Treasurer for Perry Townships/Southport Historical Society, Barry Browning, with Mary Bryan's grave. (Photo by Rick Hinton)

Finding Mary Bryan

HAUNTS & JAUNTS

By Rick Hinton

I don't stroll through cemeteries in the dark anymore, yet have no hesitation in doing so in the daylight. Especially when accompanied by my friend, Barry Browning, treasurer for the Perry Township/Southport Historical Society. We are in the "Old" Southport Cemetery on a mission: finding the grave of Mary Bryan, pioneer woman.

History's always been a puzzle. Dates can be off by a few years, some events may or may not have actually happened, the spelling of names change but one thing remains consistent: what has happened in the past in many ways defines our present. It's a story of people who lived their lives for a brief moment in the sun and events that have left imprints. Mary Bryan has her very own historical marker, standing prominently outside a small cemetery on busy Southport Road. We pass it every day; at least I do. What happened here is a slice of such history.

History dictates that Daniel Boone (an explorer and settler from Kentucky) brought other potential settlers west through the "Gap" in the Cumberland Mountains in the late 1770s. The route became known as "The Wilderness Road." Mary factored into this. She happened to be married to Boone's nephew, Samuel Bryan, a Revolutionary War soldier and actual pioneer man. The exact year they transitioned through the mountains into a new life and whether it was with Boone leading the way is lost in the fuzziness of history. We'll never know for sure. There are date discrepancies on her marker and a misleading statement: "One of the first American women to cross the Cumberland Mountains." Not true! The American Indians had been crossing those mountains for hundreds of years prior. I believe there might have been a few women along those.

Mary Hunt married Samuel Bryan in Rowan County, North Carolina. They managed to rustle up 10 children before their next move in 1779 to Campbell County, Kentucky, where they lived for many years. Their final move, with a few of their children, was to Marion County, Indiana (Southport) somewhere between 1830 and 1834. Again... extreme fuzziness on the exact date. Samuel had barely enough time to unpack. He died in 1837. Mary followed five years later in 1842. There are reports that both were originally buried on the farm of their son, Luke, whom they were living with. They were later moved to the "Old" Southport Cemetery.

Barry and I found their plot in the cemetery. It wasn't hard to find, with old monuments mixed with new stones. A small wrought iron fence encircled three sides and adorned with flowers and American flags. We paused in respect. This was Southport in its infancy!

You might ask how the Bryan's factor into Southport history. How did they end up in this relatively small graveyard, looked over by the Gothic brick church to its east? And, whose land was this? Well, that's another story...

Special thanks to Marion County Marker Text Review Report (03/13/2013) for info and dates.

BRIGHTENING THE DARKEST ROOM

Left, Brian, Kelli and their parents, Donna and David Freeman, taken on Easter in 1999. | Top right, Brian's dad, David Freeman, and grandmother, Wanda Pear attended last year's golf tournament. | Bottom right, Brian Freeman, a Center Grove resident, was just 16 when he died. He had a gift for knowing when people were feeling outcast or alone and always found ways to comfort them, according to his sister, Kelli. (Photos courtesy of Kelli Sponsel)

The Brian Freeman Memorial Foundation honors a Center Grove teenager by spreading kindness

By Jeremy Dunn

Several year ago, Donna Freeman was out running errands with her teenage son, Brian. As many growing boys do, the Center Grove student asked his mother for some money to grab a snack. After being gone for quite some time, Donna grew concerned and began walking the aisles, calling out Brian's name. Easing her worry, her son ran up to her and informed her to go ahead and keep shopping. He went on to share that he had encountered an elderly woman using a wheelchair that was alone at the store. Brian was hoping that he could sit and talk with the woman, keeping her company for a bit, while his mother finished her shopping. This was Brian Freeman.

Brian was a typical 16-year-old boy that loved mischief, girls and cheeseburgers. However, this young man's capacity for kindness exceeded far beyond the scope of that day shopping with his mother. He had a gift for knowing when people were feeling outcast or alone and always found ways to comfort them. There are multiple memories of the Center Grove teenager eating lunch with lonely students. In another instance, Brian saved up his money to take an elderly woman from his church on a "date." His sister, Kelli Sponsel, recalls a time in which their mother informed them a young woman at the school she was working at did not have a date for prom.

"When my brother found out that she didn't have a prom date, he asked her if she would if she would like to go with him," she said. "He shined up the car, treated her to dinner and made her feel like a princess that night. Brian was a great dancer, but the young lady was not. So, not wanting to make her uncomfortable, Brian danced at her pace the entire evening."

