Q: The Tim Burton directed movie Batman was released on June 23, 1989 leading to the run of big screen comic book movies.

Who is your favorite comic book superhero or what is your favorite superhero movie? Why?

"Spiderman, because of the love story. Because of the spiderbite he turns into this magical superhero and then it turns into a beautiful love story."

Jenny Uhlik, works in Perry Township

"Batman, The Dark Knight because Heath Ledger did a phenomenal job as the Joker. If you look at some of the things that he (The Joker) was trying to expose, he wasn't just a bad guy."

Shetoya Faulkner of Perry Township

"Iron Man. My favorite characteristic of Iron Man is that the science of the movies is almost realistic. The science is all there."

Rock Henry of Greenwood

"Spiderman is my favorite superhero. Spiderman II with Doc Ock (Doctor Octopus) in it was my favorite movie because he allowed the technology to take over him and then in the end he used his own strength to beat the technology and do away with the threat. I think it is important that we use our bodies and brains outside of technology."

It is often said... Buyer Beware!

So, you wanna buy a house? Stigmatized properties.

HAUNTS & JAUNTS

By Rick Hinton

So... thinking about buying a house? Perhaps it's just a starter home, or, a forever home. Buying a house can be an exciting journey, as long as you ask the right questions. Otherwise you might end up with a stigmatized property.

Stigmatized properties (homes, apartments, businesses) have a past, sometimes not a nice one. It could involve many things transpiring within its walls: murder, suicide, AIDS, cult, drugs, or prostitution. Also included in the mix could be Phenomena—ghosts!

Caveat emptor ("let the buyer beware") is in play with real estate transactions, with most states (Indiana included) not requiring notification of certain stigma attached. Yet, this's where it gets sticky. The National Association of Realtor's code of ethics mandates its agents to avoid "exaggeration, misrepresentation or concealment of pertinent facts." Psychologically-affected properties are certainly beyond the norm. Sellers, or Realtor, may not necessarily offer information, yet have a duty to reply truthfully when asked direct questions. A lie constitutes "misrepresentation." Honesty is always the best policy. It keeps you out of the courtroom!

The Residential Real Estate Sales Disclosure form informs potential buyers about material defects: foundation, heating & cooling, termites, moisture, rodents, mold, and appliances—everything the seller knows about. What it leaves out is most is stigmas attached to the property. Some won't mind buying a stigmatized property, especially at a cost savings. Others run for the hills! Presently, Indiana law requires a seller to tell the buyer if the house was once used as a methamphetamine lab. And, a disclosure if anyone has died in the house, if the sellers are aware of it! A murder/suicide house could possibly turn into a haunting situation. Bargain days... two for the price of one! Ask your new neighbors about your house. They're a wealth of information.

Two stigmatized property's come to mind: The yellow house sitting on the corner of Meridian and Main Street in downtown Greenwood, where a daughter, apparently in a drug haze, bludgeoned her mother to death with a hammer and dragged her body out the back door into the garage—right across from Mrs. Curls Ice Cream. The house was for sell afterwards—no takers! And, the former Sylvia Likens murder house on East New York Street. After the murder, the house went through a procession of being for sale and a rental unit (tenants never lasted long) for years. Both properties were demolished. Stigmatized? Oh yes! It takes years (hoping folks forget) for these properties to sell. The house in Greenwood was for sale way too soon after the fact. The Likens house, well... the neighborhood never forgot!

GOVERNMENT WATCHDOG

GREENWOOD COMMON COUNCIL

Meeting, June 19

What happened:

Ordinance 17-31 was introduced to the council and passed first reading, ordinance 17-29 passed first reading. Resolution 17-08 and Resolution 17-11 have been postponed until the next meeting.

What it means:

Ordinance 17-29 seeks to amend the Municipal Code regulating the parking of boats, boat trailers, campers, travel trailers, recreational vehicles, and commercial vehicles on residential property to clarify the waiver process. The Board of Public Works and Safety may consider a number of factors when deciding who qualifies for a waiver.

Resolution 17-08 will declare a certain area located in Southpoint Business Park on North Graham Road as an Economic Revitalization Area (ERA). The area in question is owned by Becknell Industries and they seek to build a 140,100 square-foot concrete building.

Resolution 17-11 will give a tax abatement to the Monsanto Company. The company seeks to move into the speculative building that is currently being built by the Becknell group in Resolution 17-08.

