Statehouse accepting internship applications

Indiana House Republicans are now accepting internship applications for the 2019 legislative session, which begins in January. State Reps. Cindy Kirchofer (Beech Grove), Dave Frizzell (Indianapolis) and Mike Speedy (Indianapolis) are inviting local college and graduate students and recent graduates to apply. Frizzell said the House Republican Internship Program is a unique opportunity for college students and graduates to participate in state government and gain valuable hands-on experience. Students can apply for internships in a variety of areas, focusing on legislative, communications and media relations, policy or fiscal policy.

GIPC seeks nominations for civic award

The Greater Indianapolis Progress Committee (GIPC) is currently seeking nominations for the 34th annual Charles L. Whistler Award. The award recognizes an individual who has brought together the Indianapolis public and private sectors toward civic improvement. The award is the mayor's highest honor for civic leadership. Members of the community are welcome to nominate individuals who reflect the leadership of the late Charles L. Whistler, an Indianapolis lawyer and community leader. Candidates should exemplify the passion and skill that Whistler displayed, going above and beyond what is expected to foster public-private partnerships that work for the overall betterment of the community.

Music for the Soul

HAUNTS & JAUNTS

By Rick Hinton

They say music soothes the soul. That it does; it also sparks moments of nostalgia. A song's lyrics takes one back to an age and time when first heard and the emotional reaction it implanted within our soul. These feelings never go away...

In the 1960s, my first 45 record purchased was Bobbie Gentry's Ode to Billie Joe. A tragic story of love found and lost in a world I didn't then understand. I listened to the words over and over. My second was Tiny Tim's Tiptoe Through the Tulips. I remember my father staring in disbelief and shaking his head at the turntable when Tiny hit the high falsettos. He was a meat and potatoes kind of guy! My mother belonged to a record club and I listened to Glen Campbell's By the Time I Get to Phoenix and Wichita Lineman, becoming a staple of daily play. And Elvis... lots of Elvis!

In the summers, while babysitting my brother during school break, I would wash the dishes while listening to Marvin Gaye's What's Going On and Mercy Mercy Me. This became a rite of passage. High school in the early 1970s at Warren Central presented another opportunity – an underground radio station built from purchases from Radio Shack. On weekends we'd broadcast from my friend Tom's bedroom, reaching a 15-mile radius; songs that became ingrained and not making sense until years later: Three Dog Night's Joy to the World, the instrumental Joy by Apollo 100, the Eagle's Take It Easy, Jackson Browne's Doctor My Eyes, and Paul McCartney's Uncle Albert/Admiral Halsey to name a few. The upbeat One Toke Over the Line, by Brewer & Shipley, I didn't understand initially but eventually did.

During those days a personal revelation manifested; one of lost love, teenage angst and the dawning that it was a big, mysterious world out there: Carole King's It's Too Late, Linda Ronstadt's Long Long Time, the Gentry's Wild World (a Cat Stevens song), Carpenters' Superstar, Bread's If, Gordon Lightfoot's If You Could Read My Mind and the Who's political intrigue saga Won't Get Fooled Again.

When I moved to Oregon in the late 1970s music continued to influence my psyche: Jerry Rafferty's Get it Right Next Time, Supertramp's Take the Long Way Home and the rock jazz bands, Herbie Hancock, Mahavishnu Orchestra and Chick Corea. I played drums and this was the music we played! In the 1990s and back in Indianapolis, there became what I would term an introspective period: Nirvana, Stone Temple Pilots, Nine Inch Nails (especially the With Teeth album). I had become an equal opportunity listener. The syrupy sagas of lost love had dissipated, but only to a degree. I come back on occasion...

And... during those long drives home in the wee hours of the morning after a paranormal investigation, while tires hummed along a blackened, deserted highway and fellow investigators slept, I would play the tunes: Herbie Hancock's Chameleon, Blue Oyster Cult's Screams (off their first album), or Chris Isaak's Wicked Game. It became a form of therapy... mood music for the soul!

IMF raises more than $31,000 at golf event

Philanthropic – Indiana Members Foundation, the charitable arm of Indiana Members Credit Union (IMCU), hosted its 10th Annual Golf Outing at Valle Vista Golf Course, 755 East Main St., Greenwood, on June 27. There were 112 golfers in attendance at the sold-out event, which raised over $31,000 to benefit the Indiana Members Foundation, whose mission is to support children in the Indianapolis and surrounding communities through the Joan Wolfe Legacy Grant Program, Indy Backpack Attack School Supply Drive and local non-profits that serve youth in the communities in which Indiana Members Credit Union Serves. Highlights of the day included a complimentary breakfast, a photo booth and corn hole, as well as a recognition dinner. Quality Service Installation (QSI) served as the Title Sponsor of the event.

New safety laws for motorists

Safety – State Rep. Cindy Kirchofer (Beech Grove) reminds motorists of two new laws that recently went into effect to keep Indiana roadways safe. “As the Crossroads of America, thousands of vehicles travel on our roads and bridges every day,” Kirchofer said. “With so many motorists, it's important to be aware of new safety measures that recently went into effect. Hoosiers should check to make sure the lights on their vehicles are the correct colors and request a free vehicle-emissions test at their local fire department.” Kirchofer said with many new laws effective July 1, it is important to stay up to date with those impacting local Hoosiers, including new safety measures for motorists. Visit iga.in.gov to learn more about these state laws and many others that went into effect on July 1.