A tragic twist of fate

On July 8, 1999, Brian briefly returned home from church camp to attend the funeral of his pastor's daughter with his family. The daughter was a part of Brian's youth group and being a small tight-knit congregation of nearly 200 hundred people, everyone took a day from camp to attend. After a moving service and time with his family, Brian returned to church camp with a calling in his heart. That evening, he knelt at an altar feeling drawn to be more of a leader in his youth group and at Center Grove High School, and in that moment, Brian recommitted his life to Christ. There was no doubt in anyone's mind that this young man was destined to do great things.

The next day, Brian returned home from church camp and needed to pick up his paycheck from a local car dealership that he was working for that summer. There had been some intense thunderstorms throughout the day, leaving it very humid outside. Since his car did not have air conditioning, the teenager asked to take Donna's red Pontiac Grand Am. He left to run his errand and his parents headed out for dinner with friends.

After hours had passed without being able to reach their son, the Freemans decide to return home. Turning the corner onto their street, the couple was faced with the fear that no parent ever wants to encounter. An Indiana State Trooper was parked in their driveway waiting for them. Brian had been involved in a car accident on Curry Road where he had hit high water left from the heavy rains. He was not speeding and was wearing his seatbelt, but once the car began to hydroplane, Brian no longer had control of the vehicle as it crashed into a tree and the Center Grove teenager was killed instantly.

Challenging a community

The viewing was held at the family's small church but everyone was moved by how many came to pay their respects. More than 1,500 people came to honor Brian, with hundreds of them being teenagers. People spent more than seven hours in line as the family was showered with stories of their young man's undeniable impact on others. Due to the expected number at the funeral, the family moved the service to the Community Church of Greenwood. With hundreds of teenagers in attendance once again, Donna Freeman offered a testimony of Brian's faith and the importance of valuing each moment with Christ. While the moment was an incredibly powerful testament to Brian's life, the family had no idea of the impact that their son was still about to have on others.

Being a leader

Among the pain of their loss, the Freeman family still sought out a way to honor Brian and his love for others. In 2001, the Brian Freeman Memorial Foundation was established with a motto being "to encourage the spirit of fellowship, kindness and integrity that was Brian Freeman." "We knew that we wanted to do something to carry on his legacy of kindness, but it took us a couple of years to get it off the ground," Sponsel said. From 2001 to 2005, the foundation hosted two events: a run/walk event at Center Grove Middle School and a golf outing.

Over time, the family phased out the run/walk event as they were realizing the golf outing was growing in popularity and was consistently raising money for the foundation. Even more impactful is what the Brian Freeman Memorial Foundation is doing locally and globally with the money they have raised.

"We raise right around $12,000 with each outing. We have been able to bless countless people over the last 17 years," she said.

These blessings have included building wells for fresh drinking water in Haiti, funding a custom shower for an amputee, providing multiple college scholarships, assisting with mission work in Africa, supporting a ministry for deaf children, helping a family with medical expenses after a firefighter lost his leg, purchasing motorcycles for pastors in India to travel more effectively, and covering funeral costs for a family who could not afford to bury their daughter. "We try to find the ones who may otherwise be overlooked, the way that Brian did. We try to support causes that would otherwise receive no support," Sponsel said.

Golfing to make a difference

The Brian Freeman Memorial Foundation golf tournament will be held June 28 at Dye's Walk Country Club in Greenwood and will mark the organization's 18th outing. A $100 entry cost will enter golfers into a four-person Florida scramble that includes a golf cart, range balls, a memento ball, soft drinks, lunch and door prizes. Registration will begin at 11:30 a.m. and a shotgun start will tee off at 1 p.m. The event is always accepting more players and sponsorship opportunities to help raise money for the Brian Freeman Memorial Foundation.

A lasting testimony

While Brian Freeman is no longer with us, his legacy continues to leaving a lasting mark on others. "We often say that he affected more lives in 16 years than many people do in an entire lifetime," Sponsel added. It is only fitting that Brian's headstone reads, "His smile brightened the darkest room, his love touched the hardest heart" followed with an excerpt from Psalm 18:16-24, "He reached down from on high and took hold of me; He drew me out of deep waters... He recused me because He delighted in me." Through the work of the Brian Freeman Foundation, the Center Grove teenager is still brightening the darkest of rooms and hearts but now can help take a hold of others and help them out of the deep waters in their own lives.

WHO HAS GUIDED YOU THE MOST THROUGH YOUR HIGH SCHOOL JOURNEY?

My StuVo (Student Voice) club sponsor, Ms. Sheehan. She's played a key role in shaping what kind of leader I've become and she's been there to lead me through all of the struggles of junior and senior year. Although I didn't meet her until the summer before my junior year, she's really defined the way I handle situations and how I look at the world in general.

