Franklin Township neighborhood turns tragedy into inspiration

By Nancy Price

A Franklin Township neighborhood has rallied together after someone set fire to a Little Free Library created by one of the residents.

On Saturday night, fire was set to about nine mailboxes and the library in a subdivision located near Stop 11 and Emerson Avenue. Tom and Michelle Wagner woke up to find their library outside of their home destroyed.

The Wagners had built the library, made from wood from a century-old home for neighborhood adults and children. The couple had just recently put some finishing touches on the library, which held up to 50 books at a time, before it was damaged beyond repair.

"The post hit my page and then I shared it seeking donations (for another library)," Beasley said. "The number of response I got was just crazy."

Beasley contacted Ken "KJ" Carter of Advanced Limousine, who offered to accept donations. Then she called her uncle, Tim Logue, who owns USA Insulations, and asked him if he might be interested in building 10 Little Free Libraries, one for each part of the edition.

"He said, 'I can't build 10. But I can build 100 if you'd like,'" she recalled.

Plans are now underway to build as many Little Free Libraries in as many communities as possible. Books and other materials will be accepted at Advanced Limousine at 8614 Southeastern Ave., as well as Arby's at 2130 E. County Line Road, where Beasley is a manager and USA Insulation at 2101 W. US 40, Greenfield.

Michelle said she is grateful for the support and efforts of those who want to keep the little free libraries going.

"I think Lillie and her uncle are doing an amazing thing," she said. "It's amazing to take a random act of vandalism and change it into a positive community project. I'm hoping to be able to work alongside of them to get this project off the ground."

IMPD event to raise money for cancer

The Indianapolis Metro Police Department is taking National Coffee with a Cop Day one step further – to raise money and awareness for cancers that affect both men and women.

Coffee with a Cop is a designated day to celebrate relationships between officers and the communities they serve. IMPD has announced a fall fundraising campaign called "We are Tougher than Cancer". The campaign will run this month through the end of November. Last year's first campaign, called "No-Shave November", raised more than $27,000.

POPPING OPEN A COLD ONE

Beech Bank Brewing opens in Beech Grove

BY STEPHANIE DOLAN

We each go through our daily lives coming into contact with friends and strangers. Often, we recognize when we have affected someone in even some small way. But sometimes we don't. Sometimes we move through our days completely unaware of how we've touched someone else's life.

Pioneer poet, Sarah T. Bolton (1814-1893) – for example – could always hope as a writer that she would continue to affect readers long after she was gone but she could never have guessed that she would be the partial inspiration behind one of the newest businesses in Beech Grove today.

More than 100 years ago, Bolton – a diplomat's wife and early women's rights activist – settled on the land at 1300 Churchman Ave. that is now known as Sarah Bolton Park in Beech Grove. Beech Bank Farm, which was eventually purchased by the city of Beech Grove, was a short walk down the road from where locals can now find Beech Bank Brewing, 301 Main St.

Bolton is best known for her poem, "Paddle Your Own Canoe" and this has been taken on as a motto of sorts by the owners of the brewery. It can clearly be seen etched into the glass of Beech Bank's front window.

Perfect timing

The brewery opened Sept. 12 in the midst of the Beech Grove Fall Festival, drawing in a few more first-timers as a result of the festivities.

"We got the go-ahead from the city of Beech Grove on a Tuesday and we opened on a Wednesday," co-owner Dave Farris said. "We also really wanted to be open for the festival."

Farris continued on to say that business at the brewery is going very well.

"Already, about 40 to 50 percent of our business is repeat customers," he said. "I was thinking Beech Grove for this from the beginning. I was born and raised here. I always wanted to see this place do well and for me it was always a no-brainer."

This bodes well for a business hoping to become a community staple, both for locals as well as those traveling in from other areas of the city.

The dream that became Beech Bank began with Farris.

"Probably about 20 years ago someone bought me a Mr. Beer kit for Christmas and I made one batch of it," he said. "A few years later, my cousin got me back into brewing and it took off. Liquid malt extract brewing is the training wheels version and that's where we started. From there, we went to all-grain brewing and then went to bottling."

Farris soon realized that he was no fan of regularly cleaning 60 beer bottles before refilling them all over again.

"Then we went to kegging and the next thing you know you have a mini production facility in your house," he said. "Friends kept telling me I should do this professionally and here we are."

Five years in the making

Farris began seriously making plans for the business in 2013.

"Eventually I got to the point where I realized you can read all the books you want but eventually you just have to set up a white board and start making lists," he said.

The former home of The Southside Times newspaper, the 3,200-square-foot space is home to an eight-barrel brew house.

"On any given day we could make up to 16 barrels, which is a little over 550 gallons of beer," Farris said. "Right now we're brewing eight barrels at a time."