Ordinance 17-31 will amend the Municipal code and create two handicap parking spaces on Broadway Street.

What's next:

Ordinance 17-29, Ordinance 17-31, Resolution 17-08, and Resolution 17-11 will go before the council for its second reading at the July 5th meeting.

In brief...

Residents Against Monsanto

Monsanto Company and Becknell Industrial have postponed its Resolutions until the July 5 meeting. Becknell approached the council in an effort to declare an area within Southpoint Business Park as an Economic Revitalization Area in hopes of building a speculative building within the area. Monsanto seeks to occupy the building in question.

"Monsanto is a company I have known for years," said Greenwood resident Randy Goodman. "I have worked on their equipment and turned down a job working with them for one of their spinoff companies. Do we really want a company that is involved in currently, or has been involved in, conflicts in Argentina, Brazil, China, India, The United Kingdoms, and the United States to be our neighbors?" Goodman believes that bringing Monsanto to the community would be detrimental for Greenwood and would go against what Greenwood stands for.

"Monsanto has been known to dump mercury and PCP laden waste into the local waterways and I have heard nothing in their presentation that says they will not do it here. Greenwood is enough of a floodplain that we should be concerned of any type of chemical leakage. It seems counter to what I would like to see in Greenwood."

Many believe that Monsanto will not add to the community, but rather destroy it. They believe that it will pollute the air and waters of Greenwood and turn prospective residents away from the city. "It has been promoted that Monsanto is good for Greenwood because everybody has heard of them," said former resident Stacy Davidson. "Everyone has heard of Monsanto, but it is all for the wrong reasons. The reputation of Greenwood is now at stake." Davidson compiled data against Monsanto saying that there are over 800 cancer patients nationwide who are involved in a class action lawsuit that accuses Monsanto of failing to adequately warn them of help risks posed by Roundup. Goodman stated that in November of 2013 there were nine active and 32 archived polluting cites associated with Monsanto.

"Because these chemicals do not easily break down they will circulate through the environment," said Davidson. "It is much harder and expensive to clean up the environment once contaminated."

Resolution 17-11 will go before the council on July 5 for its second and final reading.

SOUTHPORT CITY COUNCIL

Meeting, June 19

What happened:

Resolution 2017-12 was approved.

What it means:

Resolution 2017-12 regards the leased purchase of a new police station/city hall at 137 Mormon St., Southport. A technical review committee, consisting of Bill Leber, Wendell Adams and Thomas Vaughn, will be established/appointed to oversee the project. RDC member Adams was appointed as the design criteria developer. Brian Bosma, the city's attorney, said that this method of forming a committee for developing the project is the best option that Southport had available. Once approved by the city council, the request for bids will go out.

Ordinance 17.06.01: The Parks Board has been awarded a land and conservation grant for $141,250. The board must match this. The ordinance establishes a fund for this grant match. Rules were suspended to pass this fully on first reading.

Out of the many lessons she learned through the past few years, Mavis Washington said the biggest one is simply to "have a better listening ear."

It's a skill she puts to use with Why Aren't You Smiling, also known as W.A.Y.S., based out of Horizon Central on the Southside of Indianapolis. The faith-based nonprofit aims to support youth who struggle with self-esteem issues, depression or another mental illness.

"I want these kids to see that they can be productive members of society despite any type of issue they have, despite their history of mental health illness in their family," Mavis said. "It doesn't mean they can't reach their goals and dreams. They just have to know what it is, how to control it and move on."

Mavis is originally from Los Angeles, Calif., where she owned a juice bar, called The Juice Joint. Wanting to live in a place with a slower pace, she and her husband, Kenny, moved to Indiana in 2004 with the youngest of her two sons, Armand. Once here, Mavis returned to school, Martin University, and earned her degree to become a teacher. She spent three years teaching preschool, three years as an instructional assistant and another six as a music teacher.

Feb. 19, 2014 is a date Mavis and her family will never forget: the day Armand was sentenced to 25 years in prison for armed robbery.

"It changed our lives completely," Mavis said. "It's something we never thought would happen in our family. Those things weren't in our family genealogy, we thought. He worked at the YMCA, at my school that I was teaching at. He coached basketball and track with me. He volunteered at an organization, a basketball team with disabled men. He was in college at ISU. He had a beautiful, young girlfriend. He was doing all sorts of things that were positive, nothing that pointed in the direction of him going out and robbing some places with a weapon."