The best piece of advice for underclassmen that I could give is to take everything one day at a time. High school is important, but sometimes there are problems that in the moment seem so formidable that it is difficult to remain focused on your work or your happiness. Just live in the present and do not worry so much about problems before you actually need.

WHAT PIECE OF ADVICE WOULD YOU GIVE UNDERCLASSMEN?

Take classes that you are passionate about and genuinely want to succeed in. If you choose classes that excite you, putting in the work to succeed in them will be much easier and more worthwhile. Choosing classes that you think are GPA boosters or that you don't have an interest in will always be less fulfilling.

WHAT PIECE OF ADVICE WOULD YOU GIVE UNDERCLASSMEN?

The best piece of advice I could give to underclassmen is to not to stress too much and to enjoy your high school career while it lasts. It's important to maintain your focus and to always try your hardest but remember to make the most out of high school that you possibly can. Don't be afraid to get involved; there are tons of clubs and activities available to you. Always remember to be passionate, determined and to always keep a clear mind and you will succeed.

WHO HAS GUIDED YOU THE MOST THROUGH YOUR HIGH SCHOOL JOURNEY?

My biggest guides throughout high school were really my teachers and friends. I'm incredibly thankful for every teacher that I had at Southport High School because they really became close friends and confidants throughout out my time there. I learned to not be afraid to ask questions and that the teachers are truly there to guide you through their course, not to fail you out as some may think! Friends are also your biggest allies throughout high school, as my friends were my biggest support system and motivators. A Work in Progress, but I'm Trying My Best

Dear BGHS Class of 2018,

At the start of each school year, we share three expectations with students. These are expectations that I try to live by each and every day. The first is about respect: Be respectful of yourself and others. The second is about your work ethic: Always try your best. You might not always be the best. You might not always succeed. But you are in control of your effort... and putting forth the best effort you can is the first thing you should commit to in everything you do. The third is about your thoughts, words and actions: Think nice things, say nice things, and do nice things.

As you think back on your years since Kindergarten, I encourage you to reflect on these three expectations. As we move toward graduation, we want to congratulate you on your successes and thank you for your hard work! You have all exhibited leadership skills through your involvement in Athletics, Band, Choir, Community Service and Extracurricular opportunities.

Each of you have wonderful memories to share. Through your academic, athletic, extracurricular, musical and many more experiences, you have developed strong skills, healthy friendships, and habits that will help you succeed for years to come. We celebrate your experiences because you help us build our Beech Grove High School Hornets achievements. It is always a great day to be a Hornet thanks to the successes of our graduates!

Now is the time to give thanks and appreciation to those who have supported you along the way...your family and friends, teachers, support staff, coaches and administrators... those who have propped you up when things got difficult. The end of the year will be full of recognition for your hard work and achievements, culminating in the ultimate accomplishment thus far: commencement. Remember to pay it forward to those who helped you along the way.

The work that you have accomplished has given you an opportunity to build your respect of yourself and others. Not only have you tried your best, but you have succeeded in graduation from high school. As you move on to your future plans, you have built strong habits of thinking, saying and doing kind things. Many of you will now work heavily in collaboration with others through further education, training, and jobs. It is our hope and belief that you go out into the world with respect, consistent effort and kindness.

Remember... Once a Hornet, Always a Hornet. We look forward to hearing the wonderful things you'll accomplish in the years to come. Thank you for the memories we share, and good luck!

He achieved a 4.50 grade point average on a four-point scale for his high school academic career. He has been accepted to Purdue University to continue his study of plant science which has begun as an independent study research project in conjunction with the university. This work has been accomplished during his junior and senior years at BGHS.

He was a recipient of the BGHS Academic Achievement Award, Top Ten Scholar Athlete Award, "Believe in You" Principal's Award, Academic Honors Diploma, President's Education Award and Marion County Principals' Outstanding Scholar

Elizabeth Pich BEECH GROVE HIGH SCHOOL SALUTATORIAN

Elizabeth Pich has earned the honor of being named salutatorian for the graduating class of 2018 at Beech Grove High School. She is the daughter of Annisa Gates and Mark Gates.

Her academic awards are numerous. They include the BGHS Academic Achievement Award, President's Education Award, Academic Honors Diploma, and Marion County Principals' Association Outstanding Scholar Award. She has also been named as the Outstanding Student in mathematics and received the "Believe in You" Principal's Award. Her grade point average for her high school career is 4.46 on a four-point scale.

Elizabeth was active in extra-curricular activities

Award. He has also been named the Outstanding Student in the science, mathematics and physical education departments. His academic success also earned him entry into the National Honor Society and Spanish Honor Society.

He participated in FFA and was a member of the Science Research and Academic Team.

