The Indianapolis Catacombs

HAUNTS & JAUNTS

By Rick Hinton

Visitors to the City Market in downtown Indianapolis tread along a historic corridor of the city's past. Originating in the 1880s, it's one of the oldest markets in the city, and as in the past, a hub of shopping, goods and most important—socializing. However, there was once another building of some significance occupying space adjoining the market. It met a tragic demise, yet leaving a remnant behind. How many realize today there is a large space just under their feet? Welcome to the Indianapolis Catacombs!

Tomlinson Hall formerly sat there. It was a large, four-story Roman Renaissance building, built in the 1880s of brick and Indiana limestone, and used for sporting events and public entertainment. It was the place to go in its heyday! In 1958 it burnt to the ground. Today, all that remains of the historic building is an east facing archway in the plaza. The rest of Tomlinson Hall lies just beneath...

Catacombs are usually underground systems traditionally used to bury the dead. They were popular overseas in the past. The Indianapolis Catacombs are no such animal (no bodies or skulls), yet are worth the look. It's essentially a 100-year-old basement that in its time was used for storage. Its entrance is hidden from public view; no outside entrance. A set of stairs descends down into a dirt floor. Barrel vaulted ceilings distributed among 140 arched columns become a backdrop to a winding labyrinth of corridors, hallways and rooms. There is light for the tourists, yet it is damp and smells musty as you would expect a basement to.

After the 1958 fire the basement was never filled in, which I imagine was a cost factor at the time. This basement area was abandoned, lost to the ravages of time. Today, restoration of these 'catacombs' would extend into the millions. Who has that kind of money?

Are the catacombs haunted? Some think so. Paranormal investigators ache to investigate the catacombs, but as of yet no invitation's been extended. Many have had impressions during a public tour. And several workers and volunteers have creepy stories to tell. Others give the "deer in the headlights" look when questioned about paranormal activity. (Our guide did) Some don't like coming down into the catacombs alone. One story involves a horse drawn carriage, placed there for storage many eons ago, and found later in another location—with no tracks in the dirt. It's still there. I asked our guide about THAT story. He gave me the 'stare.'

A guided tour with lights and lots of people is one thing. Going down there in the dark, alone, in a maze of archways would be completely something else. Make your reservation on-line for a tour (May through October). For the moment, it's the only way.

Rick Hinton, a Southport resident, loves researching things that go bump in the night. His articles can be read on Facebook: Rick Hinton, Southport Paranormal Examiner. Hinton conducts paranormal investigations with his team, South Central Paranormal.

Ordinance #6 would allow open burning with some safety regulations. "If it's done in a safe manner, which most people will, I think there should be some rules around it," said Councilor Vito Mascari who sponsored the ordinance. Fire pits should be six inches in depth, surrounded by cement blocks or bricks with six inches in height.

Ordinance #7 alters the rule on poultry. Resident have expressed a desire to raise chickens. The current ordinance says no poultry. City County ordinance allows 12 chickens with one rooster. This ordinance says no roosters and maximum six hens.

The air packs, breathing apparatus, are past the recommended replacement date. It will cost $223,000 to outfit the department. The radios are also at the end of their life. Motorola will no longer produce parts or offer replacement. The personal radios alone cost $5,200 a piece and the department will need 25. The automatic cots are designed to not flip and be easier on the paramedics to lift. The total requested amount is upwards of $700,000. Clerk/Treasurer Dan McMillan said that it will not be possible to grant this entire amount. The fire dept. is looking into grant funding for the air packs.

MOVES LIKE JAGGERS

Indianapolis Public Library
Foundation President
Roberta Jagers is driven by a lifelong passion for open access to literature

WHAT'S IN HER BAG?

Roberta Jagers shares what she's reading right now, and what she enjoys reading:

- Inspired Philanthropy: Creating a Giving Plan and Leaving a Legacy by Tracy Gary
- Giving with Confidence: A Guide to Savvy Philanthropy by Colburn Wilbur and Fred Setterberg
- The Herbal Kitchen by Kami McBride
- I enjoy IBJ, the local neighborhood news.

By Nicole Davis

Roberta Jagers grew up with a librarian who was supportive of whatever she chose to read. That free and open access to literature has been a theme throughout her life. As president of The Indianapolis Public Library Foundation, she leads fundraising efforts which benefit library programs. As a mother, she encourages her daughter to participate in the library's activities.

"I do compartmentalize, but there is a blending of that, too," she said. "I can see the connection of what I'm doing at the library makes me a better mom and what I'm doing with my daughter makes me better at what I do at the library foundation."

Roberta now resides in Franklin Township with her husband, Doug. She described herself as having been a "frequent flier" to the Stanford Free Library where she grew up in a New York small town. As a child, she would go there to read. She began to volunteer as a teenager, keeping the card catalog up to date and labeling the books.