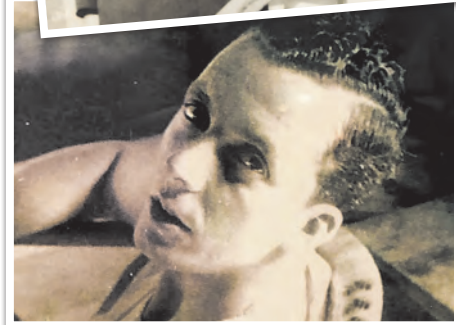

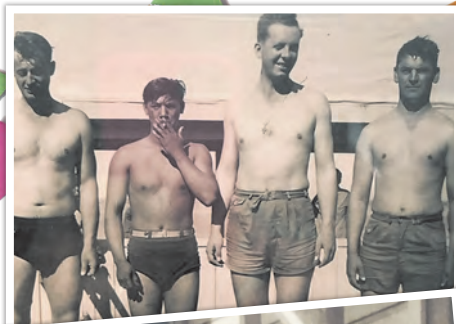

IPS history available through IPL digital collection

History – Researchers, educators and alumni can now access nearly 2,500 archived items that depict the history of Indianapolis Public Schools as part of The Indianapolis Public Library's Digital Indy collection found at digitalindy.org. Downloadable items, some of which date from 1853, represent the 120 elementary and high schools that have comprised IPS. These include newsletters, yearbooks, IPS Board meeting minutes, school histories, registers of children, scrapbooks, news clippings, teacher contracts and staff biographies. Photos of students, school staff and schools also are included. Made possible by a $1.8 million grant from Lilly Endowment Inc. through gifts to The Indianapolis Public Library Foundation, the IPS collection is the culmination of a nearly three-year effort to identify, acquire and digitize more than 430,000 pages of materials that had been warehoused in various locations.

Perry Kiwanis welcomes Puckett

Philanthropic – The Kiwanis Club of Perry Township has welcomed back to its membership Ken Puckett (pictured on left with Perry Township President Les Branham) former Perry Schools administrator. Puckett joined the club shortly after it was formed in 1982, then was a member of the Kiwanis Club of Indianapolis from 1991 until recently. He served as assistant superintendent for secondary education for Perry Township Schools before his retirement. Puckett graduated from the University of Idaho with a B.S. degree in secondary education and business education and from Indiana University, where he earned an M.S. degree in secondary education and administration. Puckett and his wife, Jere, have two adult children, Scott and Ann.

A life WELL-LIVED

Local WW II veteran, 100, recalls a different Southside as a child

By Stephanie Dolan

Some lifetimes come and go in a matter of days... even hours. Others, like the life lived by John Reimer of Indianapolis, span a century.

Reimer has been a lifelong Southsider and has spent time delivering papers as a child, going to war as a young man, working as a salesman in adulthood and giving back to his community in his retirement.

This past Saturday, friends and family came together to celebrate his 100th birthday at Lauck and Veldof Funeral Home on South Meridian Street. This grand party was truly a celebration of a life well-lived and partygoers arrived in droves to congratulate the man of the hour on reaching the milestone that so few ever attain.

"I got to thinking how neat it would be to have a living wake," godson Denny Fitzpatrick said at Reimer's birthday party. "This is truly what this is. We have Irish music, Irish food and Irish guests. Even better – the guest of honor is still with us."

Fitzpatrick, now 73, used to accompany Reimer to many of his appointments for Mooney's Pharmacy Company, a job he took after returning from his service in the Army during World War II.

"John used to take me as a little boy around on some of the sales calls to area

5 Questions with JOHN REIMER

1 What is your most vivid memory from childhood?

Seeing President Roosevelt riding down Meridian Street in a big black open car.

2 What lessons did you learn during the war that came home with you?

I learned that I needed glasses. I still have the same frames that I came home with all those years ago.

3 What do you feel is your greatest accomplishment?

The fact that I survived this long. I thought I was done for about 30 years ago.

4 What is your favorite book, song or poem?

"Tura Lura Lura"

5 What is the secret to a long life?

I really don't know how I made it this far.

Arlington Elementary hosts back to school event

School social – Arlington Elementary School held their annual back to school night and ice cream social on July 30. Students met with their classroom teachers and Arlington’s art teacher, Clara Crosby, created a Kesley Montague-inspired pair of wings that were made from “feathers” that students drew and cut out before the end of the 2017-2018 school year. The artwork is also on twitter at hashtag #WhatLiftsYouArlingtonElem.

GCAHS cross-country serves at Gleaners

Charity – Members of Greenwood Christian Academy High School’s cross-country team jumped into the 2018-2019 season with an evening serving the hungry at Gleaners Food Bank. In their three-and-a-half hours at the food pantry they served well over 125 families. The student athletes stocked pantry shelves, helped families shop, bagged groceries and carried groceries to cars. They saw first-hand that folks needing help look no different than those that we go to school and church with. When asked about something that stood out to the athletes, they each mentioned the same person: a nice lady that seemed happy that she had landed two jobs and was praying that she would not have to come to the food pantry soon. The coaches said that they were proud of how the athletes jumped in and worked so hard.

drugstores,” Fitzpatrick said. “He’s a second father to me.”