Mavis said they requested to have her son evaluated, as they knew his actions didn't fit the person they knew him to be.

"It might not change things for him, the outcome of his sentencing, but we want to know what was wrong," she said. "We found out he was bipolar. He started sharing with us how he felt: thoughts of depression, anxiety, he was sad a lot. We had no idea."

Once incarcerated, Armand began sharing with his mother about this idea for W.A.Y.S., a program to prevent other youth from experiencing what he went through.

"He was sending me all kinds of information," Mavis said. "His vision was so big. I said, 'I can't do this. I have a job. This is a full-time situation.' I had those papers stuffed in a drawer for two-and-a-half years. But God was tugging at my heartstrings."

Mavis officially started W.A.Y.S. on July 28, 2016 with 16 children. The organization now has 25 and meets twice a week. The program is based upon four components. Connect involves yoga, dance and music. In Expression, youth sit down to share their thoughts and feelings with their peers. Project Help is volunteering and community service. Harakati, Swahili for movement, is any physical exercise. Students journal and create vision boards.

"Armand did some research on different activities and how they help with the inner self," Mavis said. "Healing takes place when you can talk about it. We have these vision boards because he says they have to have a vision. They have to see themselves somewhere else. They can't let their situations take over. They set goals."

She continued, "I'm just trying to get them to be honest. They can be honest in this room. They love coming here. This is a healthy outlet for them. That's what was wrong with Armand. He had nowhere to share his feelings. They just spiraled out of control."

Mavis said Armand, now 24, calls as often as he can, sometimes during class when the kids can speak with him.

"He is amazed," she said. "He writes them a letter every week and I read it to them. This program has helped him. We're carrying on his vision and doing what we can for some other parents so they don't have to go through this."

Through the program, Mavis said she has seen a lot of improvement as the kids grow more comfortable with her and the group.

"Some of the kids that I know barely ever smiled," she said. "They are so much happier now. The kids come in here and talk about everything. That's a beautiful thing... Anger is a big issue. We had anger management seminars. A lot of them are angry with their family situations. Or, I found a lot of them have secrets they feel they haven't been able to reveal to their parents. They have these inner demons that they want to talk about but only feel comfortable talking about it in this room."

Outside of W.A.Y.S., Mavis is a substitute teacher in Perry Township. However, W.A.Y.S. has been a full-time task, as she takes the youth to and from the meetings, fundraises, makes sure snacks and meals are available on days they meet, and organizes outings. The group is going to Atlanta, Ga., this month for a three-day trip to tour the city, including the National Center for Civil Rights Museum, World of Coca Cola Museum and other landmarks. More information can be found at wayswesmile.org.

"Next year's goal is to become more involved with their schools, so I can make them accountable for their actions," Mavis said. "I want people to know about this program. I want people to know mental health should not be continued to be pushed under the rug. Our prison systems are filled with people with mental health issues. They don't really get the help they need before they become incarcerated. There's kids acting out. They're not just bad. There's something going on. Mental health is big and I need people to be more aware to address that issue and support people that need help in that area."

Project Love Food & Clothing Pantry adjusts to recent clientele changes with addition of local refugees

FEATURE

By Nicole Davis

It's not just about food at Project Love Food & Clothing Pantry. The food is the catalyst.

"The gratifying thing for me is the people sharing their stories, why they're here at the pantry in the first place," said Kenny Washington, administrator of the ministry. "We don't just give them food. We pray for things in their lives, things they need to address. They keep us in touch in terms of the progress they're making. We find we're involved in getting these stories and getting these updates because they know we care. We are genuine friends in our Christian walk."

Horizon Central started in the late 90's after it took over the building which was previously Indianapolis Public School 18 at 1001 E. Palmer St., Indianapolis. Its food pantry ministry began in 2011, planted from another ministry based on the Northside called Faith, Hope and Love.

"We serve a community that is under that radar in terms of social economic conditions," Washington said. "There is some poverty in the area. We were doing clothing for while. There was a need for food."

When the pantry started, it received food from two of the major local food banks: Gleaners and Midwest Food Bank. Since that time, the pantry has grown in terms of the types of donations it receives and where those donations come from.

Youth from the church's Why Aren't You Smiling (W.A.Y.S.) ministry volunteer to serve the clients.