Athletically, Ethan is an accomplished wrestler. His career record was 150-23. Included on his wrestling resume': 4-time state qualifier, 4-time ICC champion, 3-time Marion County champion, 2-time regional champion and 1 semi-state championship. He capped his stellar career with a 7th place finish at the state finals. He hopes to continue wrestling at Purdue.

He has assisted with the youth wrestling program, NHS fund raisers and the Ronald McDonald House in conjunction with the Spanish Honor Society.

during her high school career. She was especially involved in a leadership capacity for many of these organizations. Elizabeth served as president of Spanish Club, Student Leadership Team and National Honor Society. She served as vice president of the Drama Club. She was a Spell Bowl and DECA participant, too.

Volunteerism was also an integral part of Elizabeth's time while at BGHS. She has participated in work with the Ronald McDonald House, BGHS Youth Sports Camps, BGHS Youth Drama Camp and set production for various high school drama presentations.

Elizabeth plans to attend the University of Evansville next fall. She will work toward a major area of concentration in Public Health with an ultimate goal of becoming a physician's assistant.

The popular Italian Street Festival, held annually at Holy Rosary Catholic Church, will feature four local music acts, in addition to 25 different food items, games and rides. (Photo courtesy of Holy Rosary Church)

Italian Fest features food, games and new entertainment

This summer's annual Italian Street Festival will bring four popular local music acts to its venue, in addition to 25 different food items and plenty of games and rides.

"Every year, we are thrilled to invite the community to this exciting event that brings together the best in local entertainment, fantastic food and cultural fun," said Holy Rosary Father C. Ryan McCarthy. "During the Italian Street Festival, everyone is invited to experience our Italian traditions."

Holy Rosary Catholic Church, located at 520 Stevens St., Indianapolis (surrounding Lacy Park) hosts the free festival, which will be held June 8 & 9 from 5 – 11 p.m. There is free parking in the Eli Lilly lots on East and New Jersey Streets.

Local headliner, The Woomblies, will perform Friday evening, along with Theotokos and Final Edition. On Saturday, the lineup features Heartstone Crossing and Polkamotion. Italian music favorites, including Caruso and Frank Sinatra, will be played over the Festival public address system.

Bocce demonstrations will be held Friday and Saturday afternoons. All are invited to play at the courts in Lacy Park, located at McCarty and Greer Streets at the south end of the church, or learn how to play the historic Italian game. To sign up as a team of four to play in the IHSI League, register at italianheritage.org.

A mass will be held Saturday at 7 p.m. at the church. Attendees of the festival will be treated to a colorful, Italian religious procession, with a Blessed Virgin statue, priests, servers and members of the Italian Heritage Society moving through the middle of the food booths at 6:45 p.m.

The Italian Street Festival features more than 25 different Italian meats, pastas, salads and desserts. There is dancing, carnival rides and games for everyone. The Italian Street Festival organizers help to create a fun, family-friendly environment where one can experience Italian American culture by providing Italian cuisine, entertainment, Italian goods and service.

Promotors of the event include the Indianapolis Italian American community, the Parish of Holy Rosary, the City of Indianapolis, Holy Rosary Church and the Italian Street Festival. Proceeds from the annual Festival support the Church Operation Fund.

Giving back to your community

It's summer. The days are getting longer and maybe you've been meaning to give back in some way but not sure where or what type of volunteering you'd like to do.

What puts a smile on your face when you're doing something you enjoy? Is it walking dogs or cuddling with cats? The Humane Society of Greenwood is always looking for volunteers for dog walking, assisting at adoption events, fundraising, administrative tasks, animal transport, bathing and grooming and cleaning kennels.

The Social of Greenwood is also searching for volunteers doing special events, receptionist work, graphic design, communications, special building projects and café help.

Check out United Way of Central Indiana, which lists local nonprofits that need help. The opportunities are endless: being a big brother or sister, serving as a mentor, stocking shelves at a food pantry, volunteering at a library, visiting those who are ill in the hospital and helping those who are grieving after the loss of a loved one.

Volunteering can help get you out of the "rut" that you sometimes feel you're in. It's a great way to meet people in the community, gain experience for a job you want to have, and feel as though you are making a difference for a person, animal or cause.

For more opportunities in your area, check out Volunteers of America at voain.org, VolunteerMatch at volunteermatch.org or Great Nonprofits at greatnonprofits.org.

TOP 10 REJECTED
NEW SLOGANS FOR THE
INDY 500 (REVISITED)

By Torry Stiles

Dear readers – Another Indy 500 has come and gone like one of those cheap styrofoam coolers with the rope handles. Once again, we saw thousands of empty seats and open spaces. Maybe a new slogan would help. Some of these I first proposed 10 years ago but I wish to offer them again.