“They lived across the street from us,” Reimer said of Fitzpatrick’s family, recalling just one of the many heartwarming events shared with his godson.

“Sacred Heart Catholic Church would always have a Father’s Day breakfast and it was a father/son situation,” Fitzpatrick said. “My father was an officer with the Indianapolis Police Department and so a lot of times he would be on duty and John would say, ‘I’ll take you to the father/son breakfast.’”

“He was so excited the first breakfast I took him to that he didn’t eat a bite,” Reimer said.

“He really was John’s little sidekick from the get-go,” family friend Jeannie Perry said of Fitzpatrick.

“We’ve known him since our children were small,” she said of herself and her family.

Perry and Reimer met at church and Perry’s children immediately took to Reimer as a grandfather figure.

“In church, people would think they were my grandkids,” Reimer said. “And I’d have to tell them, ‘no, I’m not married, and I don’t have any children. They’re just friends.’”

“My daughter Georgi is especially close with him,” Perry said. “Her grandfather died when she was very young and she sort of moved John into that position.”

“I was invited to a lot of birthday parties,” Reimer said, laughing.

There may not have been as many birthday parties during Reimer’s childhood.

“I had an older sister and a younger one who died in a flu epidemic,” he said, mentioning how sick he was too. “They put my mother, my sister and me all in one room at St. Francis. They certainly wouldn’t do that nowadays.”

Reimer said that it didn’t start to become clear how much the Southside was changing until after World War II.

“People used to walk to school,” he said. “You used to know your neighbors. I was an air raid warden before I went into service. They told me to go down both sides of the street to find out if people had escape routes from their homes. I said I didn’t have to. I knew everyone. But that’s not the way it is anymore.”

Reimer said that one of the few things about the Southside that hasn’t changed is Shapiro’s.

“I remember the famous Shapiro’s when it was one room and the grandparents were running the thing,” he said. “He would put a suit coat and an apron and a hat on. They had a place where they sold jars of pickles and sliced meats. They’re still there – same location. I used to call on a drug store nearby, so I relate to that location.”

Upon entering the service, Reimer worked at an evacuation hospital in Oahu, Hawaii.

“I was overseas for more than two years,” he said. “We took jungle training and jungle living and amphibious training. We took soldiers out to the airstrip day and night 20 at a time.”

Reimer was in the service from 1942 to 1945 before returning home to take on a role as a wholesale drug salesman.

“I think I was making $22 when I went into the Army,” he said. “When I started with the drug company, they were paying me $75 a week and $15 for car expenses.”

After more than 30 years with Mooney’s, the company was sold and moved out of state, meaning that Reimer was out of a job. In his retirement, he proctored testing at the Statehouse and volunteered to deliver goods and groceries for St. Vincent de Paul (SVdP).

SVdP is an international organization of members joined together with the spiritual purpose of offering assistance with empathy. Reimer spent time visiting families, meeting needs and offering assistance.

After so many years of touching so many lives, Reimer’s 100th birthday party was understandably packed with well-wishers and avid fans of John Reimer.

“The birthday party was pretty special,” Perry said.

Acton Elementary hosts annual back to school night

By Nancy Price

Getting kids ready to go back to school can be exciting, yet stressful. Between meeting teachers, signing up for clubs, knowing where classrooms are located and what to expect for the upcoming year, as well as shuttling kids to sports or band practice and shopping for school supplies, what time is left?

Acton Elementary School in Franklin Township holds an annual back to school night/ice cream social before classes start to help ease the transition for students and parents, all while having fun at the same time.

"Families met their (children's) new teachers, brought in school supplies to the classroom, heard a message from their teachers about school expectations for the year and then enjoyed a sweet treat in the cafeteria to celebrate coming back to school," said Brook Wessel-Burke, principal for Action Elementary.

Meeting the teachers and knowing where their classrooms are in the building can also help calm anxiety for both parents and children, according to Wessel-Burke. Kids can also meet or catch up with their classmates before the first day of school.

While walking the halls, families can look into YMCA's before and after school care options and check out stations for Boy Scouts, Girl Scouts, STEM Scouts and other clubs. In addition, they can learn about bus routes and pay for lunch cards and textbook fees.

The event is hosted by the school's PTO and sponsored by the Pleasant Masonic Lodge.

"They're a big part of the Acton community," said Wessel-Burke of the lodge. "They reached out to us and said, 'we want to be involved.' They pay for all the ice cream and serve it in the line in the cafeteria; it's their way of giving back and helping out."

The school has an annual back to school theme each year; this year, the theme is "Ohana" which means family in Hawaiian.

"We've decorated the building to look tropical and we are talking to the students about what it means to be a family and to take care of one another, support one another and to work together, just as families do," she said.

Greenwood class teaches basics of U.S. Constitution

FEATURE

By Nancy Price

For those tired and frustrated with fake news and want to learn how to find the truth, understand their rights and what our founding fathers intended when they wrote the Constitution, an upcoming Greenwood class may be the answer.

Mike Laurenzano, First Vice Chairman of The Indiana Constitution Party, is holding a free class in September based on the book, The Founding Fathers Guide to the Constitution, by Brion McClanahan, PhD. Attendees of the class will learn how the founding generation intended for Americans to interpret and apply the Constitution, how it was designed to protect the rights of states, why Congress was meant to be the dominant branch of government and more.