"Our max volume would probably be brewing 16 barrels three times a week," Wilder said.

The brew house is state-of-the-art, complete with programmable logic control, manned by Wilder.

"This thing is programed in such a way that you just can't screw it up," Farris said.

The brewery has no kitchen but patrons are welcome to carry in their own food. Customers are also welcome to utilize Grub Hub or Uber Eats to have food delivered. In the future, an ordering kiosk as well as food trucks may be made available to patrons.

A friendly partnership

Farris co-owns the brewery with longtime friends John Solmos, Micah Wilder, Dennis Klutzke and Pat Brownlee. Farris

..... says he is the lynch pin of the group.

"Micah is an excellent controls engineer," Farris said. "Thank goodness for Dennis and Pat because everything you see here has been done by those guys. I'm not a carpenter. I'm the catalyst - the snowflake that started the avalanche."

The five selections available on a daily basis are The Blond, Hefeweizen, IPA, Pale Ale and Sweet Porter.

"My favorite beer is the Porter," Wilder said. "I like the darker malty sweet taste. I home-brew beer and I owned a business before this and Dave told me he was starting a brewery and I thought that sounded pretty interesting, and I was in."

"All of our beers have been popular in stages," Farris said. "Everyone's enjoyed the Blonde Ale, the IPA, the Hefeweizen and the Porter. The ones that have consistently sold the best so far have been the Hefeweizen and the Porter."

Farris said that Americans tend to want clear beer.

"It's just what they're used to," he said.

"What kind of beer does Farris himself prefer?"

"Cold," he said, laughing. "I like all kinds of beer."

Beech Bank Brewing is open from 6-10 p.m. Thursday and Friday, 3-10 p.m. Saturday and noon to 7 p.m. Sunday. Beer flights are available as well as growlers.

Annual Holy Name Oktoberfest A success

By Nancy Price

Last weekend's Oktoberfest in Beech Grove was another success, according to event chairpersons for the festival, which is hosted annually by Holy Name of Jesus Catholic Church.

The fundraiser was on par with money raised from last year, which was the largest year on record. Funds go toward the church and Holy Name Catholic School.

In addition to the biggest raffle prize of $23,000, several 50/50 drawings were held throughout the evening, as well as other giveaways, including two tickets to the Indianapolis Zoo; two tickets to the Children's Museum, four reserve tickets to the 2019 spring season of the Indianapolis Indians, two tickets to the Indiana State Museum and various gift certificates for lessons at Main Street Music in Beech Grove.

New additions to the event's Health and Safety Fair included 30 free health screenings for all ages, such as blood pressure, cholesterol, asthma evaluations/blood sugar, eyesight, dental exams, flu shots and information from agencies and medical experts on living a healthy life, in addition to information from senior/assisted living and rehab providers.

Guests also enjoyed the authentic homemade German food, craft beer, musical entertainment, kids' zone and new playground.

"We would like to thank all of our sponsors and the many volunteers that spent timeless hours planning and implementing the event," said Terry Galuska, an event chairperson for Oktoberfest.

For more information about Holy Name of Jesus Catholic Church or Holy Name Catholic School, go to holyname.cc.

1. The Kids Zone included inflatables, games, prizes and balloon animals. 2. Guests of Holy Name Oktoberfest enjoyed a build-a-bar as part of the beer garden tent. 3. The Health & Safety Fair offered basic checks, like cholesterol, sugar, vision, bone density and advise about senior living. 4. Holy Name Children's Choir entertained visitors. 5. Guten Tag! Ray and Maddie Burger of Indianapolis went all German for Oktoberfest. (Submitted photos)

The History of the Nicholson-Rand House: Part II

HAUNTS & JAUNTS

By Rick Hinton

Correction to last week's article: I reversed the original location with where the home ended up at Southport & Mann Roads. Apologies for any confusion.

When David Nicholson began building his Gothic-Revival house in the small settlement of Valley Mills, at Mann (then known as Spring Valley Road) and Mills Roads on the southwest fringe of Indianapolis, he was also involved in the construction of the Marion County Courthouse in downtown Indy. Many of the design features and construction materials from the courthouse materialized in this home. Back in the day, the journey from downtown to Valley Mills was an all-day trek along a series of twisty dirt roads. Rumor was, a constant caravan of horse-drawn wagons delivered building materials to the house site. Colored tile in the home was the same as in the courthouse, as was interior woodwork. Leftover stuff? Nicholson's home and the courthouse were both completed at the same time in 1876.