The pantry is becoming more efficient with an automated process and maintaining statistics on who is being served on a monthly basis. The pantry serves 45 families a month, or up to 300 people. That number has begun to increase in recent months after the church and pantry was contacted by the Welcome Immigrant Center and has begun to serve local Syrian refugees.

"The Syrian refugees have changed how we served," Washington said. "It's forced us to look at how we can do things better."

The biggest change is the type of food they stock.

"They're not a processed food society," said Julie Rosetto, distribution coordinator. "They eat more fresh vegetables. They do flour, cornmeal, things from scratch. We have added foods because of their diet."

The pantry has also reached out to people who can grow fresh produce to donate. Washington said they are currently remodeling the pantry to accommodate the changes.

"It brings me great pleasure to know that we're feeding others and to know we're fulfilling a need that otherwise would not be filled," Rosetto said. "As a child, my grandma always taught us to feed the hungry. Anyone that comes to your home, you feed them. When I got involved at the pantry, it was trying to find a way to touch more people. This seemed to be it for me. It's an opportunity to see a person smile and know that their need is met. That is my greatest treasure."

Beech Grove Parks offers 3rd Annual Bubble Party with plenty of bubbles and bubbling children

By Nicole Davis

Big bubbles. Little bubbles. Sarah T Bolton Park was filled with bubbles at the Hilltop Shelter during the 3rd Annual Bubble Party on June 20.

The Parks Department has partnered with Beech Grove City Schools this year to offer its Summer Meals program alongside the parks' summer programming. Through July 14, children can eat lunch for free and adults can join for $3.

"It is really good to see so many families come out," said Tarrah McCreary, resident dietician for Beech Grove City Schools. "This is our first year at the park. We have about 50 (people) at each site every week. This (Bubble Party) was similar to our kick-off event. A lot of kids came that day."

The Parks Department has been offering three events each week: animal shows on Wednesdays at Don Challis Park, arts and crafts on Thursdays at Sarah T Bolton Park and another activity on Tuesdays at Sarah T Bolton Park. The Bubble Party allowed children to use bubble toys or create their own devices with the supplies provided.

"It's been really fun, the string bubbles," said Branden Evans, of Southside Indy. "It's so fun just to run around and make such a big bubble."

Southport Flag Retirement Ceremony celebrates Flag Day

By Nicole Davis

For the first time in 12 years, the Southport Flag Retirement Ceremony had to avert to plan B and relocate indoors to the Southport Community Center after a thunderstorm occurred less than half an hour prior to the start time.

Guests didn't let the rain get them down. Although the hundreds of flags that had been laying on a table, ready for retirement, could not be placed in the fire, the ceremony went on. Organizer Duane Langreck informed the audience of how the program would have gone - with a presentation by the local Boy Scout Troop 120, each branch of the military recognized before guests were asked to, quietly, come up and retire a flag until all of the flags had been placed in the incinerator.

During the ceremony, Bill Holzer, founder of the Star Project, spoke about the meaning of the stars cut from worn-out flags that his group handed out. Kevin Rankel, a Center Grove resident, spoke about his son, Sgt. John K. Rankel, who gave the ultimate sacrifice during his third overseas tour, in Afghanistan, on June 7, 2010. (Look for an article on John in next week's The Southside Times, Faces of Freedom special edition). Afterwards, Holzer presented Kevin and his family with a knitted afghan in the design of the American flag, given in John's memory.

READERS' WRITES

Thanks: Southport Flag Retirement Ceremony

I would like to personally thank all the people that came to our ceremony last Wednesday, June 14th.

The rain forced us to go to plan B very quickly but everybody chipped in, set up the chairs inside and we were able to hold the ceremony.

I also want to thank all the people responsible for the ceremony: all the Scouts, Boy scouts, Cub Scouts, Girl scouts and Brownies, Military personal, our singer, the pastors, the flag committee and Chief Vaughn. Special thanks goes to Bill Holzer with the Star Project, Judy Doyle for the beautiful Afghan she presented.

And a very honored thanks to Kevin Rankel, Father of an American Hero for telling the Story of his son Sgt. John K. Rankel who gave his life for his country on June 7, 2010 in Afghanistan.

Thank you again Kevin; you have our utmost respect.

Due to the rain we were unable to retire the 650 flags I had laid out that night. I am working on Plan C. When we dedicate the Veteran's Memorial Eagle project currently under construction around our park's flag pole, we can retire the flags that night. The date is yet to be determined.

