife's Aunt Julie, all the way up in Bemidji, Minn. Thanks for the idea, Julie!

Aunt Julie pointed my interests to paraprodsokians, which are figures of speech in which the second part of the sentence makes you do a double-take, changing the meaning from what you thought based on the first part of the sentence. I'll explain in a minute. But first, it's important to know that "paraprodsokian" comes from the Greek, and it means "against expectation." The first known use of the word parapro-dokian in print is from an 1891 article in the British humor magazine Punch.

Paraprodsokians turn our brains into scrambled eggs, and the result is delightful. I knew Grammar Guy readers (who are card-carrying word nerds) would appreciate learning about these twisted figures of speech. One of my favorite paraprodsokians is from fellow columnist and Okie, Will Rogers, who famously said, "I don't belong to an organized political party. I'm a Democrat." Regardless of which side of the aisle you find yourself, that's funny.

Since you're reading a newspaper (or some digital zeros and ones version of it), I'll share another paraprodsokian from another columnist, Mark Twain: "If you don't read the newspaper, you're uninformed. If you read the newspaper, you're misinformed." We'll see if my editor keeps that one in or not!

Many of the most notable paraprodsokians come from comedians, who make a living playing with words. Rodney Dangerfield quipped, "When I was a kid my parents moved a lot, but I always found them." Comedian Steven Wright joked, "On the other hand, you have different fingers." If you read that too fast you won't get it.

Paraprodsokians often contain unexpected truths. Oscar Wilde wrote, "When I was young, I used to think that money was the most important thing in life; now that I am old, I know it is." John F. Kennedy famously said, "You know nothing for sure ... except the fact that you know nothing for sure." Now go forth and use your words to confuse, surprise, entertain and inspire people — just don't try to do it all in the same sentence.

Pre-registration required for COVID-19 drive-through testing sites

COVID-19 testing — As the demand for COVID-19 testing increases, the Marion County Public Health Department requires that anyone seeking a test at one of its three drive-through testing locations must be pre-registered in order to receive a test. "Over the past several days, we have seen a significant rise in the number of people visiting our COVID-19 testing sites," said Virginia A. Caine, M.D., director and chief medical officer of the Marion County Public Health Department. "Registering in advance will result in shorter lines and a shorter wait time to get tested." To register for free COVID-19 testing through the Marion County Public Health Department, please visit MarionHealth.org/indycovid. Residents who do not have Internet access, or need help completing the online application, should call (317-221-5515). COVID-19 testing sites offered by the Marion County Public Health Department include: MCPHD Main Building, 3838 N. Rural St. Mondays, Tuesdays, Thursdays and Fridays, 9 a.m.- 4 p.m. and Wednesdays, 9 a.m.- 6 p.m.; MCPHD South District Health Office, 7551 S. Shelby St., Tuesdays and Thursdays, 11 a.m.- 6 p.m., 3685 Commercial Drive, Mondays and Wednesdays, 7 a.m.- 2 p.m.

NPR Student Podcast contest now open to college students

Student contest — The NPR Student Podcast Challenge is back for its third year, with a big new addition: the contest is now open to college students. Last year's contest brought in more than 2,200 podcasts from high school and middle school students in 46 states and the District of Columbia. Ever since the project began in 2018, college podcasters from all over the U.S. have been eager to be involved. So this year, NPR will host two contests: the traditional Student Podcast Challenge with two categories: grades five through eight and nine through 12; and the new SPC: College Edition. All students, regardless of age, pursuing an associate's or bachelor's degree, can apply. For collegiate podcasters, there are separate set of rules and procedures, available at npr.org/2020/10/14/923361136/npr-student-podcast-challenge-college-edition-official-rules. And the rules for the middle and high school contest are available at npr.org/2018/11/15/662979069/npr-student-podcast-challenge-official-rules. In both contests, the basics are the same: Students will create a podcast about a topic they want to explore, which can be just about anything. Past podcasts have ranged from climate change to racism to what it's like to be a kid. As in the past, entries from middle and high school students will come from a teacher or a student leader who's a grown-up. College students — as long as they are 18 years or older — can enter on their own. However, there is one big change this year: Each podcast should be between three and eight minutes long, as opposed to the previous maximum length of 12 minutes. As always, NPR has a host of training materials, guides for sound recording and audio production and lists of do's and don'ts. They'll be lots of updates, training materials, along with more tips and advice, which will be available on NPR's newsletter at npr.org/newsletter/student-podcast-challenge. The winning podcast submissions will be featured in segments on NPR's Morning Edition or All Things Considered. Entries for the Student Podcast Challenge: College Edition will open on Dec. 1, with a final deadline of Feb. 15, 2021. For middle and high school students, entries will open on Jan. 1, 2021 and close on March 15, 2021.