Roberta moved to Indianapolis in 2001 to attend graduate school at what is now the Lilly School of Philanthropy and School of Public Environmental Affairs at IUPUI. She had the opportunity to apply for an internship, and with help of a member of the school staff, became the Indianapolis Public Library Foundation's first-ever intern in May 2002. Though she left to study abroad in the spring of 2003, when she returned, she was offered a full-time position at the foundation in April 2003.

"I started at the library foundation interested in grant writing," she said. "But I quickly realized that it's not just about writing. It's also about a building relationship with a donor."

She gives credit to her many mentors, especially past president Danny Dean for seeing potential in her as a leader before she saw it in herself.

"I had a lot of good mentors but above all I was fortunate to have a president who I served under who is still involved in the foundation," Roberta said, "for him to recognize there was a succession need at the library foundation and see the potential to develop me into a strong candidate for the position."

Roberta became the second president in the foundation's history on Jan. 1, 2016. The foundation started in 1969 as a volunteer organization, hiring Dean in the 90s. There are now a total of nine staff members and 24 volunteers serving on the board of directors.

"I've worked hard to develop my own leadership capabilities, to be the awesome leader that they deserve," she said. "I think

I have reached good. They're an awesome team and they deserve an awesome leader so I keep working. I'm proud of all of them and appreciative of their part. I'm keenly aware that I can't do it all myself... They've given me the peace of mind that if a challenge comes up, they have my back. They're so supportive and engaged."

Her first year as president was about stabilization. She said while the organization was in great shape, there was a lot of change at one time.

In her first day as president, Roberta wrote a letter and attached a photo of herself at four years old, sitting in the very front as her librarian read a book to the children. It demonstrates that love of reading that was instilled in her as a youngster, an example of the impact of the foundation's library funding. It also exemplifies something she is passing along to her daughter, Anna, age 6, who attends Acton Elementary School. Roberta maintains a notebook with each book she and Anna have read together for the Indianapolis Public Library's summer reading program. She tries to read with Anna for 20 minutes each night. She even went to Anna's Career Day to speak about the foundation and the Summer Reading Program which began June 5.

"It's a way to share with her my love of reading and she loves to read anyway," she said. "There are times she pushes me to the library. Plus, the concept of teaching responsibility. These books that we're getting from the library, we're borrowing these and sharing them with the community so we have to take care of them. We need to encourage children to be more civically minded and using your public library is a great way to do that."

This year at the foundation, Roberta's goals revolve around improvement.

"This year, it's about picking up your head, looking around and what can we do better," she said. "About 76 percent of our expenses are on library programs. I think we're efficient but how can we be more efficient?"

Looking ahead, the foundation will reach its 50th anniversary in 2019. Roberta said they're beginning to plan what that celebration will look like. Her goals are to make sure they are constantly maximizing their impact and keep the four da-tion operations healthy.

"I think our anniversary will create a public opportunity for us to do those things," she said. "I'm excited about how we can help every person and every child enrich their lives through lifelong learning. We want to do additional outreach and programming. So stay tuned."

Take a look at the new Greenwood Community Middle School building as construction continues

By Nicole Davis

Greenwood Middle School administration is moving into its new building this week.

The district is replacing the aging 140,000 square-foot building on Madison Avenue with a 160,000 square-foot building next to Freedom Park off Averitt Road.

Although construction continues, the building is expected to be completed by the end of June, with teachers and remaining staff to move in at the end of July.

The new middle school has 46 classrooms, compared to 43 at the old school, with space to grow as needed. The school currently has 910 students, and the new building can hold 1,100.

The new building is energy efficient, with LED lighting that is motion activated and large windows that let natural light flow into each classroom.

The three-story building is designed so that each grade level is on its own floor, with eighth grade on the first floor, sixth grade on the second floor and seventh grade on top. Each classroom has a whiteboard that spans from floor to ceiling, so students have plenty of space to write or use the projector.

The two gyms are side-by-side with large doors that open, so one event can use both spaces. In the old building, the gyms were on opposite sides of the school. The band/choir will now have its own space. The old school had to transform its conference rooms into classrooms, so in the new building there are five designated conference rooms, as well as a community room for district training.

Outside, the design will allow student drop off and pick up to happen in the parking lot and not impede upon traffic on the road, making it more safe and efficient. The middle school will now have its own track around the football field, as well as a building for concession, athletic locker rooms and public restrooms.

"Efficiency was the whole goal on everything we've done," said Assistant Superintendent Todd Pritchett. "How can we make it more efficient from the layout, energy efficient, student and teacher aspects of it. It's efficient and functional at the same time."