For 15 years, the flags have been flying on Southport's poles. This is the 12th year we have had a ceremony and my 12th year coordinating the event. I am very proud of the Flag Committee and Southport for letting me contribute to this great event now and in the future.

Ready for the 4th?
Celebrations begin

As we inch toward July, the promise of more summer fun lingers in the air. Even though the Fourth of July isn't for nearly two more weeks, the festivities kick off this weekend. Greenwood's Freedom Festival is June 24, 12 to 10 p.m. at Craig Park, beginning with a parade, then local food, beer and craft vendors, live music and a kids zone to round out the festival.

Next is the annual Beech Grove Fireworks: All American Day in the Park. The event on July 3, 5 - 10:30 at Sarah T. Bolton Park is a big to-do if you live in and around the city of Beech Grove. There will be food vendors provided by local businesses and not for profit organizations (will begin serving at 6:30). DJ begins playing music at 6:30 p.m. 50/50 raffle drawing prior to fireworks. Bounce House for the kids (free). Fireworks are at dark, 10 p.m. The fireworks display is one of the best around!

Get a head start on the day of the Fourth of July, and join the Southport Parks Department at its annual festivities. The parade was cancelled for this year - with promises of bringing it back in 2018. But a service will begin at 11:30 a.m. and 12:30 p.m. lunch and festival!

No need to venture downtown Indy to get some red, white and blue fun. But with the timing of these events, Southside residents can go all out and attend each one! If you do, be sure to let us know about it!

HUMOR

TOP TEN REASONS THIS WEEK'S LIST ISN'T DONE

By Torry Stiles

10. Blew my money at the Marion County Fair bingo tent and I have to work off my debt in the dunk tank.
9. Horoscope looked bad. Afraid to touch anything with sharp edges. Those keyboards are killers, you know.
8. My mom says she has every one of my lists. I want to NOT write one so she can't have it. It'll drive her crazy.
7. Camped out at the movie theater to be first in line for the new Spider-Man movie. My phone is already dead and I really have to go potty.
6. New diet has me a bit loopy. Pleased to meet you, Mrs. Roosevelt. How's Franklin?
5. With all of the "fake news" out there, I have learned I have become a reliable source. The New York Times has my phone ringing off the hook.
4. Mr. Fluffypants says I can't leave my room. We don't want to anger Mr. Fluffypants now, do we? Hmmmmmmm?
3. I've been busy Googling my name and claiming copyright infringement against Tori Spelling, Clare Torry, Tory Holt and the British Tory party.
2. The Southside Times' editor says I can't turn in any more columns that aren't funny. I got nothin' here.
1. The doctor says I have diabetes so I am spending all of my time standing outside of Long's Donuts inhaling deeply.

BELIEVE IT!

Our nation has all sorts of arcane, nonsensical laws on the books. Each week, we'll share one with you ...

Perry Township educator is NEA Foundation Global Learning Fellow

STEM – The NEA Foundation named Craig Hendrick, a STEM educator at Perry Meridian 6th Grade Academy in Indianapolis, Ind., as one of the 48 public school educators to become a member of this year's class of Global Learning Fellows. Hendrick will spend a year building global competency skills (the capacity to understand and act on issues of global significance).

As a result of the Fellowship, Hendrick will be better equipped to prepare students for global citizenship. Fellows also create valuable global lesson plans for their students that are freely shared with educators across the nation and the world through open-source platforms.

"By starting with local issues, I hope to bring in teachers and community members who would want to share their knowledge," says Hendrick. "Local connections can help grow to global issues and understandings. Local activism can also grow to global change."

BUSINESS

Indy Fuel owners expand plans for Greenwood

Youth sports – Indy Fuel owners Jim and Sean Hallett announced on June 19 a proposal to develop a sports and family entertainment destination along Interstate 65 in Greenwood. The proposed project, developed by Hallett-owned Indiana Ice Arenas LLC and Indianapolis-based Gershman Partners, includes more than $40 million of private investment and would encompass 60 acres of long-admired real estate along I-65, south of County Line Road. Both organizations have signed letters of intent with the city expressing their intentions and requests for incentives.