10. "Smell that? That's the smell of victory... and $9 corn dogs."
9. "Come watch the race on our TV's."
8. "Sponsor this slogan."
7. "There's still some Andrettis left."
6. "English mostly spoken here."
5. "Guaranteed snake-free."
4. "Their shoes really are fireproof. Just watch!"
3. "It's Foyt-tastic!"
2. "We're begging. Buy a ticket or Speedway will be the next Anderson."
1. "Still bigger than Roller Derby."

BELIEVE IT!

Our nation has all sorts of arcane, nonsensical laws on the books. Each week, we'll share one with you ...

In Missouri, single men between the ages of twenty-one and fifty must pay an annual tax of one dollar (enacted 1820).

READERS' WRITES

Special Session should not have happened

As a candidate for State Representative in House District #90 in the upcoming November election, I wanted to share a few observations about the recent Special Session of the Indiana General Assembly. First, it should never have happened. No emergency existed. The House leadership didn't get their work completed the first time around (January – March), and so they had to spend an additional $30,000 plus to convene for a one-day session on May 14.

Five bills were passed which required suspending the rules of the House in order to complete the process in one day. The normal Constitutional process was not followed. No public testimony or amendments were considered or even allowed. News reports project that several large companies will benefit from large tax cuts amounting to roughly $185 million in lost revenues to Indiana over three years. Those monies certainly could have been put to good use in House District #90 to improve our infrastructure, fund our schools, and lower the cost of internet and cable services. Some folks have suggested it was a special session for the special interests.

Just since the end of the Special Session, we have experienced another tragic shooting at a high school in Texas. And I am happy to report that the General Assembly passed a school security bill making $5 million available to local schools for school security improvement grants. Unfortunately, these monies won't go very far in terms of what most projects cost and with over 370 school corporations in the state... that's less than $14,000 per district. I would put this effort in the cover your rear category – and is clearly NOT a serious attempt to protect our children while in school.

The most important and far-reaching bill, in my judgment, was HEA 1335 which was proposed in response to ongoing financial challenges within several school corporations here in Indiana. The bill removed the authority of the local school board and transferred it to another public entity which will now appoint the school board members instead of having them duly elected by citizens in the district. This action is an outrageous and troubling precedent set by this General Assembly. Our current Representative, Mike Speedy, did not vote to protect the authority of local school boards. Instead, he was excused.

It strikes me that a bill of such consequence deserves a yes or no vote. In the future, if the Perry Township, Beech Grove, or Franklin Township School Corporations get into financial trouble, a precedent now exists which would allow for any school board to be stripped of its power and authority.

MATTERS OF HEALTH

Eskenazi Health joins with Lilly and local partners to reduce diabetes in central Indiana

By Dr. Dawn Haut, CEO, Eskenazi Health Center

Earlier this month, Eskenazi Health, along with Eli Lilly and Company, Indiana University's Richard M. Fairbanks School of Public Health and other community partners announced the launch of a new $7 million, five-year neighborhood-based, data-driven pilot program in Indianapolis to help address the high incidence of diabetes.

Data collected has shown that there are neighborhoods in central Indiana that have some of the most significant health disparities and highest incidence of diabetes in the country. In these neighborhoods projected rates of diabetes range between 17 and 20 percent. This is one-and-a-half to two times that of the national and global averages.

Eskenazi Health has neighborhood health centers throughout Marion County and we have health centers in each of the three identified neighborhoods.

In the effort to combat the issue of diabetes in the neighborhoods surrounding our three health centers, six full-time community health workers will be hired specifically for this effort. Three are being hired as part of the grant initiative and Eskenazi Health has agreed to match this number to bring the total to six.

These community health workers will be hired from within these communities. They will help engage their neighbors and assist them in navigating the health system and connect them to community resources.

They will not only be trusted, qualified individuals from each neighborhood but they will become a part of our health care team, allowing us to extend our reach outside the four walls of our health centers.

Once engaged, these individuals identified as high risk for diabetes will not only have the resources of the community health workers, but also the community partners and organizations that make up this critical collaboration to reduce diabetes. We also are able to get them linked to the vital care they need through the Eskenazi Health system.

We're eager to deepen our partnership with the residents of these neighborhoods to improve education about diabetes and to connect people to the care they need. We think this approach has broad applications across our entire system and across the health care landscape.

This experience means everything to me. At Eskenazi Health, obstetricians from the IU School of Medicine work with some of the best labor and delivery nurses in Central Indiana. They know every pregnancy is different, and the level of support has been incredible. For more information, please visit EskenaziHealth.edu.