Nick Frecker, a member of the Indiana Constitution Party and resident of northwest Indianapolis, first began the class in Zionsville in February.

"Nick liked the book so much, he said 'maybe we should teach it,'" Laurenzano said.

The class will summarize the U.S. Constitution, going over the Preamble, the 7 Articles and the 27 Amendments.

Laurenzano said he hopes that those attending the class will start becoming independent thinkers in an age when news spread over the Internet is taken at face value.

"They need to take (what they hear) and confirm if what they hear is true," he said. "I want them to be thinkers and realize their responsibility is to question authority."

As well, he said he would like to see younger people attend, noting that there have been families with children as young as five who have taken part in the class.

"Their heads are like a sponge," he said of children that age. "They had some interesting questions."

Feedback from the first class has been positive, according to Laurenzano. "People get really engaged. People want to talk, they ask questions and they really get involved."

He also said that some attendees have been so excited after taking the class that they want to join the Indiana Constitution Party.

The Indiana Constitution Party believes in limiting the federal government to its delegated, Constitutional functions. The Indiana chapter believes in fewer restrictions on election candidates, restoring state sovereignty and supporting abortion bans.

The class will be held on Sept. 8 from 9:30 – 11 a.m. at Old National Bank, 4950 E. County Line Road in Greenwood. The Greenwood class will only be held if seven or more people RSVP. Please contact Mike Laurenzano at (317) 201-5889 or email him at ConstitutionPartyIN@gmail.com by Sept. 1 to confirm attendance. The Founding Fathers Guide to the Constitution can be purchased at the class for $15. There is no charge for the class.

Southside childhood friends reunite at TSTC

FEATURE

By Nancy Price

Two young men from Southport, separated by a move as children, have become the best of friends while attending college in Texas.

Jacob Bledsoe and Joshua Johnson, both 20, reunited at Texas State Technical College and are set to graduate on Aug. 17 in Waco.

As fifth graders at Homecroft Elementary School, Bledsoe and Johnson initially did not get along. A teacher eventually told them to make peace and try to become friends. They took the advice.

The two visited each other's homes, bonding over video games, playing outside, riding in the Bledsoe's family's four-wheeler and visiting Kings Island amusement park.

Johnson and his family left Indianapolis the summer after his sixth-grade year and moved to Texas.

"We were definitely upset," he said. "I was upset that I would lose my friends."

Bledsoe added, "We planned on high school graduation together but that did not happen."

Johnson and Bledsoe kept in touch by phone and texted one another daily, in addition to communicating via a video game system.

Despite the distance between them, the two friends were able to still visit each other during their freshman and sophomore years of high school. Bledsoe, a defensive end on the Southport Cardinals football team, sent Johnson video clips when he played his senior year in the Horseshoe Classic, a season-opening jamboree at Lucas Oil Stadium.

While Johnson attended Chisholm Trail High School in Fort Worth and took a class in welding, a teacher encouraged him to attend TSTC.

"I came to visit (TSTC) in February of my senior year and liked it and applied," Johnson said.

Meanwhile, after graduating from Southport High School, Bledsoe worked at UPS and then as an electrician's helper. However, he decided to apply to TSTC as well and visited the campus last year. Bledsoe had grown up around the plumbing and carpentry fields.

"He felt he could be doing more," Johnson, said. By that time, Johnson had already been attending TSTC for two semesters and arranged for Bledsoe to room with him.

"It's a pretty big leap of faith and it worked out for (Bledsoe)," said Letha Novosad, lead instructor in TSTC's Building Construction Technology program in Waco.

Bledsoe is scheduled to receive an Electrical Construction certificate, and Johnson is set to receive an associate of applied science degree in Welding Technology.

Bledsoe and Johnson are considering job options in Texas.

Military veterans are encouraged to join local Honor Guard teams. (Submitted photo)

Military veterans invited to join local Honor Guard teams

FEATURE

By Bob Tuttle

An exciting opportunity is available to all military veterans. Military veterans are entitled to many benefits, including receiving military funeral honors. This "final salute" is one of the most prestigious of these. It cannot be given without dedicated volunteers like you.

The Greenwood & Whiteland Honor Guards provide military funeral honors to local veterans in a way that leaves a lasting remembrance for their family and friends. The team is sanctioned through the Greenwood American Legion Post 252, the Greenwood Veterans of Foreign War (VFW) Post 5864 and the New Whiteland VFW Post 6978. They are accredited by the Indiana National Guard and the Department of Defense to perform military funeral honors around Indiana but mainly in Johnson and southern Marion Counties.

Military veterans are needed to fill the ranks. Volunteers must be a member of one of the three posts noted above, able to stand at attention for short periods of time, able to walk in line formation and motivated to provide final respects to our fellow veterans. Each team member is notified of each funeral and the member then decides if he or she wishes to attend.

Those interested in this opportunity and are not currently a member of one of our organizations may register for membership at one of the noted posts. All military personnel who have served anywhere in the military for at least one day during wartime or conflict are eligible to join the American Legion. Those who have received a campaign ribbon overseas, served in the Korean War for 30 consecutive days or 60 non-consecutive days, or received hostile fire or imminent danger pay are eligible to join the VFW. Bring a copy of your DD214, $43 for the American Legion dues or $35 for the VFW dues. They'll confirm your eligibility.