The home, with ties to the downtown courthouse and eventually DePauw University, weathered decades of history until it finally rested empty and abandoned. Saved for preservation purposes, it was moved in 1997 to its present location to a corner lot at Southport and Mann Roads. The town of Valley Mills, complete with a post office, faded from memory. However, the home that Nicholson built gained a new lease on life after the move: new ownership, with an eye toward bringing it back to its former glory. A photo taken during that move gave birth to an example of a "haunted" house. The rest, as they say, is history!

Mike Fender's photo of a young blond girl in a blue dress staring out of an upstairs window during the move of the home garnered a lot of attention. Fender felt that it was a natural anomaly caused by a trick of the light on the window screen. He reasoned the blue dress could be explained away because the room was blue. It appears, however, that the figure is standing in front of curtains. And... when the photo is blown up, regardless of the resolution, the figure does not distort. This photo was the birthplace of the stories that would come soon after; and the evolution of an urban myth.

The stories seem pulled out of the air. Who was the blond girl in the blue dress? Nicholson and his first wife's daughter; the ghost of a former tenant who had fallen out of that window; a young girl accidentally killed by hunters in nearby woods; the ghost of a child buried in a nearby family cemetery. Then, tales of a former renter hanging himself in an upstairs bedroom; a kindly women's spirit hanging around; blood dripping from the walls, muffled screams and the odor of decaying flesh. My favorite theory is that the home was a stop on the Underground Railroad, where slaves perished in an accidental basement fire (I believe they have this house mixed up with the Hannah House).

None of these stories have been historically verified. Yet, through the vast number of years and a turnover of residents, some things might have happened that weren't reported or swept under the rug: unwanted pregnancies, a 'simple' minded child being hidden away, succumbing to an illness or a death? It's always a possibility.

One internet site proclaims that the Nicholson-Rand home is one of the most haunted sites in the country. Hmm? Present owners have never experienced any paranormal activity of any kind. Hmm? I would imagine, by now, they are weary of sight-seers parking in their drive to get a look at "the home with the stories." I guess it comes with the territory. On June 22, 2003, the home was posted to the National Register of Historic Places.

Rick Hinton, a Southport resident, loves researching things that go bump in the night. His articles can be read on Facebook: Rick Hinton, Southport Paranormal Examiner. Hinton conducts paranormal investigations with his team, South Central Paranormal.

Red Line construction impacts Virginia Avenue; update on Meridian Street

Construction – On or after Monday, Oct. 8, Red Line construction crews will move to Virginia Avenue. Traffic lanes will be restricted between New Jersey Street and Prospect Street. Pedestrians, bus riders and drivers will notice lane closures and flaggers at future station locations: Woodlawn, Merrill and Prospect. This phase of construction is estimated to last through December. Crews will be focusing on utility work, storm water improvements, road resurfacing, sidewalk and curb repairs and ADA ramps, and station foundations. Meridian Street update: Between 18th and 38th Street, drivers will notice traffic pattern shifts as crews begin work on Meridian Street station foundations in October. Vehicle travel will continue to be restricted to one lane in each direction. The travel lane restrictions also reduce parking and left turns in some portions of the construction area. Professional cabaret theater opens in Greenwood

First show to feature Indiana pros in a variety format

FEATURE

By Marianne Coil

Learning a simple shuffle step as a 3-year-old started dancer Christopher Tompkins on a journey to 56 countries. Now back home in Johnson County, he's starting a professional cabaret theater at Stage to Screen Studios.

C. Tompkins

His first show, Indiana's Got Talent, opens Friday, Oct. 12 and runs on weekends through Oct. 21. He emphasizes it's not a contest but a show featuring professional entertainers. To compensate for road closures around the Greenwood business district, he's running a buy-one-get-one sale on tickets for the first production.

During Indiana's Got Talent, patrons will see a variety program, including a concert pianist, a magician, a comedian, a ventriloquist and three vocal acts. This is the first in a series of six productions scheduled through April.

The intimate, 76-seat theater is in a building formerly used by a Greenwood department store and a church. The first three rows of seats have cocktail tables and Grafton Peek Catering will manage beverages and snacks. Caterer Jason West said typical charges for beer, wine and liquor would be $3, $5 and $6, respectively. West said it's exciting to be a part of the theater's effort.

Also in development – an open-mic night for stand-up comedians called Laugh Sabbath every Sunday at 7 p.m. The first show is set for Oct. 21, Tompkins said. The Facebook pages of Powerhouse Laughs and Gutty's Comedy Club confirm their collaboration in providing the talent.

Tompkins was checking out real estate for the future theater, when he drove by the Walker Plaza at 350 S. Madison Ave. after a leasing sign went up. He arranged a visit and when he walked in, he sensed "beautiful energy" for a performance space.