There are two components to the development. The first, Greenwood Sportsplex, serves as the anchor destination. The 175,000-square-foot facility would house two ice rinks, two turf fields (convertible to two additional ice rinks), five basketball courts (convertible to 10 volleyball courts), a fitness/training facility, pro shop, locker rooms and food service facilities. Indiana Ice Arenas estimates an investment of $25 million to construct the Greenwood Sportsplex, which would be one of the largest facilities of its kind in the nation. The second component is a multi-phased development. The initial project includes entertainment, dining and hospitality destinations. Gershman Partners would invest an additional $15 million and has initial agreements in place with Xscape Theatres and Main Event Entertainment to serve as anchors.

The city now has letters of intent with both organizations. The letters indicate a desire for definitive agreements to be in place by the end of August. The Greenwood RDC will vote on the incentive packages during its upcoming meeting on July 11. Other required approvals include standard variance requests through the Board of Zoning Appeals and plat/site plan approval from the Advisory Plan Commission. For more information, visit greenwood.in.gov/sportsplex.

Area service professionals share summer home and garden tips

By Brian Ruckle

Hot summer temperatures are back and Southside service professionals are on call to help you keep your home cool, your lawn lush, your garden bountiful and your interiors comfortable and attractive.

Joe Annee of Annee & Matry Heating and Cooling emphasized not neglecting annual service calls and changing out filters every three months.

“Make sure you have your air conditioners cleaned and checked so they work properly.

If the condenser coils and evaporator coils get dirty they will not cool,” Annee said.

Chris Huser of Lamping/Huser Heating and Cooling stressed the importance of keeping a consistent temperature in your home or office.

“Don’t fluctuate your thermostat up and down. It is hard on the unit and it is harder to maintain a constant temperature. I recommend keeping it at 72 or 74 or whatever you are comfortable,” Huser said.

Dan Hornaday of Flooring by Stretch Rite said one flooring option growing in popularity is luxury vinyl plank, a higher quality vinyl. It is resilient and cleans easily.

“It is somewhat of a new product. It has been growing because of its durability, cleanability, it is softer than actual tile, and it is water proof. If there are any water issues or pets it cleans up very easily,” said Hornaday.

Attractive lawns, gardens and home exteriors don’t happen by chance. In addition to using the services of professionals, there are many tasks you can do yourself with the right equipment. Indy Rental & Sales, Inc. has equipment for working on your own landscaping and other home tasks. They have pressure washers, a variety of lawn and garden equipment including post-hole augers and dirt-moving equipment.

Kelly Bowling of Indy Rental & Sales said that concrete and brick paver patios are very popular now. Equipment you can rent to make your dream patio includes a walk behind skid steer, a compactor with a viton pad, and a sod cutter.

Bill Heidenreich of Heidenreich Greenhouses and Garden Center said June and early July are still good times to plant.

“It is a good time to plant. We still have a lot of stuff left and a lot of good looking stuff. It can be harder to find certain things but it isn’t too late to plant,” he said, adding that they currently have a buy one get one free sale.

I'm actually a vegetarian but their build your own macaroni is so good I don't care that the rest of the menu is all burgers.

What do you like about this place?
I really like the atmosphere. They play heavy metal music and I run into people I know there. A lot of people I know live in Fountain Square and work at Kuma's. I like all of the beers they have on tap as well.

Healthy Summer Treats Make for Happy Kids

FAMILY FEATURES - Parents know raising healthy and successful children means more than encouraging learning and praising positive behavior. It also means instilling smart habits from the earliest years to create lifelong practices that promote overall health and good nutrition.

If getting your kids on board seems like a daunting challenge, try these tips from the fresh produce experts at ALDI for bringing more fruit, veggies and other healthy foods to your family's table without busting your budget:

ONE SMART COOKIE. For "cookies" you can feel good about giving your kids, cut an apple to create round slices then slather the slices with their favorite nut butter (peanut, almond or cashew) and top with raisins, yogurt bites or chocolate chips.

FRESH AND FRUITY. Swap sugary drinks for fresh, fruit-infused water. Let kids pick their favorite flavor combinations each evening and refrigerate water to infuse overnight so it's ready to enjoy the following day.

ICY SWEET TREATS. Make your own frozen pops using ingredients like fresh fruit, yogurt or milk. Use store-bought molds or substitute small paper cups covered with plastic wrap. Just poke sticks through the plastic to hold them in place until the mixture freezes.

HANDS-ON HELPERS. Getting kids in on the action is a great way to encourage healthier eating habits. After all, if they helped make it, it has to be good. Once all the ingredients have been sliced and diced, a recipe like these Grilled Balsamic Vegetable Pops is easy for kids to assemble. Just ask them to thread the skewers in their favorite color and flavor combinations.