Don't let the thought of attending post meetings deter you from joining one of the organizations. To be a member of these posts, all that is required to do is pay annual dues. There are hundreds of multi-year members that have never stepped inside of the post after they have joined.

For those unsure of their eligibility or would like more information on opportunities to help veterans, please contact the nearest post: Greenwood American Legion Post 252 (after 2 p.m.) at (317) 888-2488, Greenwood VFW Post 5864 (after 4 p.m.) at (317) 535-4041 or New Whiteland VFW Post (after 4 p.m.) at (317) 535-4041. To learn more information on how to become a part of the Honor Guard team, please contact Bob Tuttle, Honor Guard and Color Guard Commander, at phylandbob@aol or (317) 888-5617.

Being on an Honor Guard team places those at the very heart of assisting their fellow veterans and their families. This opportunity allows them to be back in uniform and have pride knowing that they are serving once again... serving their comrades in their final farewell.

Bob Tuttle is a VFW and American Legion member.

FROM THE EDITOR

Local schools adopt added safety precautions

As students are just starting back to school, local school districts are preparing for extra safety precautions. Several months ago, a student at Noblesville West Middle School fired shots that injured a classmate and teacher. Southside schools, including Perry Township, have plans in place for the safety of students and staff should there be a threat of an active shooter.

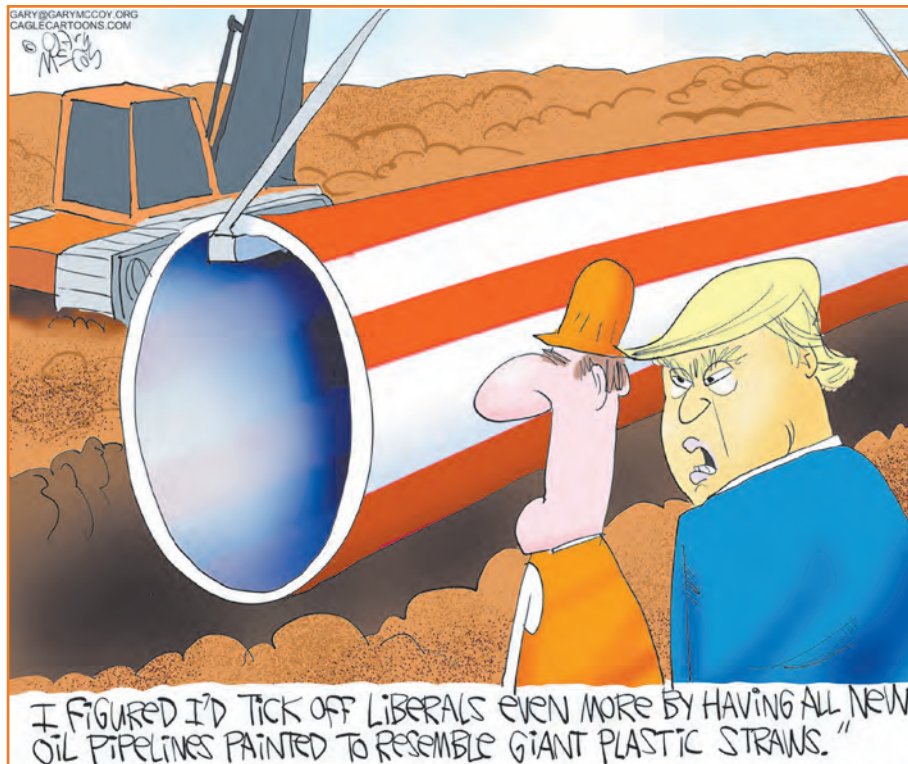

Starting this year, guests at all Perry Township schools will be required to present a driver's license or another acceptable form of government-issued identification before signing in. All district employees will receive a personalized ID badge that will allow front office staff at each school to match the employee's face to the photo on the badge. In addition, video surveillance camera systems will help administrators monitor activity activities at each building.

The school system's safety committee, consisting of central office staff members as designated school safety specialists through the Indiana Department of Education's School Safety Specialist Academy, will meet monthly to review and revise safety procedures. In addition, they must attend two professional development days per year at the Indiana School Safety Academy to remain certified (doe.in.gov/student-services/safety).

As well, 20 handheld metal detectors from the governor's new school safety initiative are scheduled to arrive in the coming weeks.

The new initiatives are being added to those systems already in place, which include police officer-led disaster drills that teach educators and students what to do in the event of an active shooter situation. A drill is led once each semester. There is also ongoing training for guidance departments and teachers to help recognize students who need support and appropriately intervene.

The Safety Hotline was created for students to report situations such as drugs, bullying and threats of violence. The number is (317) 789-3905. Urgent threats and emergencies should be reported immediately to the closest administrator or teacher.

STARS & STRIKES ON THE SOUTHSIDE

The Southside Times is all about people and our community. What do you like in your neighborhood? What don't you like? Who has done something nice, no matter how small, and should be recognized? Email your "Stars and Strikes" to news@ss-times.com. Brook Wessel-Burke of Franklin Township contributed to this week's Stars and Strikes.

★ Stars: to the Acton PTO for their support to help the school year get off to a great start and the Pleasant Lodge for supporting our students at Back To School Night with providing the ice cream for the ice cream social.