After a career as a dancer, cruise director and hotel sales and marketing manager, the Franklin native returned to the area to be near his elderly parents and a sister with Down Syndrome.

He'd been looking for an executive job at a performing arts center but nothing opened for him close to home.

Tompkins decided to start Stage to Screen Studios, a dual-purpose training academy and theater for professional artists. Classes are open to students ages 8 and up and courses are designed to prepare singers, dancers, actors and designers for careers.

A typical semester for a teen or an adult studying musical theater would run 14 weeks for a fee of $700. Tompkins said the academy has 34 enrollees and includes a special-needs component in which his sister, Stephanie, is enrolled. The teachers are well-known area professionals with extensive experience.

Work in the professional cabaret is audition-based and pays wages. Tompkins said the house is non-union to enable more people to accept jobs.

His first teacher in Franklin, Saralee Mann, recognized his talent and told his parents he needed to study with someone in Indianapolis. Tompkins went to Helene Charisse, sister-in-law of dancer Cyd Charisse, and to several instructors associated with Butler University.

After high school, he had $35 in his pocket when he left for New York City on a Greyhound bus in the late 1970s. Staying with a friend, Tompkins waited tables in Greenwich Village while he trained and auditioned. Early breaks included a role in an off-off-Broadway show that eventually moved to off-Broadway and he went to the Poconos with a musical production company.

Back in Indianapolis for a few years, Tompkins got another break as choreographer for the dance team of the NBA's Indiana Pacers. He said he pestered the front office about a job until he was granted an interview. "They hired me dancing unseen," he said, adding that before a meeting with the dancers, a team executive said, "You really can dance, can't you?"

Following a friend's advice, Tompkins found a job as a dancer-singer on cruise ships run by the Sitmar and Princess lines and eventually became a cruise director. In Greenwood, he'll revive Holidazzle, a seasonal show from the cruise repertoire.

His career in hotel sales began in a job with Carlson Companies at an Indianapolis Radisson, where he booked a national convention with a hospitality event involving a road rally for 33 limousines. After this stint, he went back to New York City for more training and auditions until he decided to pursue opportunities in Las Vegas.

In the 1990s, the Miss Universe pageant had to make a last-minute move to Las Vegas because of political unrest in the original hosting country and Tompkins landed a job helping to stage the pageant. He said this opened doors for him to stage other high-profile events on the Las Vegas Strip, including the opening number of an ESPY Awards show.

As he turned 40, Tompkins said he thought he should re-enter the hotel marketing industry and was engaged in multiple development projects in the Southeast. "I got a degree in life."

At home again, he said focusing on just making money is not enough. His goal in bringing long-term cultural plans to fruition in Johnson County is to be successful for "the betterment of all."

FEATURE

By Nancy Price

While the Indianapolis Colts were attempting a win against the Houston Texans during a recent home game, Center Grove resident Bob Goodman was recognized for scoring points off the field.

Goodman received an Anthem Angel award, given by the Indianapolis Colts and Anthem Blue Cross and Blue Shield. The award honors Hoosiers who go above and beyond the call of duty for their communities.

Goodman is Executive Director for WellSpring Center in Morgan County, a nonprofit that helps those faced with homelessness. Previously, he was an executive director for The Social of Greenwood, which provides programs, activities and services for those age 50 and over.

"Starting his tenure there with less than 300 members and leaving three years later with more than 750, his passion for assisting those 50 and over to have an active and fulfilling life was clearly demonstrated," according to an anonymous source who nominated Goodman for the award.

Goodman has a heart for young people as well. He served as a chief program officer for Big Brothers Big Sisters of Central Indiana. In addition, he served as a mentor services director for Starfish Initiative. "During his tenure there, the program grew from just 24 youth to more than 300 21st Century Scholars who were provided college coaches to readily prepare those high school students from economically-challenged households to college graduates," said the source.

Before joining Starfish, Goodman launched Chrysalis Academy, a home in Plainfield for young men ages 18-24 who are aging out of foster care and also worked with Lighthouse Mission, where he received an award as Indy's Best and Brightest (to recognize up and coming talent and the next generation of leaders in the community). As an executive director with Lighthouse, Goodman served more than 100 men with meals, shelter and clothing and coordinated a Thanksgiving meal provided by the Indiana Pacers; he was also a director of development for Good News Mission and created a family shelter and youth center. Goodman was also a teacher for developmentally delayed junior/senior high students and served as a youth pastor.

"Bob's life has not been lived of pursuit of financial gain, accolades, or benefits packages," added the source. "His life has been well-lived in living out his passion to be a mouthpiece for the voiceless, an advocate for those who lack the ability to represent themselves and in coaching others to a life of self-sufficiency and personal success. I feel his more than 30 years of service to our community is deserving of an Anthem Angel Award."