Beech Grove Chamber benefits community

By Renee Harlor, Executive Director of Beech Grove Chamber of Commerce

I've come to realize that a lot of people wonder what the chamber of commerce does. According to the International Chamber of Commerce, the term first appeared in 1599 in Marseille, France. Local merchants formed a collective group that allowed them to discuss issues facing businesses in a public forum. Today there are thousands of local chambers across the United States. When someone asks what the chamber of commerce does, one may answer that it unites business owners to act as advocates on behalf of the business community. The majority of chambers do this and much more.

The Greater Beech Grove Chamber of Commerce mission statement says we are "partnering to build a dynamic community benefiting the greater Beech Grove area." How are we doing this? In addition to being an advocate for the business community we provide our members with fun networking opportunities, training programs, member discounts and support.

We believe a strong community is made up of businesses, nonprofit organizations, residents and community leaders that work together and support one another. In addition to serving local businesses, we host several community events including Music on Main and the Community Fair. We also award a yearly scholarship to two students. The chamber is a resource for residents. We are happy to provide free information about local events and things to do. We can make recommendations for those searching for things such as a local plumber or great restaurant.

We have recently created a committee focused on community outreach. This will give our members the opportunity to help us give back to the community in the form of volunteer days and more. We are partnering to build a dynamic community; please join us.

There is still time to sign up for our 11th Annual Golf Outing! It takes place on June 22 and helps fund community programs. For more information on our golf outing or our organization please visit BeechGroveChamber.org or call (317) 800-8499.

Solo: A Star Wars Story

A prequel sure to please fans

MOVIE REVIEW

By Adam Staten

There likely isn't a more dedicated and passionate fan base than Star Wars fans. However, legions of avid Star Trek enthusiasts would likely say otherwise. Regardless, despite there being a number of films, characters and planets in the Star Wars universe, truly devoted followers of the series are able to keep these intricate factoids straight with relative ease. Knowing this fanatical allegiance that Star Wars has built and been able to maintain for several decades, Disney is going to milk it for all its worth. This past weekend saw the release of the latest film in the Star Wars series.

Solo: A Star Wars Story is a prequel, telling the origin of a beloved figure in the Star Wars universe. Can you guess which one? As the film opens, we see the young but troubled Han as he's attempting to illegally commandeer a space cruiser. Looking to leave his life of crime behind and build a better future for himself and Qi'ra, they concoct a risky plan. But that doesn't work quite as expected and is forced to call an audible, making lemonade out of lemons.

Never one to stay down for long, young Han soon encounters a lifelong buddy through his series of unfortunate events. Oh, he also reverts back to his old, less than legal ways as Mr. Solo soon falls in line with a group of shady but albeit likeable characters. Han and his new buddies are then jet setting across the galaxy on a seemingly impossible quest to secure copious amounts of a rare commodity for an even shadier and much less likable figure.

Solo: A Star Wars Story is a film that moves with an incredibly brisk and rapid pace. From the opening scene right up unto the closing credits, the action does not stop. The filmmakers assume that we're more than familiar with these characters as there is little exposition, instead choosing to focus on the characters' mammoth quest. Strong writing and even stronger direction are seen in spades in this latest Star Wars entry.

Even though the writing and Ron Howard's direction are more than solid, it's not all perfect. For instance, Alden Ehrenreich, as the young Solo, delivers a very vanilla performance. He's extremely bland, boring and forgettable as one of the Star Wars' series biggest characters. Additionally, Donald Glover as Lando Calrissian is likely the best thing about the entire film and he's given way too little screen time.

Solo: A Star Wars Story will most assuredly go on to gross a ton of cash. Even though it's not perfect, Star Wars fanatics and those with just a passing interest in the outer space saga will be more than pleased.

NUTRITION

By Wendell Fowler

Our primal urge to cook food over fire is deeply rooted. If you can outrun it, then kill it, cook it and eat it. And that applies to plant foods too, except they don't run. Our early ancestors discovered fire and used it to spit-roast meat and root vegetables, stay warm, ward off predators and venture into harsh climates. The oldest evidence dates back 300,000 - 400,000 years, associating the earliest control of fire with Homo sapiens and Neanderthals.

If you are the family grill master who has survived or is worried about cancer, I don't mean to grinch your picnic, but Nutrition Review and countless highly trustworthy sources all agree: cooking meat too close to open flame creates a black, carcinogenic black char. The National Cancer Institute urges avoiding direct exposure of meat to an open flame and lengthy cooking times, especially at high temperatures, can prevent formation of cancerous elements.

This is a serious matter. So serious that researchers are currently investigating the - association between meat intake, meat cooking methods and cancer risk. Ongoing studies include the NIH-AARP Diet and Health Study, the American Cancer Society's Cancer Prevention Study II, the Multiethnic Cohort, and studies from Harvard. Similar population research is being conducted in the European Prospective Investigation into Cancer and Nutrition (EPIC) study.