READERS' WRITES

A timeless friend may say goodbye

As most are aware, our local Marsh grocery store MAY close if a buyer is not found. This is not good news for our city and especially the folks who live close to the Marsh property.

We have reached out through our city attorney and opened up a line of communications with Marsh and, now we have a better understanding of their intent and timeline. We have also started to reach out to a couple competitors who may have an interest in this property, but at the end of the day they would have to come to terms with Marsh management.

This possible closure also creates another problem for our city. This area not only has a vacant hospital, this area also has vacant medical buildings across the street from the hospital, a vacant Starbucks, Dairy Queen building, and the lot at 18th and Main Street has also been vacant for a considerable time. So, a vacant Marsh building would cause further problems and possibly decrease property values in this area. As a friend put it to me, "This area is starting to look like a ghost town." I agree with her. In the coming months, I will speak with the City Council about making some investments in this area to promote growth, stop the reduction of home values, have an increase public safety presence, and continue to invest in infrastructure in this area.

FROM THE EDITOR

High in the sky for 240 years

Flag Day, the date which commemorates the adoption of the U.S. flag exactly 240 years ago, is June 14. The president of the United States officially established June 14 as Flag Day in 1916. If you look around the Southside, it would appear as though we have been celebrating since the beginning of spring. Red, White and Blue decorates poles along Southport Roads, Beech Grove Main Street, residents' yards and we've even spotted some flying on cars. Flag news is all around us.

At Monday's Beech Grove City Council meeting, a U.S. flag was donated to the city by the family of John Kelso Jr., in memory of the Marine who passed away in March 2001.

As the national holiday approaches, the Southport Flag Committee plans to host its annual Flag Retirement Ceremony. Conducted on June 14, 7:30 p.m., at Southport Park, hundreds of flags will be properly retired. The event begins with special program conducted by local Boy Scout troops before the flags are burned, all while the audience remains silent in recognition of the nation's symbol. A member from each branch of the military is also recognized during the program. Those unable to attend can drop torn and tattered flags off at 6901 Derbyshire Rd., Southport; include a note stating where the flag has been flown.

Take a moment this coming Wednesday, Flag Day, to reflect on what the flag truly means as our nation's symbol: White signifies purity and innocence, Red, hardness and valour, and Blue, signifies vigilance, perseverance and justice.

TOP TEN THINGS TO DO WHEN MRS. CURL RUNS OUT OF ICE CREAM

By Torry Stiles

Dear readers - Tragedy struck the Southside last Sunday when Mrs. Curl's Ice Cream operators posted on its Facebook page: "We are almost out of ice cream for the night. After a busy weekend, we do not have any left. Plan to make a trip tomorrow instead. We are sorry for the inconvenience!" Needless, to say, panic ensued.

10. Crawl into the closet, curl up into a fetal position and sob like an orphaned baby seal.
9. Search for a suitable alternative. Realize there is none. Give up on life altogether.
8. "Hello. This is the Suicide Hotline. We heard about Mrs. Curl's. All of our crisis counselors are busy. Please hold."
7. "Sir. I believe you when you say you have explosives but we have no more ice cream. Please get off the counter so I can close the window."
6. "... Mr. Stiles, I sympathize but it's only ice cream. You cannot claim this as a disability."
5. "The note says, 'Put three large chocolate-dipped cones into a plain, brown paper bag and nobody gets hurt.'"
4. "That's Crisco, Torry. Put it down. It only looks like ice cream."
3. "911 operator. What is your emergency? ... For the ninth time, this does not qualify."
2. "It won't make any difference, ma'am. Please get off our roof."
1. "Nurse. He's a Mrs. Curl regular. We need to start an IV of raspberry razzle STAT!"

BELIEVE IT!

Our nation has all sorts of arcane, nonsensical laws on the books. Each week, we'll share one with you ...

Wonder Woman

The brightest star in DC's universe

MOVIE REVIEW

By Adam Staten

While summer will not officially begin for another couple of weeks, as far as Hollywood is concerned, the hottest season of the year is in full swing. Some of the year's most anticipated blockbusters have already opened in theaters like Guardians of the Galaxy Vol. 2, Alien: Covenant and Pirates of the Caribbean: Dead Men Tell No Tales. Additionally, the summer has already had its share of bombs like Snatched and King Arthur: Legend of the Sword. Regardless, the summer box office season still has a ways to go, but arguably the biggest film of the season hit theaters this past weekend.

Wonder Woman is the story of superhero Diana (Gal Gadot), princess of the Amazons and her quest to kill Ares, the Greek god of war. The film begins with our heroine as a child as she watches and mimics the moves of her all-female society's warriors. Diana yearns to be on the battlefield, to be a soldier and fight for the innocent and those unable to protect themselves. Despite Diana's many persistent and impassioned pleas to receive warrior training, her mother, the queen, remains steadfast in her opposition to the idea. Unwilling to take no for an answer, Diana goes behind her mother's back and begins receiving instruction in the way of the warrior from her aunt. However, a plane crash changes her life forever, forcing her to put her training to the test.