Goodman, who felt a calling to serve as a teenager, said he enjoys volunteering with a diverse group of people, learning about them and turning these acquaintances into friends, which is what also motivates him to succeed. For years, he had the first sentence from a Christian motivational book, The Purpose Driven Life, by Rick Warren, taped onto his phone as a reminder of why he serves his community.

The sentence reads: "It's not about you."

"It's not about what's best for me," Goodman said. "it's about people. (Serving them is) certainly a passion. I thank my Board of Directors all the time for these opportunities. To serve is a wonderful experience. Any accolades I've received, I just look at myself as a coach and I've got a wonderful team and staff and board and the volunteers, they deserve thanks as well. None of my positions have been a one-man show. I'm grateful to those who have mentored me throughout my career."

Each person recognized as an Anthem Angel receives four VIP club seat tickets to the Indianapolis Colts, a feature story and photo in the Colts gameday magazine, The Scout, and on Colts.com and a special on-field recognition at a home game.

Southside events

Ready or not, fall has officially arrived. And while you may not like the cold, the Southside has plenty of events to warm you up. Whether you live in Franklin Township, Garfield Park, Greenwood or Southport, there is something that the whole family will enjoy.

This Saturday, Garfield Park is hosting Ghost of Frankenstein, a classic 1942 film. This also makes for a cheap date; only $5 for admission and $1 for concessions. Go to gpacarts.org for more information.

In the mood for music? The Greater Greenwood Community Band will have a free concert on Oct. 28. Enjoy the spooky, fun ambiance of lights, fog and special guests on a decorated stage with musicians and dancers in full costume. Guests are invited to wear a costume or take a free mask at the door. Haunting Halloween musical arrangements will music from Haunted Clocks, Music for a Darkened Theater, Jurassic Park, Dr. Rockenstein and more. Check out greenwoodband.org/ourevents/Halloween-concert-2018.

Don't miss Southport's Fright Man or Haunted House. At Camp Apocalypse, experiments go wrong and the abandoned military base is occupied with blood-thirsty zombies. Walk or run through the eerie cemetery of "Psychomanthium". If you're not too scared, call (317) 883-7666 for more information.

Want to get a head start on holiday shopping and avoid the Black Friday crowds? Check out Lutheran High's sixth annual Sugarplum Holiday Fair. Go to lhsi.org for more information; to sign up as a vendor, act quickly: the deadline is this Sunday.

HUMOR

TOP 10 REQUIREMENTS
TO GET MY VOTE FOR SENATOR

By Torry Stiles

10. What you did in high school is much less important than what you did last year. Unless you were in high school last year, of course.
9. If you ever try to argue that my tax dollars are yours then you need to rethink our relationship. I'm hiring you, you work for me. I just don't have to give you a watch after 20 years.
8. My next senator is welcome to carry a firearm but I draw the line at pistol-whipping liquor store clerks.
7. I am very skeptical of anyone who tries to solve a problem with nothing but thoughts and prayers.
6. I am very open-minded to any religion that does not require animal sacrifices.
5. Your position on gun control and abortion should never include wishing death on those who disagree.
4. A little weed is okay but I draw the line at, "I lost three weeks after the Grateful Dead concert in '85."
3. Have a job as something other than "politician."
2. Know the difference between "right," "wrong" and "nobody's gonna catch me."
1. Everyone has a few skeletons in their closet but if you're still piling them in there we may now have a problem.

BELIEVE IT!

Our nation has all sorts of arcane, nonsensical laws on the books. Each week, we'll share one with you ...

In Minnesota, citizens may not enter Wisconsin with a chicken on their head.

Treatment costs are increasing

Beginning in 2019, Citizens Energy Group will increase the charge to treat waste water generated by customers of Beech Grove Sewage Work. Currently, Citizens Energy Group charges 0.78 cents per 1,000 gallons to treat our waste water. In 2019, the charge to treat our waste water rises to 0.98 cents per 1,000 gallons to treat our waste water. This is an estimated increase to our budget of approximately $160,000.00 to $180,000.00 per year. This is simply too much of an increase for the city to bear. Unfortunately, the cost must be reflected in adjusted rates. Our Common Council will host a public hearing on Monday Oct. 15 at 7 p.m. in our Council Chambers to hear this proposal on first reading. The general public is invited to attend.

Respectfully Submitted,
Dennis B. Buckley
Mayor, city of Beech Grove

Amazon to open Greenwood distribution facility

By Nancy Price

Amazon has announced plans to build a distribution center in Greenwood.

The Seattle-based company, which is the largest Internet retailer in the world, will provide at least 1,250 full-time jobs to its future location on Allen Road (between Graham and Collins Roads).