⚡ Strikes: to tick and mosquito season. Ticks can spread tickborne diseases, including Lyme disease. Although rare, mosquitos can spread West Nile virus diseases. One case of West Nile virus has been reported in Indiana this season. For information on how to reduce your chances of being infected by tick bites, visit cdc.gov. For health updates and more information on West Nile virus, go to in.gov/isdh.

★ Stars: to the local police departments and community as they met together for the annual National Night Out. NNO promotes police-community partnerships and camaraderie to help make our neighborhoods safer and bringing back a true sense of community.

1. "Don't touch that clown. You don't know where he's been."

BELIEVE IT!

Our nation has all sorts of arcane, nonsensical laws on the books. Each week, we'll share one with you ...

In Pennsylvania, any motorist driving along a country road at night must stop every mile and send up a rocket signal, wait 10 minutes for the road to be cleared of livestock and continue.

BUSINESS

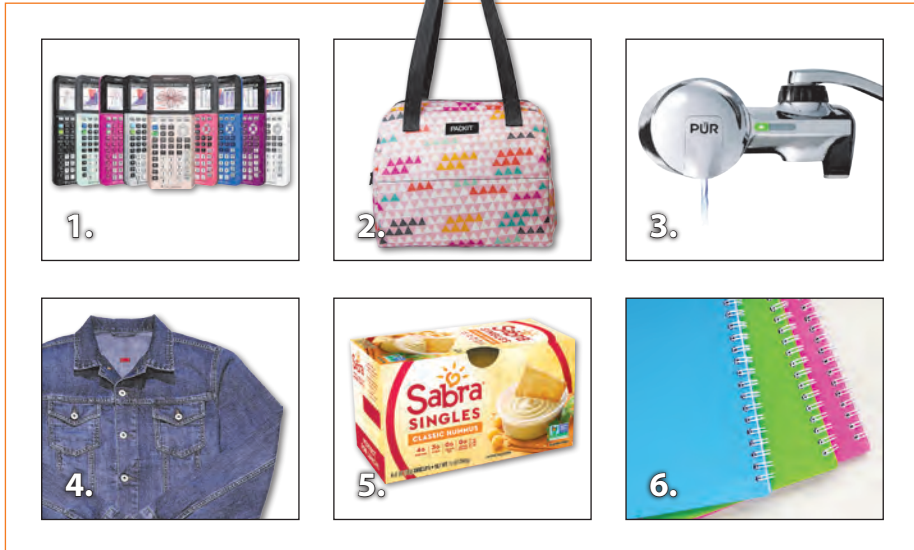

Keene completes Chamber Academy

Training – Greater Greenwood Chamber member services coordinator Angie Keene graduated from the Indiana Chamber Executives Association’s “Hoosier Chamber Academy.” This four-month professional development program teaches chamber management “essentials” geared for today’s chamber executives and professional staff. It is the leading training program in Indiana devoted only to chamber professionals. Angie learned best practices in member services, organizational management, marketing, advocacy and more. Angie just completed her second year serving in her role at the Greater Greenwood Chamber. She has already applied what she learned to better serving members.

Kelley named to ACHE

Recognition – Nanette M. Kelley, MBA, MHA, System Director of Operations Transformation at Franciscan Health, recently was named a Fellow of the American College of Healthcare Executives (ACHE), the nation’s leading professional society for healthcare leaders. Fellow status represents achievement of the highest standard of professional development. In fact, only 9,100 healthcare executives hold this distinction. Kelley, who previously served as administrative director of imaging services for Franciscan Health, has many years of experience in the health care industry, analyzing clinical and financial trends, aligning them to ensure positive patient outcomes and achieving growth with the hospital’s cardiovascular service line.

Set for Success
Back-to-school shopping essentials

FAMILY FEATURES - Whether your children are entering kindergarten, starting up their high school careers or heading off to college, back-to-school season often means running from store to store in search of the necessities for a successful year. Help your student make the grade this year with some of these top picks for everything from classroom tools like calculators and planners to lunchtime solutions like lunchboxes, water filtration systems and on-the-go snacks.

Find more tips and back-to-school essentials to ensure your kids have everything they need before class is back in session at eLivingToday.com.

1. On-Trend Tech

Send students back to school in style with a dedicated math and science machine in one of the year’s trendiest tones. “Rose Curve Gold” is now an available color option for Texas Instruments’ TI-84 Plus Color Edition (CE) line of graphing calculators. Now thinner and lighter with six times the memory, the calculator can take students from middle school through high school and into advanced college courses. For more information, visit education.ti.com.

2. Packing Perfection

Back-to-school season requires plenty of packing and preparing. Be ready with an option like this Freezable Hampton Lunch Bag from PackIt, built to hold containers and bottles of various sizes for easy on-the-go access. The large, redesigned shoulder tote has built-in freezable gel to keep items cool, and the interior wipes clean with its food-safe lining. The kids can have everything they need all packed in one collapsible bag made from non-toxic poly canvas. For more information and packing gear, visit PackIt.com.

3. Drink Smarter

America’s drinking water infrastructure received a “D” grade from the American Society of Civil Engineers in its 2017 report card. However, you can still send your preschool- through college-aged students back to school with cleaner, great-tasting water. The PUR Advanced Faucet Filtration System is an on-demand filtered water solution certified to reduce more than 70 contaminants, including 99 percent of lead – more than any other brand, according to NSF. Learn more at PUR.com.