IT TAKES A VILLAGE. Learning about the benefits of healthy eating can be fun, especially when you take advantage of programs in your community, such as those offered by libraries, community centers and schools. Through partnerships like the one ALDI has with Action for Healthy Kids, families and schools have increased access to nutrition education and physical activity tools that make living and eating healthy fun.

Indiana Chamber names Kirchhofer a 'Legislative Champion'

State Rep. – State Rep. Cindy Kirchhofer (R-Beech Grove) earned a 100 percent on the Indiana Chamber of Commerce's annual Legislative Vote Analysis for her support of pro-jobs, pro-economy legislation. Kirchhofer's score is based on her performance during the 2017 session of the Indiana General Assembly and her votes cast in agreement with the chamber's position on certain bills, including measures on long-term road funding, ISTEP replacement and pre-K expansion for children from low-income families. Kirchhofer authored Indiana's new law broadening mental health and addiction treatment options in Indiana. Paul A. Annee awarded The Sagamore of the Wabash Civilian honor – The Sagamore of the Wabash, the States highest civilian honor, was presented to Paul A. Annee by his grandson Paul M. Annee, on behalf of the Governor of Indiana Eric J. Holcolomb on June 17, at a surprise birthday dinner with family on the Southside of Indianapolis. The Sagamore was awarded to Annee for his many years of dedicated service to the City of Indianapolis and State of Indiana. Annee started on the Indianapolis Police Department in 1965 as a rookie patrolman, working his way up the ranks until in 1986 Mayor William Hudnut III appointed him Chief of Police of IPD. His tenure as Chief is remembered as being very eventful, with the security preparations, trip to Cuba (where he and others met with Cuban President Fidel Castro) and serving as the President of the Law Enforcement Council for the 1987 Pan Am Games in Indianapolis. Annee introduced the community policing initiative by building three satellite police stations away from the downtown headquarters and making other structural changes within the department, many still in effect today. Annee served through the end of Hudnut's tenure as Mayor, leaving the Chiefs office at the end of 1991 and returning to his merit rank as Captain. He retired from IPD in 1999 after 34 years and took a job with National City Bank. He retired from PNC bank after almost 18 years and still serves at the Co-President of the Police Motorcycle Drill Team.

Weekly Devotion

18 And will be a Father unto you, and ye shall be My sons and daughters, saith the Lord Almighty. I Corinthians 6:18

7 Having therefore these promises, dearly beloved, let us cleanse ourselves from all filthiness of the flesh and spirit, perfecting holiness in the fear of God.

1 CORINTHIANS 7:7

The benefits of being a Christian far outweigh the things one must give up to become one. First and foremost is our relationship to Him and not just with Him. Once we come to the Father through the son, we begin a "Father-child" relationship with Him. That makes us a relative of His and gives us 24 hours a day access to Him. No matter the situation, we have access to God when we come to Him and recognize Him is the Father of every born-again child of His church. God says, "I will be a Father unto you and I will take you to be my sons and daughters." Isn't that powerful?

So Paul writes, "Since we have these promises we need to cleanse ourselves from all filthiness of the flesh and spirit, perfecting holiness in the fear of God."

To access this promise, we must be born-again and to keep them we must accept the rules of the house of our Father. Who makes those rules? God does. We no longer set them ourselves as in the past, but we study to show ourselves acceptable to God and we become workers in His kingdom by correctly speaking His truth without regret or shame.

God will stand by us if we will stand by Him. He will do all that any good father would do for his sons and daughters. He will see to it that our needs are met. All too often we relegate those needs to our physical lives but God goes much farther than that and meets our spiritual needs as well.

I am more than glad to call God my Father. I am more than satisfied to have Him as my Father and, I pray that He is happy to call me "son."

God bless and go and have a great day.

Paul A. Kirby is the pastor at the Church of God at 3939 S. Emerson Ave.

Seeking health and awesomeness? Become a locavore

NUTRITION

By Wendell Fowler

LOCAVORE: noun—a person who makes an effort to eat food that is grown, raised, or produced locally within 100 miles of home. Makes perfect sense, right? To support your Indiana family farmers? Eating local, in-season produce is one of nature's best ways to create health while supporting your community.

Freshly-harvested produce contains 100 percent of its nutritional energy. Old food, prematurely picked and shipped across the country, meh. Many preventable diseases are caused by vitamin deficiency. If you are shackled to the robotic, weekly grocery ritual of foraging earth's bounty harvested 1,000's of miles away, perhaps this will help you break free.