The 615,000 square foot receive center is expected to open in September 2019, with full employment by the end of 2021. According to Greenwood Mayor Mark Myers, Amazon was attracted to the location due to its close proximity to a major highway, off the Worthsville Road exit, that connects to Interstates 70, 69 and 74.

"Greenwood is pleased to welcome Amazon to the community," Myers said. "It's a strong sign for our city when the world's second largest company chooses Greenwood to invest more than $80 million and $2 million in public infrastructure improvements. They plan to hire more than 1,250 people and pay them more than double the current minimum wage in Indiana. It's a win-win for all involved and we look forward to a promising future."

Full-time jobs at the $80 million facility will include parcel, fulfillment, management and administration. Equipment will include IT scanning and picking, material-handling, parcel sorters, conveyor and racking systems.

FedEx Corporation had originally set sights on a $259 million distribution center at the location before canceling those plans in March.

Indianapolis-based Scannell Properties has been chosen to build the facility.

Roncalli teacher honored for service

Honor – Roncalli High School teacher Julie Albertson received the Servant Leader of the Year Award from the Archdiocese of Indianapolis. The Archbishop of Indianapolis Charles Thompson presented the award to Albertson at Saints Peter and Paul Cathedral. This award is presented to a person who works with young people in ministry. Albertson is most recognized for her work as the Youth Minister at St. Mark the Evangelist Catholic Church. "Julie embodies everything that it means to be as Servant Leader. Her commitment to her own faith is incredibly evident in her actions and words. She actively works in a constantly changing and growing parish at St. Mark to draw young people closer to Christ. Her guidance in putting together solid programming and making sure that it is relevant to high school and middle school youth has been of great leadership to the South Deanery," said Jeff Traylor, Roncalli's Director of Campus Ministry.

Roncalli senior achieves Eagle Scout ranking

Achievement – Roncalli senior Walter Colvin has achieved the rank of Eagle Scout. This is the highest honor granted by the Boy Scouts of America. Only 4 percent of scouts attain the rank of Eagle Scout. Wally is the son of David and Millie Colvin. He is a member of Troop 51, sponsored by St. Jude Catholic Church, where he served as a Patrol Leader and Instructor. Wally earned 31 merit badges to achieve the rank of Eagle Scout with Bronze and Silver Palms. In addition, he is a Firecrafter member and a member of the Order of the Arrow. He also earned the Arrow of Light, Light of Christ, Parvuli Dei and the Ad Altare Dei religious awards. Wally's project was to power wash, repair and paint 12 picnic tables; construct a new courtyard sign; and build a Buddy Bench for the playground. All of this benefited I.P.S. School #65.

Athletics – Roncalli senior Nick Perkins won the Marion County Cross Country Championship on Sept. 29 at Brebeuf Jesuit. Perkins covered the 5000-meter course in a time of 15:55.06, which is the second-best time of his career. He led from the outset, holding a 15-meter lead at the 2-kilometer mark. He expanded his lead to 60 meters by the 4-kilometer mark, ultimately winning by eight seconds in front of Brebeuf Jesuit's Jack Kovach. Not only is Perkins the program's first county champion, he is the first runner in the program's history to finish in the top seven at a Marion County Championship. Earlier in September, Perkins established a new Roncalli on-campus course record when he ran 16:16 in a home meet with Beech Grove and Greenwood on September 18. Four days later, at Bedford North Lawrence, he shaved 10 seconds off of his own school record with a time of 15:45.48 in the Bedford Invitational.

7 Ways to Help Hurricane Victims

FAMILY FEATURE - Natural disasters come in multiple forms and can quickly devastate many lives in a matter of moments. While they all can cause nightmares for those affected, few are as powerful and destructive as hurricanes.

That's why, when hurricanes make landfall and wreak havoc, help is immediately needed and accepted by the people and communities impacted the most. Here are a few ways you can make a positive impact for those affected by natural disasters, specifically hurricanes:

START A FUNDRAISER

One of the most potentially impactful ways to lend a hand after a natural disaster is to start a community fundraiser. This can be as simple as an online account accepting donations for a group of people and sending a large sum to a relief organization, or as thought-out as a large-scale event, like a raffle or dinner, accepting donations for entry.

DONATE

Money is typically the resource relief organizations can use the most during natural disasters, and it can also be the easiest way for people to lend aid. There are typically many trustworthy organizations available to donate to during times of need.

PROMOTE FUNDRAISING EFFORTS

After you've made a donation yourself, spread the word to others whether it's via word of mouth, social media or other forms of communication. Let friends and family know how they can join the cause.