After saving the life of British spy Steve Trevor (Chris Pine), the first man she's ever seen, Diana hears tales about "the war to end all wars," WWI. Almost instantly, Diana is convinced Ares is behind all the death and destruction. Soon after Diana is on the battlefield deflecting bullets and killing German soldiers with little effort. She's unstoppable; no one has answers for this mysterious woman. However, a force reveals itself that may prove to be too powerful even Wonder Woman.

Wonder Woman is yet another attempt from DC to right the ship after last year's disappointing Suicide Squad and the even worse Batman and Superman flick. Luckily, the third time appears to have been the charm. Gal Gadot as the iconic heroine is excellent. She's tough and brutal whenever necessary as she disposes of German soldiers, but is also able to handle the film's surprisingly large amount of humor with ease. Chris Pine as Wonder Woman's love interest and sidekick also provides a solid performance.

As far as the story goes, it's nearly as pleasant as the performances of its two leads. The film adequately tells Wonder Woman's origin and yet, still manages to tell a full story, showcasing the superhero in her first fight to save the world from annihilation. However, the film's biggest flaw is due to the writing. Late, late in the film, there is a twist that essentially comes out of left field, so much so that it almost feels tacked on.

Despite two previous very big swings and misses, DC has connected in a big way with Wonder Woman. At this point, Wonder Woman looks to be the brightest star in the DC universe. 4 out of 5.

Strawberry Love

NUTRITION

By Wendell Fowler

Bright red, juicy and sweet strawberries are jam-packed with health-creating vitamins, minerals and antioxidants. The heart-shaped orbs are highly perishable and should be purchased only a few days prior to eating. Don't wash them till you're ready to eat. They are delightful additions to your smoothie, granola, salad or by the handful.

Did you know strawberries are the only plant with seeds on outside? Or that one cup of vine-ripened berries contains more vitamin C than an orange? The red orbs contain magnesium, copper that supports growth, hair and eyes and potassium for heart health, anti-cancer antioxidants that speed-bump aging and prevent oxygen damage to your temples' cells and organs. Seniors who eat the most strawberries were three times less likely to develop cancer compared to those eating few or no strawberries. (beatcancer.org/blog-posts/can-strawberries-prevent-cancer) The Journal of Agriculture and Food Chemistry says anthocyanins which create their color are potent antioxidants that prevent oxygen damage to your temples cells and organs.

The fibrous berry assists digestion, promotes gut health, holds B-vitamins for overall health, and iodine for your temple's thyroid. Lastly, strawberries contain Omega 3 for brain and heart wholeness.

Weekly Devotion

41 And while they yet believed not for joy, and wondered, He said unto them, Have ye here any meat?

42 And they gave Him a piece of a broiled fish, and of an honeycomb.

43 And He took it, and did eat before them.

LUKE 24:41-43

Lest anyone think that this is a ghost or an apparition of sorts, this is the physical, living, functional Jesus Christ in His resurrected body which can eat and drink and communicate just as any other physical body does. I don't believe in ghosts in the sense that it appears that others do. Jesus was a man of flesh and blood and Spirit. He had a mind of His own, a will of His own and a desire to live just as any other man desires to live. The difference between Him and us is that He totally, and I mean totally, surrendered His life to His Father in heaven and reserved not one moment of His time to Himself. He could have had a life of His own but He chose to give it all over to the Father in heaven. He was the unique and only begotten Son of God, born of God and through Him, God come to dwell with us. As He said of Himself, "If you see Me, you have seen the Father also."

The outcome of all of that is that He does not stay dead and in a cold and lifeless form in the tomb. His physical body is no longer mortal but immortal. No power on earth can prevent Him from going where He desires to go and being to those He chooses to appear to, whatever

He wants to be.

What does this mean to and for us? Everything, because He intends the same for us. Paul tells us that we can do all things through Him who strengthens us. If we believe, we can. What a powerful message this is to the church. The only way we can be defeated is by giving in to Satan and giving up on God.

God bless, go and have a great day.

WHY PRINT?

ENGAGEMENT
 According to International News Media Association, printed newspapers boast the highest amount of ad engagement by readers. While other mediums allow for the option to ignore or "skip" an advertisement, newspaper ads are built into the content. (inma.org)

AFFORDABILITY
 Newspapers offer a lower cost per thousand readers than radio, tv and direct mail advertising. (mediaspectrum.net)

TARGETING
 Loyal readers and niche audiences are easier to reach when you know the geographic area and circulation. (fedena.com)