Vitamin deficiency anemia occurs when your body doesn't have enough vitamins needed to produce adequate numbers of healthy red blood cells. We've all heard of pirate's grey-death, scurvy is caused by a lack of vitamin C. And we all know folic acid deficiency can cause birth defects. Put it together friends.

Many beautiful souls today, doing their best to eat locally-grown food, are receiving significantly more sun-kissed vitamins, fiber and mineral nutrition: the solution to preventing, and curing, yes curing, many of today's diseases which we have been lulled into assuming are normal. Normal to be sick and undernourished? Pharma drugs only hush nature's protest that something is wrong in your holy temple. These signals your body are nature's way of telling you something's wrong. Be still and listen.

Pregnant women with folate deficiency may be more likely to experience complications, such as premature birth. Folate is found mainly in fruits and leafy green vegetables. Did you know smoking and drinking alcohol can lead to vitamin C deficiency because both decrease absorption of this powerful anti-cancer vitamin. Chronic illnesses, such as cancer or chronic kidney disease, negatively affect the absorption of vitamin C. Vegetarians and vegans who don't eat any dairy or dead animal flesh often experience vitamin deficiency. Consistently overcooking your food also can cause vitamin deficiency. Heat kills. Antacids and some drugs used to treat type 2 diabetes may interfere with B-12 absorption. Smell what I'm cookin'?

You become what you eat. So, if you're looking for health and wholeness, eating as many locally-grown whole foods that contain creations rainbow of nutrients and phytochemicals, will work in cooperation keeping your temple healthy. You are a miracle. Don't be afraid to be awesome. Buy local.

Create a Kaleidoscope of Color with a Unicorn-Themed Party

FAMILY FEATURES - From colorful cakes and beverages to pastel-hued hairstyles and sparkly manicures, the unicorn trend has become an internet sensation. All that colorful creativity is being used to transform ordinary events into memorable unicorn-themed parties.

This simple, statement-making party project from Kelly Mindell of Studio DIY brings the popular unicorn trend to balloons. Mindell's project shows how to give plain balloons a complete unicorn makeover with glitter, ribbon and stickers.

With a portable helium tank from Balloon Time, you can easily inflate and customize balloons, adding whimsical decor to any celebration.

Find DIY ideas to elevate every occasion at balloontime.com or check out Balloon Time on Facebook, Pinterest, Twitter and Instagram.

Unicorn Balloons

Supplies and Tools

- 17-inch latex balloons
- Balloon Time Helium Tank
- Gold ribbon
- Rainbow ribbon
- Pink, rainbow, star or metallic garland
- Star, circle, holographic or rainbow stickers
- Craft paint in rainbow colors
- Stiff paint brushes
- Paper plate
- Protective surface cover

Directions

- Inflate balloons using helium tank then tie with gold ribbon.
- Add flair to balloon tails by tying trim to balloon knots. Add some rainbow ribbon and some texture or shapes, using garland.

• Add additional texture to balloons with stickers by making a pattern all over balloons with star or circle stickers, concentrating stickers toward bottom with a few floating toward the top for a "dipped" look or mixing different stickers together.

• To add some splatter paint to balloons as "unicorn tears," start by squeezing different paint colors onto plate.

• Hold balloon over covered surface and dip stiff paint brush into one color. Flick brush at balloon to create splatters. If paint is not splattering well, dip brush in small amount of water first to help thin out paint.

• Rotate balloon and repeat previous step to evenly distribute color. Then move on to additional colors until balloon looks as desired. Let dry a few minutes. Repeat with remaining balloons.

NOTE: Popcorn ceilings and hot ceiling lights can pop balloons. If high ceilings are a concern, tie balloons to jar of rainbow-colored rocks or candy in the party's color scheme.

AD CONTENT

WHY PRINT?

ENGAGEMENT

According to International News Media Association, printed newspapers boast the highest amount of ad engagement by readers.

While other mediums allow for the option to ignore or "skip" an advertisement, newspaper ads are built into the content. (inma.org)

AFFORDABILITY

Newspapers offer a lower cost per thousand readers than radio, tv and direct mail advertising. (mediaspectrum.net)

TARGETING

Loyal readers and niche audiences are easier to reach when you know the geographic area and circulation. (fedena.com)