- Chef Wendell's tips to enhance the grilling experience:
- Raise the grill so meats aren't licked by flames.
 - Slow down and enjoy the moment.
 - Remove charred portions.
 - Cut produce into large enough chunks or you'll obliterate it.
 - Brush with oil and grill sliced pineapple, peaches, bananas, peppers, asparagus and zucchini directly on the grates.
 - For smaller fruit, use a grill basket or bamboo skewers soaked in water to prevent food falling onto the coals.
 - Because of their lower sugar content, veggies can stand a slightly more intense fire than fruits.

- Baby red or Yukon gold potatoes come out better when parboiled before grilling so they will cook through without burning.
- Toss veggies or mushroom caps with oil, salt and pepper before cooking over medium heat.
- Cut avocados in half, remove stone, brush with oil and place on a hot grill, green-side-down for several minutes to create grill lines. Drizzle with lemon salt and pepper and eat out of the shell with a spoon.
- Lightly salt eggplant about 30 minutes before grilling to draw out moisture and concentrate flavor.

Your holy temple/earth suit loves you. Love it back.

What's the difference?

GRAMMAR GUY

By Curtis Honeycutt

When it comes to the finer things in life, some people have distinctly refined tastes. They can tell the difference between a St. Francis and a Sterling Cabernet Sauvignon. And — yes — I did just ask Google about fancy, expensive red wines in order to make that comparison. Others couldn't tell one of Napa Valley's best bottles of wine from a box of Franzia. In their opinion, both wines "get the job done," so to speak.

Today we're looking at one of grammar's narrow distinctions: when to use "different than" and when to use "different from." If you think there's not much difference, just consult with my reader inbox — I often get electronically scolded for using the wrong one by Grammar Guy's most refined readers. So, grab your grammar ascots, because it's about to get fancy up in here.

In general, "different from" is the preferred phrase among grammar aficionados. It's an adjective phrase that is used to compare two things. Here are a few examples: Marty set himself apart from the rest of the field with his stunning flute solo. Although the new Space Wars movies had special effects different from the originals, I think they're all pretty much the same movie.

Although "different than" shouldn't be employed as often, it does have its merits. Like "different from," "different than" is an adjective phrase used to compare two things. What makes it unique is that the phrase often gets divided. For example: Brian picked a different balloon animal than the one Noah picked. I understood Barry's new neck tattoo to represent something much different than your interpretation. Mike took a different route than I did to get to the monster truck rally.

"Different from" is seen as the gold standard among editors, linguists and grammarians, although some people can't really notice a difference (like in our wine example). In general, use "different from." An easy way to remember this is that "from" starts with "f," just like "formal" does. So, in any formal writing, make sure you use "different from"; the grammar enthusiasts will think you're one of them.

Veteran-owned brewery brings affordable craft beer to the Southside

Opening – Webster Brewing Company is dedicated to providing truly remarkable beers, with an emphasis on quality, consistency and smooth drinkability. The Greenwood-based brewery, founded by Clay Webster, currently offers the Elbridge Amber and Cream Ale, along with Prohibition IPA. In development are seasonal fruit ales and winter spiced brews.

Webster Brewing Company self-distributes to local bars, restaurants and other central Indiana establishments, and plans to open a tap room in about a year. Find out where you can try Webster craft beers at websterbrewing.com.

Open registration for PGA Jr. League

Sports – Registration is still open for PGA Jr. League at several Indianapolis area courses, which are all actively seeking boys and girls of all skill levels to join these teams. No prior golf experience is required and families do not need to have an existing relationship with the facility to participate in these open enrollment programs. Courses include: Harrison Lake Country Club (Columbus); Otter Creek Golf Course (Columbus); Hillview Country Club (Franklin)*; Hawk's Tail Golf Course (Greenfield); Arrowhead Golf Course (Greenfield); and Hickory Stick Golf Club (Greenwood). PGA Jr. League is a fun and engaging way for boys and girls ages 13 and under (facilities denoted with an asterisk above also offer 16 and under teams*) to learn and play golf as co-ed teams, with expert coaching from PGA and LPGA Professionals who serve as Captains. Kids wear numbered jerseys and play in a supportive, two-person scramble format that encourages mentorship, builds confidence and promotes sportsmanship. Parents can visit PGAjrLeague.com and search by ZIP code or facility name to register online.