4. Fashionably Warm

The school year typically brings with it cooler temperatures. Ensure your student is prepared for the elements whether he or she has to walk across campus or wait at the bus stop with the proper outerwear, including a light jacket for fall. With a variety of styles, lengths and materials available, the right jacket can be both functional and fashionable.

5. Savory School-Day Snacks

Whether it’s for lunch or snacking on-the-go, an option like these convenient packs of Sabra Singles can satisfy midday cravings. Bursting with great taste and wholesome nutrition, these 2-ounce servings of Sabra hummus are packed with plant-based ingredients you can feel good about. Pair with veggies or pita chips for a nutritious lunchtime snack, and find more at sabra.com.

6. Personalized Organization

Help your student keep those notes, study times and test dates organized with a quality planner that also showcases his or her personality. Available in a myriad of trendy colors and patterns – like polka dots, stripes or chevron – as well as various calendar layouts like daily, weekly or monthly, the right planner can help your child stay on track, achieve goals and preserve memories in one stylish and organized place.

READERS' WRITES

Thank you for helping us

I would like to thank the residents who filled out the income survey form that was mailed out a couple months ago. We have met the numbers needed to have a good assessment of where are city stands. As a result of your participation, we will be able to apply for more federal funding to further improve our city.

On another note, OCRA has tentatively approved our plans for Main Street and has sent it back for some minor adjustments. Within the next few months we will hold a public hearing and go through the plan for updates to Main Street from Emerson to 8th Avenue. We look forward to applying for federal funding through OCRA for this very important economic development project.

Respectfully Submitted,
Dennis B. Buckley

Greenwood Library
offers scholarship

Scholarship – The Greenwood Public Library's Century of Reading Scholarship is now open to seniors attending a Johnson County High School (or home-schooled seniors who live in Johnson County). This one-time award has been established by the library in honor of its 100 years of service to the community and inspired by the Century of Reading sculpture. This $5,000 college scholarship will be awarded to one local senior who not only reads 50 of the books listed on the sculpture but also demonstrates insight and creativity in their essay about how reading has impacted and inspired their future. The scholarship was envisioned by and made possible by the generosity of corporate sponsors, Tilson and Endress+Hauser. More information and the online application can be found at greenwoodlibrary.us/scholarship. Applications are due on March 1, 2019 from the online application form, no paper applications will be accepted. For more information contact Jane Weisenbach at (317) 881-1953 or jweisenbach@greenwoodlibrary.us.

Christopher Robin
Cute, enjoyable family film

MOVIE REVIEW

By Adam Staten

For most people, childhood was a much simpler time in life. Instead of mortgage payments and school loans, there were multiplication tables and recess. In addition to learning math and playing with friends on the playground, cartoons also played a big role in the lives of most children. Whether it was Tom and Jerry, SpongeBob SquarePants or some other animated program, everyone could easily rattle off their favorite cartoon or characters as a child. Well, one film that hit theaters this past weekend is hoping that love of beloved characters equals box office success.

Christopher Robin, the latest film from Disney, is the story of Winnie the Pooh's best friend. However, instead of a child, Christopher Robin is all grown up, living in London with a family of his own, navigating the cutthroat, high-pressure business world. Unfortunately, for Christopher Robin and his family, the pressure of his job appears to be getting the better of him. His increased workload leaves little time for his family. The tension, unhappiness and stress in the Robin household is palpable. To make matters worse, Christopher Robin is unexpectedly given a last-minute work assignment that forces him to skip a preplanned family getaway. Things are starting to look rather bleak for the Robin family. Thankfully, help is on the way in the form of a visit from an old friend.

After awaking from a night of restful sleep, Winnie the Pooh is unable to find Tigger, Piglet and the rest of his Hundred Acre Wood buddies. Pooh then inadvertently stumbles around and finds himself in London and soon after reunited with his pal, Christopher Robin. Pooh's reemergence throws a wrench in Christopher Robin's plans, but it just may be the thing Christopher and his family need.

Going to Christopher Robin looking for an original, groundbreaking story? You'll be sorely disappointed. Instead of constructing much of a story, Christopher Robin relies heavily on the nostalgia factor, as the audience is reunited with Winnie the Pooh, Eeyore and those other beloved characters. The silly old bear spouts his simple, nonsensical, yet hilarious sayings. Eeyore, the original Debbie Downer, is there with his constant pessimism and Tigger is back with his boundless energy.

Nostalgia and beloved characters aside, Christopher Robin is 15 minutes too long. It's not terribly off-putting but given the weak story, it is noticeable and you'll probably find yourself checking your watch once or twice.

Weak story and all, Christopher Robin is a cute, enjoyable film the whole family is sure to love.

Tomatoes: The taste of summer

NUTRITION

By Wendell Fowler

OK... you have a glut of juicy, sweet tomatoes coming off your vines and neighbors keep gifting you their over-abundance. What are you going to do with all them? Personally, because they're only obtainable in the good old summertime, I pig out on what the French call, "love apples" by smothering wedges in fresh picked basil, garlic and olive oil, alongside my Indiana sweet corn and crispy cucumber salad and will eventually make raw salsa and simmer up a big batch of tomato sauce for the freezer so that in winter I can taste summer.