Before winter settles in, it's a good idea to review what fall home maintenance projects need to take place in order to prevent or lessen the chances of an expensive repair. A home is a significant investment and it's important to keep that investment in good shape. Below are 10 home maintenance projects to complete before winter.

- Gutters and downspouts – By now leaves have fallen off most trees, and a common place for those leaves to land are gutters and downspouts. Backed-up water, improper drainage and pest infestations are a few of the problems that can occur when gutters and downspouts are not cleaned.
- Trees and shrubs – Trimming trees and shrubs now will encourage growth in the spring. Plus, look around and make sure any long limbs leading toward power lines or the roof are trimmed back to prevent possible damage due to heavy snow or ice during the winter.
- Caulking – Prevent cold air from entering the home, and decrease the heating bill, by examining the seals around windows and doors. Don't forget to check around the frames and the weather stripping.

Fall home maintenance checklist

- Heating system – No one wants to be in a home without heat during the winter, so if it's been awhile since the furnace has been visually or mechanically inspected, now would be a good time to call a professional HVAC company to double-check that everything is in good condition. Spending a little now can save a major expense later.
- Pipes and hoses – Don't forget to disconnect the outdoor hoses from the house; doing so can prevent broken pipes and costly bills. Make sure any pipes located outside or along the perimeter of the home are insulated or have access to heat to prevent them from freezing.
- Fireplace and chimney – As the holidays roll around, the fireplace becomes a popular feature in many homes, which is why it needs to be checked and cleaned annually to remove debris and ensure the flue is tight. Plus, Santa prefers sliding down a clean chimney.
- Ventilation – Take a walk around the house and clear away any items, such as toys, plants or clutter, that may be blocking the heating vents. Then, visit the attic to confirm the vents up there are free of debris and in good shape. Damaged attic screens and vents are an invitation for rodents and birds to set up a winter residence in your home.

8. Ceiling fan direction – In the winter, ceiling fans should spin clockwise. Warm air rises and the fan will help push that warm air back down so it can keep the home cozier.

9. Seal sidewalk and driveway cracks – Snow and ice seep into cracks and will refreeze if the temperatures are low, which then makes the cracks bigger. Prevent increased damage to the driveway and sidewalk by sealing cracks now.

10. Smoke detectors – More house fires occur in winter months. Keep the home safe by replacing the batteries in smoke detectors and making sure they're working properly.

Before we know it freezing temperatures will be here and local weather reports will start using the phrase "polar vortex" again. Don't let the winter damage your biggest investment. Go out and make these minor repairs now before they turn into major repairs in a few months.

Weekly Devotion

26 And God said, Let Us make man in Our image, after Our likeness: and let them have dominion over the fish of the sea, and over the fowl of the air, and over the cattle, and over all the earth, and over every creeping thing that creeps upon the earth.

GENESIS 1:26

When in all of His fullness created us in His likeness and image, it was not His intent to create someone to worship. He created us to shape and mold into a being similar to Himself so that He could have a fellowship with him unlike that He could have with any other being in existence. Later we will find Adam and God meeting daily for such a fellowship. What was interesting about this fellowship was that Adam did not fear to be in the presence of God at all but felt a certain sense of companionship with Him. He and God were friends and walked and talked together like friends would. Sin will create an enmity between God and man but while this friendship lasted, I can only imagine how sweet it was and how much strength Adam drew from it and comfort that God got from it as well. This set me to wondering. Just how pleasant is our fellowship with God today? How comforted are we to know that this very same God that walked and talked with Adam is the very same God that desires to have that same sweet fellowship with us? I know Adam's world at the time of this fellowship was not nearly as complicated and confused and messed up as ours is but be that as it may, we can still have daily fellowship with God. All we have to do is go to our "garden place" and meet with Him. Have you done that today? If not, why not take the time to do so because you too, through Christ, are made in His likeness and image even as was Christ Jesus.

God bless and go and have a great day.

Paul A. Kirby is the pastor at the Church of God at 3939 S. Emerson Ave.