VOLUNTEER

While it isn't viable for everyone, some people closer to the affected region can directly help those in need with physical help at the place it's most needed. Whether it's passing out supplies, serving food to those displaced or other means of lending a hand, volunteers are a valuable resource following natural disasters.

PROVIDE SHELTER

Another option for people looking to help who are closer to the devastation is to offer shelter, especially if they have family members or friends who have been affected. Assisting at places sheltering the displaced is another way to provide help, if offering space in your home is not an option.

GIVE BLOOD

Injuries can be unavoidable when hurricanes and other disasters strike. One way to help those hospitalized or otherwise injured is to donate blood, possibly saving lives in the process.

STAY PERSISTENT

In the immediate aftermath of storms and natural disasters, the news cycle is dominated by stories of triumph and despair, and by ways people can help. However, the storm is eventually overshadowed by other, more recent news. One major way people can help after a hurricane is by continuing their support long after the storm has passed, as those affected will need assistance, supplies and donations for much longer than just a couple of weeks after the incident. As time passes, it can be helpful to continue donating money and supplies, committing to helping physically rebuild structures and promoting fundraising efforts.

Staying Safe through a Hurricane

While the immense power of hurricanes and tropical storms can greatly affect the lives of many in an instant, there are ways to increase your safety before, during and after the storm. These tips from the American Red Cross can help protect yourself and your family.

BEFORE

- Put together an emergency kit, including basic but crucial items such as: water, food, a first aid kit, cell phones with chargers, contact information for family and friends, flashlights, extra batteries, medications, radios, copies of key personal documents, extra cash and maps.
- Working with your family, create an evacuation plan for your home. This includes discussing how to prepare and respond to emergencies, identifying the responsibilities of each person in the home and practicing the plan.
- As a storm is approaching, stay tuned to local radio or TV stations for the latest updates.
- Be prepared to evacuate quickly, and ensure that your emergency kit and other necessities are ready.

DURING

- Stay inside.
- If power is lost, use flashlights in the dark rather than candles.
- If possible, keep radio or TV stations tuned in for any new or developing information.
- Because waters could be contaminated with sewage or contain other dangerous substances, avoid contact with floodwater.
- If instructed to do so by local authorities, shut off the power and water mains.
- If you must be outdoors, don't walk, swim or drive through floodwater. Don't walk on beaches or riverbanks, and don't allow children to play in or near floodwater.
- Stay out of areas subject to flooding, such as underpasses, dips and low spots.
- If you must drive and are caught on a flooded road with rising waters, get out of the car and move to higher ground.

AFTER

- Communicate with family and friends to let them know you're safe.
- If you are evacuated, don't return until authorities confirm it is safe to do so.
- Continue listening to radio or TV stations for new or developing information.

Find the items in the puzzle going up, down, sideways or diagonally and list them. Each letter is used no more than once.

Dosing down: overcoming sugar addiction

NUTRITION

By Wendell Fowler

We've been warned about sugar but what are we doing about it? I hope by now you're dosing down the cruddy crap. Mountains of science reveal we eat too much of the destructive, albeit socialized, refined carb. Sure, the temple needs glucose to function but Americans consume processed sugar by the kilo. The average adult eats an astonishing 130 pounds annually. That's 13 10-pound bags.

Studies harmonize with what I've been preaching: sugar lowers your vibe and incubates inflammation, heart disease, obesity, cancer, diabetes, Alzheimer's and misery.

Eat three meals and two wholesome snacks or five small plant-based meals a day. The typical breakfast of biscuits and gravy, Pop-Tarts, sugary cereals or Cinnamon's are self-destructive, unhealthy choices; plus, you'll have cravings all day. If you eat irregularly, blood sugar levels drop and you'll feel hungry and crave sugary snacks. Sometimes drinking water, not Diet Coke, diminishes cravings. Remember: refined carbohydrates like whole wheat, bagels, instant white rice and oatmeal and pasta are highly refined and should be avoided. We prefer Ezekiel bread.

With each meal, include clean protein, dietary fiber and healthy fats that help control blood sugar levels. Vitamin deficiencies intensify cravings. Take a food-based multivitamin and a mineral supplement, such as omega 3 essential fatty acids, vitamin D3, sublingual B-12 and raw apple cider vinegar. Certain plant nutrients improve blood sugar control, including chromium, vitamin B3 and magnesium. Exercise, dance, do yoga to reduce tension, boost energy and decrease your sugar jones. Explore your emotional attachment to addiction. the craving could be an emotional need. Don't bring temptation home or to the office. Can't nosh on things that aren't there!

Craving it? Avoid unholy Splenda, NutraSweet or Sweet'n Low that do little to satisfy your sweet craving. If you require a sweetener, try SweetLeaf brand Stevia, not Stevia in the Raw, however. (Read the deceptive label.)