But first, how much do you know about tomato nutrition? Because you were not taught in school that plant foods from the earth's garden are the ultimate source of essential vitamins your temple needs daily to function, grow and repair, you may be vitamin deficient, which can foster many of today's chronic diseases. It's like not putting fuel in your car and expecting it to take you across town. After a lecture last winter, I was astonished when a lovely lady approached me to say, "I love reading your column. You taught me vitamins came from plants."

Studies have found links between fresh tomatoes, tomato products and fewer incidences of prostate, lung and stomach cancers. The NIH informs that tomatoes are a good source of vitamin C, an essential nutrient and antioxidant. One medium sized tomato can provide about 28 percent of the RDA. The potassium in tomatoes is an essential mineral beneficial for blood pressure control and cardiovascular disease prevention. Tomatoes' vitamin K1 is important for blood coagulation and bone health. And folate, one of the B vitamins important for normal tissue growth and cell function, is particularly important for pregnant women.

They are especially high in a red pigment antioxidant called lycopene, a plant compound linked to improved heart health, cancer prevention and protection against sunburns. It is found in the highest amounts in tomato products, such as ketchup, tomato juice and tomato-based sauces.

My life mission is to be a ray of hope. To advance your gift to create health. To teach how crucial it is to get vitamins from food so you can bud and blossom. So, stuff them, slice them, dice them, roast them and toss chunks into endless varieties of summertime dishes. Please wake up and smell the tomatoes. They were divinely provided for you with vitamins on those thick green vines that activate your innate, inner intelligence.

How to show them you mean business

GRAMMAR GUY

By Curtis Honeycutt

You've gone over your expertly-tailored business suit with your lithium battery-powered lint roller in the executive bathroom. You've humbly positioned your luxury watch so it peeks just so outside your shirt cuffs (which are crisp and precisely the right length). Now you're assuming your power stance at the front of the conference room, getting ready to share your big PowerPoint presentation (or — as it's known in startup circles — your "slide deck").

You're about to deliver a crushing dose of Six Sigma business power to the other suits sitting around the conference table who flew in for this meeting in their corporate jets. But to get the seven-figure multinational merger deal done, you're going to need one more key ingredient: power verbs.

That's right — power verbs. We all know that verbs are action words but some of them are puny, anemic and overused. If you use weak verbs in your presentation, the overseas investors are going to start yawning and looking at their own (probably Swiss) luxury watches, wondering at which Michelin-star restaurant they should dine later tonight.

Let's take the word "said" as an example. It's boring, yet we drop it in by default into our everyday communication. Instead, consider more powerful verbs like yelled, demanded, explained or insisted.

"Walk" is another verb that screams "weak sauce." No one just "walks" anymore, unless you want to walk straight to the unemployment office. Instead, consider using strut, dart, march, mosey or meander. See what I mean? Talk about "walking" like a boss, and you'll soon be the boss. You can almost smell the rich mahogany of your boss desk, can't you?

Now let's take a look at "look." No one even gives it a second glance. Instead of look, use a more creative, evocative word like gape, examine, notice, glare or stare.

Finally, let's talk about "talk." Talking is for career mid-level managers (at best). Instead, use a stronger verb like spout, reveal, divulge, gab or mumble. Power verbs will win you friends and influence people — especially executive corporate vice presidents of overseas fiduciary acquisitions.

Using power verbs will knock the designer socks off your potential investors. Replacing boring, vanilla verbs with power verbs will give you an instant air of confidence and success. This tact will win you fans everywhere from the boardroom to the bedroom.

Weekly Devotion

7 When my soul fainted within me I remembered the Lord: and my prayer came in unto Thee, into Thine holy temple.

8 They that observe lying vanities forsake their own mercy.

9 But I will sacrifice unto Thee with the voice of thanksgiving; I will pay that that I have vowed. Salvation is of the Lord.

JONAH 2:7-9

Jonah is us. He loved the Lord but he hated God's assignment to go to Nineveh and preach salvation to them. The Ninevites were longtime enemies of Israel and had been a source of more than agitation to them for years.

Now, God tells Jonah to go there and to preach salvation to them. If they don't repent, they will be destroyed.

Now, Jonah is in the belly of the whale (great fish) and according to himself, in the belly of hell. Some say that he had died but I don't know about that. What I do know is that he was as good as dead and his future was dismal. He cried out to the Lord and in his terms, he remembered the Lord. He prayed. Aren't we all thankful for this thing called prayer? Verse seven says that his prayer came in unto the Lord in His holy temple.

Can you imagine this in your mind? We all should try to imagine it. Think about it.

Here he is in the belly of the whale with no reason to expect escape from there. His sense of guilt was as overwhelming as his sense of fear. Where can he go and on whom can he call for help, for his rescue? None other than the One he was trying to get away from. This is why I began with the words, "Jonah is us".

But he did turn to the Lord and the Lord came to His rescue. Where did God take him? On what beach did the whale deposit him? On the beaches of Nineveh, where God told him to go in the first place. Remember his prayer? He said that he would sacrifice the offering of thanksgiving to the Lord and pay his vows for salvation is of the Lord. We forget what we have promised God sometimes but He never forgets what He has promised us. He doesn't forget what He plans to do with our lives either and we either comply or we get swallowed up by the life we choose to live to run away from Him. He will rescue us, though, if we come to Him. Shouldn't we all be thankful for our God Who is a God such as this?

God bless and go and have a great day.