Franciscan Health EMS educator honored for pediatric safety work

Award – Josee Miller has built a career around ensuring the safety and care of patients and her efforts have earned her accolades from the Indiana Emergency Medical Services for Children (IEMSC). Miller, an emergency medical services educator, clinical coordinator and paramedic for Franciscan Health Indianapolis, has been selected as one of Indiana's Health Care Heroes for Children, IEMSC reports. She has been cited for developing protocols for the safe ambulance transport of youngsters and her "dedication to ensuring high-quality pediatric emergency care." She and other recipients will be honored at a May 23 ceremony and breakfast hosted by IEMSC at the Indiana Region of the American Red Cross. Affiliated with Franciscan Health since 2013, Miller currently serves as the clinical coordinator for EMS education. She also oversees more than 60 EMS providers, schedules employee shifts and students' clinical experiences in the field and hospital. Miller, a resident of Indianapolis, is a licensed paramedic and emergency medical technician and has also been involved in managing Franciscan Health's education outreach to area fire departments.

Weekly Devotion

Pray without ceasing. In everything give thanks: for this is the will of God in Christ Jesus concerning you. Quench not the Spirit. Despise not prophesying. Prove all things; hold fast that which is good. Abstain from all appearance of evil.

1 THESSALONIANS 5:17-22

Paul, in a few short phrases, gives some very good instructions. Prayer should precede everything else but not just any effort at praying. Prayer without faith in Jesus Christ and everything He stood for and taught is futile. It is written that Jesus said that where two or three are in agreement in prayer, what they ask for they will receive. They must ask in faith believing and be in agreement that what they are asking God for is something Christ would ask for and expect to get.

Once they have asked, they need to express gratitude for the answer God gives. It is not always the answer one expects but every time one prays they will get an answer. If we ask outside what is the will of God we will not and should not expect to receive anything from the Lord. James reminds us that a double-minded man will get nothing from God.

Next, we must be prepared to accept the will of God's Holy Spirit. We need to be very careful about quenching the Holy Spirit, which means that we should not reject His answers nor His appeals. He speaks the mind and the will of God to all of us and we need not debate with Him nor do anything to frustrate His works.

He, the Holy Spirit, is the Spirit of prophesy and to despise His words as expressed through God's anointed prophet is a very dangerous thing. However, one must give all things prophesied scrutiny and by that I mean those things have to be true to God's Word and His expression of it.

One has said that appearance is everything. It may not be everything but it is a lot of what everything is. We must do all we can to be aware of our surroundings and how we look to others as we go forward living for Christ. As Paul said there are things that may be alright for me but not expedient for the Gospel's sake. May we all take these words seriously as we move through this day and go and live for Christ.

God bless and go and have a great day.

5 Tips for Summer Road Trips

FAMILY FEATURE - For many people, summer means setting out on a road trip in search of bucket-list-worthy excitement or a relaxing vacation.

Whether you're going down the road to visit family or across the country to see a national monument, it is important to prepare your vehicle – and its tires – before you pull out of the driveway.

These five safety tips can help get your family ready to hit the road this summer:

1. CHECK YOUR TREAD – A tire's tread depth can determine a vehicle's safe stopping distance. You can check your tread depth by sticking a penny upside-down in a tread groove. If you can see President Lincoln's head, it's time to replace your tires.

2. ENSURE PROPER TIRE PRESSURE – Low tire pressure can lead to poor handling and gas mileage, excessive wear and overloading. Drivers should check their tire pressure at least once a month, and especially before any long trip. Use a dependable air gauge or stop by an automotive store like Discount Tire or America's Tire to take advantage of complimentary air checks.

3. ROTATE OFTEN – Tires should be rotated at least every 6,000 miles or earlier if irregular or uneven wear develops.

4. INSPECT YOUR TRUNK – Some new vehicles no longer come equipped with a spare tire, opting instead for tire inflation kits that feature puncture coating sealants and air compressors, or even run-flat tires. Check your trunk to see what your vehicle contains and make sure you have a roadside assistance plan should the need arise.

5. DON'T OVERLOAD – The combination of heat and overloading a vehicle, which can be common during summer travel, is one of the most dangerous conditions for a vehicle's tires as overloaded tires can overheat and possibly fail.

When it comes to summer driving safety, it can be imperative to check your tires early and often. Knowing the condition of your tires can keep your family safe and your vehicle in quality condition.

"It is important that drivers know how to check and maintain their tires and recognize the warning signs of when to replace them, especially during the hotter months," said Tom Williams, senior vice president at Discount Tire. "Keeping customers and their families safe is our No. 1 priority each summer."

WHY PRINT?ENGAGEMENT

According to International News Media Association, printed newspapers boast the highest amount of ad engagement by readers.

While other mediums allow for the option to ignore or "skip" an advertisement, newspaper ads are built into the content. (inma.org)

AFFORDABILITY

Newspapers offer a lower cost per thousand readers than radio, tv and direct mail advertising. (mediaspectrum.net)

TARGETING

Loyal readers and niche audiences are easier to reach when you know the geographic area and circulation. (fedena.com)