Eat a Medjool date, a spoonful of raw honey or real maple syrup, or a juicy piece of seasonal fruit and then go outdoors for a walk with Mother Nature. Fruits and vegetables usually present no metabolic problems for a normal temple. Cravings last about 10-20 minutes. If you distract yourself with something it often passes.

The closer a food is to God's earth the less sugar it contains. The more you practice this behavior, the easier it gets to dose down. Sugar is sweet and candy is dandy but more so the ambrosia of health and happiness.

Power posturing for ladder-climbing bosses

GRAMMAR GUY

By Curtis Honeycutt

Do you want to hit the fast-forward button on your career? Do you want to collect underlings like baseball cards? If so, I suggest adopting a few fundamental power postures. This is all about making yourself look as big as possible. Wear as many jackets as possible; you'll be sweaty but your co-workers will fear you. Also, stand like you're trying to scare away a bear in the forest.

My favorite power posture takes some work. Before anyone else gets into the office, make everyone else's chair shorter than yours so you'll look like a giant. It may take some MacGyver ingenuity to accomplish this but you're destined for greatness. Do what it takes to literally rise above everyone else. Before you know it, they'll all be your subordinates.

Just like it's essential to view everyone at work as a subordinate, it's also crucial to recognize a subordinate sentence clause when you see one. A subordinate, or dependent clause, is a clause that can't stand alone as a sentence but it adds meaning to a sentence's main clause. The main clause, which is independent, can stand on its own. How about some examples?

I am going to work this morning.

This sentence stands on its own; however, that's not all the information or meaning I intend to convey. Allow me to introduce a subordinate clause:

I am going to work this morning if I can find my keys.

In this sentence, "if I can find my keys" not only doesn't stand alone as a sentence but it adds some important additional information into the sentence. This clause is a subordinate clause.

The word that introduces the subordinate clause itself is called a subordinator, which sounds like some kind of underwater Terminator knock-off movie. Common subordinators include because, since, if, although, while, before, after, unless and until. If your subordinate clause begins your sentence, always add a comma after the clause. Becoming familiar with these subordinators will make it easy for you to recognize subordinate clauses.

If you want that six-figure check, you're going to have to tower over the mere mortal coworkers who either want to be you or date you. Just like subordinate clauses, they can't stand on their own apart from the proximity of your sheer awesomeness. Before you know it, they'll be re-naming all the Forbes lists after you.

Weekly Devotion

2 Now there is at Jerusalem by the sheep market a pool, which is called in the Hebrew tongue Bethesda, having five porches.

3 In these lay a great multitude of impotent folk, of blind, halt, withered, waiting for the moving of the water.

4 For an angel went down at a certain season into the pool, and troubled the water: whosoever then first after the troubling of the water stepped in was made whole of whatsoever disease he had.

JOHN 5:2-4

What would you do to find a cure for what ails you? Here in John's Gospel we read about a pool located in Bethesda (meaning house of kindness and mercy). It was likely near where the sacrifici-cial lambs were brought to the temple there for sacrifice. Once a year, according to Scripture, an angel of the Lord came down and descended upon the waters and "troubled" them and whoever was first to get to and into the waters of this pool was healed of whatsoever affliction or disease they might be afflicted with.

This pool existed until the destruction of Jerusalem most likely and has long since ceased to be. Once Christ, our Healer came, this pool was no longer necessary.

What excites me is that fact that God has been involved in our healing even before Christ came. There are numerous incidents of the healing powers of God in the Old Testament and Christ came to bring that grace to us in the times of the New Testament. Peter writes concerning Christ: "Who, when He was reviled, reviled not again; when He suffered, He threatened not; but committed Himself to Him that judges righteously: 24 Who his own self bare our sins in His own body on the tree, that we, being dead to sins, should live unto righteousness: by whose stripes you were healed." I Peter 2:23-24

In this passage in John we read that this man that Christ healed had been waiting at the pool for eight years. Eight years: think about it. He had to have believed in the troubling of the waters and in the fact that he had to the first one there or lose out on his healing for another full year. Yet, many who seek healing from Jesus expect it instantaneously with no struggle at all on their part. I believe that there are times when we just have to wait upon the Lord for the healing we feel we need now. God's timing is always perfect. When He heals it is perfect. I thank the Lord that I have benefited from His healing grace myself and in most instances, it has been in very troubled times.

I love the Lord. His plan for my and your salvation is perfect and His plans for our lives is just as perfect. May we all, with patience, wait upon the Lord to do His perfect healing work in us.

God bless and go and have a great day.

Paul A. Kirby is the pastor at the Church of God at 3939 S. Emerson Ave.
